COLLEGE DRIVER IGNORED SIGNALS- PENALIZED IN NEW LONDON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 21.—John C. Topacz, former Chapman Technical school pupil, a resident of Lyme, and now a mail carrier, baggage and express messenger for Connecticut college, was in the police court this morning accused of having ignored the signals of Policeman E. W. Riordan who was directing traffic on Main street while the Connecticut Power company was moving a heavy transformer through the street yesterday. The operations of the transfer were such that the highway was blocked in great degree and workmen busy monopolizing the street. Officer Riordan was detailed to the special work of directing automobiles so that the work would not be interrupted and that workmen might labor in safety. Topacz drove down the Williams street hill and into Main street with a couple of girls from the college as passengers. When the point where the transfer work was being performed was reached, Riordan said he called to Topacz but the latter kept on going and continued till the workers stopped him. The officer declared that Topacz laughed at him when an effort was made to secure compliance with the orders given to the police, and told Riordan the city should provide signs that could be seen. The policeman testified that Topacz was more interested in the girls in the car with him than he was in complying with traffic rules.

Topacz denied the statements of Riordan in so far as he declared that he was paying attention to the young ladies. Topacz represented that he had passed the transfer work several times and that he had not been interfered with. He said he would gladly have taken another course had he seen the officer. The girls in the auto called attention to the presence of the policeman at the rear of the car. He denied that he laughed at Riordan or in any way made himself offensive. His testimony was to the effect that Riordan used profanity and told him that young fellows with girls were of the opinion that they were men. The court found Topacz guilty of violation of the traffic ordinance and fined him $5. Topacz appealed and gave a bond of $50 for appearance before the common pleas court next month.

RIDING THE BUMPERS. JOE SLATE COMES SAFE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 21.—Only the care of the Almighty saved the life of Judah Joe Slate, 19, while he was on the way from Providence to New London last night. Joe is alone in the world. He was committed to a reformatory in Howard, R. I., but was farmed out there and was placed with a tiller of the soil in a nearby section. Joe says he received treatment that was harsh and approached cruelty, so he left the farm to seek a change in life. He attached himself to the train from Providence by riding on an axle directly under the vestibule. A jolt would have dislodged Joe from his perch and he must have gone under the wheels to be picked up in a basket. Still he escaped and reached here all right. The conductor of the train handed Joe over to the company's police department and then Richard W. Mansfield took him in charge, that the story told by the boy may be checked up to make certain he is not romancing.

Funeral services for Emma M., wife of Charles R. Cole, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence, 18 Allewife avenue, Ocean Beach, Rev. Phillip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church reading the service. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Viola, wife of Frederick Glynn, was held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Glynn's grandmother, Mrs. James W. Lee, 73 Baker avenue, Groton, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Burial was in Groton cemetery.

The funeral of Miss Mary Walsh, of Pleasant Valley, Groton, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourning friends and relatives. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William J. Fox, pastor of Sacred Heart church, Groton. The bearers were Daniel Driscoll, Edward Harrington, Fritz Vogt and Lawrence Driscoll. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Miss Frederica Smith, of 137 Huntington street; Mrs. Cornelia Santacroce and infant son, Groton; Mrs. Walter Truax, 77 School street; George Celia, Westerly, and Mrs. Benjamin Jones and infant son, Quaker Hill, Waterford, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney is taking his April two days off duty and is spending that time in New York with his son, T. Harold Pinney, who is pursuing the study of law.

A large window in the restaurant of Fred Rotsky, 137 North Bank street, was smashed last night when an intoxicated fellow fell against it. Rotsky complained to the police, but before Patrolman Edward Riordan arrived the inebriate had been assisted to shelter by two companions.

The big transformer of the Connecticut Power company, which was started through Main street yesterday, being transferred from the company's power station, on Water street, to the sub-station on Williams street, and which caused an interruption to trolley traffic throughout the day, was put into position at its new location today.

The sidewalk on State street, corner of Bank street, and in front of the Fitzgerald building, has become dangerous and today the highway department of the city was acquainted with the dangerous condition of the walk by the police. The metal strips that extend the entire width of the walk and which tend to act as a safety device to pedestrians because of the grade, having become loose through constant traffic over them.

Mrs. Annie Hislop has sold a building lot corner of Vauxhall and Ledyard streets, to Bessie H. Young.

Eleanor Pickett Bourque and William Pickett have sold to Nora H. Olson a house and lot on Washington street.

Mrs. H. H. Appledorn today appealed to the police concerning a certain group of youth who damage her property, 32 Sherman street. The complainant declared that the youths visit her premises frequently after 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Patrolmen Carlos Selesnitsky, in making his rounds at Ocean Beach last night discovered the hasp and lock to the merry-go-round, off Bentley avenue, had been removed. An investigation of the amusement device did not reveal that any of its parts had been stolen.

The court of inquiry, which was empaneled yesterday, was in session throughout today and probably not before Friday or Saturday will the inquiry be concluded, after which the finding will be forwarded to the naval department at Washington.

Today the battery compartment on the S-49 was entered. The forward section of the compartment was found badly damaged, so great was the force of the explosion, but the after section was in fairly good condition. The entire battery room had been closed since the fateful explosion of the day before, as it was feared that other batteries might explode.

Ernest W. Swanson, a former resident of New London, died this morning at his residence, 396 Hillside avenue, Naugatuck.

George A. Darrow, New York, formerly of New London, has sold the two family residence, together with a barn and small parcel of land, 39 Huntington street, to Harry R. Griswold, local contractor. The purchaser contemplates making alterations to the house, which when completed, will provide a modern apartment house.

Mr. and Mrs. Israel Goldstein have returned to their abode, 58 Jefferson avenue, having spent several days with relatives in Boston.

A brush fire raged on Forrest St., Groton, this forenoon and for a time it was believed that the blaze would communicate to nearby structures. An alarm was sent in from Box 31, Banham avenue and Poquonnoc road, the Pioneer Hose company responding. The firemen did not apply chemicals but let the blaze burn out. A dwelling owned by Harry L. McCracken 44 Forest street, and a garage were threatened, because of a strong wind.

Mrs. William Beebe and infant daughter of 44 Terrace avenue, were patients discharged at Home Memorial hospital today.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy S. V. Collins have concluded their wedding journey and have returned to their home here. Mr. Collins is employed as station master by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

ONE-WAY TRAFFIC ORDERED FOR BANK ST. AFTER JUNE 1st

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 21.—Right on top of the city council having rejected the proposed plan to widen Bank street between State and Tilley streets in order to permit the double tracking of that part of the street in an endeavor to relieve traffic congestion during the summer season, City Manager William A. Holt this afternoon made it known that the problem of relieving congestion there had been solved and that at an early date Bank street, between State and Tilley streets, would be restricted to one-way traffic, both to automobiles and trolley cars. The plan to make that street partially traversed only in the direction will be put into operation about June 1. In the meantime, the Connecticut company will be notified of the city's action in order that the trolley company can arrange its schedule whereby trolley cars will be operated from State street to Ocean beach by way of Truman, Colt and Washington streets. Traffic between Tilley street and State street will be in a northerly direction only, and an ordinance will be created shortly prohibiting traffic except one way, on and after the date of the law becoming effective.

How the edict of City Manager Holt will be taken by merchants on that part of Bank street where the two-way traffic will be eliminated remains to be seen, but there is sure to be an objection raised and this would occur, no matter what steps were taken to relieve congestion. For two or three years traffic during the summer has been so great at times that congestions frequently occurred, even to the extent of fire apparatus and ambulances being held up. It also became necessary at times to cause a traffic officer to be stationed at every block between State and Tilley streets, in order to keep vehicles moving as rapidly as possible.

Nine automobile drivers received summons today for court appearance because of violations of the city's parking ordinances. None will be presented in court, however, for all were released with a warning. Among those to escape court prosecution was Charles L. Stewart, 122 Broad street, Norwich.

N. Y. MAID RAISES ROW AT DR. TRACY FARNAM'S

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 21.—Emmy Fluckinger, New York, was taken into custody late this afternoon by Patrolman Clarence Martin upon complaint of Dr. Tracy Farnam, 967 Pequot avenue and in the morning the young woman will be in the police court on a charge of breach of the peace.

Dr. Farnam requested the assistance of the police in causing the young woman to leave his home, where she had been employed but a few days. Because of demands of the woman being refused by Dr. Farnam the former refused to leave the residence. Motorcycle Officer McCaskey and Patrolman Martin were sent to the Farnam residence and when the officers arrived there the Fluckinger woman was attired in street apparel and seated in one of the chairs of a living room. Dr. Farnam stated that he had dismissed the young woman from his employ, but she refused to leave unless he paid her fare to New York. This he refused to do and because he took this stand the woman created a disturbance. The woman stated that she was sent to the Farnam residence from a New York employment agency as a governess maid, while Dr. Farnam asserted that he supposed he was to receive the services of a housemaid. After being at the house three days, Dr. Farnam dismissed the woman from his employ and she demanded her car fare back to New York, stating that that was a part of the agreement by which she came to New London. The woman refused to leave the house upon orders to do so from Patrolman Martin and it finally became necessary to take her from the premises by force. When this was done the woman threatened both the officers and Dr. Farnam in strong language. While being placed in a cell at the police station to await her court hearing, the woman attempted to attack Officer Martin but was unsuccessful.

SEAMAN'S BODY SENT TO HIS VIRGINIA HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 21.—As told on The Bulletin's telegraph page today, Theodore Holst, Jr., chief boatswain's mate second class, and resulting as 129 Monument street, Groton was the third seaman to succumb to gas poisoning in the explosion of the submarine base. Holst is married and yesterday afternoon when his wife visited the base hospital and was informed that her husband was on the critical list, she collapsed and had to receive medical treatment.

Matthew T. Greenville quartermaster, first class, Sacramento, Cal.; Frederick Horn, boatswain's mate second class, Freeland, Pa.; Dante Lee seaman first class, East Boston; Miles Sylvester W. Mattock, fireman second class, Charleston, Ill.; Clyde D. Fields, electrician's mate second class, Reno, Nev., and Francis L. Gray, torpedoman second class, Dracut, Mass., have been placed on the hospital critical list. Greenville, who suffered serious lacerations, besides being gassed, was not expected to live throughout last night, but is still battling against death.

The body of Otis J. Cooke, seaman first class, one of those killed yesterday was forwarded to his home at Danville, Va., this evening. Cooke's brother came to New London today and arranged for forwarding of the body to Danville, where he and Seaman's mother, Mrs. Anna Cooke resides. At 6 o'clock this evening services for Cooke were held at a local undertaking establishment and were conducted by Rev. Horatio J. Chase, pastor of the Montauk avenue Baptist church. Three automobiles in the first of which was Captain E. J. King, commander of the base and Lieut. Com. W. D. Snyder, commander of the S-48, accompanied the body to the union station, while 40 blue jackets acted as an escort of honor.

Norwich-Willimantic Buses Re-routing

Owing to the reconstruction of the Franklin Hill highway, buses operated by the New England Transportation company between Norwich and Willimantic will be routed via Lebanon.

Under this plan coaches will leave Norwich northbound at 8:35 a. m., 12:35 p. m. and 4:30 p. m., connecting at Willimantic with trains for Hartford. Southbound, the coaches will leave Willimantic as at present scheduled but will arrive in Norwich 25 minutes later than at the present time on account of the additional mileage.

Temporary permission having been received from the Public Utilities commission, passengers will be handled from Norwich to Lebanon post office at a fare of 40 cents and from Lebanon post office to Willimantic at 40 cents.

The motor coach service will be operated via Lebanon until the new highway is completed which it is understood will be in the vicinity of August 1st.

New Photograph Studio

For the past four weeks carpenters, painters, and decorators have been making over the Barrows shoe store into a new splendid and artistic portrait studio. Mr. W. L. Martin, of Westerly, who has given the work his personal supervision, has been for many years prominently identified with portrait work in eastern Connecticut and Rhode Island, having had establishments in Willimantic and Westerly. The opening of his Norwich studio is to meet the demand of his many local patrons and friends. On Saturday, April 24th, he is planning a special reception day when the public is cordially invited to inspect the studio and his work. Special lighting equipment of the studio makes possible evening sittings for individuals or groups. In addition to this a special department for home portrait work has been organized and a representative, Miss M. M. Mathews, has been secured as assistant to Mr. Martin in his new studio.

Delco Light

An electric light and power plant for the farm, which operates without storage batteries, automatically supplies light and power instantly and sells at a price that places it within reach of every farm owner in the United States is being announced this week by the Delco-Light company, Dayton, Ohio. The Delco-Light company is a subsidiary of the General Motors corporation, second largest industrial corporation in the world.

Carl W. Brown, Inc., are the local Delco-Light dealers, handling the sale and installation of this newest plant.

In presenting the new model 750 automatic Delco-Light, the company has eliminated the use of storage batteries and added new features to the generator which greatly simplify its operation. The result is a plant which can be installed for several hundred dollars less than the battery equipped model of approximately the same capacity.

With installation of this new model, electric light and power is available at the turn of a switch. The generating unit is started automatically whenever a light or power switch is turned on and continues to operate until the switch is turned off, when the plant stops. The generating unit furnishes the current direct to the lights or motor equipment.

When the last light is turned off, the plant stops automatically. The plant of course, is self cranking, current for starting being supplied by a small automobile-type battery.

For use with automatic motor equipment, such as frigidaire, Delco-Light water systems, etc., the outfit is ideal. Opening the faucet at the kitchen sink, or any place where water is required, will start the plant. Just as soon as the pump switch cuts in, the plant is started. As long as water is being used the plant continues to operate. When the faucet is closed, the plant stops. The operation with the frigidaire electric refrigerator motor is just the same. When current is required, the plant operates. When it is no longer needed, it stops.

The new model 750 automatic Delco-Light plant has an output of 750 watts, sufficient to handle two one-fourth horse power motors at the same time, with a reserve of 200 watts for lights, if they are needed.

"On account of the amazingly low price of this new plant, we feel that we have at last placed electric light and power within reach of every farm owner in the United States," declared E. G. Biechler, president of the Delco-Light company, when the model 750 was exhibited for the first time at a convention of Delco-Light dealers last week.

"Here is a plant that is absolutely the last word in engineering and at the same time is so simple in principle and design that any housewife can take care of it. And it is being offered at a most attractive price."

Lots of people who are too conscientious to be manage to suppress the truth.

Broadway Theater

The management of the Broadway theater is offering to the patrons and theatergoers of Norwich one of the most elaborate and pretentious offerings ever attempted on a local stage. We verily agree with him when we glanced at the line up of Keith Albee vaudeville scheduled.

Whitman Bennett, the producer-director, accompanied by the leading members of the company during the filming of Children of the Whirlwind went to Sing Sing for some interesting prison "shots". Location was established in the great enclosed yard of the famous institution at Ossining and the necessary scenes taken before an interested audience in which were Warden Lawes, Principal Keeper McInerney and a group of "trusties."

Lionel Barrymore, Johnnie Walker and Marguerite De La Motte were the principals who drove up from the Whitman Bennett Studios at Riverdale, where the production of the stirring tale of crooks and their regeneration was made.

Arrangements for the taking of the scenes inside the prison had been carefully made in advance, and extraordinary precautions were taken. This was necessitated by the fact that the two male leads—Barrymore and Walker—in addition to a group of extras, were dressed in the gray convict uniform. When the filming was done for the day, all the principal officials were present at the check-up of those passing out through the barred gates so that the remote chance of an escape would be removed.

Children of the Whirlwind will be shown at the Broadway theater starting today. It is a stirring picturization of Le Roy Scott's famous novel.

Lyceum Theater, New London

A play that you will discuss with praise and interest the next morning at breakfast table is the description given to John Bowtel's drama of modern society Just Life, which will be the attraction at the Lyceum theater, New London, Thursday night, April 29th and according to the verdict of the public and critics at the original production in Cincinnati last September this prophecy will be borne out. The producers Walter O. Lindsey and Jacob Oppenheimer have assembled quite a brilliant cast for the coming presentation, one that certainly ought to assure the success of any good play. Amelia Bingham who has been identified with the best of the theaters for years heads the cast together with Marjorie Wood, Vivien Tobins, Millicent Hanley, Esther Lyons Elaine Ivans and Mary Wall, all actresses of quality whose names are constantly found in the New York programs. Equally interesting and promising is the male contingent which John Kane, Clyde Fillmore, Pierre Gendron and James A. Boshell. Miss Bingham was specially engaged as the "guest star" for the original Cincinnati production and it was the success achieved by her coupled with the unusual praises of the play that induced the present producers to acquire the New York production rights.

Mr. Bowie is a young dramatist but apparently of keen observation powers as he has produced a dramatic story that without exaggeration reproduces a chapter of life with astounding realism and no attempt at problem solution. While holding a keen interest for men it may be aptly described as a story of and for women as it deals with conditions that confront them daily. According to accounts it is a very powerful drama and the author and producer are actuated by the feeling in presenting it that the theatergoers are anxious once again to see genuine acting and not mere type or character reproductions without force or conviction.

Palace Theater

For today, Friday and Saturday theater goers will see at the Palace a mammoth five act bill of Paramount supreme vaudeville and feature picture As Man Desires with Milton Sills and Viola Dana.

The vaudeville will consist of the Moulin Rouge Revue in snappy songs and dances, special scenery and gorgeous gowns.

Lone Star Four three men and a girl from the golden west in an act of new time and old time songs.

Taylor and Howard will furnish a sure fire line of hokem that is bound to make you howl.

Frank and Alma will be a novelty variety surprise act.

Frank Meehan in comedy songs and chatter.

Viola Dana, whose transition from light comedy drama to the heavier medium of serious drama was an episode of recent film moment, has the leading feminine role in As Man Desires, a colorful action story of India and the South Seas, which comes to the Palace theater today, Friday and Saturday.

In this picture Miss Dana is co-featured with Milton Sills, and supporting these two stars in an exceptionally strong cast including Ruth Clifford, Rosemary Theby, Tom Kennedy, Paul Nicholson, Lou Bayne Hector Sarno, Anna May Walthall, Edneh Altemus and Frank Leigh.

As Man Desires is the film adaption of Gene Wright's romantic adventure story, Pandora La Croix, a widely read novel, recently published. Viola is seen in the role of Pandora, a bewitching South Seas dancing girl, whose charms raise havoc with Silas when he lands in Tahiti to escape a charge of murder.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

Playing in Marshall Neilan's production of Mike, which is coming to the Breed theater on Sunday, are three of the screen's most famous children Muriel Frances Dana, Frankie Darro and Junior Coghlan.

Muriel Frances Dana got her start in pictures by dancing in a prologue at the Million Dollar theater in Los Angeles. She was only four years old at the time, and her unusual talent was recognized by all who saw her. She was soon given a part in the Thomas Ince production, Hail the Woman, and since that time has been constantly working before the camera.

The boys, Frankie Darro and Junior Coghlan, are both well known to picture audiences. Much of the amusing comedy of the picture centers around the children, their pet dog Lightning and the duck. Neilan, who also discovered Wesley Barry, has the unusual talent of being able to make children act perfectly natural; under his direction and he predicts a great future for each of the three.

Others in the cast of Mike are Sally O'Neill, William Haines, Charlie Murray, Ford Sterling, Ned Sparks and Sam De Grasse. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

Today's bill consists of a double feature program of Ko-Ko song cartune and the Fox News.

Strand Theater

The contender for the championship of England is dressed on the eve of the battle!

The favorite in the annual Derby at Epsom Downs is waylaid on the way to the race!

The hero is kidnapped to prevent him from entering his horse!

The beautiful dancer is murdered mysteriously in her apartment.

These are some of the things that make you sit up in your chair and gasp for breath during the two hours that it takes to unreel Sporting Life, the Universal-Jewel-Maurice Tourneur production now showing at the Strand theater.

Sporting Life is unadulterated melodrama, brought from the famous play down to the present generation, dressed up on lavish sets and elaborate scenes, and possessing a "wallop" with every turn of the camera.

Marian Nixon, one of the younger generation of actresses, proves the confidence placed in her by Universal in trusting her with the leading feminine role and lends her exquisite beauty to the part.

Bert Lytell becomes a romantic, reckless spendthrift who follows the ponies, replaces his fighting protege and licks the champion himself, and does all manner of heroic deeds which should endear him to the hearts of his army of admirers.

Cyril Chadwick, Paulette Duval, Charles Delaney, George Seigmann, Ena Gregory, Ted "Kid" Lewis and others play important roles. The story was adapted by Curtis Benton from the popular play.

Walter Heirs will be seen in his latest riot of laughs Off His Beat, as well as a new news.

RECOVERY IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, April 21—(AP)—Railroad shares led a sharp upward movement of prices in today's market. It was the most impressive recovery since the drastic break last month. Final quotations which were generally around the day's highs, disclosed a long list of net gains ranging from 1 to 6 points. Trading showed a substantial increase in volume over previous sessions this week, the day's sales falling just short of 1,500,000 shares.

Easier money rates, facilitating the operations of pools, provided the chief groundwork for the advance. Call money was officially quoted as low as 3 1-2 per cent for the first time since last September, and that rate was handled as the "outside market," rumors of an early decrease in the re-discount rate of the New York Federal Reserve bank were again in widespread circulation.

Curiously, the rise in prices also was associated with the rise in temperature on the theory that the warmer weather would stimulate the demand for motor cars, spring wearing apparel and other merchandise which has suffered because of recent unseasonable weather. The increase in the Vanadium Steel dividend, the decision of the Commercial Solvents company to retire its 6 1-2 per cent notes and the preferred and Class A stocks and the publication of several favorable earnings reports, including that of the Crucible Steel company whose income for the six months ended March 31 was the best in its history also had a bullish effect on sentiment.

The demand for the railroad shares was stimulated by the continuance of heavy freight car loadings, the publication of a series of unusual favorable earnings statements and reports that the Van Sweringen brothers were planning the formation of a new "Nickel" merger plan.

Atlantic Coast Line soared to 197 and receded to 185 where it was up 6 points on the day, while net gains of from 2 to 5 points were recorded by issues of Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Delaware and Hudson, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, Rock Island, Reading, Southern Railway, Wabash and a few others.

United States Steel common led the advance of the standard industrials by moving up over 2 points to 121 1-4, and closing within a fraction of the top. Net gains of 2 points or more also were recorded by Allied Chemical, American Locomotive, General Motors, Hudson, Preferred, Mack Trucks, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and U. S. Rubber.

Substantial advance in many specialties was accompanied by the operations of bear traders, several of whom, discovered a dwindling floating supply of stocks when they sought to cover their commitments. Du Pont, General Electric, Woolworth, the Commercial Solvents issues and Remington Typewriter, all moved up 4 to 6 1-2 points higher. Local traders again gave an impressive demonstration of group strength under the leadership of Interborough Rapid Transit, the buying movement being accompanied by talk of less opposition on the part of the municipal administration to higher fares.

A few issues failed to participate in the upward movement, the conspicuous of which was Atlantic Gulf & West Indies common, which lost 1 1-2 points to 33 1-2, or a small fraction of the year's

Call money renewed at 4 per cent, which was raised to 5 1-2, the lowest since September 20, 1925. Time money also softened, 60 to 90 days being quoted at 4 1-4 and longer dates commanding 4 1-2. Prime commercial paper unchanged.

Bankers' sterling also pointed upward, closing 1 to 2 cents a pound. Grain and cotton advanced on a bulge on reports of heavy rains in the spring wheat belt. Coffee closed unchanged to 19 points higher Raw sugar was unchanged but futures were

Trading in shares were irregular with the movement of a new record [illegible] at 3.57 1-2 cents [illegible] them to Japanese yen at [illegible] the chief features [illegible] bond firm around $4.85 [illegible] francs were slightly [illegible] 3-8 cents. Norwegian [illegible] 15 points to 21.72

TAFTVILLE

The Ladies Benevolent society of the Taftville Congregational church held its regular monthly meeting in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon, following the business session, at which the president, Miss Gertrude M. Young, presided, there was a social hour with refreshments being served.

Miss Louise Lemaire of North B street is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stone and family of Wauregan.

The first Mrs. William Whitehead of Second avenue was guests early in the week of their son Thomas Whitehead and family of Westerly.

ST. JOSEPH'S PLAYERS STAGE CLEVER MINSTRELS

An audience of 800 heartily applauded the cast in the minstrel show, Stepping Around, which was given Wednesday evening at Parish hall by the St. Joseph's players. The minstrels were well staged the jokes original and the new costumes snappy and attractive and the singing excellent. The opening number was especially fine, the chorus presenting a most attractive appearance. Thumm's orchestra furnished the music and the specialties were directed by Daniel J. Quinn, who has made an enviable record as a director of local talent. He was the producer of Around, Joseph Podurgiel; Dr. Around, Leo Lane; Aloysa Depot; Dr. Wes, Ward Blows Front; De Wes' Joe Dupuis; A Pretty Duet by Miss Mazera Tarnula and Pawlosha; Cornet Solo, I Wish I Had a Sweetheart Like You; Pat Casey's Reward, Zig Bujnowski; Pat of Mine, Duet by Sister Joseph K. Panek; Old Fashioned Rose, Miss Josephine Dempsey; Swanee River Blues, Pat O'Gankowski; Mud Pie Days, the Misses Ovitsoski and Supliski; Fifty-Seven Varieties of Sweethearts, Ed Kozlowski.

Miss May O'Brien and Miss Gertrude Hamlin in popular songs; Chinese Love Song, Edward Krukowski; Cleopatra, Eddie Kozlowski; It's Too Late to Be Sorry, J. Wallace Kane; John Kelly in "Just Thirty Minutes"; grand finale.

The cast follows:

Ladies of the ensemble: Helena Wodarczyk, Jane Pawlowska, Sophia Pawlowska, Victoria Plopa, Catherine Bara, Eugenia Klukowska, Sophia Tomala, Agnes Chmielewska, Josephine Dempski, Helen Stanuloda, Alvina Deputiska, Rose Cwiklinska, Jane Cwiklinska, Jane Supliska.

Gentlemen of the ensemble: Edward Krukowski, Frank Keller, Joe Deputiski, Joe Podurgiel, Walter Konopka, Wadham Salkowski, Vincent Grzymkowski, Peter Korenkiewicz, Joe Zabrowski, Charles Satkiewicz, Alek Wierzbinski, Brownie Labenski, Stanley Makowiecki, Frank Supliski, Leo Gwiazdowski, Zig Bujnowski, Frank Kochanski.

Interlocutor: Joseph K. Panek.

The show will be repeated this (Thursday) evening and following the programme there will be dancing. The committee in charge of the minstrels comprises Joseph Panek, chairman; Leo Tuntsky, ticket seller; Walter Scherkel, ticket taker; John Oney, property manager; Edward Kosiowski and Peter Korenkiewicz.

COL. RANDOLPH COMING TO NORWICH TODAY

Colonel John Randolph, U. S. Army, who is on duty with the 76th Division in New Haven, Conn., will be at the state armory in this city from 12 noon until 2 p. m., today (Thursday).

Colonel Randolph will be pleased to see any one in Norwich who desires information regarding the officers' reserve corps or the citizens' military training camp.

Gave Greeneville Pumper Test

The company from the Greeneville fire station had the pumper out for a test Wednesday afternoon at the tannery pond along North Main street. The suction pipe was put in the pond and two streams were delivered from the pumper. The test served to reveal a weak piece of hose as one section burst during the test.

VETERAN RETIRED LETTER CARRIER REACHES HIS 79TH BIRTHDAY

In his comfortable bungalow home at 12 Robbins court, Herman S. Case, the veteran retired letter carrier, will today (Thursday) quietly observe his 79th birthday anniversary. Both Mr. Case and his wife have but recently recovered from illness which has kept them in the house for some time, but Mr. Case could not resist the warm spring-like atmosphere of Wednesday and was out for a short walk during the afternoon.

Norwich was his birthplace and Norwich has been his home all his life. He was the youngest child in the family of John E. and Mariah Freeman Case, his mother being an aunt of a former well known Norwich town clerk, the late Samuel H. Freeman. His father was a cabinet maker and his parents lived on Franklin street, near the Boswell avenue park, at the time Herman was born, April 22, 1847. His two older brothers, both now dead, Charles Case and Capt. George R. Case, were both well known in the city and state, the former having been for years the manager of the Western Union telegraph office in this city, and the latter for 45 years in the Internal revenue department at Hartford.

HERMAN S. CASE

His earliest school days were spent in a schoolhouse on Cliff street on the site since occupied for many years by the Madden cigar factory, but when the Broadway school was opened the classes were all transferred there and he attended the Broadway school on the first day it was opened.

When the Civil war broke out he was too young to enlist being but 14, but his brothers were both in the Union army, Charles enlisting in the 20th Connecticut under Capt. Isaac Brumley, and George becoming a captain in a First Louisiana regiment, the first regiment of colored troops to be organized in New Orleans and having white officers.

Herman went to work in the armory which was on Franklin street at that time, remaining there until it was discontinued after the war. He then was employed for a considerable period in the Bacon Arms company, manufacturers of pistols, which was run by Amos Cobb.

His postal service began October 1, 1884, when he was 37 and ended when he was 73, having reached the compulsory retirement age, under a pension. He was one of the six original carriers when that service was instituted at the Norwich office, the others being Major William A. Wells, Fred Fuller, Joe Lathrop, John Caryl, and William F. Allen. Besides himself, only Fred Fuller and Major Wells are still living, the latter now being assistant postmaster.

Mr. Case covered 20 years on his first route, which started at Church street, went up Washington street as far as the Sheltering Arms, back through Lafayette street, Oneco and Yantic streets, and back over Jail Hill. This was covered twice a day with a noon trip up Washington street as far as the corner of Sachem street. His next route was on the West Side down Thames street and West Thames street, as far as Allyn place, and in the last part of his service as a carrier, he had the business section with some delivery but mostly collection.

When he became a letter carrier, George E. Bidwell was postmaster and he held his position through all the changes in the postmastership, as different appointments were made, when the politics of the national administration changed. Besides Mr. Bidwell, the postmasters he served under were Charles S. Avery, William Caruthers, Stephen H. Hall, William Caruthers and John P. Murphy, in the order named. While he was a letter carrier, he lost office occupied four different locations. At first it was on Main street, where the Porteous & Mitchell men's department is now. Under Postmaster Hall it moved to Shetucket street, where the gas and electric office now is. Following this it was in the Shannon building corner store, which preceded the building and occupancy of the present fine building on Main street.

For 15 years he was a volunteer fireman in this city, having belonged to the Blackstone Hose company and the Wauregan Hook and Ladder company.

When he was 21, which was in 1868, he married Margaret Farrell of this city, the wedding taking place in the old St. Mary's church on North Main street, the officiating priest being Rev. Daniel Mullin. Mr. and Mrs. Case resided for a number of years on Franklin street in the early part of their married life and later lived on Boswell avenue and Church street. A number of years ago they built a fine residence on McKinley avenue, near Broad street, occupying this for a considerable period until they disposed of it and erected a pretty residence in Robbins court. After occupying this a few years they sold it and built the bungalow they now occupy in another part of the court.

FRAUD CHARGES IN SUIT BETWEEN SISTERS

Testimony in the case of Joanna V. Sullivan against Annie J. Kennedy, sisters, in which the securing of a warranty deed of the plaintiff's property by fraudulent representation is alleged, was taken late Tuesday in the superior court at New London before Judge Christopher L. Avery, following which the case was continued until Tuesday. Attorneys Herbert W. Rathbun and John F. Gallagher appeared for the plaintiff, while Attorneys John C. Geary and Arthur T. Keefe represented the defendant.

According to the complaint, the plaintiff on Sept. 2, 1915, was the owner of a parcel of land with buildings in Golden street, Pawcatuck, which it is alleged was worth at least $5,000.

It is further alleged that the defendant, sister of the plaintiff, took advantage of the trust and confidence in which the plaintiff held her and procured the signature of the plaintiff to a certain writing, which the defendant falsely and fraudulently represented to be necessary for the transferring of a mortgage on said premises from the Industrial Trust Co., a Providence concern with a branch office in Westerly, which held a first mortgage for $1,753 in the Washington Trust Co., also of Westerly. It is alleged that the plaintiff signed the document.

The complaint further charges that the writing proved to be a warranty deed of said premises conveying to the defendant the plaintiff's entire interest. It is alleged that the defendant is now using the writing for her own interest and benefit. The complaint also alleges that the plaintiff knew very little about the transaction of business.

The plaintiff, according to the papers, demanded of the defendant that she give up the property but that she failed to do so. It is alleged that the signature of one witness was not affixed when the writer was in the presence of the plaintiff and that it was affixed in the witness' office at a time when the plaintiff was not present.

The plaintiff claims that the instrument is void and asks that the defendant be enjoined against any conveyance under the deed; and that the defendant be ordered to make an accounting of rent and revenue from the property.

The defendant denies the allegations as set forth in the plaintiff's complaint.

MINOR TRAIN CHANGE ON NORWICH & WORCESTER

The spring timetable of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, which becomes effective at 2.01 a. m. Sunday, April 25, involves one change on the Norwich and Worcester branch. Train No. 712 will leave New London at 1.05 p. m., running five minutes later to Norwich, leaving that point, as at present.

The timetable is made out on the basis of eastern standard time, the trains to be one hour earlier than at present to conform to the daylight saving plan.

JUDGMENT FOR RECEIVER AGAINST BOSTON COMPANY

Judgment in the amount of $2,832.05 was entered for the plaintiff in the case of Robert W. Browning, receiver for the Uncas Paper Board Co., against the Boston Paper Board Co., in the superior court at New London before Judge Christopher L. Avery. Attorney Arthur T. Keefe represented Receiver Browning while Attorney George Curtis Morgan appeared for the Boston concern.

A sum of $217.42 in the alleged amount due the Uncas Paper Board Co. was contested. Receiver Browning was placed on the witness stand for several minutes.

GAVE FAREWELL RECEPTION FOR REV. EMILY B. TATE

Last Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Beckwith of Franklin opened their home for a reception in honor of Rev. Emily B. Tate who is leaving the Franklin Congregational parish.

Mrs. Tate is to take up parish work in Higganum Congregational church as associate pastor.

Rev. Mr. Tate and Mrs. Tate came to Franklin July 6, 1919 and took charge of the parish Oct. 28, 1924. Mrs. Tate was ordained as a pastor and during her husband's last illness she acted as his assistant in the Franklin church.

A purse of over $50 was given to Mrs. Tate and presented by one of the children, William Armstrong.

In behalf of the friends present Frederick S. Armstrong made the presentation speech and commended Mrs. Tate for the fine work she has done among the children in the church and in the parish.

Mrs. Tate responded in a pleasing and touching manner. She is beloved by all who know her and it is with regret that the parishioners part with her.

During the evening musical selections were given on the victrola. A collation of sandwiches, cake and coffee was served to 70 people.

GIVEN TWO FINES FOR NORWICH TOWN CRASH

Pleading guilty to failure to grant the way and speeding, John McNally, 23, Norwich Town, was fined $50 on each count by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Wednesday morning. Accused paid his bill, total $115.69. McNally was the driver of the machine that killed a mule drawing a wagon driven by Herbert Harris of Preston last week. The accident is a costly one to Mr. McNally, who through a misunderstanding thought he was carrying liability insurance on his machine, whereas, in fact there was no insurance on the car. Mr. McNally intended to investigate the matter but had not got to that point before the accident occurred.

His machine was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars, there is a physician's bill to be paid for treatment to himself and George Strong who was riding on the mule wagon with Harris and there is also Mr. Harris' claim for his mule and damaged wagon, which will probably be about $200. All in all the accident will cost Mr. McNally about $800, it is said.

Fred Ceccarelli, 22, of Groton drew a fine of $200 and costs, total $210.50, and was also given a 30 day jail sentence, suspended, when he pleaded guilty to driving his Hudson closed car while under the influence of liquor. He was arrested about 3 o'clock Wednesday morning by Officer Clifford Crary on Shetucket street, near the Thames National bank. The officer noticed the machine on Laurel Hill and the actions of the driver aroused his suspicions. The machine would race along for a few feet, then the brakes quickly applied caused it to skid sharply. This occurred several times, so the officer followed the driver and collared him on Shetucket street. The left rear tire was torn to pieces and examination showed that somehow the tube was absent, probably having been torn to shreds. The rim was also damaged. In the machine were found two empty bottles, which had evidently contained cider. A man riding with Ceccarelli was allowed to go.

Trouble over noisy chickens and roosters which Grover C. Burdick claimed were trespassing on his property at No. 155 West Town street, was responsible for the appearance in court of Mrs. Victor Phaneuf, of No. 163 West Town street. Mrs. Phaneuf was summoned into court by Constable Lucius Fenton after complaint had been lodged by Mr. Burdick with City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins. The case was heard in chambers and was continued until April 29th after Mrs. Phaneuf stated that she is going to get rid of the chickens.

A transient was fined $5 and costs for intoxication and being unable to raise his fine went to jail to work it out.

BENEFIT WHIST HELD BY MOOSEHEART LEGION

A benefit whist for Norwich chapter, No. 124, Women of Moosehaert legion, was held Tuesday evening at the home of the recorder, Margaret M. Sadusky. Seven tables were in play. The prizes were awarded to: First, Mrs. Margaret Rogers, handkerchief; second, Mrs. May Lasch, writing paper; consolation, Miss Pauline Wunderlich; first gentlemen, Bernard Wunderlich, necktie; William Carson, handkerchiefs, consolation, John Hunter.

The scorers were Mrs. Michael A. Sadusky and Margaret Sadusky. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Catherine Sadusky, assisted by Mrs. Emma Beaver, Mrs. Mary Edwards, Mrs. Michael A. Sadusky, and Miss Mary Tylenda. Chairs for the occasion were loaned through the courtesy of Hourigan Bros.

DIVORCE FOR DEFENDANT ON HIS CROSS-COMPLAINT

A decree of divorce on the grounds of desertion was awarded in the superior court at New London Wednesday to the defendant in his counter complaint in the contested divorce case of Sadie Chapman Corey of Stonington against Alvin P. Corey of the same place. The case, however, was not tried as planned, the defendant Corey and his witnesses only being placed on the stand and the grounds of desertion as alleged by him not being denied by the plaintiff's counsel. Mrs. Corey had sued on the grounds of intolerable cruelty and a sensational trial was anticipated. After a conference of the attorneys, it was decided to have the defendant apply for a decree as claimed in his counter complaint on the grounds of desertion. The couple were married in 1904 and the husband alleged desertion since Nov. 12, 1922. There were six children, and the custody of each was awarded by Judge Avery as follows: Elsie, 17, and Stella, 14 to the mother; Reginald, 13 and Dwight younger, to the father; Vivian, aged four, to Mrs. Alma Gracey of New London; Albert, the oldest son, is married and in business for himself. No court order was made in regard to him.

The court further ordered that Corey should pay $6 a week for the support of Vivian until further notice by the court. Judge Avery stated that Vivian could remain with her mother, if Mrs. Gracey, in whose custody she was placed, so desired. The court also ordered that Vivian should spend one month each summer with her father, if the latter so desired.

MRS LEILA T. GARDNER BROADCASTS IN MILAN

Mrs. Leila Troland Gardner of New York, a native of Norwich, who is now in Rome, has had unusual success on the radio stations in the Italian cities. Special praise is given her work by the national radio magazine, "Radiorario" issued in Milan, a publication most discriminating in its favors.

The issue of April 4th has a cut of Mrs. Gardner, with the explanatory note that she is a leading American singer of negro spirituals, and has made a great hit in Milan. Warm praise is given her rich contralto voice, so admirably adapted to the sentiment and religious fervor of the spiritual type of southern melody. To thus succeed in Milan, the acknowledged musical center of the world, is a real triumph for the former Norwich woman and artist.

Mrs. Gardner arrived in Rome April 7th and was due to sing on the big station there the following night.

In Milan, she was the guest of Signor and Signora Carpi, the former for four years leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera house. He married a wealthy countess of an old and proud Italian family and they have made Mrs. Gardner most welcome in their charming home. She heard the opera at La Scala, also attended the drama.

In Rome, Mrs. Gardner was anticipating with great interest an audience with the Pope, whose sister and brother live at the hotel where she was staying—The Quirinal.

From Rome she was to go to Venice, then to Paris for two weeks, and was to sing in the latter city and in London.

The Milanese papers call her singing a great novelty, stating that while many could not understand the negro dialect, the singer's diction and emotional tone color were so marvelous and her voice such a deep, rich contralto that her numbers were greatly appreciated. The hope was expressed that the gifted American artist would return next year, to repeat the delight of all Milanese listeners-in.

WEDDING.

Geer—Disco.

Frederick H. Geer of Montville and Miss Albina Disco of No. 11 Oak street were united in marriage Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock at St. Patrick's church by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May, rector of the church. The wedding march was rendered by the church organist, Henry J. LaFontaine. Miss Frances McGuire of New Haven was the bridesmaid and the best man was William Dougherty of this city.

The bride was very charmingly gowned in white georgette, trimmed with lace and wore a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was gowned in pink georgette and carried roses.

Following the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at the Wauregan hotel, covers being laid for 25, after which there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents on Oak street. Following their wedding trip to New York and other cities, Mr. and Mrs. Geer will be at home to their friends in a newly furnished house at Quaker Hill, after May 1st.

The bride received numerous and beautiful gifts including cut glass, silverware, money, checks and many household articles. Mr. Geer who was formerly manager of Ames butter store, Main street, is employed as an agent by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, working from the New London branch and covering the Montville territory. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Geer.

His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Disco, is a graduate of St. Patrick's school and of the Academy of the Holy Family, Baltic. She has been employed at the insurance office of Louis J. Fontaine. Mr. Geer is a veteran of the World war and a prominent member of R. O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion. The bride and groom have many warm friends who wish them happiness and success in their married life.

WEISBORD IS DICTATOR OF PASSAIC STRIKERS

On Eve of Meeting of Strikers' Representatives and Governor Moore's Mediation Board, Weisbord Announced That His Committee Would Not Yield in Any of Its Demands—Would Condescend to Receive Overtures From the American Federation of Labor.

PASSAIC, N. J., April 22—(AP)—While preparations were made today for a meeting of strikers' representatives with Governor Moore's mediation board tomorrow, Albert Weisbord, youthful organizer of the textile strike, announced that the United Front committee would not yield in any of its demands and that any settlement must be ratified by the union.

Weisbord said that Henry T. Hunt of New York would appear as counsel for the strikers at the meeting with the Governor's board but declined to say whether he himself would be present.

Speaking at four meetings of strikers today Weisbord told his followers that "when the strike is won the mills working in the mills will be ordered to quit because they will be intimidated."

He said he would stay in Passaic after the settlement in order to consolidate the position of the union in the mills. This, he estimated, would take at least two months.

Weisbord declared that under certain unstated conditions he would have no objection to turning the organization over to the American Federation of Labor organizers if the proposal was made.

The United Front committee of textile workers was formally invited to the conference with the mediation board by Henry T. Hilfers, secretary of the State Federation of Labor and a member of the board.

Mr. Hunt notified General Baird Spencer, that he had been appointed to represent the strikers at the conference with the governor.

Governor Moore declared that the conference was for the purpose of organization and not to dictate terms to either side. The hope, he said, was that after both sides met with the board the body might be accepted as conciliator.

Mr. Hilfers, claiming that he had been misquoted in the press on his attitude in conference with the governor Tuesday said he told the executive that:

"The settlement, if any, is a game of give and take, but that under any circumstance the right of mill workers to organize must be recognized," and "that to bring about any chance of settlement the governor must take the initiative."

DEMAND FOR REMOVAL OF FEDERAL JUDGE ENGLISH

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—The [illegible] and removal from the bench of Judge George W. English, of the Eastern Illinois district, was demanded of the senate today by managers for the house.

The demand was made after they had presented the house's indictment against the judge on five counts, charging usurpation of power, tyranny and oppression and other "big misdemeanors" in office.

Immediately afterwards the senate adopted a resolution under which at 2 p. m. tomorrow it will resolve itself into a court for trial which will be conducted at a special session of the senate, either this summer or in the fall.

The first procedure tomorrow will be the administering of special oaths to Vice President Dawes and the individual members of the senate and the adopting of an order directing Judge English to appear at the bar of the senate to stand trial.

The senate then will go about its customary executive business until Judge English's appearance, when again it will act as a court and determine the amount of time he is to have in which to reply to the charges.

This reply will be presented formally to the senate at a specified time and then the house will be afforded opportunity to adopt a replication. This would join the issue and the time for trial would be fixed.

IMPROVEMENT IN EARNINGS OF BETHLEHEM STEEL CORP.

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—A marked improvement in earnings and operations of the Bethlehem Steel corporation during the first quarter of the year, as compared with the preceding quarter and the corresponding period of last year, was reported today by President Eugene G. Grace.

Profit income of the corporation and subsidiaries amounted to $21,975,[illegible] after preferred dividends to $2.50 a share on the common stock. This [illegible] for the fourth quarter of 1925 and $16,999,518 in the first quarter of the same year when the return on the common stock was equal to $1.67 and $1.66, respectively. The quarter's surplus totalled $4,177,[illegible].

Although Bethlehem has not reached a position where it is advocating a reduction in dividends, Mr. Grace indicated that the [illegible] of these managers, whose investment in the company represents approximately [illegible], would be considered as soon as possible.

HINDUS AND MOSLEMS RENEW RIOTING IN CALCUTTA

CALCUTTA, India, April 22—(AP)—Hindu and Moslem renewed today their sanguinary riots which early this week caused the death of 10 with more than 400 injured.

In addition to two Moslems known to have been killed when police, frightened by the crowd of rioters, were forced to fire, two others are reported to have been slain by the dissenters.

The rioting took place in Zacaria Street, scene of the recent deadly encounter.

The crowd ignored police orders to disperse and became so threatening as to compel the policemen to shoot.

The situation tonight still is threatened and police are patrolling the district.

MISS NANCY M. TEMPLETON WEDS ROBERT L. MUNGER

WATERBURY, April 22—(AP)—Miss Nancy Medora Templeton, daughter of former Governor and Mrs. Charles A. Templeton, and Robert Louis Munger were married at the Trinity Episcopal church here this afternoon. Rev. Henry Nelson Wayne performed the ceremony.

More than 400 guests attended the reception at the Waterbury club after the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Munger left for New York, whence they will sail on Saturday for Bermuda. They will live in Middlebury.

MORAN MEMBER STATE PUBLIC WELFARE DEPT.

HARTFORD, April 22.—(AP)—James J. Moran of New Haven, president of the Southern New England Telephone company was appointed a member of the state department of public welfare today by Governor Trumbull. He will succeed Judge Eliot Watrous, of New Haven, who resigned the appointment being for the unexpired term ending July 1, 1927.

INVESTIGATING LYNCHING AT PICAYUNE, MISS.

Poparville, Miss., April 22—(AP)—Authorities of Pearl River county tonight sought to fix responsibility for the lynching of Harold (Doc) Jackson who was hanged from a bridge at Picayune early today.

A message from the office of Governor Henry L. Whitfield, instructed Sheriff Arthur J. Smith to conduct a thorough investigation.

Jackson was removed from the Poparlville jail in the early morning by a group of men, estimated by nurses at the Poplarville hospital to have included not less than 100 and taken to Picayune.

No shots were fired as Jackson was lynched. Some of the men, who forced entrance through a gate and two doors with acetylene torches, wore handkerchiefs as masks. This prisoner was readily found. Reaching Picayune, a rope was placed about his neck and he was forced to jump from a bridge across Bogue Chitto creek.

Jackson had been in jail at Gulfport since February 20, awaiting action by a Hancock county grand jury on charges that he had played a part in the Slaying of John A. McLemore and William M. Minnee, federal entomologists near Pearlington, February 18. When the grand jury at Bay St. Louis failed to indict him he was delivered to Pearl River authorities and brought here Tuesday night. He was under indictment in this county on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Mrs. Ellaline Pearson in 1924.

BEGIN DRAFTING NEW NICKEL PLATE MERGER

NEW YORK, April 21—(AP)—One of the first important steps toward the drafting of a new Nickel Plate merger plan was taken by the Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland today when they conferred here with their bankers and officials of the Erie and Pere Marquette railroads, two of the systems included in their proposed $1,000,000,000 combination.

Discussions between the Van Sweringens, E. N. Brown, chairman of the Pere Marquette and Gardner S. Kase, chairman of the finance committee of the Erie railroad, were said to involve the extension of more generous terms to stockholders of both companies for an exchange of shares. Since the original plan was drafted, the Pere Marquette has increased its common dividends and the Erie has staged a comeback in earnings power which has led to agitation for a resumption of dividend payments on the preferred shares. None of the conferees, however, would discuss the latest developments in the situation.

The chief obstacle to the inclusion of the Chesapeake & Ohio railway in the merger was believed to have been removed when the Van Sweringens gave assurance of representation of the board, also that the interlocking directorate feature and voting power, dividends.

YALE BUILDING PROGRAM CALLS FOR LEGAL DECISION

BRIDGEPORT, April 22—(AP)—As part of a group which "will not be surpassed by any architectural development in the United States," the supreme court of errors was informed in arguments presented here this afternoon, Yale university plans to erect on High street, New Haven, a new building for the Yale School of Fine Arts.

A beautiful ornamentation of the proposed structure is planned in the form of an arch and bridge which will project over High street and connect the new arts buildings with the one now in use.

The board of aldermen, when the university asked for a permit to build the arch across the street, expressed some doubt about its right to do so. The supreme court was asked for advice today on the powers of the aldermen in the matter of issuing such a permit.

The new Yale School of Fine Arts, it was said, is intended to be a fitting companion to the university buildings further north on High street which compose the Harkness Memorial quadrangle.

HERMAN FOUND NOT GUILTY IN POISON CANDY CASE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 22.—(AP)—Ernest Herman tonight was found not guilty in Hudson county's poison candy case. The comment of Mrs. Otto Hartman, to whose husband Herman was supposed to have sent poisoned candy, was "just as I expected." There was no demonstration in the court room. Herman left the room with Mrs. Hartman and her two children.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

British Economy Bill.

LONDON, April 22.—(AP)—The house of commons tonight by vote of 328 to 138 passed the third reading of the government's economy bill, which has been fought at every stage by the opposition parties. Their resistance forced the government to the adoption of exceptional measures, such as dividing the government forces into relay sections to maintain all-night sittings, and the severest application of closure.

Death of Sir Henry Mance

OXFORD, England, April 22—(AP)—Sir Henry Mance, who invented the heliograph when he was only 22 years old, died here today.

Sir Henry Mance was born in 1840 and entered the service of the Indian government, in the Persian Telegraph department, in 1863. He became an engineer and electrician of the line. The heliograph, by which messages could be sent a long distance by reflecting the rays of the sun according to a prearranged code, was invented by him chiefly for the use of the English military forces in India. Sir Henry retired from the service in 1885. He was a member of various scientific organizations.

Vice Admiral Parry Dead

HARROGATE, England, April 22—(AP)—Vice-Admiral Sir John Franklin Parry, well known for his work in hydrography and navigation, is dead at his home here.

Vice-Admiral Parry, who was born in 1863, entered the British navy when he was 14-years-old and was retired as a vice-admiral in 1920. He served in the Soakim campaign in Egypt in 1885, receiving the Egyptian medal and star. He was in command of surveys in many parts of the world.

TALKS IN WATERBURY ON REPUBLICAN POLITICS

WATERBURY, April 22—(AP)—Governor John H. Trumbull, Republican State Chairman J. Henry Roraback, Attorney Benedict Holden, of Hartford, and Mrs. Ernest Howe, of New Haven talked on republican politics and the activities of organization at the dinner of the Women's Republican club, of Waterbury here tonight.

Governor Trumbull declared he is not a politician nor interested in politics as politics, but that he is interested in good government and in the government of the state of Connecticut. He scored the attitude of some who do not get into politics because there are things in the party they do not like. There are some things in the republican party, he said, that he did not like but he felt the way to remedy them was to work with the party and try to remedy them that way.

Chairman Roraback declared there is no mystery in political organizations. They are formed and run the same as any other organization. To be successful, political organizations must be deserving of success. Good business is good politics and good politics is good business, he said. He scored the attitude of those who call themselves independents and say they support the "best men" of any party. They will never get anywhere by so doing, he said. They must stick to one party and make that party nominate the best men.

SEARCHED BRANFORD WOODS FOR A MURDER SUSPECT

BRIDGEPORT, April 22—(AP)—For nearly 24 hours search for the murderer of Dominick Cleeio, 237 Hallett street, in the woods near Branford, detectives returned to this city today when no trace of the suspect was found. Several men from the local bureau were left on guard at the construction camp where it was reported that the suspect was hiding while the rest returned to Bridgeport, weary from their continued chase which lasted throughout Wednesday night and until late this afternoon.

Eight detectives headed by Captain John H. Regan left this city Wednesday night for New Haven where they met Lieutenant James Brace of the local police and several New Haven officers. The search then continued on to Wallingford and from there to Branford where it was learned that the suspect had fled in a two days' auto following the fatal shooting here last Saturday night.

Decision to report three farm relief bills to the house was reached by the agriculture committee.

Senate failed to act on Senator Reed's motion to reconsider the vote on the Italian debt; American debt commission arranged a conference with the French ambassador for tomorrow.

FOREST FIRES RAGED FIVE HOURS NEAR PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Conn., April 22—(AP)—A forest fire of undetermined origin raged here for five hours tonight before it was brought under control by the fire departments of Portland and Gildersleeve and several hundred volunteers. The loss included several thousands of dollars in timber and a large barn owned by Fannie Sennett.

The fire started at Aunt Philo's crossing and burned northeast over 25 acres of valuable timber land on Pennington Hill. Several farm houses and barns and summer homes were saved from destruction. Valuable assistance in checking the fire was rendered by the Boy Scouts of Middletown and Middle Haddam.

DROP OF 35,536,000 TONS IN ANTHRACITE PRODUCTION

NEW YORK, April 22—(AP)—A drop of 35,536,000 tons in anthracite production for the coal year, ending March 31, compared with 1924-5, was reported today by the anthracite coal conference board.

This was attributed to the anthracite strike, which cut in half the customary production for the first 13 weeks of this year, although the resumption of normal production was marked by weekly volumes which approached the record.

The week ending March 27 saw 1,591,000 tons of anthracite taken out, with 1,983,009 tons reported for the previous week.

Whittemore Defense Is Based on an Alibi

Eight Witness Testified the Alleged Bandit Was in Philadelphia the Date of the Murders.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 22—(AP)—Richard Reese Whittemore, New York bandit leader, was attending a birthday party in Philadelphia at such an hour early on October 29 that it would have been physically impossible for him to have been in Buffalo to lead a gang of robbers in the killing of two bank messengers and the theft of $93,000 from the Bank of Buffalo armored car, according to testimony given by eight witnesses in supreme court this afternoon.

Whittemore, according to their testimony, was at a birthday party in the home of Mrs. Dora Jansen, Philadelphia, and remained there until about 4:30 o'clock on the morning of the 29th. Also at the party were Jake Kramer, Leon Kramer, and Milton Goldberg, members of the bandit gang which obtained loot aggregating $400,000 in robberies in New York city.

Witnesses who swore that Whittemore was at the party, included a church choir singer and her husband, a pharmacist, a cafe waiter and his wife, a nephew by marriage of the Kramer brothers, a colored maid formerly engaged by Mrs. Jansen, the estranged husband of Mrs. Jansen, and Mrs. Jansen, herself, star witness for the defense for admitted friendship with Jake Kramer. All live in Philadelphia.

The defense expects to close its case early tomorrow with the calling of three or four more witnesses. It was learned on reliable information tonight that Richard Whittemore, the defendant, will not take the stand. It also seemed certain that his wife, known as the "Tiger Girl" will not come to Buffalo and that Rawlings V. Whittemore, his father, here to comfort his son, will not be a witness.

There is a probability that the case may be given to the jury late tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Dora Jansen, the star witness for the defense, was on the witness stand when court adjourned. She had not yet completed her direction examination.

The star defense witness is 37 years old and obtained the diploma of a graduate nurse in Germany before she came to the United States in 1912. Mrs. Jansen said that she had planned no elaborate party to celebrate her birthday on October 28th. She expected only a few friends would be there. Jake Kramer telephoned her about six o'clock, however, that he would be there later with a few friends. He arrived with the defendant Whittemore, and Goldberg about 11 o'clock that night, she swore.

Others who had come to the party earlier included Leon Kramer; George Begun, Philadelphian druggist, and his wife, Rachel; Karl Sparman, Philadelphia waiter, and his wife, Anna; Harry Tuchman, nephew of the Kramers, and his wife. Each of these was a witness but the wife of Tuchman had been one of Jake and Leon Kramer, who is in a Philadelphia hospital. Another witness was Oscar Jansen, husband of the star witness, who has been separated from her since a year ago this month. His wife stated on direct examination that Jake Kramer spent week-ends at her apartment from last April to October.

N. Y. RESERVE BANK HAS LOWERED REDISCOUNT RATE

NEW YORK, April 22—(AP)—Formally recognizing the return of easier credit conditions, which have followed the severe March reaction in stock prices and the reduction of over $500,000,000 in brokerage loans from the year's peak of more than $8,500,000,000, the New York Federal Reserve bank today lowered its rediscount rate to 3 1-2 per cent after maintaining a 4 per cent rate since January 8.

Although most of the measures of financial and business activity recently have indicated the possibility of a lower bank rate, today's change took Wall street by surprise. Support for the banks action, however, was found in the easier trend of money rates, which have dropped as low as 3 1-2 per cent on the stock exchange and 3 per cent in the outside market; the steady decline in commodity prices; narrowing reports of slackening trade and a sharp curtailment of borrowing by the local federal reserve member banks.

FARMERS SHOT THE WILD COW OF WESTPORT DEAD

HARTFORD, April 22.—(AP)—The wild cow of Westport is dead. Defiant to the last, the animal that set at naught the law of the state, baffled that law's enforcement officers and for months eluded scores of pursuers has been brought to by by a rifle bullet. Armed with the "dead or alive" blanket warrant issued by the authorities of three townships, Harry Jackson, of Wilton, farmer and hunter, tracked the cow to one of its haunts in the wildest spots in Wilton and brought its hectic career to an end with one shot.

Farmers, town officials, policemen and cowboys had tried in past months to capture the animal. Even a former northwest mounted policemen, from the outfit that "always gets its man", was unable to get that cow.

GLOUCESTER MACKEREL FLEET IN HEAVY WEATHER

GLOUCESTER, Mass., April 22—(AP)—Heavy weather on the southern fishing grounds has played havoc with the Gloucester mackerel fleet, vessels arrived here today reported. Several vessels returned to repair damage and replace lost seine boats.

Practically all the units of the fleet fishing off Cape May suffered loss of gear in the recent storms.

In spite of the storms the receipts of mackerel have been large and the price has fallen 50 per cent since the season opened.

TILSON MOVES FOR THE PRESERVATION OF FORESTS

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP)—A national conservation policy to undo the damage done by ruthless destruction of American forests was urged in the house of representatives today by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, republican. He said restoration can be accomplished through proper education and legislation.

To Take up Funding of French Debt Today

It is Probable That Ambassador Berenger of France Will Present a New Settlement Offer.

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP)—The American debt commission will resume negotiations tomorrow with France for a funding of its debt, with a motion pending in the senate to reconsider its ratification yesterday of the Italian agreement.

Ambassador Berenger, who has been given full power by France to negotiate a settlement will meet with the commission, he has been in conference with Secretary Mellon for several weeks on the question, and treasury officials were confident tonight that an early agreement could be reached.

Action on a motion by Senator Reed, democrat, of Missouri, to reconsider ratification of the Italian settlement was deferred. While Senator Smoot, republican, of Utah, sought in vain for an agreement for a vote tomorrow on re-consideration, early action on the motion was expected by leaders.

It is the plan of leaders to press for ratification of five other debt funding agreements pending in the senate which have been approved by the house. These include settlements with Belgium, Rumania, Esthonia, Latvia and Czecho-Slovakia.

Only a short meeting of the debt commission is expected tomorrow and it is probable that Ambassador Berenger will present a new settlement offer.

It has been reported from Paris that it will propose initial payments of $25,000,000 annually.

While officials here refused to comment on the reported French proposal, it was intimated that no agreement providing for less strict terms than those advanced by the Caillaux mission last summer would be considered.

HOW DEBT SETTLEMENT IS REGARDED IN PARIS

PARIS, April 22.—(AP)—Early settlement of the French debt negotiations with the United States, which is now accepted here as a foregone conclusion, has inspired many conflicting views among the French public.

In official and financial circles, funding of the debt is considered as essential to the stabilization of the franc, but there are also a good many people who see in it only the fact that France will have to buy an additional $5,000,000 yearly to send to the United States. Many also contend that settlement of the American debt will involve immediate settlement of the war debt to Great Britain with payments that very likely will be considerably heavier.

Many critics of the proposed settlement, who ignore the moral effect, are inquiring only how an increased demand for English pounds and American dollars payable in francs is going to help French money without a complete transformation of the financial situation which would place the francs on a reasonable footing with other money.

Finance Minister Perer, in replying to Vincent Auriol, socialist leader in the chamber of deputies, avoided a question as to whether recent pressure on the franc was the result of a manoeuvre intended to influence the debt settlement negotiations. While admitting that delay in settlement of the inter-allied debts had certainly weighed upon the franc, he answered by "there are many things which I am unable to disclose to the chamber."

"I regret," he continued, "that I am unable to bring the actual settlement of all debts before you now, but I am sure that the chamber will approve the government for taking all the time necessary to obtain a just settlement."

The finance showed considerable improvement today, closing 10 points better than yesterday with reference to the dollar.

HONOR GUARD WITH BODY OF GUNNER'S MATE M'CORMACK

NEW LONDON, April 22.—(AP)—Accompanied by a guard of honor, the body of Gunner's Mate Ralph Edward McCormack, the third victim of the battery room explosion on the submarine S-49 at her pier here Tuesday, was taken to the railroad station tonight to be shipped to East Bridgewater, Mass., for burial. The bodies of his two companions, also victims of the accident, had been sent to their homes earlier.

The base hospital authorities reported the conditions of the remaining nine members of the crew who were injured to be as good as could be expected. Three of them are still in critical condition and remain on the danger list. The board of inquiry appointed to investigate the cause of the accident is still in session, but expects to complete its survey tomorrow morning, when the report will be forwarded to Washington. Captain Ernest J. King, commandant of the station, announced tonight that unless charges are to be preferred against officers of the ship as a result of the investigation the report will be made public tomorrow.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW HAS REACHED 92d MILESTONE

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Chauncey M. Depew rounded out the 92nd year of his life today with the firm belief that he will live to become a centenarian.

His rules to attain the century mark are simple. They are: Think about cheerful things. Always be an optimist. Don't brood or be morbid. Don't be angry or hate things. Cultivate young people. Be moderate in all things. If a thing disagrees with you cut it out. If you find your diet is wrong, give up the thing you like best, for that's the thing you will eat most of. Laugh and make others laugh, and pick your own grandparents.

DISCORD IN THE HOUSE AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE

DRYS ARE UNWAVERING IN BATTLE FOR PROHIBITION

They Are as Strenuous in Their Fight For Preservation of the Volstead Act as the Wets Were in Their Denouncistion—E. C. Dinwiddie, Superintendent of the National Temperance Bureau, Assailed the Wets For Proposing to Bring Back Light Wine and Beer.

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP)—A mayor, a temperance leader, a former bartender and a couple of United States senators were the principal characters in a swift-moving drama today before the senate prohibition committee.

The lines ran the scale of denunciation, humor, pathos, opinion and fact and kept at high pitch for more than two hours the crowd which packed the hearing room and overflowed into the reserve space in front of the committee table.

The central figure again was Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, who clashed with his colleagues time and again, vigorously cross-examined witnesses and characterized as "fanatics and fools" those who laughed at his declaration that he was not on either side in the wet and dry controversy.

Another figure bulking large in the proceedings was Mayor Dever, of Chicago who appeared at his own request to refute what he regarded as aspersions cast upon the Chicago police by United States District Attorney Olson, of Chicago, in testimony before the committee.

E. C. Dinwiddie, superintendent of the National Temperance bureau, assailed the wets for proposing to bring back light wine and beer and engaged in a verbal sparring match with Senator Reed on the proposition that this legal sale would improve moral conditions.

At one point in the exchange, Chairman Harreld accused Senator Reed of "guilty-ragging" the witness and the Missourian replied that he had been more polite "to this witness than you are to me now."

Some intimate details, with names and places, regarding conditions in the mountains of West Virginia before and since prohibition were obtained from J. Pat Murphy, postmaster of Elk Ky., who said he was sorry to confess he began selling liquor in a "blind tiger" at the age of eight.

After the session ended, the hours and five minutes of time for the hearings remained and Chairman Harreld said he hoped to wind them up Saturday by holding two sessions tomorrow. Both sides plan to put in more testimony and then to consume the remainder of their time with arguments on the evidence received during the three weeks of hearings.

Mayor Dever who will return to the witness stand tomorrow declared Chicago had been maligned twice before senate committees within a few months and that he was on hand to vindicate it if he could.

Turning to the claims of District Attorney Olson that the federal forces closed up the Chicago breweries, Mr. Dever declared that when he first assumed position of government officials he did not receive a satisfactory reply and got assistance only when he threatened to lay all the facts "on President Coolidge's desk" and ask for aid.

Later denying Olson's statement that the district attorney's office closed 31 breweries, Mayor Dever said he had put police in the breweries and closed them up and that then the federal attorney padlocked them on evidence presented by the Chicago police.

The mayor also hotly denied Olson's statement that there were stills known to the police in every precinct in Chicago and said it would not be difficult for one to "put them out of the rooms."

Commenting on a recital of the Chicago conditions he found in Chicago when he became mayor in 1923 and in spite of his efforts to clean up the town, Mayor Dever recommended to the committee that the city officials would "sell out the city to bootleggers and beer-runners."

Mr. Dinwiddie was the first of the two witnesses called by the drys. After he had accused the wets of lying, sleuthing and with failure to help enforce the Volstead act, Senator Reed in an hour's cross examination in which the sources of contributions to the temperance bureau and the policy of the Anti-Saloon league in political campaign came in for particular attention.

The temperance bureau superintendent conceded that one worker of his organization was "lobbying" for temperance legislation; stated that his present salary was $600 a month and denied that the Anti-Saloon league had opposed the re-election of senators and congressmen with wet leanings.

Declaring that the country would "revolt" against any return to the legalized liquor traffic, Dinwiddie challenged opponents of prohibition "to seek to secure the open championship of their cause by any major political party in this country and then watch the result."

Murphy's statement was comparatively brief, but it seemed to carry a punch for the spectators, who frequently burst into laughter at some of his descriptions.

Outlining what he regarded as some of the benefits of prohibition, Murphy said that in the days of the saloon, a Judge Herndon in his county got so drunk that he was unable to walk up in the court room, but that now he is a sober man and a church goer.

"State Senator J. W. Luther used to be what we called a sot," he added. "Now he is a sober upright man."

Cross examined by Senator Reed, Murphy said there could not be much distilling in homes because there was no place to keep the mash.

"Oh the business has advanced since you quit it," Senator Reed said. "Now they use corn sugar and there is no mash."

Murphy said that in his section there were no "blind tigers" and that what distilling was done was in the hollows and hills and not in the homes.

WESLEYAN TO TAKE STRAW VOTE ON PROHIBITION

MIDDLETOWN, April 22.—(AP)—A straw vote on the prohibition question will take place at Wesleyan university here for the rest of this week. A poll of the student body and the faculty on prohibition enforcement started today under the auspices of the Argus, the school newspaper. Three questions are submitted to the voters, enforcement of the present law, repeal of the law, or modification to permit the sale of light wine and beer. The ballots will be counted Saturday.

A debate will be staged by two members of the faculty tomorrow night in Scott laboratory and will be followed by an open forum discussion. Professor Wilbert Snow, of the English department will argue for modification of the present laws and Dr. Edgar Fauver of the physical education department will talk in favor of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act.

GOV. RITCHIE POINTS OUT MENACE IN PROHIBITION

BOSTON, April 22.—(AP)—A federal yardstick, applying a uniform standard everywhere, cannot be used to regulate personal conduct and practices differing in different localities of a varied country, Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, said in an address before the Boston City club tonight. His theme was "Strong States As Vital Factors In Our National Policy."

"The method of doing through the federal government what could be done better through the states by slower processes, has defeated the very ends sought," Governor Ritchie said. "This is amply illustrated by prohibition.

"Why not face the truth? National prohibition under the 18th amendment has bred more interstate discord and more political cowards and hypocrites and has done more damage to the body politic and to our social fabric than anything which, in my observation at least, has ever entered our national life.

"That is because you cannot regulate personal conduct and practices which differ in different localities of a varied country with a federal yardstick, applying a uniform standard everywhere.

"The attempt to do it has turned the second issue of individual temperance, which was fast approaching solution, into an issue of personal liberty, and that is why, in the name of temperance and of that personal liberty the constitution guaranteed, I demand that the subject be turned back by congress to the states, so that each state, within constitutional limitations, shall be permitted to settle it in accordance with its will and convictions of its own people."

Governor Ritchie maintained that the basic principles of free speech, free worship, individual liberty, security of the home and equality under the law still were objectives for existence even in free America.

RADIO LEGISLATION URGED BEFORE PATENT COMMITTEES

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—Legislation to regulate rates charged radio stations for broadcasting copyrighted music was urged at the closing session today of joint hearings before the house and senate patent committees on such proposals by W. E. Harkness, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

He asserted that the American society composers, authors and publishers had demanded from this company's station WEAF, in New York, pay $250,000 next year for the privilege of using music under its control. This figure, the committees were told, is ten times the amount paid to the society for the same privilege last year and 50 times greater than that paid five years ago.

Wilson Senator D., Democrat Washington, author of a bill to set up a scale of charges, interjected that at this rate the society would demand $250,000 for the privilege in 1928. Mr. Harkness replied that there was no way to prevent, except by enactment of legislation, to regulate the terms under which stations might broadcast music. At present, he said, a broadcasting station has no security and does not know from one year to another whether it will be able to continue operations.

Mr. Harkness, denying that broadcasting stations had raised a $50,000 "slush fund" to aid passage of the pending Dill-Vestal copyright bill, explained that the national association of broadcasters had simply appealed for heavier contributions than usual to pay the expenses of being represented at the hearings.

The right of a composer to control his copyright after it had been sold was questioned by John G. Paine, representing the Victor Talking Machine company, who said authors already enjoy legal protection not accorded inventors, and to extend their monopoly of their products would not be in the public interest.

NEGOTIATION ON BRITISH COAL CRISIS OPEN TODAY

LONDON, April 22.—(AP)—Negotiations which lasted throughout the day revealed the impossibility of arranging an agreement in the coal crisis directly between the owners and miners and hard bargaining will begin tomorrow, when Premier Baldwin will meet both sides in a joint conference at the ministry of labor.

The mine owners tonight issued the draft of a new agreement with two schedules of wages, one based on a seven-hour day with slighter reductions.

The industrial committee of the trade union congress which has taken up the miners' case, had a long conference with the prime minister last night, placing all the circumstances before him. The committee told Mr. Baldwin that the new wage schedules proposed by the Miner Owners' association involved reductions which could not be tolerated and which were calculated to create an impossible situation. In the opinion of the committee any attempt to enforce these schedules would have a most serious outcome.

MANSFIELD SCHOOL ARGUMENT NOT SETTLED

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 23. — The troubles of the town of Mansfield with the various phases of its school situation have again found their way into newspaper columns through the presentation of a petition by the heads of five families of upper Ash street to the state board of education asking for transportation for their children to the Chestnut Hill school in Mansfield.

The Mansfield school committee received the petition a few months ago and decided that the distance of from 1.5 to 1.7 miles which the children had to walk was not too great during the spring, summer and fall months. Transportation had been provided for ten children for the months of January, February and March. The contract, held by Joseph Horne, one of the parents, was at the rate of $1.50 a day or $7.50 for each school week.

The school committee refused to renew the contract so the parents drew up another petition and a hearing on the matter was held in a room at the Normal school building here Thursday morning. George K. Sturgess, director of attendance and employment of the state board of education presided over the session. The parents present were: Joseph Horne, Sarah Kaplan, Frank Brown, Arthur Lee, Mike Kemmeler and Mike Kowlocki, representing a total of 14 children. The Mansfield school board was represented by William F. Kirkpatrick, secretary, and Committeeman Paul Benoit. The petitioners were represented by Attorney A. T. Kelley. After listening to a full discussion of the situation Director Sturgess stated that he would reserve his decision for a short time.

The annual inspection of the Willimantic Exchange club was conducted at its regular meeting Wednesday night by Clinton G. Nichols of Hartford, chief clerk for the state highway department and prominent in the State Council of Exchanges. President Egbert A. Case was in charge of the session. There was a large attendance. Edgar E. Bass was welcomed as a new member. Mr. Nichols, a member of the Hartford Exchange club was among those instrumental in the organization of the local club. He expressed himself as most highly pleased with the steady growth of the club which he said was in line with the general growth of the Exchange movement throughout the country. There are over 40 members in the organization here. The officers and members of the club were complimented for the constructive program which they have carried out during the year. He made special mention of the interest taken in the playground proposition. It was announced that the next meeting with Rotary next Tuesday night when Richard Dillon of Hartford will talk on Playgrounds, would probably be held in the G. A. R. hall of the town building. At 7 o'clock the meeting is to be opened to the public. Remarks were delivered by Edwin J. Donnelly, chairman of the entertainment committee and Allen B. Lincoln.

Raymond and Robert Barrows of Mansfield Center are among those to report having trouble with fishermen who invade their premises, and because they are not residents of this section, refuse to comply with orders to vacate. A party of New Haven anglers came on their land recently and started a fire near a wooded section to cook their meal. They were told to leave but calmly replied that they would not. Then threatened with arrest they departed. The Barrows have posted a stretch on both sides of the Fenton river about one and one half miles long, claiming that they have exclusive rights to this. They say that the fishermen have plenty of state leased land to use in the pursuit of the elusive trout.

Ralph Snow of this city, peddler of wares in exchange for junk and rags, was charged with intoxication in the Chaplin town court Wednesday afternoon. He pleaded guilty and was fined $1 and costs, amounting to $14 which he paid. Constable Alfred P. Abbe of Windham complained that Snow was driving his horse and wagon in such a manner on the highway as to obstruct automobile traffic. Constable Trenor Rice placed Snow under arrest and arraigned him before Justice of the Peace Charles B. Rose. Grand Juror Frank W. Landon prosecuted. Snow's business as a dealer in junk and household tins is the only surviving one of a similar nature hereabouts. His red wagon, laden on top with bags of rags and with the body filled with shining tin pots was symbolical the ravages of time and despite the interest of the nickel a time stopper he still goes about from house to house bartering with the housewives.

With forceful delivery, Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton delivered a stirring eulogy in memory of Brother Allan D. Risley, former chief of police, at the bi-monthly meeting of Willimantic Lodge No. 1371 B. P. O. E. held Wednesday evening. A special committee was appointed to draw up resolutions of respect and send a floral tribute to the funeral of Past Exalted Ruler William Beckwith of Norwich. A delegation will attend the funeral today (Friday).

Archibald W. Buchanan, Sr., of Mansfield Center, agent for the state board of education met with eight children between the ages fo 14 and 16 Tuesday forenoon and gave them the required examinations for employment certificates. Three of the children failed to pass the educational tests. One of the applicants was from Putnam.

A steam shovel and a force of men with road plough started work Thursday for the construction of 19,316 feet or three and three quarters miles of eight inch reinforced cement concrete pavement in the towns of Chaplin and Windham. Contractor John Abrorio of New Haven placed his men at work near Starr's store in North Windham. The new concrete will be welcomed by the many travelers of that stretch of road.

In honor of Mrs. J. A. Hedman of Mansfield Depot, a delightful birthday party was given Wednesday evening at the home of W. H. Kingsley on West Main street. Some of the guests came from Springfield, Mass., Providence, R. I., Maine and Mansfield. Mrs. Hedman was presented with several valuable gifts. Refreshments and a social hour concluded the evening.

The giving away of a form into which concrete was being poured in the construction of the Natham Hale hotel here Wednesday, allowed the bed of cement to drop to the floor below. The report quickly spread that part of the hotel had caved in. A new form was made and properly braced and the concrete relaid without further trouble.

Henry Syphers of Hewett street, a World war veteran, during which he served in the navy, has been notified that he is eligible for treatment by government physicians. Syphers has been ill for some time. He will leave for a government hospital near New York city later this week.

Headed by Grand Knight Patrick A. Connor who had charge of the degree, officers of San Jose council No. 14, Knights of Columbus, were in charge of the exemplification of a second degree conferred on a class of candidates for Stafford council in Stafford Springs Thursday night.

A number of local baseball fans were in Hartford Thursday to attend the opening game of the Eastern league season between Hartford and Waterbury.

Ashton C Persons is improving from an operation recently sustained at St. Joseph's hospital.

Miss Eva Perry is now able to be out of doors after an illness at her home here.

State Policeman Edward R. Burns of the Stafford Springs barracks, acting inspector of motor vehicle license applicants had little time for idling here Thursday when about 25 applicants appeared to receive the examinations.

Mrs. Harold S. Maine was hostess at a whist party at her home Wednesday evening. Mrs. Fred L. Avery won the ladies' first prize and Mrs. Edward G. Kenney the consolation. Anne J. Martineau was the winner of the men's first prize and Ernest Bottomley second. A collation was served.

The engagement of Olive M. Caswell to Charles A. Robinson has been announced here. Miss Caswell is a teacher at the Natchaug grammar school. Mr. Robinson is a member of the office force at the American Thread company. The wedding will take place the latter part of June.

Mrs. Edgar E. Bass entertained the bridge club of three tables, of which Mrs. C. W. Noyes is leader, at her home recently. Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, Mrs. Arthur C. Everest and Mrs. J. C. Tracy were present as guests. Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Bass entertained the sewing club of which Mrs. Robert H. Fenton is leader.

JEWETT CITY

DEATH THURSDAY OF SHERMAN R. WATERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, April 22.—Sherman R. Waters, 73, died at 7:30 o'clock this evening at his home in Lisbon. He was stricken with a shock a week ago, and never regained consciousness. Mr. Waters was the son of Richmond and Huldah Read Waters. He was born in Canterbury, July 15, 1852. In 1900 Mr. and Mrs. Waters came to live on the farm they own in Lisbon. Mr. Waters has been employed a number of years in the color department at Aspinook bleachery. He was a member of Palisade lodge, No. 28, K. of P., in Union, N. J., his former home, before coming to Lisbon. Although not a church member, his preference was the Methodist faith. He was quiet, home loving man, a great reader and fond of good books. He had many sincere friends in Lisbon and Jewett City. He is survived by his wife and one brother, Franklin G. Waters of Norwich.

Mrs. Prentice Chase, corporation nurse for the Ashland Cotton Co., underwent a serious operation at Boston Homeopathic hospital on Tuesday. It may be necessary to perform another operation later. Of the pilgrimage of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., in which local knight templars voted to participate, and parade with banners and music in Springfield, Mass., Grand Commander Dunbar made extended remarks. The occasion is the 100th anniversary of Springfield commandery, No 6, K. T., Em. Sir Harry A. Childs, commander.

The attorney general's docket was disposed of as follows on Wednesday in the session of superior court, April term, for Washington county before Justice Antonio A. Copotosto at the county court house at West Kingston:

Arraigned by Third Assistant Attorney General Louis V. Juckvony, John Zu Zu of Providence, pleaded not guilty to the uttering of a check on the R. I. Hospital Trust company of Providence to Charles M. Hall for $600, when there was not sufficient funds to meet payment. The check was tendered in payment for 483 pullets at $1.24 each to the total value of $598.92 when they were taken from the farm in Hopkinton on Sept. 22, 1925. His bail first made $5,000 was increased to $8,000 and trial next Monday morning, when Judge Copotosto directed him to be ready at that time.

Thomas Fay and William Ahrndt, charged with the larceny of goods to the value of $231 from the house of Alice M. Samuels, at Narragansett, R. I., on March 10, 1925, each pleaded not guilty and bail was set for $10,000 in each case. The case is assigned for Monday.

John W. Callahan and John H. Thomas, who were in custody when State Trooper James E. Norman, had them held for being idle persons without visible means of support, also said that they thought that Attorney Gardiner was to appear for them. It was learned that they were both ex-service men having fought abroad in the World war, and when arrested were walking the Boston Post road, and had been arrested when asking the road to New London as they planned to go to Fishers Island to secure work, having $20 between them. Thomas came from Waverly, Mass., where his sister had visited in a letter he always had a home and Callahan, 26, of Cambridge, Mass., was in the jurisdiction of the U. S. Veterans bureau. Both stated that they had been in Providence county jail at the time for two months.

"I don't think you should have been there at all," said Judge Copotosto.

That no hardship may come upon you, I am going to direct a dismissal of case and "I am afraid you have been unfairly dealt with." He hoped that being given their liberty might in a measure undo a wrong. "These men may go!" he said.

Albert Titus as principal and James E. Smith were called by Deputy Sheriff Bull to come into court and make good their appearance or the bail would be defaulted, a capias was ordered to issue.

A habeas was ordered for Charles Golden to be brought into court on Monday next to answer to charges brought against him.

Having been in Kingston jail since March 17th, Bert Corbin of Hopkinton, held on a charge of breaking, entering and larceny of goods valued at $17 from the unoccupied dwelling of Georgia R. Wandling in Hopkinton, pleaded nolo. The court ordered him committed to the Providence County Jail for 30 days. If the prison report is satisfactory the judge said he would give Corbin a chance and give a deferred sentence. Bail was set at $5,000.

"I am sorry that the maximum penalty provided by the statute is not 10 years," said Judge Antonio A. Copotosto, when he sentenced William Jordan, 50, colored, of Exeter, to five years in the state's prison, the longest term possible on a charge of harboring for immoral purposes.

Jordan was indicted last Monday by the grand jury, along with four other colored men, the latter all being charged with carnal knowledge of girls under 16-years of age, one girl being the 15-year-old daughter of Jordan.

All the men except one previously had pleaded nolo. The exception was Walter Hazard, alias Buster Hazard, and he changed his plea to nolo yesterday morning.

Lester Reels, 28, of West Kingston, married and father of two children, aged 7 and 9 years, was given two years in the state prison. He was indicted on two counts but was sentenced only upon one of them. The State stated that he had been of assistance in rounding up the gang. Reels previously had served 11 months for larceny.

Fred Hazard, 17, of West Kingston, was given one year in the Providence county jail. The court took into consideration that Hazard had served time for carrying a concealed weapon.

Walter Hazard, 18, alias Buster Hazard, of Exeter, was sent to the Providence county jail for nine months. He a oshad a record, having served 30 days on an assault charge.

Bert Walmsley, 30, of Usquepaugh, was sentenced to six months in the Providence county jail.

ARBOR DAY

By designation of Governor Trumbull this is Arbor and Bird day, and it fits in well with American Forest [illegible].

For the purpose of awakening and [illegible] in the minds of our youth the need of preserving the blessings of our plant and bird life, the governor urges "all citizens, especially all children and teachers of children, to turn their thoughts and hands on this day to the planting of trees, the making of gardens, the reclaiming of soil to the uses of agriculture, the beautifying by flowers and shrubbery of our homes and highways, the care of our bird life and all similar activities to the end that the fruits of the earth may be preserved in abundance for use and for those who shall come after us."

It is to be sincerely hoped that there will be a general observance of the day in keeping with the suggestions of the governor. There isn't a community but what should display some interest along such lines. There is need for developing a greater appreciation for our trees and for our birds and that can best be done by arousing a general interest therein.

For years Arbor and Bird day has received special attention in the schools. There are the exercises for stimulating the interest and there are occasionally the plantings of trees and shrubs as highly effective object lessons. This is all of great educational value and should automatically bring to or develop a broader interest in arboriculture, but it is not solely up to the children who should be made to bear the burden of setting out trees or of providing care for the birds. The importance of both is sufficiently understood by the adults to bring the earnest cooperation from them. They should be eager to set the right example in this direction. Their participation would do much toward the encouragement of a greater number of trees and a greater interest in their proper maintenance and [illegible].

COMMERCIAL AVIATION

Norwich has reason to be manifesting interest, even now, in establishing a proper landing place to accommodate flying machines. The number of machines that might use it would not be expected to crowd such a place for some next few years but aviation is going ahead by leaps and bounds and it is necessary to keep pace with it if its benefits are to be obtained. It is as well to keep in mind that the early bird catches the worm.

This country has not been leading the world in regard to aviation. Other governments have been making larger provisions for such experimentation and as the result those subsidies have been a great help to the establishment of commercial air routes. There mails, passengers and freight are carried through the air with increased success both as to speed and safety.

Up to the most just aviation in this country has been stimulated by the government, and a particularly important development has been the manner in which it has been shown that coast to coast mail lines can be operated on this manner. The result of such experimentation is to impress private enterprise with the opportunities in this direction. The outlook for commercial aviation is much brighter than it ever was before, and it is steadily getting brighter. New lines are being established for public service and as rapidly as it is demonstrated that such service is dependable increased business and further expansion can be anticipated. When progress is made to the point that private capital is not only willing but anxious to take over the air service it is apparent that the demonstration has been carried by the point of uncertainty.

From the success of the early lines will come the establishment of others and the adoption of the commercial aviation bill in congress at this session with practically no opposition indicates the part that such transportation can be expected to play in the future. Preparing for it by regulatory legislation and by aviation fields is only what should be expected.

HOUSECLEANING

Regardless of the great number of [illegible] sales throughout the winter there probably aren't many households but what are making a raid upon the castoffs and reserves that have been held in storage against the possibility of being utilized in some manner. Such raids invariably go with the housecleaning season. Some refer to it as a weeding out and others regard it as getting rid of old junk.

Such cleanings have taken place for years and there are those who have had a chance to experience great relief and improve conditions, while there are those in their haste to get rid of what were considered bygones who many times wished they had been able to read the future and to have appreciated at the time the future value of what they were throwing away.

There are days when it is impossible to get certain things quick enough, or to make a big enough fuss over them. And yet their desirability may quickly disappear. It is possible to see it in many ways. A few years ago there was a great clamor for war relics. A French city that was bombarded over a decade ago is now anxious to get rid of certain German war material. It isn't exactly throwing it away for it offers it for sale, but there were the days when no thought would have been entertained of disposing of them. They are in the way now. They need the room that they occupy for something else; consequently they must be disposed of, possibly as relics, possibly as junk.

It is of course, the season of the year for discarding the old and putting on the new. The transition from the highcockolorum of today to the feather duster of tomorrow is rapid as the turkey gobbler is credited with observing, and it is not improbable that there might be even a greater weeding out and junking of much greater quantities of things than there is if all the worn out ideas and misfit views should be included in the process.

Housecleaning is a great endeavor and the time for it is rightly placed at the spring of the year.

GETTING COOPERATION

For the purpose of cutting taxation there has been a consistent demand for the reduction of expenditures. Ways of reducing expenditures by millions have been pointed out. In some instances they have been adopted. In others they have not.

When the treasury department showed that it was costing the country millions to print paper money which might be saved by the more general use or silver dollars it was not a money saving proposition that made a very strong appeal. There was a burden involved that was not popular.

When the idea of resuming the printing of two dollar bills was announced it was greeted with a cry of opposition on the part of the superstitious. When the convenience of the two dollar bill was utterly ignored. The twos have happily come back and no one has been noticed throwing them away.

When the treasury department talks about cutting down the size of the paper money it brings forth a protest. The fact that it would effect a saving of $3,000,000 and be just as satisfactory gets little consideration.

There are those who are always demanding that something be done, that less money be spent, that better results be obtained, but they have no definite ideas to offer and when an attempt is made to effect changes that will result in saving they are quite as subject to opposition as the original conditions over which complaint is made. The treasury department has found out in certain instances how difficult it is to get the needed cooperation in doing things which ought to be done, of which if they were done would mean a saving of millions.

NEWSPAPERS ANNIVERSARIES

With an issue of 56 pages the Meriden Journal celebrates its 40th anniversary and it has taken occasion therein to set forth not only its excellent record but to present a narrative history of the community's progress and the part it has played therein.

It is one of those times for sincere congratulations and the Journal has certainly earned the newspaper readership it has in Meriden and with it as a newspaper of merit. Winning a combination of ages must rank as a congressman in comparison with others but while in adding age as rapidly as possible and as it does so it becomes the more firmly fixed as a Meriden institution.

As the Journal looks forwards to its fortieth year there are reasons to expect even greater changes and developments will take place during its second 40 years and quite as good reasons for believing that the record then will be even more successful that in the first.

The Meriden Journal exceeds by only seven years the age of the Berkshire Eagle as a daily, though the latter through its descent as a weekly from the Western Star dates back to the early days of 1789, and therefore is one of the oldest papers in the country with a record that is as excellent as it is long.

The Berkshire Eagle has just issued a 56 page special edition to mark the opening of its enlarged and remodeled plant at Pittsfield, Mass. This pictures the progress which has been made in that western Massachusetts city where the Eagle has always made its influence felt for the community's benefit, whether as a weekly or a daily. Its special edition indicates that Pittsfield is possessed of a newspaper of which it has full reason for being proud.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Hot enough for you?

It is of course very much too early to think of getting out the summer togs.

Anything yet to make you eager to get down to the summer cottage for the rest of the year?

Even though delayed, a vote of thanks to the weatherman might have good results for the future.

Perhaps the high price of potatoes will stimulate interest and backaches in the home gardens again this summer.

The wind has blown off the Vermont snowbanks till everyone is convinced that the stories of ice and snow up there are correct.

Of course if you are anxious to head an expedition of your own into the polar regions there's certain to be plenty of room in spite of competition.

Mention is made that automobile production is near peak and the impression is gained that the auto accidents and deaths have long since been too large.

Forestry week is for the purpose of arousing greater interest in forestry and the conservation of our timber supply. From the number of forest fires it might be supposed to aim at opposite results.

THE GIFT

A customer who was impatiently waiting in the alteration department for her gown grew nervous and began humming an aria from Louise. Cora Octagon, who was attending her, with total absent-mindedness joined in for a few bars before she recollected herself and coughed to strangle the notes.

The customer had stared beefily and coldly at this ordinary, plainfaced clerk who knew operatic tunes and did them without flatting, which was more than the portly lady could do. But nothing in Cora's face revealed that at that particular bit of melody the years had come back into her drab consciousness with a crash.

She had just thrilled with the knowledge that she had sung that especial song beautifully when decision was thrust upon her. At 30 and 16 Cora and Letty Octagon had been the belles of the southern town where their father was the minister of a pretty little church. In fact, everything about the situation had been pretty except the salary, which left a great deal to the imagination.

It had been a rattletrap old piano on which Cora had picked out tunes with one finger and learned the songs she shrilled in the infant class, graduating later to the Sunday school solo stage and then into the choir.

People said she had such a good voice and she began cutting out pictures of operatic stars and in the secrecy of her own room posing in their attitudes. She dreamed dreams, she without a party dress to take a few lessons from a visiting musician and she worked and studied and sang with the admiring help of the church organist, who also said that she had a fine voice.

There had been a promising love affair with handsome John Agnew that died from lack of attention, but Cora, her eyes on a star, did not mind.

All the admiration Cora drew because of her music was as wormwood to Letty since Letty had begun to grow up—Letty wraithlike in her thinness, challenging with an insolent sort of young beauty and something lurking in her big black eyes that should never have belonged to a minister's daughter. There was a violin in the house and Letty, casting about jealously, announced that she intended to play the violin. And play at it she did with no poor results, betraying from the first a surprising gift for shading and tone according to the town violinist, who offered to teach her though she worked but spasmodically, when spurred by anything at her sister's vocal achievements.

Letty was still the baby and the family smiled when she pouted and sulked over the sudden promise to Cora of a winter in New York for study after a little legacy had befallen the family. They had great hopes of Cora, eager, dewy, pretty throated. Letty, they explained to the stormy rebel, was too young to leave the home nest and that settled that. But she attempts made to effect changes that will result in saving they are quite as subject to opposition as the original conditions over which complaint is made. The treasury department has found out in certain instances how difficult it is to get the needed cooperation in doing things which ought to be done, of which if they were done would mean a saving of millions.

From Small Beginnings

A. T. Stewart, the Irish immigrant, the Great Merchant

A 20-year-old youth set sail from Ireland with high hopes of finding rich opportunities in America. Twenty-three years later that same individual sent back to the starving people of Ireland, then in the grip of a great famine a whole shipload of provisions. When the French were suffering after the Franco-Prussian war he sent another shipload of provisions to them. When the great fire in Chicago made thousands of people destitute and homeless he sent at once the then great sum of $50,000 for their relief. In one way or another, during the 53 years that he lived in America, he did good for the world. The boy who left Ireland was Alexander T. Stewart, the founder of the great New York city enterprise now conducted by John Wanamaker.

How little did the Scotch-Irish boy, in his early days, anticipate the great future that lay before him! He had not looked for fame nor fortune, but had expected to devote his life to the doing of good as a Christian preacher. With the aim of accomplishing something worthy for the world he entered Trinity college, Dublin, and for two years studied theology. Then there came to him the idea that a store, as well as a church, may be a temple, a place where man may and his fellow man. He left Ireland and came to New York city.

The first store that he conducted was only a small affair, but he conducted it honestly. People learned to know, that the dry goods that A. T. Stewart sold were worth the cost. They bought of him, and the business prospered. As the years went on he enlarged the business more and more, and erected great buildings that were the pride of New York. On Broadway and Chambers street and on Broadway and 9th street his buildings still stand as monuments to his genius and his honesty.

At Garden City, L. I., is a great cathedral erected in his memory, but Garden City itself, founded by him for the comfort of laboring men, is a greater memorial.

Stories That Recall Others

Rubbing It In

The constable was in the justice court in connection with the prosecution of a blind tiger case. There was some disturbance to which his attention was called in the rear of the court room and upon investigation the constable found the trouble was being created by the defendant in the blind tiger case, who was so drunk he was about to be ejected. He had come to the trial to plead guilty, but after he had been escorted from the room he became hostile about everything until he was finally put back in the lockup for someone else to worry about. "Isn't that rich?" asks the constable.

From the Mouth of Babes.

Roscoe, age five, was riding with his uncle. He was first attracted by a lone sparrow which had the middle of the road until the car seemed almost on him.

"Did you run over that sparrow?" questioned the youngster.

"Nope, we'd have felt a bump if we had," assured the uncle.

"Well, did you ever run over a sparrow?"

"Never did."

"Then how do you know you would feel a bump if you run over one?"

The uncle groaned and quickly changed the subject, attempting to turn the tables and place the youngster on the defensive.

"What would you do if this car should stop out here and we couldn't get it started?" he asked.

"I'd cut down a tree and make a horse to pull us," he decided glancing at some nearby trees.

"Oh, you can't make a horse out of a tree."

"Sure, didn't you ever hear of a wooden horse?"

And that caused the uncle to abandon his tactics and turn homeward.

BURIATS MUST STOP STEALING WIVES

Marriage isn't what it used to be in Siberia. One of the latest laws reported to the outside world provides three years imprisonment for any Buriat, who, following the customs of his fathers, steals the woman of his choice. The matter is complicated by the reported preference of the women to be stolen rather than to be asked for or bought.

"The Buriats are true children of nature when not influenced by outside cultures," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "When the Russians came upon them on the banks of Lake Baikal in the 16th century many of them made their living wholly by hunting and fishing. While the majority had only progressed one more step in their journey from natural conditions, being nomad stock raisers.

"A little handful of Buriats, after contact with Russian colonists, have become agriculturists; and remarkably good agriculturists at that, even surpassing the average Russian farmer. But the great majority still make their living close to unmodified nature, as herders and hunters.

"It is a hard, laborious life that their love of nature makes itself most deeply felt. Many are frankly Shamanists—nature worshipers. Those nearest Baikal are Russified and nominally Christians; while those nearest Mongolia profess Lamaism. But nature worship underlies the rites of all of them: the sky, the mountains, the rivers, the rain, the wind—all are peopled for them by gods. Even the nominally Christian Buriats nearest the shores of Lake Baikal insist that "the Holy Sea" doesn't like to be called "lake," and that when so insulted it will become stormy and turbulent, perhaps destroying a [illegible].

"The nomadic Buriats, near the Mongolian border, have many traits in common with their kinsmen the Mongols. They are like them in appearance, live for the most part in yurtas or skin huts, raise cattle and sheep, and are excellent horsemen. The typical well-to-do Buriat and his horse are inseparable companions during life; and custom demands that the horse be tied to his owner's grave to starve and so accompany him in death. The heirs of the deceased usually manage to get around this custom, however, either by substituting a worn [illegible] for the good saddle-horse, or by tying the latter with a weak thong. When the horse escapes and trots back to his fellows, they say that it is "the will of Heaven" that he live. The Buriat horses are remarkable for their endurance, often trotting 50 and 60 miles without a pause, and showing no fatigue at the journey's end.

"Buriats are so wedded to their yurtas that many who have followed Russian customs and built permanent huts, leave a smoke hole in the center of the roof (as in a yurta) and build their fires in the center of the floor. They are fond of display, and the more prosperous have rugs on floor and walls, and wear silken robes. They are as inveterate smokers as the Burmese, and as in Burma, even small children smoke. Tea drinking is also a common habit. The buriat man-of-affairs wears a broad silk girdle in which he trusts his pipe and tea cup, that these necessities may be ever at hand.

"Only a small group of Buriats have practiced the theft of their wives. One common custom is for families that have both sons and daughters to exchange as wives for their respective sons. If the make-up of the families does not permit exchanges, a wife is in effect bought, usually by a gift of cattle. The bride's dowery usually more than offsets the price, however. In some cases the doweries are furs worth many thousands of dollars.

"The old Siberian province of Transbaikalia, east of the great lake, is the region in which most of the Buriats live. This is considered the most beautiful part of Siberia, a land of alternating forests and steppes. The soil is permanently frozen, although the immediate surface thaws out in summer. Agriculture is not possible over much of the Buriat country, but the shallow soil permits grazing activities.

"In the forested regions the tree roots penetrate the soil only a few inches but grow horizontally. Many of these poorly anchored trees are overturned by the wind; and a characteristic feature of the country is supplied by the great rough disks of roots of the fallen trees towering almost as high as their upright fellows."

WHAT SHALL BE THE NAME OF NEW RADIO MENACE—LIBEL?

NEW YORK, April 22 —This question of libel by radio, raised by States Attorney Crowe of Chicago, has stirred discussion in New York over what name to call the new air menace. Suggested names are Etheric Turpitude, Radiosperse and Aero-slan, all of which are clear as to derivation. Only the keen dictionary hounds get the association of a fourth suggestion, Ethbel.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Howard Hitchon has returned to Brown university, after a brief vacation at his home on Washington street.

Frank Montague and daughter Eloise have left for New Haven, following a week end visit with Dr. and Mrs. Harry E. Higgins.

Concluding the season for the two-table Friday Bridge club, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins is giving a daffodil luncheon, to be followed by cards, this (Friday) afternoon, at her home on Sachem Terrace.

The Wednesday Afternoon club met with Miss Jane Bell of Lincoln avenue. The hostess read the paper of the afternoon, which was on Beethoven, illustrating it with piano selections from the composer. Informal tea followed.

Thursday afternoon, the Delphian chapter met for study with Mrs. Charles A. Saxton, the program being in charge of Mrs. James A. Bidwell. Mrs. Bidwell read a paper on Von Weber singing "Agatha's Prayer" from the opera "Der Freischutz." Mrs. George A Ashley gave the story of the opera "Oberon." Mrs. Saxton's paper on Schubert, Mrs William C. Buck illustrating this by her beautiful singing of "The Er. King" and Mrs. Bidwell giving great pleasure with the Schubert Serenade. Mrs. W. Tyler Brown and Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn sketched the life of Schumann, typical Schumann numbers sung by Mrs. Bragg being Der Nussbaum (The Almond Tree) and The Sandman.

AGGIES OPEN SEASON AT STORRS THIS AFTERNOON AGAINST THE TUFTS TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, April 23.—The Connecticut Aggie baseball team will play its first game of the season tomorrow afternoon, when the strong Tufts college team is met on Gardiner Dow field.

With a record of five victories in five starts the Massachusetts team has rated several notches above the Connecticut nine and so far as the dope is concerned it would win handily.

Connecticut is conceding nothing to Bay Staters, however, and if the class of Coach Dole can display the kind of play flashed against Brown and Providence yesterday, then stores are going to see a real contest tomorrow afternoon.

Prior to the contest with Brown yesterday, the Aggies threw a real scare into the camp of the Bruins by going into the 3rd Connecticut was trailing by a 1 to 7 count. The encouraging factor to followers of the Connecticut team, however, is the fact that it showed a green team played good baseball and put up a strong game throughout. Coach Dole thus far has expressed himself as being pleased with the showing of his team in these first games.

Victories defeated by Tufts include Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Springfield, New York University, Seton Hall, and Lowell Textile. The 12-5 victory over N. Y. U. this week is the most impressive one registered by the Tufts team to date for it was the first setback received by the metropolitan team after a string of victories, one of which was over Yale at New Haven.

The university defeated Tufts 7-0, but was downed the Medford team 10-1 at New York yesterday. These are the only reverses suffered to date by Tufts.

William Makolas, of Somerville, N. J., will be acting captain tomorrow as he will probably be chosen by Coach Dole to go on the mound against Tufts. Howard Kennedy of New Haven, a sophomore, will take Makofski's position at first base.

Connecticut's probable lineup as announced today by Coach Dole is as follows: Kennedy, 1b; Wing, 2b; Makofski, ss; Wing, 3b; Marshall, p; Dole, cf; Horton, lf; Shea, rf; Allard, rf; Williams, c; Reynolds, 1b.

Tufts probable lineup will be announced by Coach Kennedy for Storrs tomorrow afternoon. Batteries: Fuller, ss; Kennedy, 2b; Simmons, 3b; Reed, rf; Daggett, c; Kelley, lf; Stevenson, cf; Gorman, p. The game will be called at 2:30 p. m.

WHITE SOX HIT BROWN PITCHERS WITHOUT MERCY

ST. LOUIS, April 23.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox batted four St. Louis Browns pitchers today for 15 safeties and won the second game of the series, 11 to 7. The Browns also hit freely, gathering 11 hits off two Sox moundsmen. Hargrave hit two home runs, one in the fourth and one in the sixth inning. The Browns made five double plays, tieing the major league record held by several clubs. The score:

SENATORS EVEN SERIES AS ATHLETICS PLAY DUMB GAME

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—(AP)—Washington evened the series with the Athletics today by winning the second game 8 to 2. TODT'S HOMER WINS EXTRA INNING GAME FOR RED SOX

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Phil Todt's second home run of the game broke an 8 to 8 tie in the tenth inning and enabled the Boston Red Sox to win the second game of their series with the Yankees today by a score of 9 to 8.

The Yankees hit with their usual vigor, but the ineffectiveness of three young pitchers, Thomas, McQuaid and Braxton nullified their efforts. Wingfield did well in the box for Boston, a gift to Gaston enabling Ruth to score New York's tying run in the ninth after he had led off with a triple. The score:

TUFTS PLAYS BRILLIANT BALL AGAINST YALE

NEW HAVEN, April 22.—(AP)—Playing errorless ball behind the excellent pitching of Shuman, the Tufts college baseball team defeated Yale here this afternoon 7 to 4. The visitors took an early lead in the first inning when three hits, a walk and two errors gave them four runs. Although Yale was strengthened today by the return of Dick Vaughan, shortstop, who has been out since the Easter trip with an injured arm the play of the Eli nine was ragged. Yale gathered two tallies in the second and then was held scoreless until the ninth when Shuman allowed two hits and a walk and a sacrifice fly to net Yale two runs.

DEMPSEY TO GO INTO TRAINING FOR BIG BOUT

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 22.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, left here today for Hendersonville, North Carolina, to go into training for a title bout in September under the promotion of Tex Rickard.

Reports from South Bend that he still has a contract with a syndicate of that place to fight Harry Wills in some city other New York, were denied by Dempsey. He said the syndicate had failed to perform its part of the contract.

Dempsey stated that he would not be able to return to Madera, California, to answer to a reckless driving charge which will come up against him there May 25, because he is under contract to train for thirty days at Hendersonville.

He said he would appear in court in California as soon as possible.

CARDS BEAT OUT CHAMPS IN OVERTIME GAME

PITTSBURGH, April 22.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Nationals hoisted their world's championship pennant this afternoon, and then proceeded to lose the opening home game to St. Louis, 5 to 3, in ten innings. Chick Hafey scuttled the Pirate Erig with a home run, scoring Hornsby ahead of him. Keen held the Pirates in check all the way. Ragged fielding gave the home team three runs in the second inning.

A crowd of 35,000 witnessed the battle, and the ceremonies incident to the raising of the pennant, John Heydler, president of the National league and John K. Tener, former chief of the circuit took part. The score:

CUBS AND REDS BATTLE TO 11-INNING TIE SCORE

CHICAGO, April 22.—(AP)—Darkness today ended an 11-inning battle between Cincinnati and Chicago, with the score tied at 5 all after a rush of pinch hitters in the ninth had enabled the Cubs to knot the count.

The Reds took an early lead by bunching hits to help along the erratic support of the Cubs. Chicago played an uphill game, but evened the score through Luque's wildness and an error by Picinich. Donohue replaced the Cuban, but was in turn relived in the 11th when the Cubs threatened. May then went to the mound for the Reds, and Shannon, who drove in the tying run in the ninth, ended the play by hitting into a fast double play. Each club used a trio of pitchers. The score:

ACADEMY TAKES LESSON IN BASEBALL FROM RIVERVIEW

The Academy team was given a seven-inning lesson in baseball Thursday afternoon at the State hospital diamond when the Riverview club won by a score of 9 to 0. The game which meant nothing to either team and was simply a practice session for both clubs showed the Academy team many weak spots in their defense as well as their attack. Riverview played a nice game and the local fans will see one of the best teams in Connecticut at the institution this summer.

The game was a pretty one to watch for five innings both teams playing good baseball with the advantage wholly with the home club. Lloyd Jarvis was pitted against Tony West, the big south-paw sensation of the hospital club. Jarvis pitched a heady game and although three runs were scored off him he did not exert himself and worked under wraps. Gibbons also pitched part of the game and looked good working a fast ball and sharp curves.

Johnny Greene pitched the last two innings for the Academy and when Greene started his speed ball the Riverview club changed their attack into a bunting game and the hit and run plays. The school boy did not put much on the ball having pitched the day before and he was hit very freely indeed.

The Academy secured only one hit in the seven innings and only three Academy men batted in each inning. Tony West and Gaudette each hit a triple while Mills and Gibbons doubled.

PROMOTERS DISCUSS PLANS FOR WALKER-DUNDEE BOUT

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Prospects for a welterweight championship match between Mickey Walker champion, and Joe Dundee of Baltimore one of the outstanding challengers were discussed today by Jack Kearns Walker's manager, and Jess McMahon, Tex Richard's matchmaker.

McMahon said Kearns agreed to terms while Dundee's manager already has signed a blank contract for the match, which is expected to be clinched if the two principals involved, survive tests next month.

Walker is to defend his title against Pete Latzo at Scranton, Pa., May 20 while Dundee is matched to fight his outstanding rival for the welterweight contendership, Willie Harmon at the Coney Island stadium, May 28. The state athletic commission has announced it will recognize the winner of this match as Walker's logical challenger.

The title match, McMahon said, will be held late in July or early in August at the Yankee stadium and will be over the 15 round championship route.

CAPTAIN SEYMOUR OUT OF GAME FOR THE SEASON

STORRS, April 22.—(AP)—Upon orders from the doctor, Captain Marshall L. Seymour, '26, of Suffield, will not be permitted to play with the Connecticut Aggie baseball team this season as he has not yet recovered from a serious illness of last winter. This will necessitate the election of a new captain for the team.

Seymour did not play against Brown at the last game, but fans hoped he would be in the lineup for later games His loss will be felt by the team which is lacking in veteran material. William F. Makofski, '26, of Schenectady, N. Y., will act as captain in the game against Tufts here tomorrow.

ATHLETES GATHER FOR ANNUAL PENN RELAYS

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—(AP)—A small army of athletes from the four corners of the country invaded Franklin field today for final workouts in preparation for the annual Pennsylvania relay carnival tomorrow and Saturday.

From early morning until dusk spiked-shod sprinters, hurdlers and weight throwers streamed through the gates of Franklin field to put on the finishing touches. One of the outstanding stars was Robert Sturtridge, De Pouw university, who last year created a sensation by winning fourth first places in the Decathlon. He won every running race in the competition but failed inthe field events.

BIG ENTRY LIST FOR DRAKE RELAYS THIS WEEK

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 22.—(AP)—Drake university bowl today entertained the first of an entry list of almost 2,500 high school and college athletes from all parts of the country journeying here for the annual Drake relays tomorrow and Saturday.

Charley Hoff, Norwegian pole vault king, who has broken the world record in this country several times, and has promised to fire going over the bar a little higher here, limbered up.

Chapman Mauls Shaeffer

BOSTON, April 22.—(AP)—Red Chapman hammered Herbie Shaeffer of Chicago around the ring to a technical knockout in the fourth round of a scheduled ten round bout here tonight. The men are featherweights. Chapman opened with a lively tattoo on Shaeffer's face and kept it up with telling and visible results until Referee Jack Sheehan stopped the bout.

CARPENTER SIGNS CONTRACT TO FIGHT TOMMY LOUGHRAN

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—(AP)—Announcement was made tonight that the signed contracts of George Carpentier, of France, and Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light heavyweight, for a ten round bout here in June had been received by the promoters, Taylor and Gunnis.

The fight will be held about June 17 in the new municipal stadium, which will have a seating capacity of 100,000 and will be one of the features of the Sesqui-Centennial sports program.

Carpenter already is in training at Atlantic city. Loughran plans to work on a site near the stadium. The Frenchman is to meet Eddie Huffman prior to his bought with Loughran.

Rosedales After Games

The Greeneville Rosedales have organized for the coming season and challenge the Taftville Bearcats for a game Sunday at 2:30 p m—at the J. B. Martin diamond. The Rosedales have such men as Cimikoski, Carroll, Goldblatt, Tennant, McGowan, Witkin, Nevins, Joe Downes, Sadinsky and Burke This team will give any of the younger teams a good game. If the challenge is accepted answer through this paper.

YALE AND HARVARD GOLF LEADERS TO PLAY HERE IN EXHIBITION

Intercollegiate color will be given the coming Walter Hagen-Johnny Farrell match at the Norwich Golf club here on Sunday, May 16th because of the fact that two of the leading college golf players in the east will be paired with Hagen and Farrell in the foursome. The two college players that will play, one with Hagen and the other with Farrell are H. E. Stimpson, captain of the Harvard golf team and F. E. Wattles, captain of the Yale golf team.

Hagen and Farrell are nationally known in professional golf circles and their names are synonymous with the best in golf. Stimpson as captain of the Crimson team is a player who is well known in collegiate circles while Wattles is perhaps one of the best known of the college golfers with the exception of Dexter Cummings. Wattles has played brilliant golf for the Eli team and has also entered many of the amateur tournaments in the south during the past southern season.

It is the plan of Dr. Franklin S Wilcox, chairman of the committee in charge of the exhibition match, to have the Harvard player team up with Hagen against Farrell and Wattles as it is conceded that the Yale star has a slight advantage over the Crimson player, while Hagen still has a shade on Johnny Farrell in the professional ranks.

When this foursome tees off it is expected that a gallery of several hundred will follow along. Plans are being made to entertain at least 500 visitors at the club during the day and notices of the match have been sent to all the golf clubs in Connecticut.

Another feature of the Norwich club which is attracting state-wide attention is the invitation tournament which is to be run off later in the year. For this tournament a large number of handsome prizes have been provided besides the cup which is to be awarded to the winner. The cup is to become the permanent possession of the one winning it three times.

Greenkeeper Skelly has been putting in long hours grooming the course for the Hagen-Farrell exhibition and it is expected that it will be in first class shape for this banner event. The cold weather has somewhat hampered the work on the greens and the new grass has been slow in coming in. In places where the greens are more or less sheltered the greens look fine and are fast. In the more exposed places the greens are not so good but will come along fast as the weather becomes more springlike.

BASKETBALL MAKES BID AS NATIONAL GAME IN ITALY

NEW YORK, April 19 (AP)—Basketball, unknown in Italy before the war, bid fair to become national game of the country, said Samuel Yharoven physical director of the Turin Y. M. C. A., on leave in this country. A national basketball federation of 50 clubs corresponding to the A. A. U. here, has been formed. Last year 2,000 members received cards entitling them to participate in the national championship games.

Rainbow Club Meeting

Monday evening the Rainbow club met at the home of Miss Marion Larsen. The evening was spent in sewing. Covers were laid for ten and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. A social hour was spent and exhibition dances and music were enjoyed by all.

The Centennials baseball team of Norwich would like to play the Jewett City All Stars next Sunday in Jewett City and a return game in Norwich the following Sunday. If challenge is accepted answer through this paper.

College Lacrosse

At Princeton: Princeton 7; Oxford 1.

The eyes of the collegiate athletic world will be focused April 23-24 on Franklin field in Philadelphia, where the 32nd annual relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania will be held. Olympic champions, world's record-holders and college champions from all sections of the country are to be found in the record entry list, while the participation of several stars from abroad will give an international flavor to the meet.

MRS. BROUSSEAU ELECTED HEAD OF NATIONAL D. A. R.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—With the casting of the first ballot today in the biennial election, Mrs. Alfred H. Brousseau of Connecticut, became president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in congress here. Mrs. Brousseau was the only candidate for the office. Mrs. George White Nash of New York, having withdrawn in the interest of "harmony."

They say I'm "fussy"

WELL, let that go. I'm ready to admit that so far as pipe tobacco is concerned, I've got ideas. And if insisting on a tobacco that won't bite the tongue or parch the throat is "being fussy," you can write "guilty" alongside my name, and I won't even appeal the charge.

I can't speak for anybody else, but personally I smoke for pleasure! So I smoke Prince Albert. I'll say I do. Right after breakfast, on up until I switch off the light for the night. Pipe-load after pipe-load. Day after day. Prince Albert treats my tongue as gently as a mother handles a brand-new baby.

They tell me it's the Prince Albert process that cuts out bite and parch. Fair enough. I'll testify before the well-

The proceeds of the entertainment, $22 80 will go to the town library fund About 6 parents and friends were present Westminster Hill school has been in session two Saturdays at April 10 received a visit from Miss Seltzman of Packer, teacher at Peck, when the building was destroyed by fire over a year ago.

Bobbie Joslyn's fifth birthday was celebrated, April 10.

Mrs Lenie Douglas and Mrs Minnie Davis were in Danielson recently, accompanying their brother Bert Bennett and purchasing some articles greatly need since their fire Mrs Douglas remained in Danielson to rest and visit with a relative for a few days.

Word comes that John Albiere brother of Mrs William E Davies of Elm Arch farm where he was critically ill last fall, recovering sufficiently to return to Darien, Conn., is slowly losing ground, causing sorrow to many friends here and elsewhere.

Mrs. Anna Church who has been ill since her return from Montville, where she spent the greater part of the winter is not yet able to leave her room but is gaining steadily.

Very low temperature for April, and high winds, have prevailed in Westminster for nearly a week.

Friends regret to hear that Mrs Jessie A. Meads who has spent the winter in New York city is ill.

Ambrose Leidwein when repairing a stone wall the first of April had his right leg crushed by a large stone falling on it. While suffering slight pain from it now, he is still confined to the house and unable to use it.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pellet recently entertained Mrs. Pellett's father, W Inglis, Miss Margaret Inglis and Messrs William and George Inglis, of Plainfield.

Charlie Eastlund is helping with the work at Leidwein's.

Willis Bennett of Plainfield has been assisting at Rev T Edward Davies' in putting the house in better condition for spring and is boarding at Albert Pellett's. His brother Charles of Wauregan, was a recent caller at Frank Pellett's.

LEFFINGWELL

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest C. Leffingwell spent the week end in Groton, with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Leffingwell.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Ross this week were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Elliott and daughters, Ruth, Justine, Gertrude and Caroline, of Taunton, Mass.

George W. Johnson and Oscar Swangren of Jamaica Plains, Mass., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Beard the first of the week.

Thursday afternoon, April 15th, the Ladies' Aid society held its annual meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy L. Beard. The officers appointed were: President, Mrs. Forrest C. Leffingwell; secretary and treasurer, Miss Elsie Beard; solicitor, Mrs. William White; ways and means committee, Mrs. Roy L. Beard and Miss Ruth P. Ellis. A substantial sum is in the treasury. Plans and arrangements for the new year were discusse. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The last rehearsal for the mission play, "Mon e Talks," was held Friday evening, with Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Whiting at their home on Benjamin street, Norwich. An enjoyable evening was spent after the rehearsal by the young people. Refreshments were served to the party by Mrs. Whiting.

Tuesday afternoon when the wind was blowing strong from the west a fire was checked in time and only burned along the edge of the road. The children were just coming out of school and noticed it. They ran up and told H. E. Beard. He, with his son and all the school boys rushed to subdue the blaze. They cut cedar trees which were just over the wall, and beat on the fire. Ernest Gadbois with his company of men who are state road repairers, were a short way from the fire. They came with brooms and shovels and stopped at the school house well and filled all their pails with water. In a short time the fire was extinguished. The fire was just above the church on the opposite side of the road. It is supposed that a lighted cigarette caused the fire which was spread by the strong wind.

Visitors Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John L. Ross were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Griffith of East Great Plain.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Beard and Miss Elsie Beard, of Leffingwell, accompanied by George W. Johnson and Oscar Swangren of Jamaica Plains, Mass., motored to Hartford to visit State Policeman Frederick O. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Spicer and children, Herbert, Helen, and Lucile, visited Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Barry of Quaker Hill, Sunday.

Gilbert Murray is spending some time in Hartford.

Federal prohibition agents now have to contend with Chinese bootleggers handling liquor smuggled from China.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

RETURNS FROM ATTENDING DELCO-LIGHT ANNIVERSARY

Carl W. Brown has just returned to this city from Dayton, Ohio, where he has been attending the tenth anniversary Delco-Light and Frigidaire sales convention which was held in that city April 8 and 9 and in which 1500 members of the field organization of the Delco-Light company took part. Those who attended the convention, Mr. Brown said, won free trips to Dayton, all expenses paid and other substantial awards, as a reward for securing a required volume of business for the company, and this honor came to Mr. Brown as a reward for his exceptional sales effort in his territory.

An important feature of the convention, said Mr. Brown was the announcement by the company of a new model, completely automatic Delco-Light plant. This plant does not have the usual storage battery. It starts automatically, whenever a light is turned on or any electric switch is closed, and it stops when the light is turned off or the other electric service is ended. This plant will provide 30 25-watt lights or their equivalent and is especially adaptable to the automatic electric service required for the operation of electric pressure water systems and of Frigidaire, the electric refrigerator.

Tentative plans for the still greater expansion of the Delco-Light company at Dayton, were intimated by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors corporation, who was a guest of the convention and who declared that the resources of General Motors were back of any plans of the Delco-Light company, its subsidiary, to make and to sell, in still greater numbers, Delco-Light products of the highest possible quality and at the lowest possible price. The Delco-Light company now has in Dayton, said Mr. Brown the largest factory of its kind in the world, covering 32 acres of floor space and their plans for expansion are based on indications that in 1926 there will be bought at least twice the number of their products that were bought in 1925.

Broadway

A very refreshing and interesting five act bill of Keith-Albee vaudeville opened at the Broadway theatre yesterday and held the crowds enraptured. "Ben Dover" was the opening number. No more need be said than he held the house spellbound with his contortion feats.

Morgan & Warner are two accomplished musicians as well as comedians. Some good musical numbers and comedy brought them the results they deserved.

Miss Frankie Rice working in front of splendid setting and assisted by Mr. Geng Davidson at the piano scored highly with her several numbers. She is called The Mirror of Emotions offering in "The Hall of Fame."

Real tunes, laughy lyrics and good comedy with Colvin & Wood in "The Plot Thickens" which was written by Paul Gerard Smith was great comedy.

Eddie Connor's revue consisting of six people made a perfect closing number. This is one of the fastest singing and dancing revues this writer has seen in many a day. Every number is artistically rendered and all earned the spontaneous applause.

"Children of the Whirlwind," made by Whitman Bennett from Le Roy Scott's great novel, with a cast that includes Lionel Barrymore, Johnnie Walker and Marguerite De La Motte, is the screen photoplay that is on view.

Strand Theatre

A skillful blending of melo-drama, sophisticated comedy, spectacular scenes, and unusual photographic effects has made "Sporting Life," Maurice Tourneur's Universal-Jewell production, one of the outstanding productions of the season.

"Sporting Life," opened at the Strand theatre last night for an engagement of three and held its audience charmed and thrill-bound from opening flash to the ending title.

Much of the story is frank melodrama, and with it Tourneur has combined a quality with which melodrama does not always go hand in hand—reality. After all, the newspapers and everyday life are full of melodrama, and theatrical experience has proven that that is the most popular of all types of drama.

Bert Lytell and Marian Nixon make a great pair of lovers, Bert as the dashing young English lord who wins the reputation as the most extravagant man in London, and Marian as the sweet, innocent English girl.

Others in the cast, all of whom give creditable performances, are Cyril Chadwick, Paulette Duval, Charles Delaney, George Seigmann, Ena Gregory, Kathleen Clifford and others.

Curtis Benton adapted the famous play to the screen.

Walter Heirs is also seen in his latest comedy riot "Off His Beat" while a News Weekly closed the show.

Sunday night two great features can be seen.

Palace Theatre

Five Paramount acts make up the vaudeville bill at the Palace for the last half of this week. The Moulin Rouge Revue closed the bill with a very clever dancing and singing act which ranks the best seen in Norwich in some time.

Special mention is given to the Lone Star Four a mixed quartette of voices in old and new songs—a special setting goes with this act and costumes to fit.

Taylor & Howard furnish a line of acrobatic comedy with a Wee Bit O' Scotch chatter which gets a great laugh.

Frank Meehan is No. 2 on the bill and fills the place nicely with a lot of comedy talk.

Frank & Alma open the show with a marvelous shadow-graph act that keeps you interested every minute.

Milton Sills goes to sea again.

He is Captain John Caly, of the two-master pearl schooner "Lark," in First National's "As Man Desires," a rapid-fire drama of romance at the Palace theatre.

Sills in "As Man Desires" is the gaunt weatherbeaten captain of a South Sea Island pearl fisher, and master of "Forbidden Island," the mystery island of the Tahiti group.

Viola Dana, who is co-featured in the drama, in the role of a half-wild native dancing girl, falls in love with him and Sills takes her with the intention of making her into a "fine lady."

The supporting cast includes Ruth Clifford, Rosemary Theby, Tom Kennedy, Paul Nicholson, Lou Payne, Hector Sarno, Anna May Walthall, Edneh Altemus and Frank Leigh. Irving Cummings directed under Earl Hudson, supervisor of First National productions.

Fontaine Recital Programme

The following is to be the programme this evening at Slater hall for the recital by Henry J. La Fontaine, baritone, assisted by Evadna Lapham, pianist, which is given under the auspices of the Rotary club for the benefit of the Dr. Blackmar boys' fund:

Per la Gloria ..... Bononcini
Where'er You Walk ..... Handel
Lord God of Abraham..Mendelssohn
Vision Fugitive ..... Massenet
Mr. LaFontaine
Scherzo B flat minor ..... Chopin
Mrs. Lapham
The Lotus Flower ..... Schumann
Serenade ..... Brahms
Weyla's Song ..... Wolf
Omnipotence ..... Schubert
Mr. LaFontaine
(a) The Eagle ....Edward MacDowell
(b) The Sea,

(c) Diversion ..... John Carpenter
Mrs. Lapham
Cargoes ..... Dobson
Trees ..... Rosbach
Water Boy ..... Robinson
Murmuring Zephyrs ..... Jensen
Silence of Night .....Cachmaninoff
Sprnig ..... Hildach
Spring ..... Hildach

Mrs. Lapham of New York has played in ensemble music with some of the leading quartets in Chicago, New York and elsewhere and was with Madam Homer as pianist and accompanist for several years. Two years ago, she played at Mrs. Gale's, for the Norwich Music association.

Breed Theatre

Colonel Frederick Palmer's celebrated novel, "Invisible Wounds," has been translated for the screen under the title of "The New Commandment" and is now showing at the Breed theatre for a two day engagement.

"The New Commandment" is a society melodrama, full of thrills, romance beauty and comedy. Containing all the necessary elements for superb film entertainment, it is a tribute to Robert T. Kane, the producer, who, with "The New Commandment" enters the movie field under his own banner as a producer for First National.

Blanche Sweet, Ben Lyon, Holbrook Blinn, George Cooper, Diana Kane, Dorothy Cummings, Pedro De Cordova and Effie Shannon head a marvelous acting cast.

Howard Higgin directed "The New Commandment" and also participated in the screen adaptation with Sada Cowan. It is a monumental triumph for Kane, Higgin, Miss Cowan and the cast and well deserves to take its place in movieland's hall of fame.

The second chapter of the new Pathe serial, "Casey of the Coast Guard" the Pathe News and an Educational comedy are on this bill.

"Mike," the delightful Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy drama, opening at the Creed theatre on Sunday is the first original story produced by its director Marshall Neilan, in some time. Neilan is noted for his clever plots, original twists, exciting drama and, above all, his delicious sense of comedy.

ALBERT OEHRIG MISSING— MAY HAVE FALLEN IN POND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, April 22.—A posse of a hundred men was searching the woods and ponds Thursday night for Albert, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Oehrig of Brick Top road, who disappeared from his home about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The boy is slightly crippled and walks with more or less difficulty. When last seen he ran out of the house while playing and then was wearing overalls and a jersey blouse; he had no hat. Ten minutes after his disappearance the parents started the search, later calling in help. The local police and the state police barracks at Stafford Springs were notified. Late Thursday night efforts were being made to drain Brick Top pond on the Anderson property, in the belief that the child may have fallen into the water.

MRS. JOHN G. BROMLEY DIES IN BOSTON HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, April 22. — Mrs. Susie J. Geer, wife of John G. Bromley, of Lisbon, died in Boston Homeopathic hospital Thursday morning, following a major surgical operation Tuesday. Mrs. Bromley was born in Jewett City, the daughter of Sydney and Eva Wilcox Geer. In her girlhood days she was a member of the Jewett City Baptist church and was a member of the church choir. Thirty-two years ago she married John Bromley, the ceremony being performed in Providence by Rev. Walter P. Buck, former pastor of Jewett City Methodist church. After living two years in Providence, they came to the farm in Lisbon, where they have lived ever since. Mrs. Bromley was devoted to her home and she was a great lover of trees, flowers and animals. She attended a Jewet City grammar school and the Norwich Free Acaemy. She is survived by her husband and a sister, Mrs. Grace Stoneburn, wife of Prof. Frederick H. Stoneburn, formerly of Storrs college, now of Los Angeles, Cal.

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digesters are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Making the Best of a Bad Matter

Always make the best of things,
And then ignore the rest of things.
—Mrs. Grouse.

Poor Mrs. Grouse was quite heartbroken when she flew away and left that precious nest with most of the eggs broken after her fight with Ringneck the Pheasant. She flew away to look for Mr Grouse. She knew just where to look for him. She always knew where to look for him. You see, Thunderer the Grouse was still drumming every day, and you know his drumming sounds like distant thunder. That is why he is called Thunderer.

She found him at his favorite log. It was an old, moss-covered log. He had drummed on that log almost from the time he first began drumming. He sometimes drummed in other places, but it seemed to him that he never drummed as well as when he was on that log. Mrs. Grouse did not fly straight over to the log. She dropped down to the ground a short distance away and stole forward carefully so as not to make any sound. She didn't want Thunderer to see her at once. When she reached a place where she could see the old log, she stopped.

For a few minutes Mrs. Grouse forgot all her troubles in admiration of Thunderer. He might not have the handsome colors of Ringneck the Pheasant, but to Mrs. Grouse he was far handsomer. Of course, Mrs. Pheasant wouldn't have agreed with her. Thunderer was standing on one end of the old log with his head thrown back, his black ruff spread out at its fullest. His tail also spread just as far as he could spread it, so that it was like a fan, and standing up. His wings were dropped until the tips almost touched the old log on which he stood. His chest was thrown out. His eyes were bright and sparkling. For a few steps he strutted along the old log. He looked this way and that way to see if any one were watching and admiring him. But he saw no one. He stopped. His tail closed. He stretched upright and listened for a moment or two. Then, very carefully he set his feet on the old log, so as to get a perfect position. The wings went up until they almost met above his back. They came down until it looked as if they nearly met in front of him. Up they went and down again. Up and down, up and down, faster and faster. Each time they went up a booming sound rolled through the Green Forest. Presently those booms came faster and faster and faster, until they seemed almost one. It was like a roll of thunder. Then it stopped. Thunderer listened to see if there was any response.

Mrs. Grouse rustled a leaf. Instantly Thunderer turned his bright eyes that way. He saw her at once and began to strut. Mrs. Grouse came out from her hiding place. "You are wonderful, my dear," said she. Thunderer strutted a little more. "I wish," said Mrs. Grouse, "I could be as happy as you are."

"Why aren't you, my dear?" inquired Thunderer.

Then Mrs. Grouse poured out all her troubles. She told how Ringneck the Pheasant had fought her and had broken all her eggs.

"Tut, tut, tut, my dear!" said Mr. Grouse. "There is plenty of time for a new nest and more eggs. Make the best of a bad matter. Now, if you had only let me know where that nest was, this might not have happened. This is what comes of keeping a secret from me."

Mrs. Grouse looked at Thunderer and then away again quickly. "Do you think," she asked, "it would really be worth while to make another nest?"

"Certainly, my dear, certainly," replied Thunderer, strutting more than ever; but he didn't offer to help build that nest.

Fire Fighters

LAST winter fire broke out in a residence in Pittsfield, Massachusetts. The letter from Fire Chief Shepard tells in a fireman's terse, matter-of-fact way the history of that fire and the part played by Ruberoid Giant-shingles.

"On January 16th, 1925 this department received an alarm from box 64 at 1:09 P.M. Fire in dwelling at 1312 North Street. Fire started in bath room second floor, from there into attic, burning off roof timbers and roof boarding. Roof was of Ruberoid Shingles. On inspection after fire, shingles were found to be in perfect order. No burnt spots or holes through roof. I consider the Ruberoid Shingle one of the best fire retardents for roofing, as this fire would have surely gone through the roof, if it had not been covered with fireproof covering."

W. C. SHEPARD, Chief Fire Dept.

Ruberoid Shingles always fight on the side of the firemen and home owners. Come in or phone us for samples and descriptive literature.

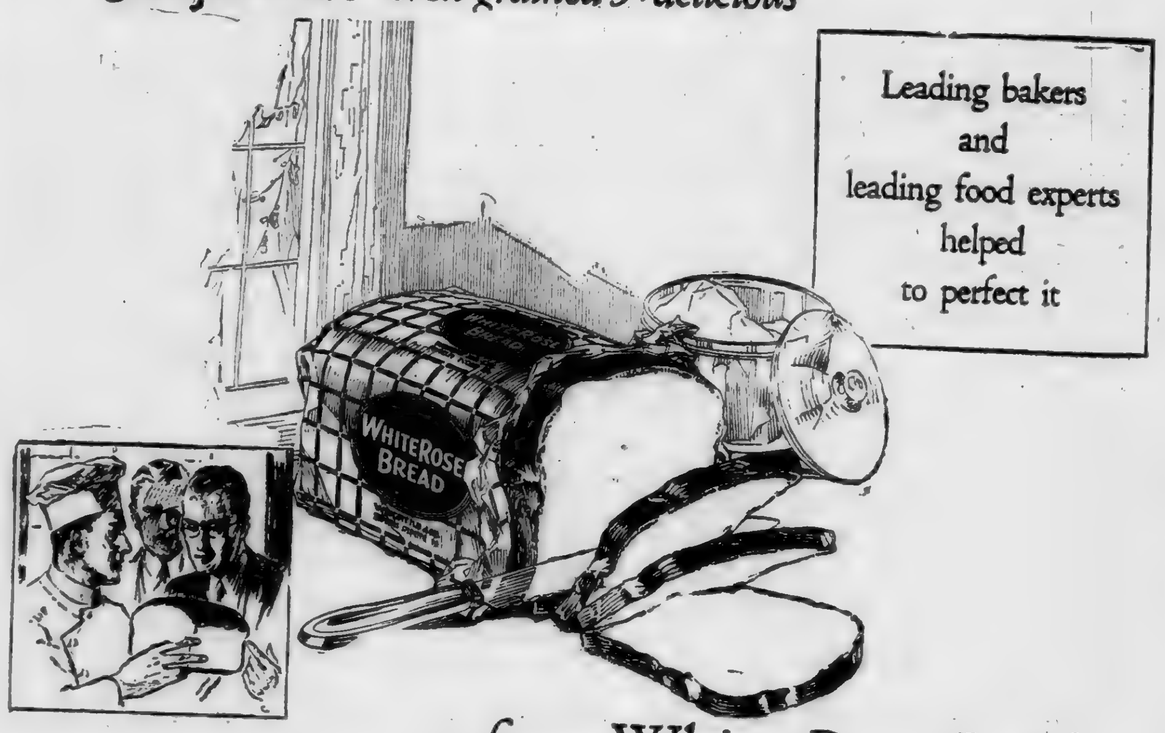
Leading bakers and leading food experts helped to perfect it



A group of the greatest food experts in America helped to perfect this new White Rose loaf . . . Authorities to whom thousands of women turn for advice—who know the needs of growing children—the preferences of busy housewives, the demands of careful mothers. No wonder more women than ever before are serving White Rose Bread today.

. . . a finer White Rose Loaf than ever before!

SERVED for years because of its goodness on the finest tables—

Now this new White Rose loaf—which leading food experts have helped us to make even finer—is bringing a new delight to New England homes everywhere.

To produce such a loaf took more than sheer perfection of baking skill—

It took careful study of the modern housewife's needs—expert knowledge of diet and dietary values—clear understanding of the part good bread should play on today's table. The result is a loaf which thousands of women have already declared to be the finest they have ever served. A loaf with just the firm, even texture—the satisfying flavor—every housewife longs for.

A loaf made only of tested ingredients—and baked with the care and cleanliness you would use in your own kitchen.

Your own grocer has White Rose Bread. It comes in a blue and white checked wrapper, like a fresh tea towel.

And because it is baked not once but twice each day, you get White Rose Bread always fresh and fragrant—just a few hours away from the oven—whenever you buy it. Massachusetts Baking Company.

Where tables are laid with fine linen and old silver you will find White Rose Bread

DANIELSON

ANNUAL ELKS BALL A BRILLIANT AFFAIR

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 23—Elaborately decorated and brilliant with lights, the great drill shed of the state armory resounded to merriment this evening at the third annual concert and ball given by the Danielson members of Putnam lodge of Elks. The attendance was representative of all the jurisdiction of Putnam lodge and from many points beyond. There were Elks on hand from numbers of towns and cities in Massachusetts and Rhode Island and from all of the larger communities of eastern Connecticut.

Music for the evening was by De Vito's orchestra of Waterbury. Their concert program from 8 to 9 o'clock included Rubinesque, Aribique, Thais, with violin solo by M. C. Di Vito, At Dawning and Pagliaccique.

The hours of dancing were preceded by a grand march which afforded an opportunity for display and inspection of the beautiful gowns to be seen in such numbers.

At 11 o'clock there was an intermission during which the usual impressive toast was given by James P. Hayes of Norwich lodge. This period opened with a march by the orchestra, chimes, the toast and was brought to a close by the orchestra playing Auld Lang Syne. Following the intermission there was dancing until one o'clock.

The committee was headed by W. W. Wheatley as chairman and included Frank M. Bedard, secretary and treasurer, Louis E. Kennedy, Sidney P. Marland, Delor Grennon, George Gendron, Joseph Raymond, Jr., E. H. Kristel, Allan Mopstek, John H. Bulger, A. J. Cavanagh, Keyren H. Cotter, James E. Murray and A. Newton Vaughn.

The ball was a very fine social success and such a happy event as is this affair each year. The proceeds of the ball will be devoted to charitable purposes.

On Wednesday of next week at the Westfield Congregational church in Danielson there is to be a meeting of the Federated clubs of Windham county. Mrs. G. H. Stoughton, president of the Connecticut Federation of Women's clubs, will be a guest of honor. The program for the meeting has been arranged as follows:

10 a. m.—Informal reception: 10:30 a. m.—Invocation—Greetings: 10:30 a. m.—Singing—America, the Beautiful: 10:40 a. m.—Business: 10:45 a. m.—Mr. Walter O. Filley, the Connecticut Forestry association: 11:15 a. m.—Music: 11:20 a. m.—Mrs. Robert F. Gadd of Hartford, Women in Civic Life: 11:50 a. m.—Club problems: 12:30 p. m.—Luncheon: 1:45 a. m.—Music: 1:50 p. m.—Miss Julia Hinaman of the Connecticut Children's Aid society, Hartford: 2:30 p. m.—Music: 2:35 p. m.—Miss Mary G. Harris, of the Helen Hartley Jenkins Juvenile clinic, Hartford: 3:10 p. m.—Reports of the club presidents of Windham county and discussion of club programs.

Rush work is being done by the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company on the arduous job of constructing a new power line from Moosup to Oneco in the town of Sterling. The company has all its available men engaged on this work, which it is anticipated will be completed and service made available in Oneco by the end of May. The job was started late last fall and was continued until cold weather checked operations.

J. D. Pyane of Day street has ventured into what is a comparatively new field for cooling the quantities of milk produced at his place daily. He is using a new system of mechanical refrigeration, something after the type that has been introduced into numbers of homes during the past year. Water in a great box-like cooler is kept almost at the freezing point by the system of mechanical refrigeration and in this water the containers holding the milk are placed. The system works remarkably well.

John M. Dowe, overseas veteran of the World war, tells a story about daylight saving in France back in the war year of 1918 that is of interest here just now in view of the change in time that is to be made in Danielson next Sunday. Over there locks were moved ahead an hour the latter part of March and moved ahead still another hour about May 15, putting the time schedule two hours ahead from then until September 1, when the clocks were set back an hour and brought back to standard for the winter period on October 15, or thereabouts.

At the home on North Main street Thursday at noon funeral services for Charles Leonard Darbie were conducted by Rev Leonard R. Richards, rector of St. Alban's church. Therew as a large attendance that included heads of departments of the Quinebaug mills, where Mr. Darbie had been employed for 49 years, representatives of the fraternal organizations of which he had been a member and other friends of the family. Burial was in Westfield cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by the rector. The bearers were George M. Robertson, Arthur Wild John W. Gallup, E. H. Keach, Frances E. Storer and Frederic O. Armington. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

From his home on Cottage street the funeral of Pierre Goulet was held Thursday morning with funeral services at St. James' church at nine o'clock. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., Rev. James McCarthy, M. S. and Rev. D. N. Richards, M. S., were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The six sons of the deceased acted as bearers. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

At All Hallows church in Moosup Thursday morning at nine o'clock there was a solemn high mass of requiem for Miss Iola Maynard, who died at Norwich after a long illness. Rev. J. E. McCarthy, Rev. J. C. Mathieu and Rev. Oscar Normah were the officers of the mass. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery at Wauregan. The bearers were Oscar Maynard, Joseph Lague, Frederick Maynard, William DeVoe, Stephen Kennedy and Leo Maynard. Louis E Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

The body of Mrs. Phillis Masse, 56, who died at the Backus hospital in Norwich, was brought to her home in Moosup Thursday in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM PLANTS ALL FAVOR DAYLIGHT TIME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 22—The response of the textile mills and the other manufacturers, of retail merchants and other business men, to the recommendation of the common council that the city of Putnam adopt daylight saving time, has been almost unanimous. Practically every business house in the city has been seen and with hardly an exception has gone on record in favor of daylight saving. The few who have not been seen will be called on before the week is out in the hope that the clocks of Putnam, except of course the town clock, will be turned forward one hour next Sunday morning.

There are quite a few who, personally, would prefer that the time remain as it is, but there is general recognition of this fact—that Putnam cannot afford to be the only city in the state that adheres to standard time This has been the impelling factor wit hthose who have agreed to the change against their own preference.

The three banks have not yet reached a decision in the matter.

At the special meeting of the city council, Thomas H. deCoudres, president of the chamber of commerce, presented the matter to the official lawmakers and said that regardless of individual wishes he could see nothing left for Putnam to do except to get in line—that it would be an almost intolerable situation with Webster, the nearest city to the north and every other city in Massachusetts, Providence and every other city in Rhode Island and with hardly an exception, every city and town in Connecticut on daylight saving and Putnam on standard time.

Otto E. Wuife, spoke along the same lines. Frances E. Metcalf, superintendent of the Bloom Silk Co., Mr. Macdonald, superintendent of the Adams Mfg. Co., and Leonard Mellor, superintendent of the National Rhea Mfg Co. indorsed the statement of Mr. deCoudres, and added that their mills would begin operation on the new time schedule next Monday.

The council adopted the recommendation with but one dissenting vote.

Many people from Putnam and surrounding towns visited the exhibit at the Putnam Trade school this week in all of the departments the exhibits were arranged in an attractive manner. An especially good exhibit was made in the high school building by the home economics department of the work done by the various classes in evening school, part time and all day. It was composed of products in domestic arts from cooking to dressmaking.

The work done among the trade school building from the street was brightly illuminated with lights in groups of five from the street to the building All of which wiring was done by the boys.

In the machine department on the first floor, in charge of Mr. Burgess, the boys were working on the engine lathes and were receiving instructions according to the specifications of each particular job. There were also exhibits arranged of the tools made and the machinery built by the boys in this department.

The carpentry department, in charge of Mr. Starr, showed a splendid line of repair jobs, cabinet work and exhibits [illegible] the electrical [illegible] department.

The exhibits in the textile department attracted a great deal of attention and the displays of the cotton and other textile spinners was especially interesting. The boys were busy operating some of the equipment in the department and showing the results of the instruction. C. H. Bowman is in charge of the textile workers.

The mechanical department on the first floor was in charge of Mr. Ingham, H. McCormick, Hugh Duncan to handle the control of mysterious force without which would be lost in this present day era. On this same floor was the [illegible] department under the supervision of C. L. Ransom and [illegible] displays included drawings and [illegible] information relative to the five trades, carpentry, cabinet, textile machine shop and [illegible] engineering.

[illegible] there was a constant stream of people from that time until 9.30 in the evening at which time the exhibit closed. The managment and the students all feeled pleased with the interest manifested by the many visitors. It is the wish of the school that they may continue to serve the best interests of the community in the training of boys and girls in various useful vacations.

Betty Putnam chapter, No. 106, O. E. S., was constituted at Woodstock with imposing ceremonies. Twelve state officers were present and installed the officers. About 150 were present and the following chapters were represented: Quinebaug chapter 139 Southbridge; Nokomis chapter 128, Webster; Jessamine chapter, 38, Putnam; Danielson chapter 77, Danielson; Martha Washington chapter 32, Waterford; Adah 30 of Unionville; Fidelity 54; New London; Eschem 57, Norwich; Faith 82, Jewett City; Greenwich 93, Greenwich; Acacia 90, New Canaan

At the conclusion of the ceremonies Sidney Bard, secretary and first patron of the Danielson chapter presented John Wetherbee, worthy patron, a silver pencil and Mrs. Carrie Healey, worthy matron, a bouquet of roses.

A new club entitled the Woodstock Academy Girls club has been recently organized with Constance Grigg, assistant teacher as elder and Miss Constance Wetherell as president. It is an outgrowth of the Camp Fire girls and the objects of the society are along the same lines. Meetings are to be held monthly at the homes of the different members Mrs. William Classon who was Miss Clara Baker of the class of 1925, entertained them at their home for the last meeting.

Reginald Pike of Lynn has been the guest of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Pike of Woodstock.

As Rev. James F. English was unable to speak at the weekly assembly at the Israel Putnam school this week Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of the school, spoke to the boys and girls of the Israel Putnam school of the value of education and the choice of an occupation. He brought out clearly not only the money value of school training but the personal worth of being able to appreciate good music, books and the higher things in life. Mr. Jenkins also gave the pupils a clear idea of some of the desirable factors in being successful in any vocation, bring in accuracy, energy, good judgment, cooperation, initiative and reliability.

The assembly next week will be held from 1:00 to 11:30 instead of [illegible] to accommodate a lecture from Hartford who is to give an illustrated lecture on health. Parents and friends are cordially invited to attend. Mr. English will talk at a later date.

The A division of the seventh grade is finding time to take a course in nature study at this spring term. At present they are studying birds; how to tell them, their use to man, habits and many other interesting things of our feathered friends. Soon flowers and trees will be included in their study. The pupils are finding this course of study very enjoyable.

Miss Marjorie Bradford of Putnam, assistant clerk of the superior court of Windham county was recently in Willimantic at a session of court for naturalization purposes. Five applicants have received their final papers.

The 43rd division, headquarters company, recently entertained 25 of the representative citizens of the community. After an exhibition drill a lunch was served. The entertainment committee with James J. Charron as chairman then welcomed the guests and introduced Lieut. Col. John Byrne as the first speaker. Mr. Byrne complimented the men on the fine record they were making and although called the "baby" company, being the last to be organized their record and camp at Niantic had received many favorable comments from the officers of the division. Mayor Victor Chapdelaine and Thomas deCoudres president of the chamber of commerce also made a few remarks.

Jake Ahern told of his experience as a doughboy in the late war and then introduced Ray Mar and four of his company who were playing at the Bailey theatre and they gave a short but interesting entertainment. Captain McGarry told of what the veterans had already done and what they hoped to do in the future.

Corporal Bove proved a good entertainer and recited a poem. Superintendent of Schools Ralph C. Jenkins made an interesting talk and Byron D. Bugbee, who is a member of the state finance board told the company would have an armory of its own.

During the evening an orchestra composed largely of company men furnished the music.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting and operations fail?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID now sold by Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. Don't delay. Try HEM-ROID today. It will do the same for you.

NEW YORK DOMESTIC HAS HER CASE NOLLED IN CITY COURT, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 22—Emmy Flickinger hired out at a New York employment agency to come to New London as a servant. She was as good as her word and hurried right to this city where she went to work as a servant. When she came here she was under the notion that she was to serve her employers as a maid, so when she was put on into the kitchen and assigned to duties that took her among the pots and dishes, she weakened, though she was to receive $75 a month, also to be provided with her meals and as comfortable a bed as anyone could desire. Emmy represented that she was a grade above that sort of employment and entered into an argument with her mistress that became so heated on the part of Emmy that a policeman was called for at headquarters. He tried to persuade Emmy that she was in New London and not in Manhattan, but she ignored that fact and proposed to stand on her rights as a member of the houseworkers' union. She said she would stay in the house until such time as the agency through which she came here called her out. It was a condition of the arrangement that she was to prove her ability for the work required of her during the first three days she labored, else she was to be sent back to her home. It was decided by the parties of the first part that Emmy would not fill the bill and she was discharged. She didn't get any ticket to New York, nor did she receive the equivalent in cash. This seemed to rankle Emmy and she tore around in such a manner that the police officer was asked to take a hand in subduing her and convincing her that she was an offender against the peace of the home, where she was supposed to be a boon to the household. Emmy was locked up for the night. This morning she had a talk with the prosecutor. He decided to nolle the complaint against the woman with the understanding that she should keep away from the home of the parties who engaged her.

REV. FR. WOLLSCHLAGER GIVEN PORT CHESTER PARISH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 22—Rev. Alexander Wollschlager, one of the assistants at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, has been transferred to a pastorate at East Port Chester and will shortly leave New London to take up his duties in that city. Rev. Fr. Wollschlager received notification of his transfer late yesterday. Who will succeed Fr. Wollschlager, is not known, but the announcement will be made within a day or two. Fr. Wollschlager has been at St. Mary's church 18 years and was one of the most beloved curates ever connected with the New London church.

He succeeds Rev. Eugene L. Sullivan, a native of Lebanon, recently advanced to the pastorate of the Church of the Assumption, Ansonia. Father Wollschlager's parish is on the Connecticut side of the New York state line.

KENERSON HOUSE FIRE FROM UNEXPLAINED ORIGIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 22—The New London fire department was kept busy today, for one bell and two still alarms were responded to. The first fire occurred about 11.30 o'clock when an unoccupied story and a-half wooden house on Rosemary street, owned by Elmer E. Kenerson was discovered ablaze. Dense clouds of smoke were issuing from the upper part of the dwelling and an alarm was rung in from Box 16, corner of Main and Williams street. When the firemen arrived at the burning structure the upper section of the building was a mass of flames. After chemicals had failed to subdue the fire a line of hose was stretched to the structure and a liberal quantity of water quickly conquered the fire. The damage will aggregate several hundreds of dollars. How the fire originated is a mystery. The owner of the building was inside the house during the forenoon but no fires were started in the stoves and there was no indication of a blaze. A short time after Mr. Kenerson left the building, nearby residents observed the smoke issuing from the upper story and had the firemen summoned.

While the firemen were extinguishing the blaze a fire was discovered in the residence of Mrs. Mary Silva, 30 Maple avenue. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters, the Ockford Hose company responding. Chemicals sufficed to extinguish the blaze, without damage of consequence.

This afternoon a still alarm called the Northwest Hose company to Connecticut avenue where a lively grass fire was in progress. A tank of chemicals was emptied upon the burning brush and extinguished the fire before nearby buildings were ignited.

Three drunks of varying degrees of mistake and he was on the water the police court this morning. Each acknowledged that he was an offender as charged. Charles O'Hagan represented that he was a restaurant hand and disclosed that he had been at work steadily for two weeks. Yesterday he broke out and his arrest followed. He expressed a desire to get to Providence and with the understanding that he would make a determined effort to get there he was allowed to start. Charles Wilbur made his appearance in the court for the first time since last January when he was charged with intoxication as he was today. He was also disposed to get away from New London, so he was allowed to do so. Andrew Athy admitted that he was drunk yesterday, but said that was a offensiveness were given a hearing in Aagon already. With a caution about falling off and the penalty that his tumble would bring to him, he was allowed to start over the turnpike

The funeral of Mrs. Agnes Lloyd, wife of William F. Lloyd, was held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at her residence, in Waterford, the services being read by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of George Bishara, 130 Winthrop street, whose death occurred from pneumonia several days ago at Lawrence Memorial hospital, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlager, with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley deacon, and Rev. Raymond O'Callahan sub-deacon. The bearers were Joseph Hage, Paul Namey, Charles Haddad, Joseph Nahass, A. Goury and Solomon Nahass. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Guiseppi Micell and Miss Angeline Morengo were married at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's church, by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons in the presence of relatives and friends. Angelo Drago was best man and Miss Susie Morengo, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid

Lawrence and Jennie Torteriol have sold to Henry Tetu a house and lot on Lee avenue.

Miss Elizabeth DuBois Sache, assis- ciate professor of home economics at Connecticut college, Miss Elizabeth Spicer, instructor of home economics at Chapman Technical high school, and Miss Gladys W. Taber, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. will be the judges in the best menu contest for the $5 gold piece to be given by New London League of Women Voters in connection with Better Homes week. The time limit is April 28. Mrs. C. A. Carr of 767 Montauk avenue, chairman of the contest committee, has stated that though contestants must send in menus unsigned there should be a separate slip of paper with the contestant's name and address in the same envelope.

Members of the Crowley club decided to have a cottage this summer as a vacation house for its members. But it is not decided whether the club will rent a cottage at Ocean Beach or at Cresent Beach. Following the discussion of summer plans, the receipts of the play, Miss Bob White, were announced. About $2,500 was taken in at the performances and after all expenses have been met, the Crowley club and the producing company will get about $700 each.

An informal invitation dance was to be given in the Palace ballroom Thursday night under the auspices of the Junior Crowley and Young Men's Catholic clubs. Patrons and patronesses were Rev. T. M. Crowley, Rev. Raymond J. O'Callahan, Mr. and Mrs. David Hoare, Mr. and Mrs. Francis LeBlanc, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Rische, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. St. Germain, Mr. and Mrs. William Curtin, Mr. and Mrs. Keyes, Mr. and Mrs. Kiely, Hubert Ryan and Joseph McDonald. The committee consisted of Patricia Harris, Mary Curtin, Anna Rische, Arle Kiely, Rosanfond Keyes, Mary Lloyd, George Hoare, Norbert LeBlanc, Richard Lynch, James Moran and George Crawford.

Sergeant David Marks, of the force of special agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, stationed in New London, was summoned to Boston today because of the critical illness of his sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brannan have returned to their abode, 302 Vauxhall street, after having attended the funeral of Mr. Brannan's father, Adill Brannan, at Washington, earlier in the week.

Effie Bates, colored, residing at 25 Douglass street, and with a long police court record of various charges, principally intoxication and breach of the peace and Beatrice Lee, also colored and a lodger at the Bates residence, were taken into custody this evening charged with breach of the peace. They will be given a hearing tomorrow morning. The two women had been drinking for some time at their home and finally both became badly intoxicated. During their libations the women finally became engaged in a controversy, which ultimately assumed an argument of seriousness, for the pair soon engaged in a free-for-all fight. The noise of the combatants resembled them of the old-time "battle royal," for blows were hurled from every direction and finally the furniture in the place was resorted to as a means of inflicting punishment. While the fight was at its height the police were notified and Patrolman Clyde Murphy, Clarence Martin and William Corcoran responded. When the bluejackets arrived at the Bates residence the fight was still in progress, but was quickly ended. The Bates woman, if personal appearances is any criterion, emerged a winner, as she generally does when she battles, for the Lee woman was considerably marked and more particularly one eye was nearly closed.

Within a few days Tax Collector Al-bin C. Richards has collected over $11,000 back taxes, this being but a small amount of taxes due for it is known that fully $500,000 of back taxes are due the city.

The coal dealers of the city are ex-ceptionally busy just now, making delivery of coal. Evidently consumers do not mean to be caught next winter as they were in 1925, without coal in the cellar in the event of another strike.

Two Norwich girls, one 14 and the other 16, were taken into custody this afternoon on State street by Policewoman Jane Cassidy, the girls being wanted for running away from home yesterday afternoon. It was feared that they would fall into ways of vice for it was understood the girls came to New London to join sailor companions. The pair were turned over to their respective mothers this evening and returned to Norwich. Last evening the Norwich police requested the New London authorities to be on the lookout for the girls, but no trace of them was found until this afternoon when Mrs. Cassidy was passing through State street. The description furnished the local police partially tallied with that of the girls and she decided to question them. After talking with the girls a short time it was evident that they were the runaways and they were at once placed under arrest.

The condition of Mrs. Frederick S. Camp, of Norwich, who is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, is reported this evening as being perceptibly weaker than yesterday. But little hope is held out for her recovery.

Mrs. Katurah Turner, of 11 Hunting-ton street, and Mrs. James Agnew and infant daughter, 216 Pequot avenue, were patients dismissed today at Home Memorial hospital.

Patients discharged today at Law-rence Memorial Associated hospital were William Backus, of Mystic, and Miss Margaret McMahon, of 94 Riverview avenue.

Raymond Neff, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Neff, of Station 16, Waterford is in a critical condition at Home Memorial hospital as a result of a fractured skull sustained late yesterday when he ran against the side of an automobile operated by George E. Chapman, of Keeney's corner, Waterford. The boy with two playmates, was at play in front of the Neff residence. Suddenly the child decided to run to the opposite side of the highway and as he made the attempt he failed to observe the automobile, which was about to pass. The youngster ran against the left rear fender and was thrown. The cries of the other children attracted the attention of Chapman, who, placing the child in the automobile speeded to the hospital. No blame for the accident is placed upon Chapman; state police officers, who investigated the case, have exonerated Chapman of all responsibility for the accident.

Walter Holmes, 7 Belden court and Miss Ruth Long, daughter of Mrs. Florence Long, 20, Belden street, were married yesterday at the parlors of the First Baptist church, the nuptial ceremony being performed by Rev. Chester H. Howe.

Michael Syracuse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Syracuse, 69 Belden street, and Miss Marian Genzone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Genzone, 16 Bayonet street, were married at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The nuptial mass was sung by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley. Dr. Antonio Loiacano, of Boston, was best man and Miss Lillian Loiacano, attended the bride.

THE SHEA TWIN SONS HAVE DIFFERENT BIRTHDAYS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 22—Here they are, twins with different birthdays. How's that? The simplest explanation that could be asked for. They are sons and were born to Mrs. James Shea, of 52 Raymond street last night at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Mrs. Shea gave birth to No. 1 just before midnight Wednesday and to No. 2 a few minutes after midnight. That is the record at the hospital and it will be the record of the registrar of births on the books of the city.

CHARLES WADE BREAKS LEG IN FALL FROM SUBMARINE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 22—Falling from a submarine, which the New London Ship & Engine company is building for the Peruvian government, Charles Wade, 18 West Pleasant street, a pipefitter's helper, sustained a fractured leg this forenoon. He is now under treatment at Lawrence hospital.

Wade was engaged with other workmen on the boat and in moving about lost his balance and fell to the ground, landing in such a manner as to produce the fracture below the knee. After being given first aid, Wade was transferred to the hospital.

Fish and Temperature

The wise fisherman of the future will test the temperature of the water in which he casts his lines.

The Biological Board of Canada, after a detailed oceanographic survey, has found that haddock and cod, especially, are very particular about temperature, says Popular Science Monthly. The cod will not stay where the water is freezing, and for him 50 degrees is unbearably hot. Between 40 and 45 degrees is about right, and if fishermen will fish there it is claimed, they can scoop cod up wholesale. Haddock like water about 5 degrees warmer. The board urges fishermen to use deep-sea thermometers and not waste time where there are no fish.

People who buy air castles will have to figure in the cost of a flying machine.

Cooking in Comfort

The Victory Crawford Range burns gas, wood or coal. In summer you need only gas for cooking. In the fall, a wood fire quickly takes the morning chill off the room, and gets breakfast, as well. In winter coal keeps your kitchen warm, and does your cooking too. You will like the unusual features of the Victory Crawford Range. The single damper of the coal range is easy to operate. Two gas ovens, each 18 inches wide—adjustable broiler—Robertshaw Heat Control, if desired. The Victory Crawford Range is fully guaranteed. Let us show one to you.

"SERVING THE FARMER"

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"Are country banks serving the farmer?" reads a big, black headline stretching across the front page of a well-known agricultural paper.

A reading of the article underneath discloses the fact that the writer's idea of "serving the farmer" is to lend him whatever money he thinks he'd like, at rates and on terms which he thinks satisfactory.

Now, this suggests to me a sermon reaching at least to sixteenthly if not seventeenthly. But don't be scared. I'm going to make it just a drstly and a secondly, and stop there if, when I get through, you feel like "developing" it somewhat further, why, go to it.

Firstly, then, what does this writer mean by "The Farmer?" There are steen million farmers in this country, if not more, and no two are alike. If you've ever found two farmers who had the same ideas of farming itself, who thought along the same lines and aspired after the same ends and did the same work in the same way, you've done what I haven't yet.

I've known more who couldn't agree with themselves for a whole week on end, than who could and did agree with each other. One farmer might want nothing quite so much as a dozen extra loads of manure to spread on the grass land he's going to plow, this fall, in preparation for next year's corn crop. He's set his heart on raising a record bushelage, and he believes that the best way to assure it is to plant his corn on a rich, strong sod. His very next neighbor may be a land-hog. He will care almost nothing about a special crop on a specially prepared soil, but will be always hungry for more land. It's acres, not bushelage, he is after. He isn't moved to take you out to his acre patch back of the barn and brag of his big corn. He'd rather boast of being able to drive his own car for five miles between his own fields.

Take another illustration from actual life.

I know a young farmer who inherited a good, productive, remunerative farm. This is, it had supported two previous generations in comfort and with some profit. In less than five years he had it sold under him for unpaid taxes. Just about that time an aunt and uncle died and left him several thousand dollars. He made "ducks and drakes" of this windfall in short order. Then still another rich relative died and left a second legacy, which speedily went the way of its predecessor. He's now waiting for somebody else to will him some more money. When he gets it, he's going to do marvels, and "show the old mossbacks what real farmin' is."

I also know another young farmer whose inherited capital consisted of a sturdy back, two serviceable legs, a pair of strong arms, and a stubborn determination to have a farm of his own before he was 30. He isn't yet 30, and he's got 'em all, the back and the legs and the arms, and the farm. Earned that last by straight bones: hard work, economical living and thrifty foresight. Nor did he borrow any money from anybody, en route.

Take the prodigal son, mentioned just above. He would, unquestionably, be delighted to have some bank loan him a good sized "wad" to send after the legacies he has already dissipated. Take the land-hog, also mentioned above. He would also be tickled half to death if some bank would lend him the money wherewith to buy a few hundred more acres of land, though he already has twice as many as any one farmer can manage properly.

Per contra, take the farmer who wants more manure. When I said to him, "Why don't you borrow the small amount involved? Any bank will be glad to lend it on such security as you can give," he shook his head slowly. "No" he said, "what I can't pay for I can do without. P'raps old man Waterhouse, who's got the misery in his back so he can't do much and who wants me to plow his potato field for him, will pay me in manure. Then I won't owe nobody nuthin'."

And the young farmer who, starting without a dollar, has earned his farm, when an older neighbor who had confidence in him offered to lend him enough to pay for it a year sooner than he could otherwise hope to, also shook his head. "No, thank you," said he, "when I do get that farm I want to be able to walk across it and around it without any weight tied to my leg. I don't want any half-ownership, especially with a mortgage for a partner."

Thus we see that there are farmers who are always ready and eager to borrow. And we also see that there are farmers who don't want to borrow, who, in fact, dread the idea of debt more than that of temporary distress.

Now for my secondly; is it a real service to lend money to the first sort? Or is it, rather, a disservice to real farming and to desirable farmers?

In a real emergency, that is, when a man is between the devil and the deep sea, he may well grasp at the first hand which is outstretched to save him. But there's a difference between a desperate emergency and a mere normal difficulty. The habit of resorting to emergency measures to meet ordinary situations is much like using a sledge-hammer to swat a fly. Actions one would be pardoned for if threatened with starvation are not necessarily justifiable when he is merely hungry for an ice-cream cone.

Borrowing money, for a farmer, is or should be a last resort. I know that these days, most other businesses are done "on credit," i. e., on borrowed capital. But there is an element of uncertainty, or chance, of gambling, in farming which doesn't govern to the same extent ordinary commercial operations. There's the weather, for one thing.

Why, here it is the 19th of April, and the East mountain against which my windows look is still white-headed with last winter's snow-banks. There are remnants of drifts clinging to the northern shelter of every hedge-row even in the valley. Digging my way, Saturday, into a small pile of stove-wood in my back-yard, I found under it a solid ice bank, more than a foot thick. That same day it snowed. And that night and last night water froze an inch thick, and the stubble land froze so deep as to make mowing impracticable. At this date when energetic farmers of the vicinage are accustomed to have their oats sowed, their peas and onions, etc., in and their potato and corn land manured and plowed. Of course, spring may come with a rush and a whoop when it does come, and make up with a forcing May and June for a backward April. But, as things are now, with almost three weeks of what ought to have been the farmer's busiest season gone and not a stroke of work done, the prospects for bunkum crops are far from rosy.

Imagine the feelings of an ambitious farmer during such a backward spring, as he sees his hopes for one crop after another go glimmering, yet knows that the quarterly or semi-annual payments on the mortgage are going to come due, just the same, whether it snows or whether the sun shines!

There are "surer things" in draw poker than in ordinary farming. They tell the story of a St. Louis man in the early days of that town who, sitting in at a friendly game of draw, had four aces dealt him. Laying his hand face down on the table, and asking to be excused two minutes, he stepped across the street to the bank and asked the loan of a thousand dollars. "What's your security?" asked the cashier. "Four aces pat," was the response. He got the money.

The farmer who draws four aces pat in his weather hand is a white blackbird. He doesn't happen on every bough. He's much more likely to have to draw to the middle of a "straight," with the chances 15 to one against him.

He is all the year through at the mercy of forces none of which he fully understands and few of which he can adequately control. He must take what is coming to him, and get what satisfaction he can out of the fact that it isn't any worse. His wisest play is what the Scotch mean by "ca' canny." Or what some poker-players call "playin' 'em close to the vest."

Of course there are exceptions to all rules. And you and I naturally feel that we're the exceptions. But it isn't wise to bet all our eggs on it. When cold-blooded statisticians delving into census returns, find that the average return of the average farmer on his investment is hardly half the interest which even the most philanthropic banker charges on loans made under gilt-edged securities, it behoves us to be mighty sure that we're real exceptions before we go "plunging" on borrowed money. It's easy to sign a note. But, when the blight strikes your potatoes, or the hail cuts down your corn, or the rust takes your oats, or the drought burns up your uncut hay, it's quite another thing to find the money wherewith to pay that note.

There may be times when a good farmer simply has to borrow money. But I think it is equally certain that a good farmer rarely if ever really wants to borrow money. When he's driven to borrowing it is because he is tremendously "hard up."

And did you ever notice that the fellows who are actually "hard up" are the very fellows the average lender seems to fight mighty shy of?

Eh?

THE FARMER.

NORWICH TOWN

Under the auspices of the London country [illegible] Miss Gladys [illegible] the specialists [illegible] Agricultural college, Storrs, [illegible] demonstrator, on Friday afternoon from [illegible] at the home of Mrs. Wm. Weaver, Huntington Green. Miss Weaver is leader of the Norwich Town class, which has a membership of twelve or more.

In the study of the denominations, the Congregational mid-week service [illegible] reference and prayer will have its theme Friday evening. The Baptist Mid-week Service will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. Burton [illegible] Tuesday evening when the subject [illegible] was The Methodists. Harold L. Yerrington was leader.

Rev. A. Norwood Foster, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist) will be the officiating clergyman at the observing Armistice Sunday afternoon. The choir of that church is to provide the singing.

Those from Norwich Town Congregational Church [illegible] annual [illegible] Christian Endeavor [illegible] Rev. Mr. [illegible] Rev. [illegible] Mrs. David W. [illegible] Avery, Miss Louise Hyde [illegible] Hyde, Gordon [illegible] Dyer, Miss Dorothy [illegible] Rev. [illegible] Tuesday evening [illegible] Mrs. O. B. Wentworth [illegible] of Old Testament Prophecy [illegible] subject: "Life Problems of Today."

The annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church of New London district [illegible] Thomas Methodist church, New London, [illegible] Tuesday. The Rev. [illegible] Life is his other subject. Dean [illegible] Strueter gives address [illegible] Two every Tuesday [illegible] enabling each person [illegible] the courses. The Norwich Town group [illegible] are greatly interested in the two days which are held in the Uncas rooms.

When the Missionary committee of Norwich Christian Endeavor union had a visit to the Norwich Town Congregational Young Peoples C. E. society, the leaders were Miss Helen Hyde of Hanover, chairman of the committee; Mrs. Henry Sebastian of Scotland and Miss Elizabeth Avery, member of the prayer meeting committee of the local society.

On a recent visit to the New Haven hospital to see her husband, Charles Morgan Williams, who has been a patient there for a number of weeks, Mr. Williams had as motor guests Miss Lena Walker and Miss Rose Mahan of Town street. Of late, Mr. Williams has shown encouraging progress toward recovery.

Relatives, friends and neighbors attended a months mind requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of Thomas Crocker, celebrated Tuesday morning at seven-thirty at the Sacred Heart church by the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan. The musical part of the mass was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. William A. Murphy. Miss Mary Buckley sang the solo parts in the mass and for a waiting hymn gave Abide With Me.

While the work of laying pipes for the new city reservoir is under construction on Town street, under the general supervision of William H. Callahan, superintendent of the Norwich Water department, automobile owners on that side of the street where driveways are closed, are being looked after with suitable shelter for machines through Superintendent Callihan's courtesy, in behalf of the water department.

Daniel Davis, foreman for C. M. Williams, has just completed the laying of a new platform connecting the automobile run at the rear of the building used as a show room, at the plant of Julian L. Williams.

District Agent Frederic H. Wyant, received a call that a cat was up a tree on Harland Road and was too timid to come down. In service for the Connecticut Humane society, with the assistance of John C. Hinrichs, Jr., Mr. Wyant succeeded in getting the animal, Tuesday. Equipped with ropes, it was at first thought that by sawing off the limb and lowering it to the ground, the frightened cat could be released from its position. After several attempts, Young Hinrichs climbed the tree a risky stunt because of its unsafe condition. The animal was finally reached, later being sheltered and fed. Another call came in over the telephone at Mr. Wyant's home concerning a cat which had been seriously injured by some vehicle, corner of Sachem and Lafayette streets. It was necessary for Mr. Wyant to dispatch this animal, to put it out of its misery.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. House had as motor guests Sunday on a trip to Worcester, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Kinney and William Kinney of Town street.

With relatives and friends attending the funeral of Hannah Dawley, widow of James S. Counterman, was held Tuesday afternoon, at two o'clock on New London turnpike, Norwich Town. There were beautiful floral tributes. The service was conducted by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church. Face to Face and Some Sweet Day, were sung by Mrs. William Crowe, Jr. The bearers were, W. W. Bentley, Herman G. Gibbs, Arad R. Manning and Edward Smith. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev. Dr. Pitt. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker Charles A. Gager.

The closing feature in the Red and White contest, held during February and March, under the auspices of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich Town, took place Wednesday evening in the vestry, when the victorious Reds, Miss Inez Edminston, captain, were pleasantly entertained by the Whites. Miss Florence M. Brown, captain. The assembly also took the form of a reception to the new pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Whitten, who with the retiring pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. James B. Aldrich and their sons, Lewis and Mark Aldrich, were honor guests. At six-thirty, a delicious supper was served complimentary to the Reds and to this the members of the parish were invited. The menu consisted of baked beans, salads, pickles, buttered rolls, cake and coffee. The waitresses were Miss Florence Brown, Hazel Cruthers, Elizabeth Gifford, Doris Rose, Edna Judson, Isabel Gimbel and Virginia Ward also Mrs. John Rogers. The waiters were Penrly Gifford, John Rogers William Moore and Lewis Aldrich. The church was decorated with festoons of red and white crepe paper in the colors of the C. E. society, also with flowering plants. During the reception hour, Mrs. Whitten, wife of the present pastor, and Mrs. Aldrich wife of the former pastor, were presented a potted fern each. In the receiving line were Rev. and Mrs. Whitten, Rev. and Mrs. Aldrich, Mrs. Frederick H. Bushnell and Mrs. Richard Carter the last mentioned being president of the C. E. society. The evening's entertainment was furnished by an Orthophonic Victrola, through the courtesy of the Plaut-Cadden company.

The entertainment also included vocal solos, by Frank Rose, bass; piano solo, Mildred Carter; mandolin duets, by the Maggesti brothers; and a piano solo by Miss Virginia Ward. Miss Fanny Edminston, was one of the waitresses.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wainwright (Lillian Austin) and children, Joseph and Shirley, of Stoneham, Mass., have returned home after passing the week end and Patriots' day, as guests of Mrs. Wainwright's sister, Mrs. Susan Lillibridge, of Scotland road, who accompanied her relatives for a brief visit.

Mrs. Lillibridge's son Charles Lillibridge, was graduated the early part of this month from Putnam Trade school.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE

My wife, Ellen Morin, of 42 Furnace St., Danielson, having left my home without just cause or reason, I hereby give notice that I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by her on or after this date.
ERNEST MORIN.
Danielson, Conn., April 20, 1926.

STATE OF CONNECTICUT, COUNTY OF WINDHAM, ss., April 14, 1926.
Evalena Mowry Paine vs. Rhodes Paine.
Upon the complaint of the said Evalena Mowry Paine, claiming for reasons therein set forth a divorce now pending before the Superior Court in and for Windham County, returnable on the 1st Tuesday of September, A. D. 1926, as appearing to, and being found by the Court that, the said defendant is absent from this State—gone to parts unknown:
Therefore Ordered, That notice of the pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in the Norwich Bulletin, a daily newspaper published in Norwich, in said County, once a week, for two weeks successively, commencing on or before the 21st day of April A. D. 1926.
MARJORIE C. BRADFORD,
Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for Windham County.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS
AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 20th day of April, A. D. 1926.
Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
Estate of Laura A. Chesbro, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.
Ordered, That the Administrator cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having a circulation in said district, and make return to this Court.
NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
The above and foregoing is a true copy of record
Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk

NOTICE
All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at 17 Alice Street, Norwich, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.
LOUIS H. MAPLE,
Administrator.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Ledyard within and for the District of Ledyard, on the 21st day of April A. D. 1926.
Present, BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge
Estate of Augustus O. Ackley, late of Ledyard, in said District, deceased.
Winston A. Ackley of Ledyard, Conn., appeared in Court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that administration be granted upon the estate of said deceased alleged to be insolvent.
Whereupon, it is Ordered, That said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in Ledyard, in said District, on the 28th day of April A. D. 1926, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order one time in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said District at least five days prior to the date of said hearing and that return be made to this Court.
BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge.
The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.
Attest, BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge

There was a slight increase in production during the 24th week of the Storrs egg laying contest, when the 1400 pullets shelled out a total of 5,000 eggs, or laid at a rate that was slightly over 54 per cent. This is a gain of 39 eggs when compared with the production for the previous week and a gain of 1290 eggs over the production for the corresponding week a years ago. Up to the end of the 24th week, the contest flock had laid a grand total of 99,995 eggs. This figure gives each of the 1400 pullets an average production of 71 eggs each.

STOCK MARKET STRONG.

NEW YORK, April 23.—(By The A. P.)—Responding to a series of favorable news developments, stock prices made further recovery in today's market. Buying orders were spread over a broad list, indicating a gradual return of public participation, with final quotations disclosing a long list of net gains ranging from 1 to 5 points. Some profit taking was apparent towards the close of the session, by professional traders who had bought stocks "for a turn" earlier in the week.

While rumors of a change in the New York Federal Reserve bank rediscount rate have been in circulation for several days, the announcement of a decrease from 4 to 3 1-2 per cent., which was announced after the market closed, was somewhat of a surprise. However, it merely brings the bank rate in line with open market rates which have been steadily decreasing since the first of the month.

Money softened again today being quoted at 4 to 4 1-4 instead of 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 the rate prevailing yesterday.

The senate's approval of the Italian debt settlement and the announcement that the deparement of justice had sanctioned the Tidewater-Associated Oil merger were two of the most constructive influences on today's stock market operations, other favorable factors included the renewal of railroad merger negotiations, which had been temporarily suspended when the interstate commerce commission announced its rejection of the original Nickel Plate consolidation plan; it is said that the warmer weather had stimulated several lines of spring business and the publication of additional favorable earnings statements.

A quarterly report of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation made public early in the day, came up to general expectations, net earnings being equivalent to $2.66 on the common as compared with $1.17 in the corresponding quarter and $1.65 in the first quarter of 1925. U. S. Steel common and Gulf States Steel each showed a point higher, and the others in that group improved fractionally.

Buoyancy again developed in a number of industrial specialties. Remington Typewriter soared six points to new highs on reports of large current earnings, closing a point below the top. Net gains of 3 to 5 points also were recorded by American Republic, Coca Cola, Minneapolis Threshing Machine, General Electric, Pullman, United Fruit and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe.

The so-called "merger issues" were again the favorites in the railroad group. Nickel Plate common was run up 4 1-2 points to 158, Pittsburgh and West Virginia closed more than 4 points higher at 102 after selling as high as 104 3-4 and Rock Island, Kansas City Southern, Delaware Hudson and Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred all showed net gains of 2 points or more.

The advance in the oil shares was held in check by reports of a sharp decrease in Mexican production last week and by the discovery of a new pool in the Salt Creek field. Substantial gains were recorded, however, by Atlantic Refining and Sinclair, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Atlantic Refining and Associated Asphalt.

The principal commodity markets showed little activity. After wheat futures had risen one to three cents a bushel on reports that beneficial rains were falling in the spring wheat belt, prices declined 15 to 19 points net lower on an early rally, based on unfavorable weather reports, failed to hold and closed steady. Cotton prices held steady. Cotton prices closed unchanged to 21 points lower.

Sterling opened at $ 1-2 per cent., the lowest renewal rate since last October and held at that figure all day. Lower rates were obtainable in the "outside market." Prime commercial paper had steady at 4 1-4 per cent.

The French franc touched another new low record at 3.56 cents but the other European exchanges held relatively steady. Demand sterling was quoted around 4.86 1-16 and French francs at around 3.24 cents. Belgian francs touched another new low record at 3.24 cents. Changes in most of the continental rates were small.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, April 23.—(AP)—Wheat underwent sharp breaks in prices today, especially in the last part of the board of trade session. Expected relief from drought over the spring wheat region, together with reported good rains in Kansas and other winter crop states had much to do with bringing about selling on a big scale. Wheat closed unsettled, 1c to 2-4c net lower. May, new $1.65 1-8 to 1.65 1-4 and July 1.42 5-8 to 1.42 3-4. Corn finished 3-8c 5-8c off, oats 1-2 5-8c to 3-4c down and provisions at 15c to 40c advance.

Weather conditions affecting the new crop outlook put about everything else into eclipse in the wheat trade. Forecasts of moisture both north and south of the Canadian boundary were given particular attention, special notice, too, was taken of an opinion from a Chicago authority that it is premature to get excited over dry weather northwest and is unwise to attempt to justify any higher prices on new crop deliveries, unless acual scarcity of old crop wheat develops or pronounced damage to the new crop takes place.

Corn and oats responded somewhat to wheat weakness, but wet weather in the corn belt proved to be more or less of an offset, as tending to delay field work.

Higher quotations on hogs gave strength to the provisions market, and so, likewise, did packers' buying of lard.

LIONS PROPOSE TO HAVE INSTALLATION AND LADIES' NIGHT TOGETHER IN JUNE

The monthly business meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held on Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with President William A. Anderson presiding. The song leader was Joseph Panek. Rev. Edward C. Dunbar said grace and there were lively group and song numbers, Pete Ethier presiding at the piano. J. Warren Kane, a guest at the meeting, entertained with several pleasing vocal selections.

The following delegates and alternates to the Lions club district convention in New London, May 5th were appointed: Delegates, Edward Rich, Louis Fontaine and Max Hanover; alternates, Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, C. Edward Carpenter and J. B. Caron. The local club is anticipating a 100 per cent. attendance of the local number at the convention.

Abner Schwartz, took occasion, in behalf of the Norwich chamber of commerce, to call attention to the Social Welfare Workers' conference to convene next week and a number of the members volunteered the use of their automobiles for short period Tuesday to assist in transporting the members to and from the Norwich state hospital.

The following were appointed by President Anderson as a nominating committee for the election of officers which takes place next month: Dr. Clarence G. Thompson J. B. Caron, Max Hanover, George Madden, Louis Fontaine and Edward Rich. Announcement was made that the club is to hold a joint installation of club officers and a ladies night the first Thursday in June. The following were appointed a committee to make the arrangements: Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, Dr. Kopland K. Markoff, and George Madden. The entertainment committee for May was named as follows: Joseph French, William R. Frisbie and Charles Frink.

The secretary read an invitation from the Ansonia club urging the local members to attend their charter night celebration April 29th. President Anderson called attention to the song recital to be given this (Friday) evening at Slater Hall by Henry J. LaFontaine under the auspices of the Norwich Rotary club for the benefit of the Jean S. Bleckmar fund. The attendance carries prize, a supply of singing materials donated by Dr. David Sussler, was awarded to Herbert Gorer. The singing of the Star Spangled Banner brought the meeting to a close.

NORWICH IN CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER LIGHT

Thirty Connecticut communities are now engaged in an active drive toward the improvement of lighting conditions in Connecticut industrial plants, according to the Connecticut committee on public service information. These towns and cities are representative of 343,295 people, or more than one-third of the population of the state.

The industrial lighting campaign was begun by the National Electric Light association in October and is now reaching its height. Electric companies throughout the country are offering lighting engineering service gratus to those manufacturers who wish to save eyesight of their employes and also to increase efficiency by better lighting on work benches. Excellent results have been obtained in Connecticut.

Connecticut communities participating in this campaign are as follows: Beacon Falls, Berlin, Bethel, Branford, Cheshire, Danbury, Danielson, Greenwich, Guilford, Hartford, Meriden, Middlebury, Mystic, Naugatuck, New Britain, New Canaan, Newington, Norwalk, Norwich, Oxford, Plainfield, Plainville, Putnam Seymour, Southington, Waterbury, Watertown, Westport, Wilton, and Woodbury. These towns and cities are served by four of Connecticut's greatest lighting companies, which are the Connecticut Light and Power Co., the Danbury and Bethel Gas and Electric Light Co., the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., and the Hartford Electric Light Company.

CONGREGATIONAL MISSIONARY MEETING IN NEW HAVEN

The interest of women in the Congregational churches of Connecticut will be turned toward Plymouth church, New Haven, next Wednesday, when the annual meeting of the Woman's Congregational Home Missionary Union of Connecticut will be held at that church.

The morning session will be held at 9 o'clock, standard time. Reports of the year's work will be given and officers elected. At this business session action will be taken on the proposed changes in the constitution. Addresses will follow. Dr. Samuel T. Clifton, chairman of the state committee on missions, will speak on the topic: "New Paths and New Ways"; Rev. Henry Mountfort Bowden, director of foreign speaking work under the Congregational Home Missionary society, on "Recent Visits to Foreign Fields." Luncheon, will be served at 12:30 at Plymouth church and also at Dwight Place church on Chapel street, a few blocks distant. The afternoon session is at 1:45 advanced time, (12:45 standard). Addresses, by Rev. Sherrod Soule, D. D., "Features of Forty Years"; by Rev. George Luther Cady, D. D., on "Completing Our Task". Spiritual and other compositions will be sung by Harry T. Burleigh, baritone soloist and well-known composer.

WINS SPEAKING CONTEST AT GAYHEAD SCHOOL

A speaking contest and entertainment was held at Gayhead school, Canterbury, on Friday evening, April 16th, at 7:30 for which tickets had been sold at ten cents apiece, amounting to $21.50. This amount is to be given as a contribution from Gayhead school for the new town library.

From the eight speaking contestants, Stella Konarsky was chosen as winner and will represent Gayhead school at the town contest to be held May 6th.

Beside speaking, the children also gave songs and dialogues. Fred and Edwin Lachapelle also gave a dialogue and songs which pleased the audience very much.

After the entertainment refreshments were served.

RE-APPOINTMENT ASKED FOR UNCASVILLE POSTMISTRESS

The nomination for reappointment of Mrs. Mary H. Newton, wife of Lewis G. Newton of Uncasville, as postmistress of that place, was sent by the president Thursday to the senate for confirmation.

Mrs. Newton was appointed postmistress at Uncasville four years ago and has served efficiently in that capacity since.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN STATE'S WATER SUPPLY

Large extensions of water company systems in Connecticut, costing many thousands of dollars, took place through the state during the past year, according to the Connecticut committee on public service information. Practically every water company in the state found it necessary to lay new pipe lines to extend service to new customers or to improve the service to old customers. Improvements upon and additions to plant and equipment were also general throughout the state.

Undoubtedly the most important move made toward the improvement of Connecticut's water supply during 1925 was the beginning of work on the new $3,500,000 reservoir of the New Haven Water company at Branford, which will be the largest reservoir in the state and one of the largest in the country. Another important feature of the year's work was the connection of Shelton, Westport, and Bridgeport into one great water supply system by means of interconnecting pipe lines. The large task of laying these lines was conducted during the year.

Every water company in Connecticut, although its reservoirs were hit by the periods of dryness, maintained service through all months with no difficulty, the fact that there was a shortage of rain in a few months being offset by the foresight of the engineers who constructed Connecticut's water systems. Besides their work in water supplying, Connecticut water companies undertook a considerable task in the planting of some 175,000 pine trees on their watershed land in line with their reforestration policy.

YOUNG HEBREWS CONFERENCE FOR NORWICH SUNDAY

The Norwich committee in charge of the Western New England league of Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. met recently at the home of Miss Jennie Lewenberger, 10 Main street. After the business of the committee was discussed, the remainder of the evening was spent playing bridge. The prizes were won by Miss Leah Addlestone and Miss Dora Safon. The business discussed by the committee was to arrange for the conference of the Western New England league of the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. which takes place Sunday, April 25 at the headquarters of the Norwich Y. M. and Y. W. H. A., Chample building, Water street. The business meeting begins at 2:30 p. m. after which a supper will be served with an entertainment to follow.

INJURIES BY AUTO FATAL TO SMALL BOY

Failing to rally from his injuries, a fractured skull, Arthur Higgins, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Higgins, No. 21 West Thames street, died Thursday morning at 4:22 o'clock at the W. W. Backus hospital. The child was struck Tuesday afternoon by an automobile driven by Charles Oppenheim, Bosted, salesman for a shipyard company. The accident occurred near the junction of West Thames street and Spring Garden avenue, the boy on his way home from school, having stepped directly in front of the machine.

The child leaves his parents, three brothers, and two sisters. He was born in Norwich and attended the West Thames street school. Much sympathy is felt in the community for the bereaved family.

LOCAL TALENT RENDERED FINE RADIO PROGRAMME

Norwich Chamber of Commerce radio station WCBR broadcasting from the studio of The Hanover-Curland company, presented a fine program Wednesday night beginning at 8 o'clock in which local talent participated with great credit. The first hour was devoted to a classical program. A violin solo entitled "Veniese" popular song "That Old Refrain" was played by Henry Ladd accompanied on the piano by Dwight Richardson as the opening number. Henry played with fine feeling and smooth touch. A word may be said about the accompanist which may not be out of place. Dwight is a Norwich boy of 14 years of age and he performed with an ease and touch like a mature artist. Break of Day and Sing Me to Sleep were sung by Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., accompanied by Mrs. Harry Stebbins. Mrs. Crowe has a beautiful, clear and pleasing voice and her enunciation was perfect. The radio listeners received a rare treat by her rendition as proven by the many congratulations that came into the studio. Miss Gertrude Bonime of New York just returned from her musical studies abroad, who is visiting her sister Mrs. Elkin Smith of Norwich, played a piano solo in two parts entitled Pastorale and Capriclo (by Scarlatt). Miss Bonime's playing was most charming and delightful. Lawrence Hamilton rendered two vocal solos entitled Fiddle and I and Smiling Through accompanied by Miss Esther Bixby. Lawrence did very well and Miss Bixby's fine playing is well known to her many friends in Norwich. The next number was a violin solo by Henry Ladd entitled The Last Rose of Summer, accompanied by Dwight Richardson. Mrs. Crowe sang "The Garden of My Heart" (by request) accompanied by Mrs. Stebbins. Lawrence Hamilton followed with a song "I Want You My Honey" accompanied by Miss Bixby. Miss Gertrude Bonime sang a Russian Gypsy song entitled Ochi Charnia accompanied by herself on the piano.

As a variation of the program, to satisfy numerous requests, Blind George played Gypsy's Warning on the harmonica only as George can play. The Whistling Coon was George's next number. George followed with First the Heel and then the Toe. At this time Hartford was heard from with many congratulations for the fine program enjoyed by Hartford listeners. Turkey in the Straw was rendered by George with masterly ability followed by a waltz, his own composition, entitled The Winds and The Waves. Here George changed to the accordion (by request). Mrs. McCloud's Reel was his first number on the accordion followed by The Sidewalks of New York by request, with Waterford and Stamford applauding by telegraph. The Irish Washwoman was rendered next on the harmonica by Blind George in answer to many requests. How I Miss You Tonight was his final number on the harmonica.

The program was again changed to classical selections with Miss Gertrude Bonime singing Schubert's Serenade in German accompanying herself on the piano. Here New York was heard from by wire requesting Miss Bonime to sing Eli Eli which request she gratified by singing the number to her own accompaniment.

The station signed off at 9:50 after receiving congratulations from New Haven and Manchester.

Thursday's program beginning at 8 p. m. will be rendered by the Mohegan orchestra, square dances and popular numbers.

Broadcast From Newark Studio

The hour for broadcasting from the Newark studio, when David Merritt Carlyle, tenor, of New London, will be heard on the programme is 3:15 this (Friday) afternoon.

HULL SUITS TRANSFERRED TO NEW HAVEN COUNTY

The two suits of Mrs. Ellen Brewster Hull of New London, widow of the late State Attorney Hadlai A. Hull, against Sage, Allen & Co., Inc., of Hartford, Edward N. Allen, its vice president, and Miss Florence Kenefick, former store detective, and also against Edward N. Allen, personally, were transferred from trial in this county to New Haven county in a decision handed down Thursday by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court. A plea in abatement granting a stay of time before the trial was also granted.

Both motions were brought up in the superior court at a short calendar session several weeks ago, by Attorney Berry of Hartford, counsel for the defendants. The motions were strenuously opposed by Attorney Arthur M. Brown, associate counsel with Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun, for Mrs. Hull.

Mrs. Hull seeks $250,000 damages against the concern. Miss Kenefick and Mr. Allen in one suit and $50,000 in a separate suit against the vice-president of the company. She charges false imprisonment, malicious persecution, assault and battery and slander.

NEW DEBT OFFER BY FRANCE; ITALIAN PACT RATIFIED

Agreement With Italy Will Become Effective as Soon as President Coolidge Signs the Document—France is Understood to Be Ready to Pay $25,000,000 Annually, Including This Year, and Then Graduate Its Payments to $100,000,000 Annually—Payments Would Cover a Period of 62 Years.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP)—France came forward today with a new offer to settle her four billion dollar war debt and shortly afterwards, the senate decisively refused to reconsider its approval of the two billion dollar Italian debt settlement.

The French proposal, details of which were closely guarded, was submitted formally to the American debt commission by Ambassador Berenger, who has full power to act for his government, and it will be considered by the Americans at a session tomorrow.

The new offer was received in a general atmosphere of optimism with official expressions of hopefulness from the white house and elsewhere that a settlement can be arranged and that it would mean a long step in the direction of stabilizing world finances.

The senate action on the Italian debt completed the last legislative step in the two countries to bring the two countries in bring the agreement into force. It will become effective as soon as President Coolidge affixes his signature.

Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, moved for reconsideration so the senate might consider amendment by which Italy upon demand would furnish bonds to the American government in the amount of the principal and interest. This motion was voted down however, by almost as decisive a majority as that on Wednesday to approve the agreement. The vote today was 43 to 24 and on Wednesday it was 54 to 33.

While the new French offer was not made public there were definite indications that it went further toward meeting America's demands than the proposal of the unsuccessful Caillaux mission of last summer.

The 65 year settlement programme announced by Minister Caillaux for France at that time is understood to have been reduced to 62 years, the period of agreement with other debtor nations. It also is understood that France will not insist upon the guarantee clause relieving it of payment in the event Germany fails to meet her reparations.

France also is understood to be ready to pay $25,000,000 annually during the first year and to graduate its payments to $100,000,000 annually so as to liquidate the debt.

Representatives of the two nations lost little time in getting down to business. The usual welcoming formalities were dispensed with and when Ambassador Berenger, accompanied by two assistants, appeared before the commission, he was invited immediately to make his offer. This was presented in French and immediately after M. Berenger departed leaving the English translation of the complicated financial programme he had proposed with the commission.

Ambassador Berenger, who was a member of the Caillaux mission, has been in conference with Secretary Mellon for the past two months and these conversations are understood to have considerably smoothed the way for a more definite understanding between France and this country.

The French debt became a subject of senate discussion during the debate on the Italian agreement, with Senator Reed of Missouri, assailing the French for delay. He suggested that if France could not pay in money she give up her West Indian possessions to this country because they guard the gateway to the Pan-American canal.

Assailing the Italian settlement, the Missourian characterized it as the "greatest steal in all history" and warned that when the American people came to understand its terms they would repudiate it.

Training his guns on President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon, Senator Reed charged that "the administration of Calvin Coolidge is as much owned and controlled by the great interests as a subordinate of any bank is owned and controlled by the board of directors."

Renewing a charge that Secretary Mellon was appointed in violation of the law because he was engaged in trade, the Missouri senator said the "great interests do not stand outside and more; they have moved in and taken possession of the government."

"What we need as president and secretary of the treasury," he added, "are men who are thinking about the people of the United States and not the bankers of New York, London and Berlin."

Senator Reed was caustic in his criticisms of his democratic colleagues for their "coalitions" with the republicans on this and other important questions at this session and ripples of laughter frequently ran around the galleries despite repeated raps for order by Vice President Dawes.

SENATE ISSUES SUMMONS FOR FEDERAL JUDGE ENGLISH

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP)—A summons was issued today by the senate for Federal Judge George W. English of the Eastern Illinois district, to appear at the bar on May 3 to answer the house impeachment charges of usurpation of power and high misdemeanors" in office.

This action was taken after the senate for the first time in 17 years resolved itself into a trial court and again received the managers of the house who are to conduct the prosecution of the case against the jurist.

Judge English appears in person and by counsel he will be given the right to present an answer to the charges if he so desires. When this answer is filed the senate then will adopt a reply and upon completion of the pleadings the time for the trial will be fixed.

Whether the hearing is to be at a special session of the senate without adjournment, either early this summer or late in the fall is a question still to be decided.

This question was debated briefly today, the difference of opinion as to the legality of such a proceeding over-ruled.

SIMPLE FUNERAL FOR LATE MORRIS C. WEBSTER

MCWINTON, Conn., April 23.—(AP)—Wishes of the late Morris C. Webster, former state comptroller and member of the state legislature that no delight have a simple funeral were carried out here today at services in the late former home. The house was filled with relatives and friends, including a delegation of 50 from the office of the comptroller and other executives in the capitol and many businessmen of the legislature who had served in that body with him.

Rev. Spencer H. Evans, pastor of the Terryville Congregational church, officiated at the service. The bearers, nephews of the deceased, were William B. Boardman, Bridgeport; Allen H. Boardman, Waterbury; Louis H. Reynolds, Terryville; Robert M. Reynolds, Harwinton; Allen W. Jackson, Cambridge, Mass.; Henry B. Boardman, Schenectady, N. Y. Burial was in the private cemetery in Harwinton in which are the bodies of five original founders of the town and their descendants.

FIVE WATERBURY FIREMEN INJURED IN COLLISION

WATERBURY, April 23—(AP)—Five firemen were injured, one seriously, when a trolley car struck Engine 3 on which they were riding as the engine left the fire station on East Main street today.

Fireman Henry J. Mellon sustained concussion of the brain. Tonight his condition was reported as uncertain at St. Mary's hospital.

Fireman Frank Carroll, 449 East Main street, suffered a cut hand. He was dismissed from the hospital after treatment. Firemen injured slightly were Henry Parker, Jeremiah Bresnahan and Lieutenant Finn.

HEAVY BUYING ORDERS SEND STOCK PRICE UP

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP)—The stock market which has been on the downgrade since the first of March, turned abruptly upward today as a result of a tremendous outburst of buying inspired by the lowering of the New York federal reserve re-discount rate. The bond market also gave an impressive demonstration of strength. All three U. S. treasury loans attaining the highest prices ever recorded, while total sales exceeded $21,000,000, the second largest in the history of the exchange. A sweeping reduction in money rates followed the lower bank rate.

Wall street's bullish interpretation of the lower bank rate was based on the theory that it would stimulate business many lines of which had showed marked slackening tendencies during the past few weeks by reducing borrowing rates, and that it indicated that the decline in prices have proceeded sufficiently far to correct the top-heavy speculation position disclosed by the gigantic volume of brokers' loans outstanding early in the year.

In the stock market, scores of issues closed 1 to 6 points higher on the day, with the common stock of Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis railway showing a net gain of 12 points and the old common stock of the United Fruit Co., now seldom traded in, showing an advance of 29 1-2 points above the previous sale. In the bond market, Shelly Oil convertible 6 1-2s soared 11 points to 103.

CLEMENCEAU HAD TROUBLE WITH THE TAX COLLECTOR

PARIS, April 23.—(AP)—Because he refused to opay a ten dollar penalty for delay in settling a tax bill, Georges Clemenceau, war premier, recently was subjected to seizure of a piece of furniture from his modest apartment in Passy. He bought the furniture back from the tax collectors' emissaries, however, before it could be taken away.

The story, as told by the weekly paper Aux Ecoutes, is that "The Tiger" wasn't notified when his taxes fell due. When he finally got a summons he went t othe colector's office. That official proved stubborn, and Clemenceau refused to pay. He also ignored subsequent summones. Then the agents appeared and seized the furniture.

Aux Ecoutes concludes its account by asking indignantly: "Can one imagine Britain executing a judgment against Edison, or Germany against Bismarck?"

W. F. DAVIS COMMITTED SUICIDE BY SHOOTING

BOSTON, Mass., April 23.—(AP)—William F. Davis, president and treasurer of J. M. Maguire and company, Boston agency of the Pierce Arrow Motor Car company, committed suicide by shooting in his office today. Called from a conference with Myron B. Forbes, president of the Pierce Arrow company, Davis went to the telephone, finished a conversation and shot himself twice in the head. He died soon afterward in Massachusetts General hospital.

Associates said that Davis suffered a nervous breakdown after his strenuous labors in connection with the recent automobile show here.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

British Call Controversy

LONDON, April 23.—(AP)—Meetings throughout the day under the auspices of Premier Baldwin to settle the controversy between the miners and mine owners with regard to wages and working hours, did not bring a solution. Tonight it seemed as though the government might be driven to adopt the line of least resistance, namely, partial continuance of the subsidy to the owners, to enable them to continue the present wage scale, as the only alternative to a stoppage of all work in the pits. This belief was held despite the fact that the premier has been untiring in his warnings to the parties to the dispute that they must not expect continuance of the subsidy.

BANDIT WHITTEMORE'S TRIAL IS NEARING END

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 23—(AP)—The supreme court jury, charged with the task of determining whether Richard Reese Whittemore, dapper New York bandit, shall die in the electric chair for leading armed gangsters in the theft on October 29 last, of $95,000 from the Bank of Buffalo money car and in the killing of two bank messengers or whether he is innocent of the state's accusation, probably will receive the case from justice Thomas H. Noonan on Monday.

Except for calling of three witness for the people and further cross-examination of one previous witness, each by the state and the defense, taking of testimony in the trial was completed today. Adjournment was taken at the end of the afternoon court session until Monday morning. The defendant did not take the stand, nor did his father. His wife has not appeared in Buffalo.

After recalling Mrs. Dora Jansen, Philadelphia, star defense witness and subjecting her to a severe cross-examination concerning her relations to Jake Kramer, one of the New York bandit gang, District Attorney Guy B. Moore introduced Detective James H. Malone of Philadelphia, whose testimony is regarded by the prosecutor as shattering the defense alibi.

Detective Malone swore that after the arrest of the gang early in March of this year, he showed Mrs. Jansen and her husband a group picture of the gang and requested them to identify those they knew. Each point only to Jake and Leon Kramer, the witness swore, and Mrs. Janser specifically told him that she did not know Whittemore and did not recognize him in the picture.

The defense's alibi centers about a birthday party given by Mrs. Jansen in her apartment last October 28th at which she, her husband and other witnesses swore Whittemore was a guest.

The defense also produced a surprise witness just before its case was rested early in the afternoon session. He was George C. Diesel, newspaper photographer, who swore that half an hour after the crime Harry G. Russell, president of the Russell Printing company, Buffalo, had told Diesel that he had identified a picture of Harris as the bandit and was certain of his identification.

Russell was one of four state's witnesses who swore they were positive that Whittemore is the bandit leader.

The defense case was rested after several eye witnesses to the crime had testified that they were unable to identify the defendant as the bandit leader. Another witness was David McGus of New York, who stated that six persons identified him as a Buffalo bandit when he was brought to Buffalo in January. This testimony was stricken from the record. He had been indicted on a charge of participating in the Lew Jewelers store robbery and was released after a month's detention because of lack of identification.

INVESTIGATING CAUSE OF EXPLOSION ON THE S-49

NEW LONDON, April 23.—(AP)—Working on its official report, the board of inquiry appointed to investigate the causes of the explosion in the battery room of the submarine S-49 here last Tuesday, which cost the lives of three sailors and seriously injured nine others, was in session tonight. The investigation it is expected, will be completed tomorrow.

If the report when submitted does not prefer charges against anyone, it will be made public at once, it was said by Captain Ernest J. King, commandant of the base. If action is to be taken against any officers the report will be forwarded to the navy department at Washington, before it can be published.

Base hospital authorities gave an optimistic report on the condition of the nine surviving victims of the accident tonight. It was said that all were recovering satisfactorily from the shock, but that most of them would remain in the hospital for sometime with broken bones.

BOSTON, April 23.—(AP)—The long awaited air mail service between Boston and New York will begin on May 15, when a plane will leave the East Boston airport to connect with the transcontinental fliers out of New York. A letter mailed immediately here after business hours, it was stated today, will be delivered in Chicago on the postman's first trip the next morning.

The leaving time from Boston will probably be at 6.30 p. m. with arrival in New York two hours later. The return plane will leave after receiving mail from the night plane from Chicago which arrives at Nel York about 4 a. m.

Many Bidding For Summer White House

New England Has Offered Mr. Coolidge His Choice of Half a Dozen Vacant Residences.

BOSTON, April 23.—(AP)—New England is striving to "sell" President Coolidge on its vacation advantages. While a score of states have invited the president to establish the summer white house within their borders, his native region has offered Mr. Coolidge his choice of half a dozen vacation residences. The range is wide—from the Berkshire hills to Cape Cod in Massachusetts and north to the city of Burlington in northern Vermont.

Since he entered the white house the president has had two summer vacations and has spent them both in New England. White court, Swampscott, chosen last year at the summer white house, will not house the presidential family this season, Mr. Coolidge having expressed preference for mountain rather than sea air. But the old Coolidge homestead at Plymouth, Vt., where the president rested in 1924, still is in the running.

The white farmhouse in the Green mountains, where Calvin Coolidge spent his boyhood and where he was sworn in as president by his father in 1923, became the property of Mr. Coolidge on the death of Colonel John Coolidge in March. Since his father's death the president has kept the house open with Miss Aurora Pierce in charge as housekeeper. The neighbors in Plymouth believe that Mr. Coolidge will return this summer to the haunts of his youth, but so far the white house has been silent on the question.

Vermont has held out to the president two other invitations for his vacation sojourn, while Massachusetts, the state of his political beginnings, has proffered three possible vacation places. Both of the Vermont estates suggested to Mr. Coolidge are near Burlington. Congressman Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts has recommended to the president two summer homes in Berkshire county of this state, while the Cape Cod folk have extended an invitation to the presidential family to visit those hospitable shores.

The city of Burlington, Vt., has formally offered Mr. Coolidge the use of Ledoux, the estate of the late Henry Holt, overlooking Lake Champlain. The large mansion of brick colonial design is situated on a wooded estate of 160 acres. From its lofty site are visible the Adirondack mountains across the lake, which is nine miles wide at that point. An Italian garden and outdoor swimming pool contribute to the recreational facilities.

A group of Burlington business men have placed Stave Island, one of the many islands of Lake Champlain, at the disposal of the president. This piece of land is about a mile square, lies just off the Vermont shore about 10 miles north of Burlington.

Blantyre, the Paterson estate in Lenox, and the Woodward-Mayer estate in Stockbridge are the two homes in western Massachusetts which have been recommended to the president. Th former comprises 250 acres and was owned for many years by the late Robert W. Paterson, of New York. It is now the property of Howard Cole, of New York, and Lenox. The villa, originally cost $300,000.

Stockbridge, the home of Congressman Readway, offers another Berkshire villa for the summer use of the president. The Woodward-Mayer house, situated on Prospect hill in that town, is of stucco construction and contains 30 rooms.

TWO DEAD BODIES WERE FOUND IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, April 23—(AP)—The badly decomposed body of an unidentified man, believed to be a barge worker, was found in the water at the foot of James street today, and another man, Salvatore Constanio, 50, of this city, was found dead from heart failure in a small shelter house in Fort Hale park.

The body of the unidentified man was discovered by a family living in James street. The man is believed to have been in the water about three months. The police are endeavoring to learn whether a man answering the description of the body found, is missing from one of the barges which ply along the sound. The man is described as being about 45 years old and he were a white shirt and corduroy trousers.

Weisbord Obstacle In Strike Settlement

Youthful Strike Organizer Declines to Be Ousted From Settlement Proceedings.

PASSAIC, N. J., April 23—(AP)—Governor Moore today abandoned his attempt to end the 13 weeks textile strike with the announcement that neither side sincerely desired to settle.

The governor called off the first session of his mediation commission after having been informed that Albert Weisbord, youthful strike organizer, intended to come to the meeting, which was to be held in this city.

This information was conveyed to the governor by Henry F. Hilfers, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, and proponent of the mediation commission, who said that Weisbord had withdrawn previous agreements not to attend.

The Botany Consolidated Mills, in whose Passaic plant the strike originated, announced, on the other hand, that it would treat with no weavers not in its employ at the present time and that it had all the employes it needed in its mills here and in Garfield.

Brigadier General Bird W. Spencer, late in the day, denied a statement credited to Hilfers that he and Adjutant General Gilkyson had been succeeded on the governor's advisory committee by Dr. Henry F. McBridge, state commissioner of labor. Both are members of the governor's staff, General Spencer said, and had not received notification of replacement on the committee.

"Until he asks us to step out we will continue to serve," General Spencer said.

Commissioner McBridge's name was signed to an early announcement by the committee that the scheduled meetings would not be held, however. Hilfers later said that he had perhaps not made himself clear when announced that the two military men were off the committee.

Sentiment against them as expressed in Passaic caused him to report to the governor, he said, and his understanding at the time was that Commissioner McBridge would succeed them. He accordingly told Weisbord, he asserted.

Weisbord, around whom the day's activities largely centered, referred to the incident in a speech to strikers in Lodi. Hilfers told him, he said that the military men would be superseded by McBridge.

The organizer also attacked what he called an attempt on the part of the governor's committee to oust him from settlement proceedings.

"What they really want to do is to get rid of me, and then the rest of our leaders, so they can pick up a few men from the street who can be bulldozed into a settlement on their own terms," he said.

"When the governor says he is against Weisbord he means he is against the union," he asserted.

Governor Moore in Jersey City tonight said he "had nothing to add" to his statement on the situation earlier in the day.

A "DESPERATE SITUATION" UNDER THE VOLSTEAD ACT

Depicted by Mayor Dever of Chicago at Hearing in Washington—Had No Remedy to Propose, but Suggested That the Two Sides to the Controversy Get Together on the Basis of "Concessions" By Both—To Accommodate the Crowds Future Hearings Will Be Held in the Big Caucus Room in the Senate Building.

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP)—Congress was asked today by Mayor William E. Dever of Chicago to provide some measure of relief from the present "desperate situation" under the Volstead act.

Appearing of his own volition before the senate prohibition committee, the mayor declared that although he was elected on a reform and law observance platform, he had decided after mature consideration that "worlds of harm" was resulting from the present state of affairs, particularly in the larger cities.

"It's a grave matter for this committee to ponder," he said "whether we are going to continue a system that has this effect on the great cities of the country. I am hoping that the day will come when we can be relieved of this situation."

Mr. Dever added that he himself had no remedy to propose, and did not believe "any other man in America is big enough to give the answer at this time." He counselled both wets and drys that the ultimate solution must be reached in a "patient courageous, intelligent and tolerent" manner, and suggested that the two sides to the controversy get together on the basis of "concessions" by both.

The Chicago executive occupied the stand during most of today's single committee session, but just before adjournment General Andrews was recalled to begin a recapitulation of government enforcement methods. An effort will be made to bring the three weeks of hearings to a close tomorrow, with further testimony by the dry chief and possibly others, and closing arguments by both sides.

General Andrews, who became a storm center in the wet and dry controversy because of his previous testimony that the restricted sale of near beer intoxicating beer might aid dry law enforcement, made no reference to that statement when he returned to stand today. His friends said he probably would volunteer for further comment on the subject and those in charge of the case for the drys withheld announcement whether they would ask for an explanation.

Today's testimony by General Andrews dealt entirely with re-organization problems, saying the situation had improved, but that pending legislation must be passed before enforcement efforts can be put on a solid footing.

The drys still have two hours and 20 minutes remaining, and the wets have one hour. Both sides will take up an hour for argument, and two sessions of the committee would be necessary if the end is to come tomorrow.

For the grand finale of the colorful drama, the committee will move into the big caucus room in the senate office building, where a much larger crowd can be accommodated.

Chairman Harreld suggested the change, saying he had been besieged by those unable to get standing room for the hearings, and Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, replied:

"Oh, well, if you want to make this a Roman holiday, I have no objections."

Occupying the stand for more than an hour, Mayor Dever told the committee the Volstead act could be reasonably enforced by a thorough-going co-operation between the federal, state, county and municipal authorities. He said it was being enforced in many sections now.

"We have driven the open liquor traffic out of Chicago," he declared. "By that, I do not mean that we have stopped whiskey drinking or the under-cover sale. But we have made it difficult for liquor to be obtained."

The mayor again assailed United States District Attorney Olson, of Chicago, for his testimony before the committee that stills are operating in homes in Chicago with the knowledge of the police.

Explainings that the only way the police could act would be to seek search warrants so as to enter the homes and seize the stills, Mayor Dever declared that such enforcement of the law would become oppressive to the people and that they probably would revolt.

"I am opposed to that program, and there will be none of it while I am mayor of Chicago," he said.

In suggesting that "something" should be done, Mayor Dever emphasized the extent to which prohibition had become involved in politics. It is the sole issue in campaigns in many of the cities, he said, and men are elected to office because of their stand on that proposition irrespective of their ability to discharge the duties of office. Once elected, he added, they are forced to give their major attention to enforcement problems, to the detriment of everything else.

Besides General Andrews, the committee has on file a list of possible witnesses for tomorrow, but it was uncertain tonight whether any of them would have an opportunity to testify in the time remaining. Among others, the committee added to its tentative list today the editor of the Yale news, after Senator Reed had said the News had contradicted prevous testimony, by Professor Irving Fisher regarding conditions among Yale students.

PROHIBITION DEBATED BY WESLEYAN PROFESSORS

MIDDLETOWN, April 23.—(AP)—An informal debate was staged at Wesleyan colege here tonight between two members of the faculty on the prohibition question.

Professor Wilbert Snow, of the English department presented his reason for urging a modification of the present prohibition law, while Dr. Edgar Fauver, of the physical education department argued in favor of enforcement of the law. An open forum discussion by the undergraduates followed.

In urging modification, Professor Snow said he objected to the present law for a philosophical and democratic point of view. He declared also that there was so much confusion of arguments both wet and dry, that he believed some modification was necessary. He quoted insurance statistics which showed an increase in the death rate from alcoholism in the last three years.

Dr. Fauver stated that alcohol was bad for the health and was unnecessary. He maintained that personal liberty had to be curtailed to a certain degree for the good of society as a whole. He also admitted that the prohibition law was class legislation but supported it because of the good he declared that it had already done for the poor classes of the country.

WET PLANK ADOPTED BY ILLINOIS DEMOCRATS

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 23—(AP)—The democratic state convention here today flung out as its banner urging "practical temperance rather than theoretical prohibition," as expressed by George E. Brennan, its United States senatorial candidate and condemned Governor Len Small, while the republican convention endorsed the executive, condemned the world court and the league of nations and ignored Brennan's wet plank. The democrats ignored the anti-world court plank of Frank L. Smith, the republican senatorial candidate.

In his convention address, however, Brennan asserted that the world court was a forced issue, and in reality no issue at all.

Democrats condemned the administration of Governor Small as "a stench in the nostrils of all self-respecting citizens" and called on the attorney general to institute proceedings to determine by what legal right Small is holding the office of governor." The republicans endorsed his administration specifically in one plank given over to his achievements, and then in another plank called on all republican officials to support him.

Governor Small addressed the republicans, making the only democratic comment on the democratic platform. "It had its beginning in bunk," he said, "and its finish in booze."

Pre-convention caucuses and committee meetings of the democrats were entirely peaceful, but their convention was colored by a dramatic attempt to expunge Brennan's wet plank. A vote decided the issue, the wet sentiment triumphing, 856 to 152. Cook county (Chicago) delegates voted solidly for the plank.

The order was reversed in the republican camp. Clouds gathered as the republican leaders met in committee, and only when the convention opened was harmoney apparent. Then all was clear sailing.

SECTIONS OF MOSCOW ARE INUNDATED BY FLOODS

MOSCOW, April 23—(AP)—The Moscow river today was rising over its left bank inundating the suburban sections of the city and threatening a serious flood in Moscow itself. The situation has been declared grave, and firemen and the militia were mobilized in drastic measures to guard the city tonight.

Great multitudes today lined the Kremlin waterfront, watching the ever-swelling river as it flooded adjacent areas, cutting off the suburbs and driving thousands of persons to abandon their homes. cores of houses located near the bronze bridge were completely flooded. firemen rescuing inhabitants by boats.

The Bauman region, inhabited mostly by workmen, resembled an ever rising lake, the dwellers escaping over roofs and shouting to firemen posted on nearby bridges, "rush boats, otherwise we drown."

An extraordinary commission has been formed to fight the flood and an alarm was sounded throughout the entire city. Casualties have not yet been reported.

The Moscow river and its tributaries presented a fantastic sight tonight, with numerous torchlit boats moving up and down engaged in rescue operations. At the Troitsky gate, the main entrance to the Kremlin, ice floes were swept on the pavements, completely paralyzing traffic.

A half dozen suburban villages are completely under water. Pontoon battalions have been rushed to these places to rescue the peasants and the cattle. Swift measures have been taken to provide food and shelter for the flood sufferers, the military barracks being opened to receive them, and field kitchens being established at various points.

BODY OF OEHRIG BOY FOUND IN NEARBY BROOK

WILLIMANTIC, April 23—The lifeless body of Albert the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Oehrig of Windham, who has been missing since Thursday afternoon and for whom about 100 men had searched during the night was found in Potash brook 600 yards from the home. Friday forenoon. E. D Hopkins, one of the searchers came upon the little body. The boy was a partial cripple as the result of a paralytic stroke which had also affected his speech. He had apparently fallen into Lyman pond and floated into the brook. The search had been centered about this pond which is owned by the Anderson family and is located on the road from the village at the summit of Brick Top. The pond had been drained off and thoroughly inspected with searchlights. The searchers floundered about in a driving rain over the marshy land combed the woods in the vicinity and dragged the pond. Friday morning about 8 o'clock when the school children of the village who had been let out to assist in the search assisted the men, forming a party of over 200 searchers. Two state policemen with police dogs were on the scene. The child had left home at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. He had strayed from home on previous occasions but had fortunately been found on each occasion. His fondness for water led his parents to fear that he had gone to the pond. Officer Grant Bonnett of the local police department was present when the body was found. It appeared that the child had started to cross the brook on a wooden span and due to his cramped condition he slipped, fell into the water and was drowned. Miss Doris I. Mason was called here after viewing the remains gave the cause of accident, drowning. Albert Oehrig was born in Windham January 5, 1921, a son of Leo P. and Ernestine Buecher Oehrig. "I got clothes whiter than mother ever did — with much less work"

WHEN my mother was sick, I had to do all the housework. The woman who lives upstairs told me to use Rinso so that I wouldn't need to worry about the wash.

She said, "Just soak all the clothes in Rinso suds and you won't have any hard rubbing to do."

So on Monday I did just as she told me and the clothes came out beautifully.

Mother said they were whiter and cleaner than she ever got them with her hours of rubbing! Even badly soiled spots got snowy white after a tiny rub between my fingers. I had no hard work at all.

Now mother always uses this new granulated soap instead of bar soap. Mother's hands are never red or rough any more. And she says the clothes last longer, too, because there's no scrubbing against a board. Ask your grocer today for

DAYVILLE

Sister Mary Paulinus (Catherine Mary Lannon) of the Mercy Order died April 15th at St. Mary's home, West Hartford. Sister Paulinus was a native of Ireland, but spent her childhood in Dayville, where her family settled after coming to America. She was educated in the schools of Dayville until her entry into St. Joseph's convent, Hartford, September 7, 1885. She was professed April 2, 1888, and immediately started teaching, spending almost forty years in the parish schools of Hartford Norwich and Thompsonville. Remarkable success, due to her motherly sympathetic manner, marked her career with the pupils entrusted to her and she was particularly successful with the backward children. In addition to her labors in the school room Sister Paulinus found time to care for the sick and poor. Many families could bear testimony to her charity in securing medical assistance, food or clothing where she knew there was suffering. For many years she visited the Hartford hospital regularly, her ministrations being responsible for the relief of both spiritual and material distress. Her zeal was instrumental in many cases in bringing about the return of careless Catholics to the fold, when sympathy and tenderness of high degree were necessary to accomplish that end. A true religious spirit marked her life. The funeral was held Saturday, the 17th at St. Mary's home Rev. Walter McCrann, a cousin, was celebrant of the solemn mass. Very Rev. Msgr. William H. Flynn, deacon; Rev. John Malley, sub-deacon, and Rev. Francis P. Keough, master of ceremonies. Rev. Matthew J. Traynor, Rev. Edward Cotter, Rev. J. C. Martin, Rev. John F. Donahue, Rev. Michael Lynch and Rev. Peter Coffey assisted at the mass. Burial was in the sisters' cemetery. Father McCrann conducted the committal service and chanted the benedictus, assisted by the priests present.

LISBON

Miss Sarah K. Adams entertained the Ladies' Aid society, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Corbett who have been spending the winter in Norwich, were at their home in Newent Saturday and called at the parsonage.

Charles Wheeler of Scotland, Conn., was a recent caller at R. R. Barber's.

Last Thursday a considerable tract was burned over on John Bromley's farm, near the Newent road. The fire was brought under control at the cross road, after a hard fight.

Even though the ground had been frozen every morning for a week, a path on a sunny hillside was discovered to be bordered with bluets Thursday afternoon.

Miss Elizabeth Rosebrooks attended a teachers' meeting in Sterling last Friday, going from there to Willimantic for the week end.

COLCHESTER

The Y. M. C. A. Pioneers of Colchester are progressing rapidly with their work. At present they have produced many articles such as book-ends, button hook holders, necktie holders, door stops and other like articles. Rev A. W. Canney of Westchester and Dr A. L. Stebbins are conducting the work. The local Pioneers have won the county banner for the intergroup contest. The secretary of the New London county division, C. S. Bailey of New London has visited the Colchester group many times this past year and has been a great help to the boys, who appreciated the services he has rendered them. In return the group will give a farewell banquet to Mr. Bailey who is resigning his position.

Frederick T Bunce of Norwich, formerly of this place, was calling on friends in town Thursday.

Mrs. Frank Nonenbacher of New York is a guest of her parents Mr. and Mrs Charles F. Brown on Norwich avenue.

There was a large forest fire in the woods owned by Julius Sultan on the Willimantic turnpike Wednesday. A number from the village went out to help subdue it.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lyman were visitors in Willimantic Thursday.

Mrs Charles L Sharton of North Westchester was a caller here Thursday.

WESTMINSTER

Mrs. Miller, of Ford Neck district is seriously ill at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic.

Mrs. Agnes Wood was pleasantly surprised on the evening of April 20th by friends and neighbors, in celebration of her birthday. A very pleasant social evening was spent. A large birthday cake handsomely decorated made by Mrs. Alic Helstrom was appreciated by the company. Mrs. Wood was presented a beautiful colored glass flower container.

The roads are in fair condition; the mud is disappearing and once more time open to traffic. Local residents are anticipating having the unfinished line of road from Scotland to Canterbury, made into a state road sometime.

The American newspaper publishers association, in annual convention, in New York, authorized the drawing of an arbitration contract for use by its members in dealing with the international typographical union.

HOW I IMPROVED MY HEALTH

Did It in Less Than One Month

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

DANIELSON

DANIELSON GOES ON NEW TIME SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, April 23.—For thousands of people up and down the Quinebaug valley this is the last day of standard time keeping for five months. Daylight saving time will be introduced here on Sunday, technically, and on Monday will be the measure of a day in all the manufacturing centers hereabouts. The banks, postoffice and theater will have a fast time schedule beginning Monday. J. Dyer Potter of the Brooklyn town school committee made known Friday morning that the East Brooklyn school (West Side) will go on a daylight saving schedule Monday morning. Other schools in Brooklyn will follow their present standard time schedules at least until the committee meets to consider whether a change should be made to fast time or not.

ROTARIANS HEAR FINE TALK ON FINGER PRINTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, April 23.—Danielson's Rotarians had the pleasure of hearing Supt. Robert T. Hurley of the state police department talk about finger prints Thursday night when he came here to dine with the organization and address them. Supt. Hurley went at the subject in a manner that opened the minds of his audience as to how valuable a general system of finger printing would be in detecting criminals if the finger prints of every person in the country were on file, and that's what numbers of police officials in high place are advocating just now. Supt. Hurley made it clear that he is aware that the average citizen who has not given much thought to finger printing and that many object to a proposal that they be required to be officially on file in this way. He also explained what the advantages of having such a complete record of finger prints would be.

Digressing, it may be suggested that unofficial finger printing has long been in general vogue. One finds finger prints of careless persons in a million places where they should not appear. One tries on a new hat and leaves his mark upon it. One finds them on doors and window panes, on cars and in a hundred other places where they do no official good. One can recall instances where finger prints are needlessly so numerous that an investigating and examining officer might decide that this person was a centidigest, if there is any such word, and probably there is. Supt. Hurley's idea seems to be that some arrangement should be entered into under which all these carelessly distributed finger prints should be assembled in orderly file and worth something more than the attention of a cleaner. And that may be a good idea.

John F. Ash of Pomfret Center is the new county game warden in Windham county. Announcements of his appointment have been received by deputy wardens assigned to duty in this county. Warden Ash has taken up the duties of his office and one of his first official visits was in Killingly, where he came to look over state-leased Snake Meadow brook, a great rendezvous for trout fishermen for the past ten days. Mr. Ash succeeds Charles M. Letters of Putnam, who resigned a number of weeks ago.

It is regarded as possible that the reported abandoning of the Green Hollow route as an automobile trunk line by the state highway department is only for the time being, possibly for two or three years. Density of traffic, greater year by year, means more trunk lines and they will come eventually. Danielson is in no great rush about the Green Hollow development. It can wait. It would rather not have it at all than to have under an arrangement abandoning the present trunk line to the south via Wauregan. Development of the present route through the elimination of curves, reduction of grades and changes in location in some sections will be very satisfactory to Danielson. Suspension of trolley service has relieved the congestion in Danielson's business center and the Green Hollow development can easily await more pressing need of it.

Another of the 30-year men has retired as an officer of the Danielson fire department. This time it is George O. Thomas, lieutenant of Minniteexit hook and ladder company, as early as 1898, a member of the department and ever since connected with it. Jerome C. Keech will succeed Mr. Thomas as lieutenant of the company.

The officers of the hook and ladder company are W. Vincent Gartland, captain; Howard M. Withey, secretary; Edward Cloutier and Tyler Andrews, drivers; Harry W. Clarke, William LaFlamme, Stanley Keech, Adolphe Bernier, Henry Derosier, George LaPorte, Allen Rounds, Royal Choquette and Lionel Poirier, laddermen; Howard M. Withey, Jerome Keech and William LaFlamme, members of the entertainment committee.

Ernest Hulett and Floyd Sweet have resigned as members of the company.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward heard and disposed of two cases in the town court Friday morning. Fines were imposed on two men, one charged with assault, the other with having been intoxicated.

A solemn requiem high mass was sung at St. James' church Friday morning at the funeral services for Miss Dorothy Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pierce, who died in New York. The body was taken to Providence for burial. The bearers were Gerald Boulaine, Abel Bernier, Aime Fournier and Edward Rowen. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Mary Brouillard, 87, a native of Canada, died at the home of Arthur Bonneau on the West Side. The body was removed to the home of relatives in Moosup.

Theodore Robitaille, a carpenter in the employ of a contracting firm was somewhat injured late Friday afternoon when he fell from a staging that was being taken down at 28 Maple street. It was at first feared that Robitaille had been gravely injured. Dr. George M. Burroughs was called to attend him and he found Robitaille complaining a pain just above the stomach, an indication that Robitaille may have some internal injury. Robitaille also had a gash on his left arm near the elbow. He is a resident of Moosup and was taken to his home in that place.

Summer heat, with some thermometers showing readings of 80, crowded upon Danielson during Friday to make a day of some discomfort for the people. But there was little of protesting. The June weather was more satisfactory to the average person than the late February weather of the early part of the week, when the mercury was down below 20 degrees.

It was announced Friday evening that there will be no change in the time of the services at the Baptist, Congregational or Methodist churches the coming Sunday. Services will be held at the usual hours. Because of the adoption of daylight saving here on Sunday there was some confusion as to when services at these churches were to be held. Such changes in time of services as may be made on account of daylight saving will not be effective until a week from Sunday at the earliest.

State officers had no report up to Friday noon on a wrecked Rhode Island car that was hauled in here early Friday morning from Dark Lantern Hill. The machine had been wrecked during the night.

George DeForest has made known that hereafter his boxing activities are to be conducted under the name of Al Morello.

The first of the season's registered shoots under the auspices of the Danielson Rod and Gun club is scheduled for Sunday at the traps in the Allen Hill section.

The Sewing society of St. Alban's parish met at the parish house Friday afternoon.

Mrs. C. D. Chase will have the members of the Ladies' Reading circle at her home for a meeting Monday afternoon.

Motorists are agreed that the contractor who has the work might finish the surfacing of the new bridge over the Assawaga river any time now—which is high time.

Dr. Hugh Campbell of Norwich will be here next Tuesday forenoon to conduct a clinic at the Health station in the town hall building.

Those who have trains to catch Sunday will do well to remember that they will be running on the new schedule, which brings them to Danielson an hour earlier than on Sundays during the winter.

Rev. A. E. Gallup, pastor of the Nazerene church, is at Wollaston, Mass., for assembly week at Eastern Nazerene college.

Rev. William Fryling, who recently resigned as pastor of the Congregational church at Wauregan, has received a call to the pastorate of the Trinitarian Congregational church of Templeton, Mass.

Some men like to go trout fishing. An hombre who had just driven over from Hartford was having breakfast in an eating place here at 4 o'clock Friday morning and at the brookside as soon as it was light enough to cast a line.

Members of the choir of St. Alban's church held a rehearsal with Mrs. F. O. Armington Friday evening.

The Putnam theatres will adopt daylight saving time starting Monday, April 26th. Those who change their watches and clocks to the new time will find the shows starting times unchanged. Those who keep their timepieces on standard time, will have to arrive at the theatre an hour earlier than the customary times.

DEATH FRIDAY OF THOMAS C. BRADFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 23—Thomas Congdon Bradford died at an early hour this morning at his home on South Main street. He is the father of States Attorney Howard C. Bradford, Ralph S. Bradford, and Miss Marjorie Bradford, assistant clerk of courts. Mr. Bradford, who was 75 years old, had been an invalid for several years; he was widely known and had numerous friends who will sincerely regret to learn of his death.

Mr. Bradford was born in Canterbury, Conn., March 28, 1851, a son of John and Jane Congdon Bradford. He was the eighth in descent in an unbroken line from Governor William Bradford of the Plymouth colony.

A contractor and builder Mr. Bradford built the house on So. Main street where he had lived for the past half century and where his death occurred.

For a number of years he was in the employ of the New Haven railroad company as a bridge carpenter. Later and until his health failed he worked for and with the late Charles H. Kelley, building contractor. When he built his South Main street home he and his father and brothers hauled the lumber by ox team from the Bradford homestead in Canterbury.

On April 5, 1884, Mr. Bradford was married to Martha Jane Spalding of Brooklyn, Conn. His wife survives him and the three children named above.

The third dividend amounting to ten per cent to the depositors and other claimants of the First National bank will be payable Monday, April 26, at the Citizens National bank, where George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National, has his headquarters. All to whom dividends are due are reminded that it will be necessary to present their proof of claims at the time they call for the dividend checks.

Israel Putnam lodge, No. 33, I. O. O. F., will attend the services at the M. E. church Sunday, April 25, in a body. This will be the 107th anniversary of the founding of the order.

The Masonic club will hold a housewarming at its newly remodeled club rooms on South Main street on Friday evening, April 30. What was the upper story of a residence building, by the removal of partitions, has been converted into a good sized assembly hall, which will permit the serving of 125 diners or when the tables are removed will provide a very admirable dancing hall. When the partitions were removed the floors and walls were strengthened so that competent authorities declare it to be absolutely safe for dancing.

The room is very attractive and has met the approval of all who have seen it. The members of the Masonic club have promised their hearty support to the opening night program. The lower floor for this night will be used for whist playing by thosew ho do not care to dance.

The kitchen facilities are ample and are practically the last word in point of convenience.

On the night of this housewarming the ladies of the Eastern Star will serve a supper after which the tables will be removed for dancing.

Gardner Richardson of Woodstock, Conn., has been appointed commercial attache at Athens, Greece, succeeding R. O. Hall, who goes to the financial investment division of the department of commerce.

At a special meeting of the city council, Frank Vadnais was elected as the democratic member of the council from Ward 3 to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Alfred Pigeon who has moved from the city. Mr. Vadnais, who is a clerk at the Gilman Hardware store is well known throughout the city and has the qualifications to make a good councilman.

Mrs. Ralph G. Van Name of New Haven has been the guest of Mrs. Mary B. Bishop of Grove street and Miss Mary Flynn of Woodstock, Mrs. Van Name was formerly Miss Effie Porter, daughter of Mrs. John Addison Porter of Pomfret.

Little Doris Soulay of Powhatan street was discharged from the Day Kimball hospital Thursday morning apparently none the worse for having eaten some strychnine. A few days ago an older sister found some tablets and gave them to her sister who swallowed them and soon was taken with convulsions.

A truck owned by the Gagnon Express company and which was parked near the Congregational church on Main street drifted away from its moorings without a pilot yesterday morning. It ran into a hydrant near the corne rat Lee street and broke the hydrant off, then it crossed Main street and finally came to a halt on the lawn of Charles Love. The truck was apparently not damaged.

At a meeting of the Anselm Mayotte post, American Legion, with representatives from the Putnam Chamber of Commerce and the Putnam Rotary club, plans were considered for the observance of Memorial day in the city. It was decided that the three organizations join in decorating the graves of the soldiers in the five local cemeteries. It did not seem advisable to attempt any plans for a street parade or for a speaker for the day, but rather to call for assemblies at the various cemeteries for different hours during the forenoon for the purpose of decorating the graves of deceased veterans of all wars.

The funeral of Mrs. Louise Foisey, 75, of Reading, Pa., a former resident of North Grosvenordale was held from St. Joseph's church Thursday morning at eight o'clock with a requiem mass. As celebrants, Rev. B. M. Donnelly acted as deacon, Rev. Fr. Rothler of Putnam was sub-deacon and Rev. John Quinn was master of ceremonies. The bearers were Frank Foisey and Frank Morrey of Putnam and Adlard Arose and Jideon Ducharme of Grosvenordale.

Mrs. Foisey was well known in this vicinity having spent the greater part of her life at North Grosvenordale but for several years has been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. John Sledgell at Reading. She is survived by three daughters and two sons: Mrs. Eugene Farrault and Mrs. Frank Morrey of Putnam Philip Foisey of Putnam and Fred Foisey of North Grosvenordale. Her husband died three years ago.

The Oscar W. Swanson post, No. 67, of the American Legion at North Grosvenordale, is to hold a tag day on Monday April 26. Both the legion and the auxiliary are working to raise funds for immediate relief to needy veterans. The legion committee is William Allen, Patric Molloy, Edward McKeon, John O'Caire and John J. Reardon, Jr.

A daylight robbery took place at the Esterbrook place at West Woodstock recently. The family had gone for the day leaving a dog in the house as a guard. When they returned the dog was out in the yard and the house had been ransacked and clothing and other valuables missing. A note in which was written "We have gone, catch us if you can" is the only clue that the state police have to work with as the family do not suspect any one in particular.

Prof and Mrs. T. P. Butler of New Haven are spending the week at their old home in Woodstock.

It was impossible for Dr. Hugh Campbell of Norwich to make his visit at the Day Kimball hospital this week but he will be here next Tuesday, April 27.

Mrs. Ralph C. Jenkins of South Main street has returned from the Boston hospital where she underwent an operation about two weeks ago.

Mrs. Alvira Barber, regent of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., has been in Washington this week attending the National convention of the D. A. R. which is being held there.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Brousseau of Wilkinson street have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Henry Breausseau of Watertown, Mass., Mrs. Jennie Brunt and her daughters the Misses Ruth, Edna, Helen and Lillian Brunt of Cambridge, Mass.

Mrs. Mary E. Bishop of Grove street is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Karl T. Kent at Meriden, Conn.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Stafford will go on daylight saving time Monday morning. On account of the decision to move the clocks one hour ahead having been made only a day or two ago it was thought there would be some confusion if any attempt was made to go on advanced time on Sunday as the churches had made no announcements about changing the hours of service.

Miss Harriet Winslow of Buffalo, N. Y., is a guest of Mrs. G. Percival Bard.

Mrs. Herman Rawlison of New York was the guest of friends in town this week. She is making preparations to start on a European trip within a few days.

The Current Events club has given The Life of Lincoln to the Public library.

Miss Mary Smith has been attending a two days session of the Daughters of Rebekah in Stamford this week.

Mrs. Frederick Faulkner is visiting friends in New York.

The engagement of Miss Linda Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Mitchell, to Alwyn W. Rees, son of Rev. and Mrs. Levi Rees, has been announced.

Miss Edith Mitchell, of St. James L. I., is a guest in the family of her brother, A. L. Mitchell.

The funeral of Peter Panciera was held at St. Edward's church Friday morning at nine o'clock. The requiem mass was sung by Rev. Felix J. O'Neill and burial was in St. Edward's cemetery.

Miss Anna Michna has entered the employ of the Michna bakery.

Mrs. Eva Bugbee of Stafford Hollow is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Walker of Eastford.

The annual May dinner of the Methodist church will be held this year on Wednesday May 5th.

Good Counsel

We do not say "Save it All"—that is impossible. Nor do we say pinch, be miserly, deny yourself and family the necessities of life.

But we do admonish you, "DON'T SPEND IT ALL!" You'll have an opportunity some day — You'll need some extra money to take care of new responsibilities; and you're getting older, too.

So we repeat — "DON'T SPEND IT ALL!"

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

ROYAL ARCANUM.

Grand Regent Edward A. Marcier of Hartford presided Wednesday at the 40th annual grand lodge session of the Royal Arcanum, held in Hartford. He recommended that more attention should be given to the smaller councils by the grand council through personal visitations, group meetings and all other possible encouragements.

There have been received 138 members during the year and a further increase seems to me promised by the organized efforts made and now evident among many councils, said the grand regent.

The grand regent complimented B. H. Webb council of Hartford, New Britain council of New Britain, Davenport council of New Haven, Seaside council of Bridgeport and P. H. Sheridean council of New Haven for important parts in making net gains during the year.

The grand regent made 67 visitations to the several councils. A number of successful union meetings were held during the year. One meeting was with B. H. Webb council of Hartford with Supreme Regent Harold C. Knoeppel as the guest of honor. The supreme regent was also present at a union meeting with Seaside council of Bridgeport.

The promotion fund given by the supreme council has been used during the year with excellent results, said the grand regent.

"There is fertile soil in the state for new councils and I advise that the executive committee of the grand council take steps for the formation of new councils."

Reference was made by the grand regent to the death of William G. Gunning, November 25, 1925, at Atlanta, Ga. He was the first grand regent of the grand council of Connecticut.

Grand Secretary D. J. Lucy of New London reported 39 subordinate councils with a membership of 3,124, March 31, 1926. The two largest councils in the state are Davenport of New Haven with 336 members and B. H. Webb of Hartford with 335 members. The expenditures for special field work were $1,653.81.

Grand Treasurer J. Peter Colla of Hartford reported that the balance on hand at the last annual meeting was $982.62; receipts, $4,131.25; total, $4,-813.87; disbursements, $3,862.31; balance, $951.56.

Reports of the annual session of the supreme council at Atlantic City, June 15-20, 1925, were made by Supreme Representative L. Erwin Jacobs of New Haven and Fred Elliott of New Britain and on the state of the order by F. H. Ittley, Bridgeport, C. B. McGinness of Stamford and C. A. Biever of New Haven, the committee on state of the order.

At the session in the afternoon C. P. McGinness of Stamford was elected grant regent; C. A. Biever of New Haven, deputy grand regent, and A. P. Hagner of Meriden, grand orator.

Retiring Grand Regent Edward A. Marcier was elected sitting past grand regent. J. Peter Colla of Hartford was re-elected grand treasurer. The new officers were installed by Deputy Supreme Regent J. William Kendrick of New Jersey.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS.

The regular meting of Clara Barton tent, No. 7, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, was held Thursday evening at Buckingham Memorial with the president, Gladys B. Newbury, presiding. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The mystery package, a hand made dolly was awarded to Mrs. Jennie Newbury. It was announced that the department convention would be held in New London May 13 and 14. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

Mercier Assembly will hold open house during the convention of the Connecticut Conference of Social Work. The rooms will be open afternoon and evening of Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next week.

EAGLES.

The Eagles concluded their present pinochle tournament Thursday evening when John Leirich won first prize with a score of 7220, R. A. Krohn 7,-160 taking second.

For the series John Leirich with a total of 57,425, David Farrell 56,620 and H. Marcus 55,065, were awarded dues for prizes.

It is the intention of the pinochle committee to continue Thursday evenings as the regular pinochle night; therefore another series will start on next Thursday evening as a large number of entries have been presented to the committee.

Final arrangements were made by the initiation committee that has charge of the meeting for Saturday night.

Total scores for Thursday evening were: John Leirich 7220, R. A. Krohn 7160, W. R. Hastedt 7075, D. Farrell 7065, E. P. Mullins 6740, J. Sautier 6,-725, E. J. Mullins 6,665, H. Marcus 6,-480, W. Caughey 5965, H. Herring 5,-925, N. Leirich 5680, L. Tratchenberg 3639.

Total scores for the series as follows: John Leirich 57,425, David Farrell 56,620, Henry Marcus 55,065, C. Norwacki 52,255, E. J. Mullins 52,-055, W. R. Hastedt 51,720, W. Caughey 50,940, T. Fields 50,810, R. A. Krohn 50,295, H. Herring 48,725, L. Michette 47,760, E. J. Mullins 47,160, Thomas Fields 46,375, M. Shea 45,590, H. Congdon 44,860, J. Mouniaki 44,350.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, No. 7, met at the Buckingham Memorial Friday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Maude A. Moody, in the chair. The treasurer, Mrs. Iola Bjurstrom, was absent on account of illness. National general orders were read, after the regular reports had been approved. The corps will hold a whist and pinochle next week. The Woman's Relief corps sewing society will purchase a new flag for the grand army flag pole in front of Buckingham Memorial to be ready for Memorial day. The corps accepted an invitation from Rev. A. N. Foster to attend a moving picture show at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening April 26. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag and singing America.

LADIES OF MACCABEES

The Maccabees is organizing a Juvenile department to be composed of children of the members, it is announced by A. W. Frye, supreme commander.

All children of members from 12 months to 16 years of age and children for whose support some member of The Maccabees is responsible will be eligible. Three forms of benefit certificate will be offered, ordinary life, 20 payment life, and educational annuity. The two first named provide an ultimate benefit of $250 payable at death, and the educational annuity certificate pays $350 or an annual annuity of $100 for four years on reaching age 18. All certificates are based on the American experience table of mortality and provide cash surrender values, with the same high standards and guarantees as adult membership certificates. On reaching age 16 juvenile members may become full fledged adult members of their lodge.

The Maccabees, which for 47 years was exclusively a men's organization, has been admitting women to membership since last June and the admission of children is the last step in making the society a service organization for the entire family issuing whole family protection. The junior organizations will function as auxiliaries to the women's lodges, or hives, and will have a special children's ritual.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart legion, Norwich chapter, No. 124 met at Moose home with Senior Regent Mrs. Teresa Watters presiding.

The chapter has accepted an invitation to attend Moose state field day at Meriden, June 19th. Mrs. Marie Retkovske was appointed chairman of the committee to look after the uniforms to be worn for the occasion.

Mrs. Emma Beaver spoke on the life of James J. Davis, director general of the Loyal Order of Moose, as well as secretary of labor, whose life is more fully described in the book "The Iron Puddler," which may be obtained at the library.

The annual memorial services were carried out by the senior regent, Mrs. Teresa Watters. As the names of the deceased were read by the recorder, the chapiain, Mrs. Irene Burns, placed a red carnation, in memory of them, in a large wreath. The following are the deceased members—Mrs. Viola Andrews, Mrs. E. A. Andrews, Mrs. L. Bassett, Mrs. Rosina McDonald, and Mrs. Minnie Allyn.

At the close of the meeting, the senior regent announced May 27th meeting as "Children's Night."

B'NAI BRITH AUXILIARY

The Rose of New England lodge, No. 393, and the Rose of New England auxiliary held a joint social at the Buckingham Memorial rooms on Thursday evening, the affair being a great success socially. Alex Pasnik, acting as song leader, opened the exercises with the singing of America and the address of welcome was given by Abner Schwartz. Alex Pasnik was in charge of the program given as follows:

Violin solo, Hungarian Dance G. Minor (Brahms), accompanied by Mrs. Alexander H. Manes, by Frank Drago of Norwich and Hartford; reading, The Spirit of Charity, Mrs. Charles Jacobsoni song, Sweet Adeline, B'nai Brith quartet; violin solo, Kol Nidre (Bruch), Mr. Drago, accompanied by Mrs. Manes at the piano; impromptu recitation, The Tramp and by request, What a Funny Little World This Is, Herman Bruckner; reading, Loyalty, Alex Pasnik.

The address of the evening was given by Max Hanover, speaking of the value of fellowship and human cooperation. Frank Drago rendered Tambourin (Rameau-Kreisler) on the violin followed by Intermezzo (Mascagni) by request. The final numbers of the program were a piano solo by Mrs. Alex Manes and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner by all.

The refreshments of the evening were furnished by the women of the auxiliary.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

The sewing circles of the Woman's auxiliary of Norwich Grange will hold an all day meeting at Buckingham Memorial Tuesday and everyone is expected to bring their lunch. The president of the circle is Mrs. Addia Boyens and the chairman is Mrs. William S. Murray.

WOMEN'S BENEFIT ASSOCIATION

The Woman's Benefit association held a successful whist and pinochle Friday evening at Buckingham Memorial with seven tables of whist and nine tables of pinochle 16 play.

The prizes for whist were awarded as follows: Ladies, first, Mrs. J. F. Moran; second, Mrs. Sesser; consolation, Mrs. Burette. Gentlemen, first, F. Flaherty; second, W. LaValle; consolation, N. Conaty. The prizes for pinochle follow: Ladies, first, Mrs. Kirchner, 7705; second, Mrs. Wilson, 6835; consolation, Mrs. Manchester, 5180. Gentlemen, first, J. Donohue, 6775; second, Mr. Hastedt 6360; consolation, Mr. Jankowske, 4525.

The scorers for whist were Misses Ella Buonanno, Marion Buonanno, and Elizabeth Eckstent. Mrs. Irene LaPre was scorer for pinochle.

CATHEDRAL, RESTORED. IS GREAT WORK OF ART

In the farming town of Bitonto, on the flat, half-parched Apulian plain, is tucked away the most perfect Lombard Romanesque cathedral in Italy.

Probably not a dozen foreigners come in a year to visit this masterpiece of the 12th century. So sturdy in its structure, so dignified, in its proportions, so rich and fantastic in its sculptured decoration.

Most other Italian churches of its period have been ruined by alterations while those of the later periods rarely satisfy the eye because of their mixture of ill-assorted elements. The Bitonto edifice, whose restorations were removed by the Italian Government, has emerged from "restoration" more exquisite than any of its sisters. The animals and mythological monsters that swarm about its portals and cling to its capitals make it worth hours of study.

Automatic Foghorn

Fog creeps up the Irish Channel. It grows denser. Then suddenly from a lighthouse comes the blaring, mournful blast of a foghorn. At regular intervals the warning is repeated.

If you climb up into this lighthouse in Dublin, Ireland, you will see no one, for the warning is automatic. The fog itself sets the signal going. The remarkable device is the invention of a young professor of the National University of Ireland, J. J. Dowling according to Popular Science Monthly.

A huge lamp sends a strong beam of light slanting across the channel onto a large window in the lighthouse. This window lens concentrates the light on a light sensitive cell inside the lighthouse, producing an electrical effect that is magnified so that it operates an electrical relay. When the light beam is dimmed by fog the relay current reverses, closing an electrical circuit that starts the foghorn.

Ships going by, birds, airplanes or other passing shadows have no effect on the signal. Only persistent weakening of the light by fog operates the signal. The apparatus requires no attention, and for a year has operated successfully.

DAYLIGHT TIME

Daylight time goes into effect Sunday morning at two o'clock. In Massachusetts it is a state law. In Rhode Island for the most part there will be observance of it. In Maine, though the state has ordered standard time, there are many cities where daylight time will be used, public clocks however being kept on standard time.

In this state daylight time will be more generally observed than heretofore. Communities which have been holding to standard time have decided to join the majority and to overcome the confusion of having most of the cities on daylight time and a few on standard time, while smaller communities, some of which might otherwise remain on standard time, are adopting the change for the summer in order to eliminate the inconvenience of double time.

The railroad systems will operate their trains one hour ahead, which is the equivalent of a daylight time schedule and cities will therefore be working in accordance therewith, with mail, passengers and freight trains providing service at times correspondent to those now prevailing.

With cities and boroughs adopting daylight time until the last Sunday in September, for the purpose of avoiding the confusion that prevails otherwise, it is proper that the individual should change their clock and watches to correspond thereto for the same period. Then will our going by any other than the regular schedule there will be an observance of daylight time and the question will be over so far as moving tabs on the time of day is concerned.

Probable not many will remain up until two o'clock Sunday morning but clocks and watches can just as easily be turned ahead an hour tonight on retiring. Because of the change, the night will be one hour shorter but that will be recovered when the timepieces are set back again in the fall. With general participation there will be eliminated the one cause of friction, that of having the majority on daylight time and a minority living on standard time.

THREE MILE AUTHORITY

When it became apparent that it was necessary to put a stop to the large amount of liquor that was being smuggled into the country if the Volstead act was going to be enforced, it was realized that it would be necessary to intercept such smugglers, or rum runners, beyond the three mile limit. This necessitated that negotiations of treaties with other countries whereby this country was given the right to search vessels inside the twelve mile limit for liquor and to seize those on which liquor was found.

Two cases involving English and Norwegian ships, have been carried to a court of appeals with the judges deciding that while the treaty arrangement may exist it does not alter the fact that authority has not been given our officials to go beyond the three mile limit in making such seizures and arrests. In other words while provision has been made for getting the cooperation of other countries through treaties there has been overlooked the technicality of giving the necessary authority to our rum chasers to go beyond the three mile limit in enforcing the Volstead act.

There is of course the chance to appeal these cases to the court of last resort for a final decision, or it is possible to go to congress and ask that the authority of the law enforcers be extended so that advantage of the treaties may be taken. No more would be sought under such a plan than was supposed to have existed when the treaties were signed. Congress would simply be completing the work that it was supposed had been done in order to shut off the liquor smuggling.

The decision comes at a time when congress is in session, but whether it can be prevailed upon at this late date, with so many clamoring for adjournment and so many measures to be acted upon, to take up this matter is a question. Perhaps it might not be so much a matter of time as disposition, for there is always the group of obstructors to be encountered no matter what the cause may be.

MURDERS HERE AND ABROAD

There is hardly a week when more or less public interest is not being known in some murder case, where the murderers are being sought or where they are being tried. How conditions in this country stand out in contrast with those in England is disclosed by the records of 1921 which show that in this country that year there were 10,000 murders while in England and Wales there were less than 100, and yet this country is only about three times as large in population. But significance must be attached to the fact that while 100 out of 110 in this country escape the death penalty only about one out of 100 does so in England.

As a result of a study which he has been making of the subject, it is the opinion of Judge Kavanaugh of Chicago that it is due to the difference in the public attitude toward laws. If only one out of every 100 murderers in this country each year escaped the death penalty it stands to reason that there would be less inclination to resort to life taking. The fact that there is such an excellent chance of escaping the noose or the chair, or if sentenced to life imprisonment that escape can be effected or an early release obtained, may not actually induce crime but it certainly does not place the needed check thereon.

The marked difference in the conditions here and across the water is sufficient not only to attract attention but to cause us to pause and wonder if it is not the laxness in law enforcement and law support by the general public which is responsible for our unenviable murder record from year to year.

We throw up our hands and insist that it ought to be stopped, but we do nothing about it, except that when a murder case arises there is always a flood of sentimentality that is not only sickening but is directed toward the undermining of the law and the application of it that murder calls for.

Sentiment in this country cannot be said to be unanimous for the death penalty but neither can it be said to be said to be for murders, and easy treatment of murderers isn't going to correct the situation.

WHAT FOREST FIRES DO

That forest fires do more than destroy standing timber is well illustrated in New Jersey where a 20 mile stretch near Toms River was swept by flames which devoured 53 buildings including a church.

With high winds blowing and wonderful fuel for the flames furnished by the pine forests it was next to impossible for the fire fighters to check the progress once the firebrands had done their work. Whatever was in the path of the fire as it was sent along by the wind was burned, while near Asbury Park one village became so endangered that 700 persons were prepared to flee.

Certain things can be done in the fighting of forest fires. Much depends upon the conditions as to what the success is likely to be, but however valuable the fire fighters' services may be they cannot approach in importance the work of prevention. If there is no fire the danger doesn't prevail, the loss doesn't follow and the fire fighters are not required to work. Fire prevention requires far less effort and eliminates the long series of regrettable conditions which accompany fires.

During the seasons of the year when the leaves and underbrush furnish such a menace too much care cannot be used to keep fire away from them, and in these days of so much motor traffic a bit of thought needs to be given by the smokers when they toss to the side of the road the cigarette stub which, if it lights in the right place, furnishes all that is required for a disastrous fire. It is easy to realize the need of avoiding such small and needless acts after a fire but the important thing is to carry it in mind and actually prevent the application of the torch when the act is about to be committed.

OUR DYE INDUSTRY

According to figures which are issued by the tariff commission there was a production of 88,000,000 pounds by the American dye industry in 1925, the value being $40,000,000. How domestic production has developed is indicated by the fact that the importations during that period amounted to only 5,315,060 pounds which were valued at $4,791,500.

This is in marked contrast to the days before the war when this country was dependent upon Germany for nearly all of its dyes, and as may be noticed it shows the excellent results of the tariff that was placed upon such goods.

The war forced us into the manufacture of dyes else we might have been as dependent upon Germany as ever, despite the fact that we had the materials and the brains. What we needed was the use of our resources in both and that is what has been done. Not only are we able to take care of all the domestic requirements but the dye industry is increasing to the point where it is going to be able to supply a considerable part of the foreign market provided foreign competition can be met.

While the war lasted there was no need of a tariff. Germany turned its attention in other directions and could not have gotten its goods here if it had not. The war thus served as an effective tariff wall. But since Germany has been recuperating it is apparent that only for the existing tariff the American industry would not be able to survive very long. A large and growing industry is therefore in existence chiefly because of the protection that it has been given. We have benefited from the recognition of the need of being less dependent in this direction.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

It was Alexander Pope who coined the expression, "hope springs eternal in the human breast." All those who have made a study of human emotions pronounce this statement correct. There is no phase of the human personality more pronounced than this. It is one of the very first to function and the very last to die. The little tot coming home at noon from the kindergarten hopes that a piece of juicy steak awaits him; the extremely old man, when he comes to his death bed hopes that the end will be painless. The space between these two extremes is filled with an endless variety of hopes. There is not a person on the earth today who does not hope for this or that on the morrow. If it is not realized hope continues to hope for something else to supply its place. At this season of the year we hope that each day will be the last of these chill winds that blow from snowbanks.

It would be hardly correct to say that hope is the only form of spring fever, but spring fever is related to hope by marriage, and spring is that portion of the year that gives a peculiar intensity to hope. The long, cheerless weather in which so many activities are forced to be suspended is past. All about us are evidences of new life. The fever comes upon us to break away from the long spell of hibernation and make more of outdoor life. Lovers of sport feel their blood tingle at the prospect of soon indulging in their favorite baseball. We shall forget the names of our congressmen and think again of those who have made great records on the diamond. During the winter we have followed the indoor sports of congress, and for a season we shall have the outdoor sports of baseball. Thousands of people hope that it will be a big year for their favorite game.

We are told that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and conversely, "all play and no work" makes him a very one-sided and incompetent boy. This applies just as much to old Jacks as young Jacks. Please remember (and I am now addressing old Jacks as well as young Jacks) that a game of baseball won't take more than two hours on a given afternoon. Remember likewise that there is a good wife at home who hopes that you will not let the afternoon slip by without using the garden rake in the back yard. Show the dear woman that you can put as much vigor into that iron rake as the other fellows put into the baseball bat. Give the old dried grass, the dead leaves and other rubbish a home run. A baseball field is not the only place in which an active, wide-awake man can make a three-bagger. As you are qualified for this work, get at it now!

In these days in which so much is said by fundamentalists and modernists in regard to evolution as an hypothesis explaining the development of animal life, would it not be better for both parties to get better acquainted with the Bible and the theories of its explanation? As matters now stand it would seem that the average scientist is a mighty poor theologian, and the average theologian is a still worse scientist. Let us keep in mind that in Genesis we have a statement of facts and conclusions, and not a description of processes. Let us remember also that figures expressing the time element appear only in the margin of our Bibles and not in the body of the text. We ought to keep in mind that the Bible is the authoritative record of God's historic work in human redemption, and is not designed as a text book of science. It is not designed to give all the branches now taught in a modern university.

If modern science had done nothing more than to discover the extremely valuable product of cotton seed it would have justified its existence. Those who were engaged in raising cotton two generations ago, built their cotton gins, when available, on the banks of a stream, so that by means of chutes connecting with the stream, the seed might be washed away. We are now informed that today cotton-seed is one of the country's foremost food and feed products "furnishing vast quantities of oil for human consumption and vast quantities of meal for animals, with the result that cotton-seed alone, apart from the cotton lint, is exceeded in value by only seven American farm products." Of course the first of these in value is wheat, and then come white potatoes, oats, corn, rye and barley. But in the rapidity in which it has come to popular notice, cotton-seed surpasses them all.

A certain business man of New York, charmed as thousands of tourists are, with Florida, coined this expression, "Climate is the key that unlocks the door to Paradise." That the climate of Florida is wonderful goes without saying. It is the concensus of opinion of all those who spend their winters there. It must seem especially so to one who has lived most of his life in New York, whose climate says Kipling "is enough to kill a horse." If by "Paradise" one means merely a place of sensuous delight possibly climate such as Florida possesses may "unlock the door." But if by the word you mean the condition of the highest mental and moral satisfaction I must dispute the claim. The highest attainment in living is only attained by strenuous effort, and a balmy climate is not favorable to exertion. Has Florida with her "climate of Paradise" been conspicuous in her native great men?

The things of life that are of the greatest advantage to us are the things that we must strive the hardest to get. Nothing in life is more important to us than character, and we do not get this by lolling about the sunny beaches of Paradise. I do not mean to say that character is derived by courting hardships, or through any species of self-inflicted torture; neither is it produced by basking in the supernal sunshine of Miami or Los Angeles! We only get it by paying the full price and that is by putting every atom of our mental and moral wealth into the purchase. The men and women who, for the most part, have made history, have lived in the north temperate zone between the 30th and 50th degrees of latitude. This is true all the way from the early Greece of Plato and Aristotle down to the latest celebrity in America. The north may have a harsh climate but it makes white oak men as well as white oak trees.

One suggestive phase of evolution is that of arrested development. It explains why some species have become extinct. If in the developing of animal life any branch, for whatever reason, failed to make use of its opportunity for continued expansion, it had to pay the penalty, and that was by taking away "that which it hath," in other words its power for further progress. By not going on it soon found that it could not go on. Once there were on the earth enormous reptiles, much larger than anything we now have, and other animals like the mastodon and the megatherium, that failed to function and at length failed to exist. In a more recent era the little ground mole chose to live under the soil in darkness, and nature punished him by taking away his eyes. We see the same in our schools, the pupils who refuse to study at length lose the opportunity for study.

Tornadoes in 1925 killed 553 people and caused damage amounting to nearly $25,000,000.

POWER OF AMERICA'S KING GROWS

The serious prediction of chemists that within a few years we may order palatable "synthetic beefsteak" made from cotton-seed, fixes a royal personage more firmly on his throne—His Majesty Gossypium Hirsutum, otherwise known as King Cotton. Something of this potentate's power in the world is told in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Night and day the average man seldom escapes the influence of King Cotton," says the bulletin. "He sleeps between cotton sheets on a mattress stuffed with fluffy white fibers. After he discards his cotton pajamas and takes his morning bath, he uses a Turkish towel made of cotton; he dons cotton underclothes; and if it is summer, he probably wears outer garments at least partly made of cotton. The celluloid comb and brush which he uses in making his toilet, and even the handle of his tooth brush are probably made from the same indispensable fiber.

Under Scepter in Home and Office

"Breakfast is not entirely cottonless even though the table is spread with linen. If margarin is used instead of butter it is probably made largely from cotton-seed oil; while the same oil or solid shortening made from it may be used in griddle cakes, biscuits or muffins. The morning paper, too, which Mr. Average Man thumbs through is dependent on cotton for the film from which its photographs were made.

"If he motors to town, he rides on tires that could not be made so cheap and strong and durable except for their 'carcasses' of cotton fabric or cords. Perhaps the upholstery, the brade-linings, and even the lacquer finish on the car have drawn upon cotton as raw materials. Arrived at his office he makes use of cotton in some of his stationery, his telephone insulation, his typewriter ribbons, his window cords, his shades, and probably in numerous other ways.

"At luncheon Mr. Average Man doubtless eats from a table covered with cotton and uses a cotton napkin, for most restaurants and hotels use cotton 'table linen.' More than likely the roast of his evening meal is from an animal fattened in part on cotton-seed meal. If he goes to the 'movies' in the evening he is patronizing a huge industry into whose mlies of film cotton enters as the chief raw material. The seat covers, the hangings, and even the screen on which the story he has come to see is unfolded owe their allegiance to King Cotton.

Indispensable for Housewife

"Mrs. Average Woman leans more heavily on the royal and potent Gossypium Hirsutum. The shelves of her linen closet are stacked high with white cotton goods used in bed and bath rooms. In her clothes closets hang dress after dress of the same material, while her dresser drawers are filled with cotton garments. Her dishes are dried on cotton dish cloths, her laundry (itself largely cotton) hangs on cotton lines, she darns and mends with cotton thread, and retires for the night to sleep in and between and upon cotton.

"From where does the indispensable cotton come?

"Most of it comes from American cotton fields of the south and southwest.

"Just now the first little green plants whose lives and progress will mean so much to market exchanges and commerce in the summer and fall, are pushing through the black earth in southern Texas. Each week, as the sun gets warmer, will see the green army advance farther north until it will stand in possession of close to 40 million acres of the south. This is equivalent to 62,500 square miles, and if it were a single field it would be large enough to cover every square foot of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, and most of Connecticut.

Crop Worth a Billion

"The little plants which will supply the great American cotton crop of 1926 ('great' because even in poor years American cotton is seldom worth less than a billion dollars) are growing in rows 3 to 4 feet apart. They are planted rather thickly; but when they are several inches tall the farmers and their laborers go along the rows with hoes chopping out surplus seedlings, and incidentally, weeds and grass, leaving the plants from 12 to 18 inches apart.

"After this most of the cultivation is given with broad shallow plows and riding cultivators. Under the warmth of the southern spring and summer the plants grow rapidly. When they reach maturity each is virtually a sturdy little tree three to four feet high, its branches touching those of its neighbors in its row and almost meeting the branches from plants in rows on either side.

"The first blooms appear in the southernmost part of the cotton belt about the middle of May and sweep to the northern edge in northern Tennessee and southern Virginia by the middle of July. They are beautiful snow-white blossoms at first, leaving at their bases little green 'squares' in the center of which nestle the green 'bolls' about the size of a finger end. These swell steadily through the warm summer weeks until they are the size of an egg, when they are tinged with reddish brown. They then crack open along five lines and expose in each orangelike segment a closely packed, moist white substence. In a few days the segments have folded back, the moisture has evaporated, and a ball of fluffy white cotton rests in its fragmentary saucer. If left unpicked too long the cotton hangs downward from the open bolls— now dry and brown—like snowy moss.

"Cotton-picking time is as much a nature-marked season in the south as is the overflow of the Nile in Egypt or the appearance of the summer sun in the Arctic. The work appeals to the southern Negro. Industries lose their employers, housewives their maids, when the late summer exodus to the cotton fields begins. Many of the pickers camp out for weeks near the fields in which they work and look upon the outing as a sort of holiday. Even children and aged persons take part in the work, dragging their canvas sacks behind them.

"A generation ago pickers received 40 to 50 cents for each hundred pounds picked, but the pay has increased greatly in recent years. Last year pickers received $1.25, $1.50 and even $1.75 a hundred in some regions. The average worker picks about 200 pounds a day, but experts pick 500 pounds or more.

"Approximately two-thirds by weight of 'seed cotton'—the cotton as it comes from the bolls—is seed, one-third line or fiber. The latter adheres tightly to the seed, growing out from all parts of it in tiny white hairs. To separate lint from seed the seed cotton must be passed through a 'gin'. The pickers have their sacks weighed when they have picked down a row and back, and dump the cotton in great, deep bedded farm wagons. When 1500 pounds or more of this has accumulated it is hauled to the gin, usually located at a near-by town.

Where Lint and Seeds Part Company

"There a movable suction pipe sucks up the still intimately mixed seed and lint to an upper floor where it falls into a hopper and starts on its journey through the whirring, humming machinery whose development made possible the great cotton industry. Numerous whirling saws tear the fiber from the seeds. The latter drop into chutes which carry them to huge gray-green piles in the seed room. The lint passes on belt conveyers in a broad endless stream to the presses where it is squeezed into bales weighing approximately 500 pounds. These bales are covered with very coarse brown jute bagging and bound with iron bands. It is in such bales or in bales still further compressed that cotton moves to American cotton mills and across the oceans to the mills of Europe and Japan.

"Until after the Civil war the value of cotton seed was not recognized. Millions of tons were burnt, thrown aside to rot, or shoveled into rivers. Now the seed from between three and four bales of cotton are worth as much as a bale of the fiber. They are passed through a super-gin to remove the short line known as 'linters.' This is valuable for dozens of uses, from making gun cotton and mattresses to surgical dressings and photographic films. The brownish-green seeds are then hulled and the kernels are pressed between camels-hair pads which hold the golden yellow meal and express the oil. Even the hulls make good cattle feed, while the meal and oil furnish bases for a growing number of valuable products.

"The United States is the world's greatest cotton producer, furnishing more than half of the total crop, usually from 10 million to 16 million bales. A single state, Texas, produces about one-third of the American crop, or about one-sixth of the world crop."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Charles S. Sargent, who celebrates his 85th birthday anniversary today, has been the director of the Arnold Arboretum in Boston, one of the most famous botanical gardens in the world, ever since its foundation more than 50 years ago. To the Arnold Arboretum, which is Harvard university's tree museum, American outdoor gardens are indebted for a large percentage of their most beautiful plants, both native and exotic in origin; to Europe, too, this institution has sent many of the finest plants cultivated there. Dr. Sargent, the director, is a native of Boston, a graduate of Harvard and a veteran of the Civil war. For many years, in addition to his connection with the Arnold Arboretum, he has served as professor of arboriculture at Harvard. Two years ago he was awarded the Loder cup by the Royal Horticultural society of England, being the first American to receive this honor.

Today's Anniversaries

1704—The Boston News Letter, the first newspaper published in America, made its appearance in Boston.

From Small Beginnings

George Taylor, the Mortgaged Laborer, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Can a man mortgage himself? George Taylor, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, practically mortgaged himself, for he sold his services for a period of time to gain his passage across the Atlantic ocean.

In the early days of the settlement of the American colonies, the present United States, there were many people in Great Britain who wished to come to this new land, but who were too poor to raise the money that was needed to pay for the long passage on the sailing vessel that should bring them. Therefore there was in vogue a system that practically amounted to mortgaging one's self. The captain of a ship, or the company which owned the ship, would give transportation if the traveler would, in turn, agree to work for a certain length of time and thus pay in labor the equivalent of the passage money. That was what George Taylor did. He was only a boy, and he had spent all the 19 or 20 years of his life working hard in his native Ireland. From time to time he heard stories of the success of those who had gone to America. So young George packed up his little bundle and set off, guaranteeing the return of the equivalent of the passage money that he was too poor to pay. That was the way one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence came to America. The Irish boy became a clerk, served well and cheerfully, and gave promise of becoming a real man. He was working for a rich man when that employer died. At that time George Taylor had such a thorough understanding of the business, was so faithful and so honest, that much of the executive work devolved upon him. He became the master. Then he fell in love with the attractive widow of his former employer, found that she appreciated him and his ability and married her—lo! he had made his fortune! With leisure and money he became an influential figure in the colony—Pennsylvania—represented the people of his neighborhood in their political bodies, and thus was sent to the Continental congress in 1776 and signed the Declaration of Independence—as any good Irishman would have done. He died in 1781 at the age of 75.

If Mothers Only Knew

Thousands of Children Suffer from Worms, and Their Mothers Do Not Know What the Trouble Is.

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth. Little red points on the tongue, scarting during sleep with troublesome dreams, slow fever.

Mrs. H. N. Roberts, 902 Asylum St., Flint, Mich., wrote: "My little girl is relieved of her worms." And in a later letter wrote: "Baby is fine and it was your

Sunday Morning Talk

THE BEYOND

The true man lives here as one who must leave tomorrow. He looks upon his body as a tenement which he holds on short lease for the convenience of his soul, and which he must keep in reasonable repair without lavishing extravagant attention upon it. He regards wealth in the same light. When we take a house on lease, there are certain fixtures we cannot remove when we pass out of it. The same is true of worldly wealth. "We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out." What we cannot move with us, is not ours. We have only the use of it for a longer or shorter time. What we carry out of this world then is our true property and in it we have an eternal right. That property may be defined as the gifts and graces of the soul, and our earthly object should be to increase its possessions that we may be rich in heavenly things. Thus the poor man on earth may be the millionaire of Heaven, and the millionaire here, an eternal pauper, with no home and where his check is worthless. Strive to lay up treasures in Heaven. You will find that God will take excellent care of them for you, and eternity will be all joy and gladness instead of sorrow.

Stories That Recall Others

What Did He Mean?

"Is it true that the policeman called you a bonehead when he stopped you last night?" asked Frank of Bill.

"No, he didn't. I would have slapped him."

"Well, what did he say?"

"Why, he said: 'You better put on your hat, I see a woodpecker coming."

Wrong Make.

This housewife is particular about using the freshest of eggs in her cooking and was driving along a road near the city when she chanced to meet a friend. Hailing him, she said, 'Mr. So and So, have you got any idea where I could get several dozen eggs for pickling purposes?"

"I sure have," replied the friend. "You go down this road and turn north and stop at the first house on the left of the road. The farmer there gets several hundred eggs a day."

"My goodness," exclaimed the woman, "he must have a hennery."

"No, he hasn't," replied the man, "he's got a Dodge."

The woman managed to smother a smile and drove ahead at the direction of the friend.

TRANSLATION OF ALEXANDER'S LETTER STARTS GOLD HUNT

LENINGRAD, April 23 (AP)—Prof Denike and Professor Massalski have discovered in the library of the late Khan of Kiva a manuscripe containing a translation from Greek into Arabic of a letter sent by the Great Macedonian Prince, Alexander the Great to one of his generals.

The letter gives a full inventory of the hero's treasury, consisting of a pile of gold bars on which are engraved treatises on medicine and morals. The government will make excavations on the spots mentioned in the letter.

OLD CLOCK REPAIRED WITH FUNDS PROVIDED BY GOLFERS

LONDON, April 23 (AP)—Claimed to be the oldest working time piece in England, the famous old clock of Rye parish church has been repaired by the generosity of golfers all over the world.

One of the finest golf courses in England is at Rye, and many Americans who have played there answered an appeal for funds to restore the old timepiece.

It was erected in 1515, the total cost of material and labor being two pounds, fifteen shillings and four pence. The pendulum, which may be seen swinging within the church, is 20 feet long. Cannon balls are used for weights.

THE MENACE THAT LURKS IN THE GAY WHITE WAY

All sunlight contains invisible rays, or waves, of light—the ultra violet and the infra red of modern science—which in excessive quantities, have a most injurious effect upon the delicate tissues of the eye. Nature intended that we live out of doors. But in startling contrast to the restful light reflected from green grass and trees is the irritating glare of artificial illumination—light which includes more of the injurious invisible rays than Nature designed. It is not possible for us all to live in the open country. But those of us who must work under disadvantageous conditions can always seek protection and relief in modern glasses, scientifically adjusted. FUNERALS

William W. Beckwith

The funeral of William W. Beckwith, formerly of this city, who died in New Haven Tuesday, was held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from his home, Willow Point, West Mystic. The service was conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London and burial took place in Yantic cemetery, this city. The burial service was in charge of Charity and Relief lodge, No. 72, F. and A. M., of which Mr. Beckwith was a member. The bearers were members of Palestine commandery, No. 6, Knights Templar, of New London. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and there were numerous and beautiful floral tributes of esteem.

William E. Brown

Funeral services for William E. Brown were held at the Union cemetery, Waterford, Friday morning at 10 o'clock and were conducted by Rev. George W. Borden, pastor of the Baptist church at Quaker Hill. Many relatives and friends were present. Undertaker C. A. Geer had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. William T. Ward

With a large attendance of relatives and friends the funeral of Mrs. William T. Ward was held Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock from her home, No. 191 West Thames street. At 9 o'clock there was a solemn requiem mass in St. Patrick's church. Rev. Myles P. Galvin was the celebrant, Rev. John J. Reilly the deacon, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. Mayo sub-deacon and Rev. The floral tributes of esteem were many and very beautiful. Among the mourners present were people from Philadelphia, Willimantic, New Haven and other cities. Undertakers Cummings and Ring had charge of the funeral arrangements.

TETREAULT HOLDS LEAD IN FORESTERS' PINOCHLE

Tetreault is still holding first position in the weekly pinochle tournament of the Foresters although Joe Callahan came out first on Friday night's play with a score 7329. Clemens took second with 7170 and Tetreault third with 7090. Mike Duggan took low with 7540 and it is now almost impossible for him to lose that coveted position. The first division standing for three nights' play is as follows:

Tetreault 20790, Clement 20290 Bourn- 19920, Callahan 18780, S Kohanski 18770, Johnson 18330, Le Doux 18329, J. Kohanski 17340.

On the second night's play in the tournament between the Eagles and the Foresters the "birds" lost because Instructor Farrell slid down the toboggan and the morale of the team could not be gathered together. Although Brother Bill and E. J. put in pinch hitters, their heavy artillery of last week was very weak. John Leitrich leaving his ammunition at home.

Dunion and Clement, the managers of the foresters' woodchoppers, have instilled into their players the spirit of encouragement and they are now going after the "birds".

CHURCHES DIVIDED ON TIME FOR SUNDAY

Churches of the city are divided as to the adoption of daylight saving time on Sunday or remaining on standard time for the day.

Churches to remain on standard time are Trinity Episcopal, First Baptist Central Baptist, St. Andrews, Christ Episcopal, Taftville Congregational and all the Catholic churches.

Churches holding services on daylight saving time will be the United Congregational, Greeneville Congregational, Universalist, Christian Science, Spiritual academy and McKinley avenue A. M. E. Zion church.

Pomfret Woman Attended

Miss Mary Bulkeley, Miss Sally Fanny Gleason, Miss Beatrice Marsh, Mrs. E. H Lorens of Hartford; Mrs. William Valentine of Pomfret; Mrs. Eva P. Schuller of Meriden and Mrs. Percy T. Walden of New Haven returned Friday from St. Louis, Mo., where they attended from April 14 to 21 the convention of the National League of Women Voters.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs. Lucius Brown motored to Boston during the week for an overnight stay.

Rev. Walter B. Denny, of Southington and Yale university, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Bishop during his weekly visits to town.

This week's meeting of the "W. W. T. E." was held with Mrs. Frank A. Sisk of Julian Terrace. The prizes went to Mrs Frank B. Disco and Mrs Thomas J. O'Rourke.

Mrs. Frank A. Robinson is entertaining her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs Elijah Bill Lewis, from Foxboro, Mass., formerly of Norwich. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis spent the winter in Utica and Deansboro, N. Y.

Mrs. Henry H. Vinner entertained the Wednesday Night club at her home on Washington street, the members having the privilege of inviting their husbands. The prize at cards was won by Mrs. Walter E. Turner.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Shields of Crescent street have returned from New York, where they spent part of the week with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Shields Jr., who are returning to town Sunday, after a honeymoon trip to New York and Philadelphia.

The publication just issued in New York and titled "The New Masses", features verses by Witter Bynner, writer and lecturer formerly of Norwich.

HENRY LAFONTAINE TRIUMPHS IN CONCERT AT SLATER HALL

Before an audience of 800 that filled Slater hall Friday evening, Henry La Fontaine, baritone, scored a triumph in his song recital, his first appearance in public since his return from study abroad last summer. Interest in the young Norwich singer drew to the concert a representative gathering of citizens from all walks of life, including local music lovers, leading citizens, clergymen, friends of his school days, and other affiliations, who united to give him a most enthusiastic greeting as he appeared for his first number and paid tribute to his musicianship as he proceeded through his programme.

Assisting on the programme was Evadna Lapham, pianist, who was accompanist for Mr. La Fontaine, and also gave her audience rare pleasure with a Chopin Scherzo and a modern group in which the Palmgren and Carpenter numbers were especially effective.

The programme was given as follows:

Per la Gloria	Bononcini
Where e'er You Walk	Handel
Lord God of Abraham (from Elijah)	Mendelssohn
Vision Fugitive (from Herodiade)	Massenet
Mr. LaFontaine
Scherzo (B flat Minor)	Chopin
Mrs. Lapham
The Lotus Flower	Schumann
Serenade	Brahms
Weyla's Song	Wolf
Omnipotence	Schubert
Mr. LaFontaine
The Eagle	MacDowell
The Sea	Palmgren
Shadow Isle	Carpenter
Diversion
Mrs. Lapham
Cargoes	Masefield-Dobson
Trees	Kilmer-Rasbach
Water-boy	Robinson
Murmuring Zephyrs	Jensen
Silence of Night	Rachmaninoff
Spring	Hildach
Mr. LaFontaine

Mr. La Fontaine's voice, now a high baritone, gives promise of becoming a rich tenor, he sang easily, with entire naturalness and without effort, making a most pleasing stage appearance by his quiet and unaffected manner. The scale of his voice is unbroken and already has the rare quality of correct placement which is the aim of every artist. That he was the protege of an artist of refinement and intelligence was evident by his conduct throughout the evening His diction in English left nothing to be desired and a spontaneous applause for his every appearance brought him back repeatedly to bow his acknowledgment and favor his audience with several encores.

In the classical group which opened the programme he showed his thorough musicianship and linguistic ability in song, the audience demanding an encore after the Massenet aria, to which he responded with a finely rendered Neapolitan love song.

The German Lieder group was handled with artistic ability, reaching a splendid climax in his rendering of the Schubert number Omnipolence. As an encore, Mr. LaFontaine gave Tosti's familiar and ever beautiful Parted.

In the modern group at the close, Mr. LaFontaine was especially happy. Masefield-Dobson's Cargoes being rendered with a fine swing that made it a favorite, and "Trees" of a widely different character, being given with equally pleasing effect. The programme closed with the appropriate number, Spring, by Hildach, but a final encore was demanded for which Mr. LaFontaine gave Woman of Mine.

Mrs. Lapham, to whom Mr. LaFontaine presented a beautiful bouquet of pink roses after her first number, was called on for two encore numbers, giving Berceuse for the first and a birthday melody for the second, the latter being still in manuscript, the composition of a friend of hers who is dean of fine arts in the University of Texas.

The concert was under the auspices of the Norwich Rotary club and for the benefit of the John Blackmar fund.

The stage was most attractively decorated with palms, ferns, and flowering plants by Otto F. Ernst. The concert committee comprised Dr Hugh B. Campbell, Larue Bliven and Clarence A Spear.

INSPIRING ADDRESS AT CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR RALLY

Members of Christian Endeavor unions in the Norwich district to the number of 175 gathered at the Central Baptist church building Friday evening for their annual spring rally. The rally opened at 6:30 o'clock in Bushnell chapel where a delicious supper was served, the menu being as follows:

Fruit Cocktail
Meat Pie Mashed Potatoes
Egg Salad Sweet Pickles
Rolls Coffee Ice Cream
Fancy Cakes
Salted Peanuts

Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, said grace and Rev Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, was the song leader. During the supper a splendid concert was given by the Sunday school orchestra of the Central Baptist church, comprising Joseph Adams, Ralph Marsh Edward Smith, Mildred Cass and Benjamin Palmer. The tables were prettily decorated in pink and white and there were dainty favors at each cover.

Following the supper the young people assembled in the chapel where a programme was given. Miss Gertrude Ladd acting as chairman. The programme opened with a song, Rev. Dr Dunbar leading. Prayer was offered by Miss Mazie Stamm and Miss Hattie Fowler entertained with a solo. Miss Ladd read the scripture after which Rev. E. E Sundt, Baptist pastor at South Willington gave an address on Friendship and Character.

During the course of his address Mr. Sundt said: Let a real friend get into your life and it transforms you. There is a tremendous power in friendship. It is the most precious thing you possess. When you have the power of making friends keep your friends. You cannot afford to love your friends. If you know of friendships that are true and pure you owe it to God to see that anything interfers with or mars those friendships.

The second most important thing in life is character. I don't know of anything that is worth more in life than a spotless character. The difference between Nero and Paul was character. Let your life ring true and there will be an echo come back to you.

Rev. Mr. Sundt was given a rising vote of thanks for his inspiring talk after which the meeting came to a close.

Represented in the gathering were members of the following unions: Hanover, Versailles, Lebanon Congregational, Norwich Town M. E., Norwich Town Congregational, Third Baptist, First Baptist, Bozrah Congregational, Griswold Congregational, Preston City Baptist, Preston City Congregational, Taftville Congregational, Scotland Road and the Central Baptist union.

The committee in charge of the supper comprised Mrs. Henrietta Tefft, chairman, Mrs. Jennie Davis, Miss Nellie Rathbun, Mrs. Willis Hill, Mrs. Herbert Rogers, Mrs. Adelbert Maynard and Mrs. William Covey.

Decorations, Misses Amy March, Susie Hargraves, Gladys Lambert, Mrs. Lambert and Miss Helen Hastings.

Those who gave their services as waitresses were Miss Eugenia Dean, Mrs. Helen Durnan, Miss Ruby Vaughn, Miss Beatrice Smith, Miss Ruth Whiting Miss Harriet Williams, Mrs. Marjory Peck, Miss Blanche Peterson, Miss Sarah Scheller, Miss Elsie Scheller, Miss Edna Phillips, Miss Claire Bennett and Miss Belle Rathbone, the latter being in charge of the waitresses, The song sheets used at the rally were loaned by the Y. M. C. A.

State Music Teachers

The Music Teachers' association of Connecticut held its annual meeting Friday at 10 o'clock in the Center Church House, Hartford. A musical program was given after the business meeting, and Professor Hamilton C. MacDougall of Wellesley college lectured on "Modern Music—Good and Bad" which he illustrated at the piano.

Scotland Candidates

Several from Scotland grange are planning to attend the Pomona meeting to be held in Brooklyn this (Saturday) evening. There will be eight candidates for the Pomona degree from the Scotland grange.

LOCAL RELATIVES BEARERS AT FUNERAL OF NUN

Members of the Donohue, Driscoll and other families of Norwich, with friends from various eastern Connecticut towns, were in West Hartford to attend the funeral of Sister M. Paulinus, 59, formerly stationed at the convents of St. Patrick's and St. Mary's parishes, Norwich. The bearers were Dr. James J. Donohue, Francis D. Donohue and Joseph P. Boylan of Norwich, Thomas Hanley of Dayville, John Carney of Pomfret and Patrick Reilly, of Danielson.

Sister Paulinus was Miss Catherine Lannan of Dayville, only daughter of Michael and Bessie Lannan. Her mother was grand aunt of Dr. Donohue and F. D. Donohue. For 39 years she had been a nun, a most efficient teacher in parish schools, until her health began to fail. Then she left Greeneville for St. Mary's Home for the Aged, at West Hartford, where she continued her zealous work until the very last. It was said of her that no other teacher had done more to influence the lives of her pupils and to inspire them to higher ideals of usefulness and citizenship; and many of them who gathered for her funeral services bore testimony to the valued stimulus she had given them in choosing a career. A number of her former pupils are now laboring as priests or missionaries while others are making good out in the world in various pursuits. Her work for the needy and afflicted while she was in Norwich was remarkable in its range and efficacy.

The celebrant of the solemn mass or requiem at her funeral in the chapel at St. Mary's home was her relative Rev Walter McCrann. Six other priests assisted in the services.

Sister M Paulinus leaves a brother, John Lannan of Dayville two other brothers, Thomas and James and her parents having preceded her in death

MOOSE ELECT FOR INSTALLATION ON MAY 2ND

Officers as follows were elected at the meeting of Norwich lodge, No. 950, Loyal Order of Moose, on Friday night at the Moose home and will be installed Sunday, May 2: Dictator, Bernard Wunderlich; vice dictator, Joseph B Keoughan; prelate, Joseph Kirchner; secretary, George J. Goepfert; treasurer, C. O Wright; trustee (three years) R. A. Krohn; representative to the supreme convention, R. A. Krohn; alternate G. J. Goepfert.

The committee on the installation and banquet for May 3 reported that a special programme has been arranged with a turkey dinner with all the fixin's. Reservations at the banquet will be made only for those who reply to the post card notices, which they are expected to do at once.

Much credit is due the retiring officers and committees of the past year, under the able leadership of Dictator Rudolph Krohn. The year closes with a fine balance in the treasury, a large increase has been made in the membership and important repairs have been made on the Moose home.

Captain Swinburne has his degree team in training and a fine showing is expected when it does its work.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN BED AT HIS HOME

Lloyd Green Baton, 28, was found dead in bed early Friday morning at his home, No. 475 Main street. He died sometime during the night, the body being discovered by his wife. Mr. Baton was born in Norwich, October 2, 1898 and was the son of Eugene F. and Mary Baton. He attended the local schools and in 1915 was united in marriage with Miss Florence Ladd of this city. He was employed as a truck driver. Mr. Baton was a member of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church.

Surviving are his wife, his parents, two sons, Lloyd and Alfred Baton and one brother, Frederick Baton, all of this city. Medical Examiner C. C. Glidersleeve conducted an examination of the body.

Mr. Baton was well known and universally liked by his friends. He was a loving husband and father and his sudden removal from earthly life is deeply regretted by all who knew him.

Many a brave man has lost his nerve in a dentist's chair.

$1,704 CONTRIBUTED FOR STAFFORDVILLE CHURCH

At the Staffordville Federated church, where Rev. W. D. Woodward, formerly of Gales Ferry, is pastor, the sum of $1,704 has recently been contributed during the past 15 months towards repairing and improving the church and parsonage. The contributions came from 240 persons in 27 different localities.

Besides the $1,704 paid in as mentioned above, there is a little more pledged, and a few minor repairs on the property remain yet to be done.

FORMER GREENEVILLE SISTER A NUN FOR FIFTY YEARS

Mother Mary Michael (Elizabeth Meade) of the Sisters of Mercy observed the golden jubilee of her profession Saturday the 17th. Mother Michael is a native of Ireland, but came to the United States at an early age and feeling a call to the religious life eventually entered St. Joseph's convent, Hartford, February 2, 1874. After a novitiate of two years she was professed by Bishop Galberry April 13, 1876, and immediately entered on a long and fruitful career in the education of the youth of the state. In addition to her teaching duties she has served as bursar of the community, 1900-1903, bursar of Hamilton Heights and local superior at St. Mary's convent, Norwich; St. Patrick's, New Haven; St. Mary's, Bridgeport and St. Edward's, Stafford Springs. Her later years have been passed at St. Mary's home for the aged, at West Hartford and many friends assembled there on Saturday to congratulate the venerable jubilarian. In recognition of the anniversary Bishop Nilan celebrated mass in St. Joseph's convent chapel, Saturday morning.

NORWICH STATION PROVIDES TWO EXCELLENT PROGRAMMES

The Thursday and Friday night programmes of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce station from the studio at The Hanover-Curtland store sustained the fine impression made on previous evenings.

The Thursday night programme was rendered by Alfred Smith's Mohegan orchestra composed of George Farrell, piano; Edward Heinrich, violin; Robert Zuccardy, trumpet; Adolph Heinrich, clarinet and Alfred H. Smith, drums. George Farrell directed. J. Warren Kane sang several solos accompanied on the piano by Pete Ethier. Herbert A. Wheeler, the recent winner of second prize in the fiddlers' contest at the Palace theatre, rendered several old time violin selections with Pete Ethier assisting at the piano.

Friday night's program, beginning at 8 p. m. was a wonderfully fine recital by Miss Gertrude Bonime, New York concert player and Frank Drago, violinist of Norwich and Hartford, accompanied by Mrs. A. H. Manes on the piano.

So many requests were received to hear Miss Bonime that the radio management was glad to have her play again.

COMBS OF YANKEES WAS SLATED FOR SCHOOL ROOM

RICHMOND, Ky., April 23—(AP)—Earl Combs, speedy New York American league player who Manager Huggins of the Yankees once called "the greatest outfielder that has broken into the American League since Cobb and Speaker made their debuts," is a modest ball-player

Combs, talking reluctantly on the eve of his recent departure for the 1926 campaign, gave the impression that there are at least 50 outfielders in big leagues who are better men and gave so much praise to his manager and fellow players that his interviewer could hardly get him back on the subject of Combs.

He confessed to only ambition—that of batting .350 in 1926. Since he batted .343 last season with the handicap of a slowly mending ankle, which he had broken sliding into the plate late in the 1924 season, there seems to be little chance of disappointment.

Joe McCarthy, who has taken over the reins of the Chicago Cubs, is responsible for developing Combs and incidentally spoiling a good school teacher for Kentucky. In polishing off Combs to attract the eyes of big league buyers, McCarthy made possible one of the most pretentious minor league players in the country.

Earl was all set to teach the youngsters of the bluegrass reading and its kindred arts in a little country school when he was spied by a scout from the Louisville club or the American association.

Here's the way it happened in Combs' own words:

"When I went to Louisville, I was greener than the rawest recruit from the bushes.

"In my first game a line drive was chance to atone for the rotten play came when a single was poled over first. I went in to take it on the bounce and sat down on the ball. The runner reached third.

"I felt like quitting and if McCarthy had bawled me out, Kentucky would have had another good school teacher but all Mac said was 'don't mind that, boy,' and the fellows on the bench insisted it was tough luck."

Combs, however, continued to travel a thorney road. Louisville fans began to "ride" him for his awkwardness and McCarthy, recognizing his sensitiveness, kept him out of the home games and used him on the road. In the meantime, Combs practiced for hours each morning. As the season neared its close, he was placed in the regular lineup and made good without any trouble. A natural hitter, he had acquired confidence and ability to handle himself gracefully.

Then he was given his big chance. He was sold to the Yankees for a substantial sum which was later used as the basis for building Parkway Field at Louisville.

MINER FARM, FITCHVILLE, NOW "SPRUCE LODGE"

The Judson Miner estate on the lake shore front in Fitchville, the sightliest spot for miles around, was purchased last November by Jacob Nacelson and sons, of New York. They have developed the 100-acre property beyond the dreams of any inhabitant of the village.

The original homestead has been renovated, hard wood floors laid, an electric light system installed and steam heat added.

Near the homestead has been built a hotel 80x80 with a separate kitchen as an ell to that building.

The ground floor of the hotel has a large dining hall 55x33 and a wide lounging hall 24x33. Up-stairs there are 18 sleeping rooms each fitted with hot and cold water and some with private baths.

Near the hotel are two eight-room bungalows built barrack style, each room having four windows, hot and cold water, a private porch and connection with shower baths in the rear.

A social hall has been built near the entrance 36x60 with a stage and dressing rooms.

An ice house already filled with 100 tons of ice is near the water's edge. That building is 18x22.

The mushroom growth of the place has been a marvel to the natives as the contractors have only been working since December 1st, yet all the workmanship is first class. The buildings are clapboarded and the roofs are covered with asbestos shingles.

A reservoir is being built to hold 15,000 gallons of water as the springs on the hill are capable of producing that amount a day. This is being piped to the different buildings.

Cement walks will connect the hotel, bungalows and shore as the bathing facilities are ideal.

A boat house is to be erected, also an automobile shed.

Tenis courts are laid out and a hand ball court built.

There is so much room that a baseball field has been staked out and all known sports can be provided.

The Nadlesons have achieved one of the most attractive and sanitary lodges in this section.

Colchester contractors have been erecting the buildings and Robert Cochrane of Norwich has been installing the plumbing.

A more beautiful spot for such a project could not be found, with always tranquil lake and peaceful village across the water to gaze upon in one direction and nothing but trees and nature looking her loveliest in the other. Spruce lodge is rightly named and her sponsors have created a beauty spot unsurpassed in eastern Connecticut.

RIVERVIEW CLUB OPENS 1926 SEASON TODAY AGAINST FAST TAFTVILLE A. A.

TODAY'S LINEUPS

RIVERVIEW	TAFTVILLE A. A.
Normandin, ss	lb, Cardie
Hart, rf	3b, Krauss.
Hamil, lb	2b, Jarvis
Mills, lf	ss, Gauthier
Liberty, 3b	cf, Lucier
Burns, 2b	rf, Dona
Moore, cf	c, Eccleston
Belair, c	p, Dugas
West, p	p, Lamon
Gibbons, p	lf, Gaudette

The Riverview baseball club ushers in the 1926 season this afternoon at the Norwich State Hospital diamond when the Taftville A. A. will be the opponents of the Riverview club. This will also mark the opening of the season for the Taftville boys.

The Riverview club presents one of the strongest lineups seen at the institution in a number of years especially in the pitching department. This year Tony West is in the best condition and with his speed and breaks should have a good season. Then for added strength the hospital has Gibbons, formerly with the Sub Base, who is a right hander with an assortment of good curves and plenty of speed. In the practice game Thursday Gibbons looked fully as good as West. With this pitching talent and Joe Belair behind the bat the Riverview club is well equipped for battery work.

Hamil will play the first base position in today's game with Burns at second, Normandin at short and Nap Liberty at third. In the outfield will be Harry Mills, Dinty Moore and Hart.

The Taftville club will put practically the same team in the field that went through the 1925 season with such marked success (except will play third instead of Yerington who is now playing with the Academy team. Leo Jarvis will be at second while the remainder of the team will be the same as last year.

The Riverview club has secured the services of Joe Cranker of New London and Jack Kearns of Willimantic as officials as umpires, Cranker taking the balls and strikes and Kearns watching the bases.

There will be bus service to the game and busses will run to the Hospital frequently between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock and will wait on the field until the game is over so it is expected that there will be large crowds at the games this season under this arrangement.

AGGIE TRACK SQUAD AT WESLEYAN TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, April 23.—A track team of thirty-five men will carry the Connecticut Aggie colors to Middletown tomorrow afternoon, when the Aggies and Wesleyan engage in the first dual meet ever held between the two institutions, and what will be the first meet of the season for both teams.

The Connecticut team, which is being coached by the veteran "Steve" Daly from Hartford, is with the exception of seven lettermen, mostly green and inexperienced material.

As the situation shapes up now, the Aggies will be their strongest in the runs, and also the weight events. In these there are several experienced men available for competition, and it is on these men that Coach Daly is counting heavily.

Starting in the 100 and 220 yard dashes for the Aggies tomorrow will be Captain Lewis J. Quigley '26, of Bridgeport; Salvatore E. Listro '27, of Hartford; Ellery E. Atwood '27, of Thomaston; and Edward K. Kane '26, of Deep River.

Daly's selections for the quarter mile are James Gallant '27 of Worcester, Mass.; Cecil C. Smith '27, of Middletown ;C. D. Anderson '27 of Lynn, Mass.; and Verna O. MacDonald '28 of West Hartford. These same men will run the half mile, and in addition to these will be Randall Rutherford '27, of Wethersfield, and John Flenneman '27, of Farmington.

"Pat" Mulligan '27' of Revere, Mass. is the Aggies' hope in the middle distances. He will enter both the mile and two-mile runs. Other starters include: Edward Lundberg '28, of Cos Cob; Clifford Mell '28, of Norwich; John Hooper '28, of Revere, Mass.; and Gallant and Smith. These same men will be entered in the two mile run.

Coach Daly's starters in the low hurdles are William Rowe '28, of Hartford, Sidney Fine '28, of New York city, F. R. Williams 28, of Willimantic and Listro. In the high hurdles, Daly will enter Leland Evans '26 of Hartford, and Williams.

In the hammer throw, the Aggies will be represented by Peter J Hohn '26 of New York City; Paul E. Bitgood '26 of Danielson; and Sam Dorrance '26 of Plainfield. The shot put will be taken care of by Antonio Longo '26, of Danielson; Arthur V Williams '28, of Danielson; and Lester Flenneman '26, of New Britain Hohn Flenneman, Lundberg and Raymond E Tenerowicz '26, of Rockfall, will throw the discus.

The javelin throw will be taken care of by Nelson Hoadley '27, of New Haven; Arthur W. Bergren '28 of East Hartford; John R. Kuhl '26 of Mansfield; and Lundberg.

Daly's entries in the broad jump include Carl B. Brink '26 of New Britain, captain of the football team last fall; Bitgood, Atwood, and Evans. In the high jump, Daly will enter Alan Farwell '28 of Danbury; Claude Gillette '28, of Colchester; and Evans. The pole vault will be taken care of by Foster Flenneman of New Britain, and Fine.

FIELD EVENTS IN DRAKE RELAY CARNIVAL POSTPONED

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 23.—(AP)—A downpour of rain drove spectators to cover, soaked contestants, and nearly wrecked todays program of the Drake relay carnival.

The track quickly became a sheet of water, and the field so soggy that it was impossible with two exceptions to hold the major university and college events. All field events were postponed until the finals tomorrow, along with the preliminaries in the 120-yard high hurdles and the 440-yard relay races.

The finals brings together a record-breaking list of nearly 3,000 athletes from 101 universities, colleges and high schools, and the appearance of Charley Hoff, black haired Norwegian, who will attempt to shatter his outdoor record in the pole vault of 13 feet 11 13-16 inches.

With a driving rain beating in their faces, the entrants in the 100 yard dash raced through their trial heats today with Roland Locke, of the University of Nebraska, regarded as the fastest inter-collegiate sprinter in America, making the best time. He splashed to victory in his preliminary heat in ten seconds flat.

Mitchell K. O's Reddick

HALIFAX, N. S., April 23.—(AP)—Jackie Reddick, Toronto, claimant of the light heavyweight championship of Canada, was knocked out in the third round of his scheduled ten round bout with Roy Mitchell, Halifax negro, tonight.

ERRORS PROVE COSTLY TO DETROIT CLUB

CLEVELAND, April 23.—(AP)—Detroit's errors were costly and Cleveland made it two straight, winning today 5 to 3, although outbatted. It was Uhle's second victory over the Tigers, and while he was hit rather hard he was steady with men on the bases.

Spurgeon twice cut off runs with sensational catches. He went hitless the first time this season.

HOMERS BY RUTH AND KOENIG HELP YANKS WIN

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP)—Home runs by Ruth and Koenig enabled the Yankees to defeat Boston today, 3 to 1. Koenig hit the first ball pitched in the opening inning for the route while Ruth punched his second of the season in the stands in the seventh. It was Ruth's 311th homer in his 12 years as a major leaguer. Pennock pitched well throughout chalking up his second triumph of the season.

SENATORS GET EARLY LEAD OVER ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—(AP)—Washington took the third game of the series with the Athletics today, 9 to 5. The champions were in a hitting mood and walloped Grove and Pate for eight runs in the first four innings, accumulating too many for the locals to overcome. The Athletics hit Johnson and included six hits for extra bases in their total of 11, but in the pinches, Johnson was supreme.

Joe Hauser hit his first home run since the season of 1924 in the fifth inning. No one was on base at the time. The score:

Rosedales vs. Warriors

The Warriors and Greeneville Rosedales will play Sunday afternoon at the Greeneville playgrounds, North Main street, in what should be a fast and interesting contest.

The Warriors will use the following in an attempt to defeat the Greeneville boys: Gil Kampf, Leo Hamil, E. Hamil, Jab Burns, Bill Burns, E Healy, Winkee, Tombari, Fitzgerald, Ellie Segal Couture, Chubby Gibbs and Tommy Winters.

The probable lineup for the Rosedales follows: c, Goldblatt, p. Tennant and Mullins; 1b, Burke; 2b, Nevins, 3b, Carroll; ss, Cimikoski, lf, Sadinsky, cf, Capt McGowan; rf, Downes Many former and present N. F. A. players are included in the lineup and this team should give a good account of itself.

A large crowd is expected to be on hand when the game starts at 3:00 p. m. sharp.

St. Mary Team Wins

At the Greeneville playgrounds diamond Friday evening the St. Mary's school team defeated Greeneville school by a score of 10 to 9. The game was fast and close.

CENTENNIALS VS. JEWETT CITY AT ASHLAND PARK SUNDAY

This Sunday at Ashland Park the All Stars will clash with the fast Centennials from Norwich.

This game promises to be a hummer as both lineups include some of the best young baseball talent in Eastern Connecticut.

The Centennials will probably use either Mike Morin or Shea on the mound and Mingo behind the plate. For the All Stars, Stanley will toss them over and Parkhurst will catch.

The remainder of the lineup includes: Kaduda 1b; Derda 2b; Sawricki ss, G. Jarvis 3b; Tapor lf; Zawistowski cf; Orgeo rf; Golish, utility.

The Centennials will line up as follows: Vitliano or Mingo c, Shea or Morin p, Murphy 1b, Keenan 2b, Marko 3b, Cardle or Tombari ss, Jackson lf, Connell cf, Labensky rf.

DRESS PARADE WINS HAVRE DE GRACE FEATURE

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP)—Dress Parade of the Glen Riddle farm captured Havre De Grace's feature race today, the Kentmere purse over six furlongs. Centrifugal was second four lengths behind, and traffic third. The time was 1:13 3-5.

The Albermarle purse at Havre De Grace went to Dust Up, the mile and seventy yards being covered in 1:45 4-5. Devonshire beat Pixola for the place.

Columbus' best offering was the Grove city purse at a mile and seventy yards with Gunny Sack the winner, followed by Six Pence and Brunneth. The time was 1:55.

AGGIES TAKE MEASURE OF TUFTS IN FIRST HOME GAME OF SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, April 23.—The 1925 Connecticut Aggie ball team, which had been rated on paper as the weakest Aggie nine in years, surprised even its most optimistic followers here this afternoon by pinning a 5-3 defeat on Tufts, the team which yesterday defeated Yale at New Haven 7-4, and earlier in the week gave the strong New York university team its first setback of the season.

William Makofski on the mound for the Aggies was well nigh invincible to the batters, yielding but five hits throughout the game. He was a bit unsteady at first, and the Bay Staters made all their safe blows in the first three innings.

After that however, Makofski was master of the situation at all times, and as the game progressed he mowed down the Tuft's batsmen with monotonous regularity. His team mates supported him well, and from the fifth inning on, the Tuft's team was retired in 1-2-3 order, but fifteen men facing Makofski in the last five innings.

It was more or less of a makeshift team that took the field against Tufts, and few conceded the Aggies had a chance to win. There was Howard Kennedy, sub outfielder on the frosh nine last year, playing first base. Allard, a man of no previous varsity experience starting at second base, Williams playing his second varsity game at catch, and several other "green" men in the lineup. For all that, however, the "green" men came through and won the game, and Storrs is celebrating tonight.

Tufts scored first, and in the second inning, when Makofski was nicked for a couple of hits. Brothers led off with a clean bingle over second. He advanced to second as Kelley fanned and went home on Strathdees screeching single that Schofield missed by inches. Two outs in order ended Tuft's scoring activities.

Connecticut bunched hits in their half of the frame, touching Smith for four safe blows, and shoving four runs across to take the lead. The Aggies batted around in this inning.

Horne led off with a clean single across second. Gilbert fanned, but Allard hit safely, sending Horne to second. Williams struck out. Then with two away, the fun began. Kennedy walked, loading the bases. Ahern singled, scoring Horne and Allard. On the throw home, Ahern advanced to second, and Kennedy went to third. Schofield lifted a high fly to short center field, where the ball fell safely while the Tufts shortstop, second and center fielder debated as to who should field the ball. Both Kennedy and Ahern scored meanwhile. The bases were filled once more as Makofski walked, but Eddy flied out, ending the inning.

Things looked bad for the Aggies in the third inning as Tufts went to bat determined to take the lead. Makofski found himself in the hole right away, with the bases loaded, and no outs. A couple of hits, and an Aggie error, enabled the Bay Staters to push two runs across in this frame.

Liston singled and took second on Makofski's wild pitch. Fulton was walked. Kennedy's fly fell safely in short right field, and the bases were loaded with no outs. Makofski then braced, and fanned Bagley. Liston then scored on a passed ball. Fulton then scored on Brother's sacrifice fly to Eddy. The side was retired when Kelley struck out.

Both teams played airtight ball throughout the remainder of the game, making it one of the best contests seen here in several years. But one more run was scored during the game, and that was in the seventh inning.

Makofski lined out a beautiful drive to right field that was good for three bases. Eddy hit safely to center field scoring Makofski. The side was then retired without further scoring.

GARCIA TO MEET KAPLAN IN TITLE FIGHT JUNE 1ST.

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP)—Bobby Garcia, Camp Holabird, Md., doughboy, will meet Louis (Kid) Kaplan featherweight titleholder, in a 15 round championship match at the Queensboro stadium in Long Island City, June 1, the state athletic commission ruled today. Garcia was accepted as the outstanding featherweight challenger following the withdrawal of Johnny Dundee, former champion, because of an injured ankle.

In accepting Garcia, the board refused the claim of Red Chapman Boston featherweight, who filed a petition for recognition as the logical challenger Tuesday. Chapman, however, will stand next in line, the board decreed.

Tommy Burns, Detroit light heavyweight, was accepted as a suitable opponent for Jack Delaney for a 15 round match at Ebbets field, May 26 as a semi-final contest to the Tod Morgan-Steve (Kid) Sullivan junior lightweight championship match Chairman Pliess of the Detroit boxing commission passed on Burns' capabilities as an opponent for Delaney upon request of the New York board.

The commission notified Tiger Flowers, middleweight champion, that he must meet Harry Greb in a title match before facing Mickey Walker welterweight titleholder, in a proposed bout in New Jersey.

Chick Suggs, New Bedford negro bantamweight, and his manager David Lumiansky, were suspended indefinitely for failure to appear at the commission in answer to a summons for a minor complaint.

ST. JOE'S SCOUTS LOSE TO BROADWAY TEAM

The St. Joseph Boy Scouts lost their first baseball game of the season to the fast Broadway grammar school club Friday afternoon by a close score of 6 to 4. The game was a real pitchers' battle between Lambert for Broadway, and Jankowski for the Saints. Neither team was certain of victory until the final inning when Krzywicki misjudged a fly ball and two runs scored for Broadway. The lineups:

Saints—Stercewicz, 1b; Simimkowski and Paulowski, cf; Krzywicki, 2b; Wojciechowski, c; Kuskowski, 3b; Kaminski, lf; Boduria, ss; Gwiazdowski, rf.

Broadway—Fresselo, rf; Lambert, rf and p; Flaherty, 1b; Bruchner, cf; Busch, c; Datri, p; Pitt and Morrell, lf; Lynch, 2b; McFarland, 3b; Ruffo, ss.

ACADEMY TEAM CLASHES WITH WINDHAM TODAY

The Academy will encounter its fourth high school baseball club this afternoon at the Academy campus when the fast Windham high team will be entertained. Windham is not expected to be any set-up for the local boys as the Windham team held Plainfield to a tie score last Saturday and the Academy beat the Plainfield team by a 5 to 4 score.

Coach Brigham is planning to send Lloyd Jarvis to the mound for the Academy with Mace Goldblatt doing the receiving. The remainder of the lineup will be: Burke 1b, Cimikoski 2b, Tombari ss, Terrington 3b, Sadinsky, lf, Greene cf, Brewer, Marks or Hamil rf.

Friday saw the Academy squad putting in stiff practice session and rectifying the mistakes that were shown up in the practice game with the Riverview club on Thursday. The game is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

JUNIOR BRANCH O. D. H. S. TEAM IS ROUNDING INTO FORM

The Junior O. D. H. S. team is fast rounding into form and several candidates are out for practically every position on the team. There is keen rivalry for the berths and on Sunday the squad will be cut and the most promising material will be kept. Practice will be held again Sunday at

Look Pleasant

We cannot of course all be handsome
And we know it is hard to be good;
We are sure sometimes to be lonely
And we don't always do as we should.
To be patient is not always easy
To be cheerful is much harder still
But at least we can all look pleasant
If we make up our minds that we will.

It pays any time to speak kindly
Although you are nervous and blue.
As you smile at the world and look cheerful
The world will smile back at you.
So try to bear up and look pleasant.
No matter how low you are down.
Bright smiles are always contagious
But you banish your friends when you frown.

The Last Hymn

The Sabbath day was ending in a village by the sea,
The uttered benediction touched the people tenderly,
And they rose to face the sunset in the glowing, lighted west,
And then hastened to their dwellings for God's blessed boon of rest.

But they looked across the waters, and a storm was raging there:
A fleecy spirit moved above them—the wild spirit of the air—
And it flashed and shook and tore them till they thundered, groaned and boomed,
And alas! for any vessel in their yawning gulfs entombed.

...ry anxious were the people on that rocky coast of Wales,
Lest the dawn of coming morrow should cast upon the shore,
...lits of wreck and swollen victims, as it had done heretofore.

...ith the rough winds blowing round her a brave woman strained her eyes
...ong the billows a large ... fell and rose;
...I did not need a prophet to tell ... the end must be.
For no ship could ride in safety near that shore on such a sea.

...n the pitying people hurried from their homes and thronged the ...ches,
O! for power to cross the waters and the perishing to reach!
Helpless hands were wrung in sorrow, tender hearts grew cold with dread,
As the ship, urged by the tempest, to the fatal rock-shore sped.

...e has parted in the middle! O, the half of her goes down!
...od have mercy! is heaven far to seek for those who drown?
Lo! when next the white, shocked faces looked with terror on the ...
...one last clinging figure on the spar was seen to be.

...ourse to the trembling watchers came the wreck tossed by the ...ave
And the man still clung and floated, though no power on earth could save.

"Would we send him a short message? Here's a trumpet, shout away!"
Was the preacher's hand that took it, and he wondered what to say.

...memory of his sermon—firstly, secondly? Ah, no!
...was but one thing to utter in that awful hour of woe.
...he shouted through the trumpet, "Look to Jesus! Can you hear?"
And "Aye, aye, sir!" rang the answer over the water loud and clear.

...now listened, he's singing, Jesus lover of my soul,
...the wind brought back the echo while the nearer waters roll,
...weaker indeed it was to hear him ... the storm of life is past
...ging bravely from the waters, "Oh, receive my soul at last."

...e cannot have no other refuge, hangs ...r helpless soul on Thee.
...Leave me not, the singer dropped at last into the sea.
...watchers looking homeward ... eyes with tears were dim
...ed be passed to be with Jesus in the kingdom of that hymn."

DO THEY THINK OF ME AT HOME.

...they think of me at home,
...they think of me,
...when heard their every grief,
...entangled in their glee?
...their hearts groan cold and strange
...now doomed to roam?
...would give the world to know,
Do they think of me at home?
I would give the world to know,
Do they think of me at home?"

Do they think of me at eve,
Of the songs I used to sing?
Is the lark, I struck un-wished,
Does a stranger wake the string?
Will no kind forgiving word
Come across the raging foam?
Shall I never cease to sigh,
Do they think of me at home
Shall I never cease to sigh
Do they think of me at home?

Do they think of how I loved
For my happy early days
Do they think of him who came
But could never win their praise?
I am happy by his side
And from mine he'll never roam;
But my heart will sadly ask
"Do they think of me at home?
But my heart will sadly ask,
"Do they think of me at home?"

He Has Gone the Last Mile of the Way

To our Faithful Countryman Col. John C. Coolidge

He has walked
In the pathway of duty
He has toiled on
To the close of the day
For "Peace of Peace" he shall meet
In His beauty
He has gone the
Last mile of the way.

For his country
He has faithfully striven
To bring peace and
Good will to this day.
Now his soul has Come back to his Maker.
He has gone the
Last mile of the way.
Now he rests at
The close of the day
There's a glorious reward
That awaits him
He has gone the last
Mile of the way.

The Baby's Shoe

...n the garret I found today
...carefully laid in a box away,

Tied with a ribbon of faded blue
A tiny worn little baby shoe,
Worn in holes at the turned up toe
Where the little foot rubbed to and fro
Worn on the sole, grown brown with age
Of the shade time leaves on a vellum page

Creased into many a tiny fold
By the dimpled foot that it used to hold
Creased and shabby, but O, how dear
Is this shoe that my darling used to wear!
The days that I thought were passed and gone
Come dearly back to me, one by one,
As memory wakens, strong and true.
At the magic touch of the baby's shoe.

I hear again, as I used to hear,
The baby laughter, sweet and clear,
And the chubby hands, so soft and weak,
Steal gently up to caress my cheek.
And the dewy lips to my own are pressed,
And the dear head nestles against my breast;
And I hold him close, with a throb of joy—
My precious, beautiful baby boy!

But, alas! I am dreaming of days and years
That time has blotted with bitter tears:
And I wake with a sob and a weary start
With empty arms and a weary heart
And the little shoe I laid away
With the sweet, sweet love of a long passed day.
And I kiss the ribbon of faded blue
That so long hath guarded the baby shoe.

A Crow

Sometimes I think I'd rather crow
And be a rooster, than to roost
And be a crow, but I dunno.

A rooster, he can roost also,
Which don't seem fair when crows can't crow,
Which may help some, still, I dunno.

Crows should be glad of one thing, though:
Nobody thinks of eating crow,
While roosters, they are good enough
For anyone, unless they're tough.

There's lots of tough old roosters, though,
And, anyway, a crow can't crow,
So mebbe roosters stand more show
It looks that way, but I dunno.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

April 28—Club No. 3 meets in Baptist church chapel, Lebanon.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

NANCY PECK: Your name has been added to the Social Corner.

PHOEBE ANN: Your name has been listed as a Corner member.

HOOT OWL: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

POEM WANTED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As my first attempt missed the wastebasket I am encouraged to try again.

If there are any Social Corner pins left I would be pleased to receive one.

Rebecca: I hope your meeting Tuesday was a success in every way.

Cosmos: I suppose you were there? You see I know who you and Rebecca are. It's your turn to guess now.

May I offer a few hints which I have found useful?

If the tape in lingerie should slip into the casing, use a crochet hook to draw it out. I know, from personal experience, this is a saving of both time and temper.

If, when stitching on the sewing machine, you accidentally get a drop of oil on your work, try this: Place the spot between two pieces of blotting paper and press with a hot iron. Have tested this and know it works.

When patching with plaster of Paris, try mixing it with vinegar instead of water. It will be 10 or 15 minutes before it sets, thus giving you time to get it in place and thoroughly smooth.

May a newcomer ask a favor? I am anxious to obtain a poem entitled, How the Church was Built at Kehoes Bar. I heard it recited at a graduation exercise and liked it very much. If any sister has it will she please send it in for publication the Social Corner?

Sterling off at precisely bed time, eastern standard time.

WELL IMPRESSED WITH CORNER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: On April 20th I journeyed to North Stonington with E. L. M. where we were soon joined by about 45 other sisters for the second meeting of the Shore Line club.

The weather was beautiful, though chilly, and we surely had a very happy day and a wonderful dinner, furnished by all of the sisters.

There were many visitors from other clubs and we had the opportunity to meet many new sisters whose letters we have enjoyed so much.

I heard so many of the new members say that the Social Corner is so much nicer than they thought it would be, and I think we all feel that way.

Black Eyed Susie: Was so sorry I didn't notice that your birthday was yesterday, so that we might have celebrated.

Interested Reader: Was so glad you could come and bring some of your good "eats." Home you are not too tired today.

Crimson Rambler: Was so glad to meet you for I have heard so much about you.

Dorothy Bradford: Have thought of you many times today. You see we were quite to expect something pretty nice from you for that is just what we received.

SKIPPER. (Club 6.)

USING HARD LEMONS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Was pleased to see so many people at the Shore Line club especially those from Willimantic and Norwich.

Was sorry Rebecca could not go and want to thank those who in any way helped, especially Skinner. Was sorry it was too cool to go upstairs as we missed the music and singing.

I wonder if anyone who has had a lemon that seemed too old to use ever tried putting it in boiling water for about three minutes, as I found out you could peel it like an orange and get more juice.

Too bad Effie M. was not here as we had lots of beans.

COSMOS.

DELIGHTFUL DAY AT NORTH STONINGTON

Dear Social Sisters: Have been thinking of your new Corner club all the morning and what a wonderful time we did have. Social was certainly the word for the Corner, all were so cordial, one would think they had always known one another.

It was rather cold early in the morning, but once on the road we did not mind it—True Blue, Country Sister, Mrs. C. and myself.

In the bus were Olga, Lonesome Pine, Slow, Francena and Prudence. Later on Crimson Rambler rambled along and we enjoyed the trip.

After we had been in the hall a little while such a lot more from Clubs 1, 2 and 5 came in and we all had a good surprise.

Next was the wonderful dinner. I never saw such wonderful beans before. They certainly were delicious. Then salads, pie, cake, cookies, rolls, sandwiches and oh so many nice things. I think every one did justice to the dinner and when the dinner was over enough was left to serve just as many more.

I enjoyed the program. Too bad it was so cool we could not go upstairs for the entertainment but it was enjoyed just the same.

Next time, Country Sister, Listen and take the violin along.

Brown Eyes: I have a sore on my thumb and shall sue you for damage.

I am sure all that were there can find something to write about after that nice trip.

Skipper: It was very nice of you to loan me your dishes. It would have served me right to have waited for my thoughtlessness. I'll try to thank all the hostesses for making things so pleasant We will try to return the compliment when they visit Club No. 2.

What has become of all our writers? Our page looked pretty slim last week.

Scottie: I missed you, hope Mr. is on the gain. Perhaps you can go next time we go. Hope Dearie's daughter is on the gain.

Mrs. C.: Hope you find a name. Maybe the little book will help.

I wish to thank all sisters sending Easter cards—True Blue, Black Eyed Susie, Marigold, Golden Glow, Maple Leaf, Scottie, Country Sister, S. J. B. and any others.

Wishing Club No. 6 the best of luck. May they prosper and grow to be as large as ours did.

Hoping all the sick ones are better.

Ma of Greene Gables: We will be glad to see your smile once more at the Corner.

Best wishes for Club No. 2.

SEVERAL USES FOR CHEESE

Dear Sisters: I am sending a few recipes the sisters may like to try some time.

Baked Rice and Cheese: 1 cup rice, 4 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 pound American cheese rubbed through grater. Pepper and paprika to taste. 1-2 teaspoon salt.

Put rice in double boiler, add 3 cups milk and cook until tender. Make a sauce with butter, flour, seasoning and remaining milk. Add cheese, and stir until it melts. Butter a baking dish and arrange alternate layers of rice and cheese sauce. Cover top with buttered crumbs, and bake until brown.

Baker Crackers and Cheese: 9 or 10 butter crackers, 1-3 pound American cheese, rubbed through grater. 1 1-2 cups milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, flour.

Split the crackers, if the thick sort are selected, or with a sharp knife cut them into pieces of uniform size Pour the milk over them and drain it off at once. With the milk, flour, cheese and salt make a sauce. Cover with bread crumbs and brown in the oven, or simply reheat without covering with crumbs.

Baked Potatoes and Cheese: 6 large baked potatoes, 1-3 cup hot milk, 2 tablespoons salt, 1-3 pound pimento or American cheese rubbed through grater, 1-8 teaspoon paprika.

Cut potatoes in half lengthwise and scoop out the centers. Mash thoroughly. Add cheese to hot milk and beat with egg beater until smooth. Mix with the potatoes, add seasoning, and whip until light and creamy. Refill the potato shells and bake in a hot oven for 10 minutes.

Boiled Cheese Fondue: 1 1-2 cups soft stale bread crumbs, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1-2 pound American cheese rubbed through grater 3 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 6 or 8 crackers.

Soak bread and crumbs in milk Melt butter and add cheese. When cheese is melted add soaked crumbs and egg slightly beaten. Season to taste, and cook a few minutes. Serve on toasted crackers.

Rhody Louise: Write a letter some day. Would love to see your name in print.

Kitty Lou: Have you ever been to Niagara Falls? How cold it is for the middle of April.

Best wishes to all.

MAJESTIC.

NO ACCIDENT DAY

Dear Social Corner Friends: Don't let the child be afraid of you instead of afraid of the danger. The majority of children seem to think the essential point in dangerous things is to do it without your knowing it—he has no fear of getting burnt with the matches but only fears your finding out that he has them.

The child takes the matches to the clothesroom or to the barn or to some place where he thinks he will be alone and can light them without interference. When older his actions are based on whether he will be seen or not and not on public safety and responsibility.

It is the first impression that the child gets on any subject that becomes his distinctive way of doing it. The mental ability of the infant is much more advanced than his muscular activity would lead us to suppose but we know that before he is able to sit up or move around he understands the regular happenings of his surroundings.

It is very easy to teach him at first the right ways and equally easy to let him form wrong impressions. The only safe way is to train him to notice that you are always careful of fire and matches that you always wait for the auto to pass by that you are always careful around machines, then that will be his instinctive way of considering them. An old gas or machine is one of the finest playthings for small children, the several places they can get hurt with one, teach them to be careful around machines.

The kiddy car toot the small child rides so near the edge of the verandah teaches him to move and think quickly. Train him to think for himself, to know what is dangerous and to be responsible and careful.

JEREMY.

FOOD FOR CHILDREN.

Dear Corner Sisters: Am very glad you had a nice day for your meeting the 14th, and think I may be able to stay with you at a later meeting. Now I am busy making broth and porridge.

In many schools a lack of nourishment made it impossible for some children to do good work so milk was given to children there with the result that many were more advanced were able to do good work.

A child must grow as well as work His food must supply enough energy for bodily growth for his play, and for the work he does in studying. Many school now furnish lunches, such as hot soups, sandwiches, cocoa or crackers and milk.

A child who has for his breakfast oatmeal, milk or cocoa or a soft boiled egg and toast with fruit, will do better work than the child who has had fried food with tea or coffe. Do not give children tea or coffee but plenty of milk or cocoa.

Entire wheat or oatmeal bread generously spread with butter and a glass of milk will give a perfect lunch at small expense. Stewed or fresh fruit or a cup custard, meat or lettuce sandwich, gingerbread, plain cake or cookies and simple puddings such as rice, tapioca, bread or Indian will furnish variety. Bread made of white flour has had much of its nourishing quality taken out and is not very nourishing.

Salt meats do not have the food value of fresh meats. The salting process toughens the fiber which needs long and slow cooking. From inexpensive cuts of beef a variety of stews and soups can be made which are strengthening and easy of digestion.

Children require more sugar than adults do. This should be given in the form of simple desserts or pure candy at the end of meals but not between meals. Cooked fruit is safer for young children than raw. Bananas are usually half ripe and very starchy so many cannot digest them at all.

Dried beans, corn, peas or lentils soaked overnight and cooked slowly with seasoning of salt and butter or salt pork give variety to the meals when fresh vegetables are scarce.

Meals should not have fats, starches or sugar predominating. Rice is not needed with potatoes as both are starchy. With one starchy vegetable a succulent one like greens, onions or lettuce is best.

Lunches for school should be as attractive and varied as possible. Sandwiches or cake wrapped in wax paper keeps fresh and moist. Meat filling, jelly, peanut butter, chopped nuts with cream cheese moistened with milk, chopped eggs or lettuce with salad dressing make good sandwiches.

Children like a surprise in their lunch as a new kind of cracker, a bunch of dates or figs or celery with a little salt.

The question of eating between meals has to be settled by every mother. Do not let a between meal lunch consist of pie, cake or candy and do not let it be eaten just before a regular meal. The stomach must be given time to rest and to secrete enough gastric juice to digest its contents or the child's health will suffer. Mothers must teach them why cheap candy or ice cream cones between meals are injurious.

Best wishes to the editor and all sisters.

ROSARY.

THE WHYS AND WHEREFORES

Dear Corner Editor and Sisters: It seems silly and unnecessary at times to go into detail on the why of things. A certain man bought a new car. The dealer advised him to draw the oil after running it about 500 miles This the fellow did, but he did not know why he should draw the oil so he did not put any back. It doesn't seem possible he could have been so ignorant or without thought.

You would be appalled if you could realize how many children go to school without the slightest idea of why they go. Their parents say they must go and all the other children go and that is enough for many. It is simply a place one must go and that is all. No one has ever taken the time to tell them why they are there and they do not exert their minds enough to ask. Consequently hundreds pass through their school life without grasping the purpose until too late. Our children would not be so anxious to reach the age where they could quit the schoolroom if they were properly informed as to the real purpose of the school. If some one would take the time to explain that school is only a wise preparation which they need to meet the "school of life" courageously, if some one would tell them how very much they need this preparation, the number of youthful idlers would be greatly lessened.

There are ants and there are grasshoppers, and the fable about them will no doubt continue true for ages but if the grasshopper parents would be less selfish, their own lost opportunities and would stop lamenting long enough to show the young grasshoppers the right way, there might be a chance, in time of the grasshoppers all becoming ants. But I don't suppose this will ever be for some seem to think their main purpose in life is to let someone else look out for them

It really is a shame to see so many of our straight limbed youth carelessly throwing days away while our cripples and our blind are working hard to fill their days and advance, to make life worth the living. I wonder sometimes if these fritterers of time will have any service in the next world or if they will be as easily pushed aside as nonentities as they are here. And again, It is usually these careless ones who are the cause of much blindness and the bringing of crippled and half witted babes into the world. Why doesn't youth ask why? and why do we not tell it bare and ugly truth of what their pleasure may mean in suffering for some future child? When your child comes to you with some shocking thing he has picked up at school, do not be horrified and tell him never mention it again but take him and quietly explain the why and wherefores so that he will be absolutely sure why it is wrong to speak of such things, or to think them. If the parent is not sure what to say, let him go to some authority who can recommend what to read to get the needed knowledge.

In our Designer this month is a little sketch:

"To thee be all men heroes every one noble
A... woman virtuous and each place a temple
Know thou nothing that is base

A wealth of thought
Maisie: Thank you.

CLUB 3 MEETS APRIL 28.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Only a beautiful morning like this I feel like staying out doors all the time but duty and other things demand that I stay in the house. But just a word to say that Club No. 3 will meet in the chapel of the Lebanon Baptist church on Wednesday, the 28th of April. Now, the bus line at present goes right through Lebanon and the charge either way to Norwich and Willimantic is only 40 cents, so this will give the sisters from both places a chance to come. Some will have to come early but we shall be at the chapel early so you will not be alone. Please bring your own dishes and something for the dinner. Hoping to see a good number from other clubs and that Club No. 3 members will each try to come and help me to make this a success I am as always.

HOW TO AVOID SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Not so many letters as I would like to read in last Saturday's paper. Where are all the old writers and the new ones too. I have so much enjoyed the letters of Persis, Iola, Balsam Fir and Paula.

L. T. H.: Am sending the verses you wished to be published when possible.

Aunt Jerushy: Please send in the recipe of your brown bread that I've heard so much about Think I have met you at Club No. 1 in days of yore.

The poem about Fair Charlotte reminded me of a young lady in New York city who was going to celebrate her 11th birthday and was thrown from a sleigh and killed, her name was Charlotte Conda, her entire fortune was spent for her burial and monument in Greenwood cemetery and the candles were kept burning for many years. I was in the cemetery and saw her monument in the spring of 1894.

Sleep is a habit. It is a very natural and beneficial habit, but one that can be easily broken through injudicious living and thinking. Poor sleepers are usually a high strung, nervous people, who have too active bodies or brains or both and who are ambitious and inclined to neglect themselves. Insomnia cannot be cured by drugs. It is always dangerous to use drugs to produce sleep, and they should not be resorted to except in serious illness, and then only on the advice of a physician. If you cannot sleep and find that your sleeplessness is becoming a habit, begin immediately to go slower. Curb your ambition, leave off all unnecessary work and learn how to rest. Your body and your brain need repose and rest, but the trouble with the people who cannot sleep is, they do not know how to rest, they do not stop thinking, planning and worrying and go to bed with active brains and only partly relaxed bodies and then worry because sleep does not come. Perfect relaxation of body and mind is the first essential, and relaxation of either one, helps to relax the other. There is one exercise which properly practised will be found beneficial in more ways than one. Stand erect, but without stiffness arms hanging easily at the sides, now very gently inhale air through the nostrils at the same time lifting the arms straight out at the side, time the motion so that when the lungs are fully inflated the thumbs touch above the head Raise the face slightly at the same time toward the ceiling, then without holding the breath, exhale gently, sweeping the arms, hands together downward and forward so that when the exhilation is complete they again hang easily at the sides. Extreme gentleness and slowness must be observed without force or haste. Let the air flow into the lungs, don't force it in. When wakefulness is caused by a dull, sedentary life, more physical activity, outdoor sports and brisk walking are good. Slow outdoor walking and deep breathing are very beneficial to those whose wakefulness is the result of worry or fatigue. Make yourself comfortable in bed in a cool room and realize that the bed is holding you, not you the bed. Feel as heavy as you can. Then don't count or say dull sayings, you want to make the mind a blank, stifle thought and this can be done with a little practice but if thoughts persist in presenting themselves a mental repetition of the words "Let go—relax, relax" will aid you in relaxing and letting go. Then if you cannot sleep, don't worry over it, for any kind of worry will only prolong your wakefulness. Be content to rest and after a while sleep will come. Go to bed early even when you cannot sleep and do not get up too early unless you positively have to. Even a short morning nap when you have lain awake many hours of the night is very refreshing. Above all go to bed in a pleasant state of mind, you need not expect to sleep if the brain is burdened with anxiety worry, jealousy, regret or anything else undesirable, a clear mind, a hopeful spirit and an optimistic view of life are powerful aids to sleep as well as to digestion and the general bodily health.

Hope all the sick one are improving.

Best wishes to all.

JOAN.

APRIL IN HISTORY

Dear Corner Friends: As the month is most gone I thought perhaps you would like to know how eventful the month of April has been.

April 19, 1775, Battle of Lexington, the first conflict of the Revolution.

April 11, 1783. Congress proclaimed an end of the war with Great Britain.

April 30, 1803. Treaty with France for the purchase of Louisiana territory.

April 4, 1818. Act of congress establishing the Star and Stripes as the flag of the United States.

April 21, 1836. Battle of San Jacinto, ending the Mexican attempt at the conquest of Texas.

April 14, 1846. Beginning of the war between the United States and Mexico.

April 12, 1861. Civil war began with the firing of Fort Sumpter.

April 9, 1865. Civil war ended with the surrender of General Lee.

April 14, 1865. President Lincoln shot by J. Wilkes Booth.

April 22, 1898. United States proclaimed war with Spain.

April 2, 1917. Congress meets in extra session to receive a communication concerning grave matters of national policy.

April 6, 1917. President Wilson proclaimed war with Germany.

Lad April

April is no lady!
April is a boy.
Wearing torn green trousers
Made of corduroy.

Whistling through the woodland
Cheerily he goes.
Nothing but the brown dus:
Covering his toes.

Lad he cuts a sling shot
Out of tough green wood,
Shoots at all the squirrels
In the neighborhood

Climbers in the tree tops
Swings across the air.
Never hurts the robin
Or a bluebird there

Apri goes a fishing
With a small green rod
No one else goes with him
Only maybe God.

Best wishes to the Corner family. Very cold here yet. Autos just started to go past.

A HUSKY YOUNGSTER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Abler and less rusty pens than mine will write up the Shore Line club meeting of April 20. It was a big time—big attendance big dinner, big program. The Shore Line club is certainly a husky youngster. The absence of Rogers was regretted by all. Didn't see any home-town friends but Bradford would have found Bradford wholly there, but not enough to cause she feared.

Having never attended a Social Corner meeting I went anticipating the experience of the proverbial "cat in a strange garret." But on entering the hall I was met by a near neighbor and dear friend of mine—Tom, a splendid collie. This circumstance made me feel at home at once and to my delight I soon met other local friends. In fact, though there were to me many unfamiliar faces and unknown names, all seemed to be friends, for friendliness is a Social Corner characteristic which is made very evident.

Not long ago a request for a brown bread recipe was made in the Corner. Several rules have been sent in, but I will add mine, simple, easy and very good.

Brown Bread: 4 cups corn meal, 1 cup flour, pinch or salt, 3-4 cup molasses, 2 teaspoons soda. Mix with sweet milk to about the consistency of griddle cake batter. Steam three hours in a well greased and covered pail. Remove cover and dry out in the oven for ten minutes.

LUCILLE DREW. (CLUB 6.)

SOME GOOD RECIPES.

Dear Corner Members: I am sending a few recipes:

Hampton Cherry Pie: Two cups each of cranberries, sugar, raisins and sugar, cut cherries in halves, then mix together the raisins, cranberries and sugar with one cup boiling water, one tablespoon of flour, one teaspoon of butter, two teaspoons of vanilla. Cook together for 30 minutes. Cool, pour in pie plates, lined with pastry, form lattice stripe over the top, bake 20 minutes in a quick oven.

Prune Pie: This is a good old-fashioned pie, without frills. Wash and soak one pound of prunes over night in water and cover them. Cook in the same water until tender. Line a pie plate with rich paste and fill with the prunes, and some of the liquid, reduced by simmering to a small amount. Sprinkle with one-quarter cup sugar and one tablespoon of lemon juice. Cover with a top crust and bake in a rather quick oven as the filling has already been cooked. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Strawberr Pie: Line a deep pie plate with pie crust and prick it in several places. Bake to a delicate brown When taken from the oven fill with crushed strawberries (sweetened) and place a meringue of whipped cream over the top. Or sometimes I take a quart of sweetened berries, flavored with two tablespoons sherry, put them into a deep baking dish. I cover this with rich pie crust and bake. This, I call a "Strawberry cobbler."

Chocolate Pie: One and one-half cups of milk put on in a double boiler; while the milk is scalding stir smooth in the other half of cold milk, one-quarter cup of powdered arrow root, three-quarter cup of sugar, one-quarter cup cocoa. Now add this to the scalded milk and stir, until it thickens. When almost cool beat the yolks of two eggs and stir in (sometimes I use one) then set on stove again and cook the yolks five minutes. Remove from the stove, stir in one-half cup chopped nuts. I beat whits stiff with one tablespoon of cold water and two tablespoons of granulater sugar.

Cherry Pie: Line the pie plate with a good crust; fill with pitted cherries (some cooks leave the pits in), sweeten with about two-thirds cup of sugar and sprinkle over two spoons of flour. Wet the edge of under crust before putting over the top one, as I find this prevents the juice from running out.

Mock Cherry Pie: Two cups of cranberries, one cup of sugar, one-half cup of chopped nuts, one-half cup raisins, one tablespoon arrow root, a pinch of salt, one-half cup boiling water, one-half cup brown sugar. Mix all together, and turn into a plate lined with pastry. Place criss cross strips over the top.

RECIPES BY TAFTS

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: Hope you will try this fudge cake and like it as well as we do.

Fudge Cake: Half cup butter, 1 1-2 cups sugar, creamed together; add yolks of 4 eggs unbeaten, mix well. 4 squares of chocolate melted and blended with 5 tablespoons of hot water. 1 3-4 cup flour (I use pastry) 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 3-4 cup chopped walnut meats, 1 cup milk, vanilla. Add beaten whites of 4 eggs last, fold them on, and bake in loaf or layers.

Fudge Frosting: Two cups sugar, 2 squares of chocolate, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-2 cup milk, 1-8 teaspoon cream of tartar. Boil together until soft ball can be formed in cold water without stirring. Cool, flavor with vanilla and spread on cake. Beat this a few minutes

A Quick Sponge Cake, for can be used as a Washington pie with whipped cream and strawberries). Beat 2 eggs, add gradually 2-3 cup sugar, three tablespoons rich sweet milk, 1 cup pastry flour after it has been sifted, one and 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, little salt, flavoring. Bake in loaf or small tins. This will be thin but don't add any more flour. Will be all right when baked.

Corn Bread or Gems: (our folks like them better than brown bread.) 1 cup flour, 1-2 cup Indian meal, 1 egg, 3 tablespoons of sugar, little salt, 2 tablespoons melted butter, teaspoon baking powder wet with milk. I bake in cup tins as I have no gem pans. Had some today with pea soup.

Bee: May be you would like these. Would you like the recipe for pea soup too.

Pea Soup: 1 cup and half of split peas, (I use the yellow) put on in cold water, bring to a boil, drain and wash, cover with cold water again, bring to a boil, add 2 or 3 slices of lean salt pork, one large onion, simmer until peas are soft, add 1 tablespoon rice, 1 can of corn. Delicious.

APRIL BIRTHDAY CAKE

Dear Editor and Sisters: Without a birthday cake one feels as if the occasion was not suitably remembered. Many mothers and friends are anxious to have an appropriate celebration. The main decoration used on these cakes are the signs of the zodiac for the month and the favorite flower of the celebrant. The flower mentioned is merely a sugestion although they may be used with the assurance of obtaining a most beautiful effect.

April birthday cake boasts of a variation in its form of cake as it is made in the single piece instead of the layers. However I thought it would add to its popularity as I think it cuts to a better advantage.

My wedding cakes I have baked square except the wreaths, wedding bells, etc., those are different.

The April cake should be decorated with the month's sign. For the cake prepare the following mixture: Take six eggs, six tablespoons of sugar, six tablespoons of chopped filberts, two tablespoons of flour, one table spoon of baking powder Beat the whites of the eggs, add sugar, then the beaten egg yolks, nuts, flour and baking powder, sifted together three times. Decorate with Easter lilies, outlined with green, with the sign of the zodiac in the center Just before serving decorate with four green candles. This represents the fourth month of the year. I think a good idea is to wrap each end in paraffin paper to prevent its touching the cake Ferns placed about the serving plate add to the general attractiveness.

CLUB NO. 6'S SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Dear Corner Sisters: I must tell you that our second meeting of the Shore Line club was most satisfactory. We had a fine day and 48 in attendance. Six new members were added to our club. Visitors were present from Clubs No.1, 2 and 5 which we were very glad to have with us. We were all sorry that Rebecca who was to be hostess for the day could not be with us. For several days she has been helping to care for a friend who is very ill. Several came forward to help Cosmos and Dorothy Bradford carry through the day's work and I, in behalf of the club, want to thank all who helped to make the day a success.

We are very glad to welcome Wheeler, Wens, Lucile Drew, Blandina, Lady Lou and May Bug into our club.

BEDDING

Dear Sisters: I think I have written before that when I was a little girl, I used to think it would be the delightful experience in the world to be a Fairy Godmother. To be Cinderella and wear glass slippers and ride in pumpkin coaches looked fascinating, to be sure but to have the power to turn rags into golden gowns, mice into footmen, to dissolve cruel enchantments and make wishes come true—that was the possibility that enthralled me.

And here I am a kind of a fairy advisor. I have this moment so many letters from different readers of magazines and from the Social Corner readers in different cities until I am at this moment going through all of the sensations which I am confident must attach to that enviable position.

One think I have discovered—which I have suspected before—is that in spite of all we say of it at times, the world is really an unselfish place.

But as we write our helps and suggestions and ideas the editor values our ideas and opinions accordingly and the prize to me seems more valuable than I can find words to express and I want to thank the editor for my prize for this last month. It surely is paying me all that it is worth and I like to feel as I do, that the Corner to me is as much mine as it seems to be to the others.

Now for a word about bedding. We spend a third of our lives in bed, and an appreciable amount of time on bedmaking and there is anything that gives more comfort and renders a bed easier to keep in order is well worth learning.

Mattresses are hard to handle, to keep clean and alas, sometimes hard to sleep on. To simplify handling, all mattresses, except those of single beds should be in two pieces. Owing to greater ease with which they can be turned. Avoid the false economy of buying a mattress with a soft top and a hard bottom, for it can never be turned, and with wear, the hard filling gathers into lumps. In these days of high nervous tension, we need all the recuperation and reposeful sleep a smooth bed will afford.

I think it a great help to make a cover for a mattress of unbleached muslin, that is, a strong material. Leave one side open for slipping over the mattress and then be tightly sewed together. Such a covering protects a mattress from dust, and I advise this also against invasion by any intruders which may chance to be brought into the house from public places. It is a very good help to stitch straps in the cover to handle the mattress.

The blankets can be washed at home. This is a good way—some of the sisters may know of a better.

Make a tub of suds with mild white soap, having the water as hot as you can bear comfortably. Wash the blanket by turning and squeezing; rub only when there are spots. Place in the second tub of rinse water with two tablespoons of glycerine. Hang blanket on line without squeezing, hang it from the middle securing in place with clothespins.

Look at the binding ends of a blanket, to see if they are worn, and if necessary put on a new one before washing. An old blanket worn thin makes the best pad to put over rubber sheet and under the white one of baby's crib.

KITTY LOU.

KEEPS HAIR FROM FALLING

Dear Social Cornerites: With two friends had a pleasant lunch from baked apples, stuffed with sausage and tea and muffins. From the seeds and cores of the apples I made a small glass of jelly.

I helped a friend cover a nice quilt. We had no frames so we put the lining on the carpet, smoothly laid filling on and then the top. We rolled this up at one end and carried to an extension table and each tied from the center to the outer corner. After several rows of sewing we rolled that end a little and began sewing again, thus sewing and rolling till it was done. We trimmed the edges turned in and buttonholed the four sides and found it a very handy way.

Did you know that quinine in liquid form would help keep your hair from coming out? First comb the head and then apply the quinine with fingers parting the hair here and there.

Oh, Joan those buns! You do land the cake.

Jack's Wife, N. O. T. ... Everyone loves her. That does. If we were airships we would toot. So glad to see your name. Would like to hear you sing it again.

Esmeralda: I am glad to hear ... of me. Get your address I ...

Lost Sheep: Don't ... L. L. M.

A SIGN OF RAIN

Dear Social Corner: Well I must write a letter to tell about the fine time I had at the meeting of the Number 6 club. Went out by bus, met some more sisters going, so we had a very pleasant trip to North Stonington Grange hall where the sisters were waiting to receive us. It was a cold day. We met a man on our walk up from the bus who said it surely would "rain tomorrow because there were so many women out." We did have a fine time and hated to leave so early to come home.

Mildred: I made a tatting ring after I got home.

My husband says it does me good to go out among the women folks visiting. I am going to try and go to more of the meetings this summer and I will take along my mate. Some more bring theirs for they will want some one to talk to.

E. L. M.: I gave him your invite. Said he would come to dinner anyway.

Well I do hope we will get some fine warm weather soon, so I can do some house cleaning, for when it comes good warm weather I like to go on auto trips around the country. Well I had better say good day and let some one else have a word.

SLOW

MAKING BEDQUILTS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I thought the page was not very full last week so decided I would write a line. Now I am making bed quilts lately as that has been all I could do after the grip. I was away on a visit for a few days and an old lady over 80 years old gave me a new pattern. She called it the Roman scarf and it looks like a many colored ribbon. She took a piece of old material five inches wide the length of her quilt (of course you could use any width according to your pieces) and took all kinds of percales and ginghams of any width, as long as her strip was wide, and sewed them on first dark and then light until she had strips enough and then set them together with strips of one kind of percale and it made a handsome quilt and use the small pieces.

Snark Plus: Watch out you will see me coming some day to go fishing and I want to borrow a good big hat. You know fish bite better in the shade.

Cakkie: Don't you think it is about time you did your bit? I do.

Grandma Gray: Enjoyed your telephone call the other day. Call again.

Rural Aunty: Tried your orange pudding and it was fine. You were right about the initial. Thank you for giving me a membership in Club No. 4.

Historian: Is the snow still deep or is it the radio that is keeping you silent?

Kichie: Do you ever see any more Fords stalled in Norwich.

If there are any more pins at this late date may I have one.

Best wishes to all.

DUTCHY.

DOING DUTY TOWARD PAGE.

Dear Corner Sisters: I will now send a few lines to the Corner page for none of us wants to be tagged Slackers, and its our duty to take a little of our time to help fill the page. I am wondering what has become of Blue Bird that joined the Corner long before I did. Her time must be taken up all in music, for I don't think there is any kind of a musical instrument ever made but what she could squeeze a tune out of.

Say, I just wish you could hear her play the Devil's Dream on a comb. One would have hard work to sit still.

I suppose most of the sisters are all through house cleaning and ready to plan for the summer picnics. The wind has blown so for the past month one has not felt like getting away from fires in these parts. Hoping all the sick are on the road to recovery, will now leave room for others.

SIS.

MUST PULL TOGETHER

Dear Social Corner Folks: Have just finished reading all the letters and the one from Mavis made me realize that it is perfect ages since I did my share to fill the page. Have been so busy getting settled in a new place and finding the best places to trade that I haven't thought of anything else.

I don't know who Paula is but I am going to disagree with her on part of her let

POETRY

The Choice

I would not go at morning
When all is fair and bright,
The dew upon the blossom
Aglimmer in the light,
When all that makes a happy world
Is winsomest to see;
Not then I'd leave the scenes I've loved
And have my ending be.

I would not go at noonday,
The hour when all around
The human tide is deepest,
A foaming surge of sound.
Ah, who would wish his passing
From out the thing called life
'Mid noise and 'mid confusion,
'Mid labor and 'mid strife?

I would not go at even,
Sweet time by nature blest;
I'd have no note of sadness
To mar the hour of rest,
Nor add unto the weary heart
Of lover, or of friend,
The burden of my passing,
The vision of my end.

If I choose mine hour
'Twould be just ere the dawn,
While soothing darkness hovers,
Sleep's curtain still is drawn;
And I would go in slumber,
Unwatched upon my bed,
Unconscious of my going out,
And—dreaming of my dead.
—Samuel Minturn Peck in Boston Transcript.

The Floor of the Sea

The floor is of sand, like the mountain-drift:
And the pearl-shells spangle the flinty snow;
From coral-rocks the sea-plants lift
Their bows, where tides nor billows flow;
The water is calm and still below,
For the winds and waves are absent there;
And the sands are bright as the stars that glow
In the motionless fields of upper air.
There, with a light and easy motion,
The fan-coral sweeps through the clear deep sea;
And the yellow and scarlet tufts of ocean
Are bending, like corn on the upland lea.
Then far below in the peaceful sea,
The purple mullet and goldfish rove
Where the waters murmur tranquility
Through the bending twigs of the coral-grove.
—J. G. Percival.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Just back from a tour?"
"Well—er—detour would be nearer the truth."—Italian News.

Elmer—Has any other boy ever kissed you?
Rosemary—I never know how to answer that question.—Life.

Freshman—"Where do jailbirds come from?"
Soph—"They are raised from larks, bats and swallows."—Colorado Dodo.

He (looking at his watch)—"Well, I must be off."
She—"That's what I thought when I first met you."—Cornell Widow.

Servant—Sir, your little son has broke his leg.
Professor of English—How many times must I tell you that it is not "broke;" it's broken.—Exchange.

"By the way, what are you going to make of that boy of yours?"
"Well, judging by the time he always gets home, I should think a waiter in a night club!"—University of Toronto Goblin.

"Please, my mother sent me back to let you see what a big bone there was in the pound of beef she bought last night, and she wants another pound without bones," said a small boy.
"Well," replied the grocer, "tell your mother the next time I get a cow without bones I'll send her a leg for nothing."—The Progressive Grocer.

A bishop was eating dinner with his host before the afternoon service at which he was to speak. He ate little or nothing, explaining that it was not good for a preacher to eat heartily before a sermon. The housewife could not attend the service, as she had to stay at home and prepare supper. When her husband came home, she said, "Well, how was he?" The husband, drawing a sigh, replied, "He might just as well of 'et.'"—Christian-Evangelist.

According to data found in a Pan-Slav calendar published in Berlin, the largest number of Russian emigres is domiciled in France, where there are from 200,000 to 250,000 former subjects of the czar unwilling or unable to return home and accept Bolshevist rule.

Physique of school children in relation to their educational achievement was made the subject of a recent study in Manchester, England. Out of 85 children of good scholarship, only two were below the average in physique, but out of 171 poor students, 68, or nearly 40 per cent., were below the average bodily measurements.

As the result of the unusually severe winter throughout Scandinavian countries wolf packs have created alarm in the neighborhood of cities and have appeared in parts of southern Sweden where no wolf had previously been seen for more than 100 years. Spurred by lack of food the wolves are roaming the country in packs as well as hunting singly.

The average consumption of meat in the United States was greater in 1925 than in any year since federal meat inspection was instituted in 1907, says the report of the national live stock and meat board. The use of pork declined from past years, probably due to higher prices incident to the 20 per cent. decreases in hog receipts at central markets but veal, beef and mutton all increased. The average person in the United States last year consumed 154.3 pounds of meat, the report shows. This was four pounds greater than the average consumption for the last 15 years.

WESTERLY

NO TRIALS IN SUPERIOR COURT ON FRIDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I. April 23—No trials were held in the regular Friday morning session of Third district court before Judge Oliver H. Williams and there were but two arraignments.

Civil Docket: Clifton D. Hall vs. Angelo Pucci. Continued one week Hazard J. Lord vs. Teft Motor Mart. Continued one week.

Judge Williams said that court would be in tow mail day and declared a 30-minute recess. Just as the judge left the bench, State Trooper Warren D. Nichols of the Wickford state barracks came into the court room.

When court reconvened Judge Williams read two complaints:

State vs. Philip Brundage, of Charlestown, R. I., a complaint alleging illegal possession on March 31st of intoxicating liquors. Reading of complaint was waived and a plea of not guilty entered. Recognizance was taken in the sum of $300 with James W. Burke as surety for appearance for trial on next Friday.

State vs. Michael Dominac, alias, of Charlestown, R. I., on a similar charge. Caterina Turano became surety in $300 for appearance for trial next Friday.

Private funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon for Edward H. Buffum, of Westerly and Tampa, Fla., whose death occurred last Monday morning at his Westerly home. His death was due to chronic heart trouble of seven years' duration. Funeral services were in charge of Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church. Interment was in River Bend cemetery. Masters, the bearers being Charles L. Segar, Ralph L. Segar, Walter S. Price and Fred C Buffum, Jr., all of Westerly, Walter Segar of Pawtucket, R. I., and Charles E. Newton of Stafford Springs.

Annual meeting of the Past Masters' association of Rhode Island, E. Tudor Jones, president was held in Providence on Thursday evening. A dinner was served the members at 6:30 p. m. and was followed by the reading of reports. Grand Master Howard Knight of Providence was present to discuss the recommendations he is going to present at the annual grand lodge meeting to be held in Providence next May.

Mrs. Emil Arthur Mallette, of Rutherford, N. J., who has been the guest of her brother, William C. Francis and family, in Pawcatuck, leaves this week end to be the guest of friends in Peacedale, R. I.

Workmen in the employ of the South County Public Service company were engaged Thursday night and early Friday morning in tapping in the gas main on Broad street to permit connection with the new and larger gas main which is being laid down Main street. A flood light connected with the electric wires set up on the ground furnished illumination for the work.

So great was the force of the wind Friday morning that one Westerly house business man had a good scare as a result. When he arose in the morning he found both of his garage doors, which he deemed securely hooked, to be wide open. He jumped to the conclusion that his automobile had been stolen and his relief was marked when he discovered that the wind had ripped hook and staple from its woodwork and the heavy doors had been blown open.

Thirty members of the Westerly Crescent club enjoyed a dinner on Friday evening at the Colonial club on High street. The dinner was followed by a theatre party.

Work was completed on Friday afternoon in oiling the section of High street, between Canal street and Grove avenue. Travel was resumed on the oiled surface by vehicles, which, because the cobblestone gutters were removed, have the advantage of the full highway width.

Westerly and shore resort residents are interested in the various reports concerning the $250,000 breach of promise suit of Mrs. Addie Louise B. Jones, divorcee and former department store saleswoman, against John Thwaites, owner of the Crystal Spring Strawberry at Thwaites, Mass., had been settled out of court. This became known Friday when the case was called for retrial in supreme court. The terms of the settlement were not announced. Mr. Thwaites two summers ago was a summer cottager at Pleasant View beach, where he occupied a cottage near the center of the summer colony.

In the first trial, resulting in failure of the jury to agree, Mrs. Jones, one-time resident of Amherst, Mass., testified that she had received a proposal of marriage from Mr. Thwaites after a brief courtship beginning in the summer of 1922. At the time, she said, she was working in Wanamaker's department store in New York.

Thwaites entered a denial of the charge. Numerous crosses inscribed in letters it was alleged he wrote to Mrs. "meant nothing," he said.

A reported statement from Mr. Thwaites on Thursday denied that he had made any settlement of the $250,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by Mrs. Addie Louise B. Jones. He declared he knew nothing of settlement reports from New York. "I have been ill at home here for some time." Thwaites declared, "and have not been in New York or seen Mrs. Jones. My belief is that the judge threw the case out of court because it is nothing more than blackmail."

Ernest Frederick Stenhouse of Westerly, according to announcement from the department of state police of Rhode Island, on Friday was named clerk of the R. I. state trooper forces. Trooper William Riddell of Westerly was recently advanced to the rank of corporal and has charge of the mechanical department.

Mr. Stenhouse was a foreman in the Bradford Dyeing works and has been a sergeant in the Rhode Island national guard coast artillery for three years. He is 34 and single. The department announced that he has the natural qualifications for a trooper and will be trained to fill the next vacancy. There are no further vacancies now.

Annual dramatics by the senior class of the Westerly high school in the school auditorium on Thursday evening, were staged in a most creditable rendition of the well known comedy, "Twelfth Night," of Shakespeare. As in former years the training of the cast was supervised by Miss Jennie B. Shanton.

Georgianna Beaudreau, in the role of Viola, made a charming heroine. Her brother, Frederick, who resembles her closely, was well cast as Sebastian, Viola's twin brother. Albert Henderson was the handsome and rich Duke Orsino, ruler of Illyria, from whom Viola obtained employment in the disguise of a page.

Olive Daley was excellent in the role of Malvolio, the stately steward of the noble Lady Olivia, whose part was capably played by Pearl Peckham. The fun making was provided by Walter Lewis as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Gordon Fiddes in the role of the wine-loving Sir Toby Belch, and Abraham Ribner as Lady Olivia's jester. Esther Patton, who played the part of Maria, Lady Olivia's maid, also figured prominently in some of the comic situations.

Others in the cast were: Valentine, Frank Turrisi; Curio, Alexander Goldberg; Antonio, a sea captain, Hjalmer Larson; Fabian, Louis Guiliano; officer, John Rossi; sea captain, Theodore Markoff; ladies in waiting upon Lady Olivia, Sylvia Rinne and Olga Gervasini.

The acts and scenes were as follows: Act I—Scene 1, street; Scene 2, Olivia's garden; Scene 3, Duke's palace; Scene 4, Olivia's garden; Scene 5, street. Act II—Scene 1, street; Scene 2, Olivia's garden; Scene 3, Duke's palace. Act III—Olivia's garden. Act IV—Olivia's garden. Act V—Olivia's garden.

At the end of Act IV Miss Stanton, the director was called before the footlights by Miss Mullaney and presented with a large bouquet of roses, the gift of the senior class.

Miss Stanton's producing staff included the following: Musical director, Frank Turrisi; stage manager, Theodore Markoff; art director, Isabelle Rook; director of lighting, William Hogan; property mistress, Agnes Bissel; wardrobe mistress, Eleanor Mitchell; chief prompter, Sylvia Rinne. The house staff included Clara Kenyon, house manager; Mary Mullaney, press representative, and Ida Supirka, treasurer.

The school orchestra, led by Robert Valentine, played between the acts and also furnished incidental music for the production.

George R. McKenna of Pawcatuck, prosecuting officer of the town of Stonington, was a caller in New London on Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Champlin, returning on Friday to their Westerly summer home, stopped off in Washington, D. C., for a short visit.

Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell returned to his Westerly home on Friday morning from attendance at the Pelky-Wright political dinner at the Hotel Biltmore in Providence.

Judge Herbert W. Rathbun was a business caller in New London on Friday, in connection with the obtaining of the final decree in the petition of Stiles H. F. Ross et al vs. Third Baptist society of Stonington, or Third Baptist church, for dissolution. Henry Harris of Westerly and New London, has been named receiver by the superior court of New London county.

William P. Dodge returned to Providence on Friday morning, after being the guest of his sister, Miss Clara Dodge, in Westerly.

Dr. Thomas E. Robinson, Westerly milk inspector and former representative in the Rhode Island legislature, was in attendance at the Pelky-Wright political dinner at the Providence Biltmore hotel Thursday evening.

Capt. and Mrs. Louis A. Babcock, and son, Courtland, of New York, are visiting with Mr. Babcock's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James O. Babcock, at their home in Avondale, R. I.

J. Raymond Gould returned to his home in Westerly on Friday morning from a visit in Providence.

Charles Ruisi, Walter H. Snyder and Henry Hughes, all of Westerly are to motor the coming week to New York. They will visit on Long Island before returning home.

Frederick D. Johnson of Peacedale, R. I., was a visitor in Westerly during the past week.

MYSTIC

The Parent-Teacher association of Mystic Academy secured Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell to deliver a lecture here Wednesday evening in the Baptist church. The tickets had been on sale for three weeks. Mystic people were given the first opportunity to buy the tickets and then they were sold in other places. Every seat was taken and all available space was filled with chairs and then some were willing to stand during the lecture. Rev. A. G. Osborn, pastor of the church introduced the speaker. The subject of the lecture was "Mid Ice and Snow in Labrador. Dr. Grenfell began by showing a map and describing the coast and country. His work commenced in 1892 with only three to assist him; now he has hospitals and dispanages along the coast. He had a large collection of pictures that showed the wonderful work this man has been doing in caring for poor orphans until they have grown up, are educated and are now valuable teachers, ably assisting in the work. The work is carried on regardless of creed or color; specialists now go there during the summer season and aid Dr. Grenfell. One eye specialist has cured many of blindness. The motion pictures could not be used on account of the law, but those shown were highly appreciated. At the close every one was given the privilege of buying a booklet; each one sold would pay for a brick for a building under construction there; $40 was taken in for them. Dr. Grenfell arrived in the afternoon from Bristol and was entertained at dinner by Miss Joanna Burnett, principal of Mystic Academy. Other guests present were Dr. and Mrs. Louis M. Allyn and Dr. and Mrs. Gurdon Allyn of Waterford. Mrs. John B. Gray, president of the Parent-Teacher association entertained the lecturer over night.

Lacrosse Gains Ground

NEW YORK (AP)— Lacrosse, a comparatively new intercollegiate sport, has gained a firm foothold in 25 American universities and, in the opinion of F. M. Touchton, Yale coach, is threatening the popularity of baseball as a spring college pastime.

English colonists found the Indians playing the game 300 years ago, said Touchton. At that time it was known as "baggataway," a struggle lasting several days in which the squaws would lash the players on to greater efforts. Many changes have been made in the game and today it provides 60 minutes of speed and thrills.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The usual incendiary fires furnished Norwich with its weekly excitement 50 years ago and there was an additional bit of excitement when two local young men were arrested on a charge of setting one of the fires. They were presented in the city court and bound over to the superior court under bonds which they could not furnish. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of April, 1876 are as follows:

Monday, April 17, 1876—There was quite a large gathering at the greenhouse of the Smith brothers at Norwich Town Saturday evening to witness the bursting into bloom of a fine specimens of the night blooming cereus. The annual displays of this rare plant of the cactus species afford an occasion to bring together amateur and practical florists.

A Prediction Which Failed. It was rumored about town Saturday that two clairvoyants had predicted that between night and this morning Norwich would be visited by the greatest fire it ever suffered. A great many sensible people went about all day with a feeling of expectancy and fully prepared to hear the fire alarm strike. Yesterday the firemen kept very near the engine houses, and everybody talked of the expected fire, though no one confessed to a firm belief in the local Daniel. The night passed however without anything to warrant the prophecy.

It will be remembered that five nights since a barn on East Broad street owned by Mrs. McDowell took fire and on searching the premises a pail of tar and other combustibles were found hidden on the lower floor beneath some hay. Saturday night a similar arrangement was discovered in the same building. Officer McCarty saw a light inside but found the doors locked and was obliged to go to the house for the key. He found a tin pail full of tar in which a lighted candle was set. Nothing giving a clue to the incendiary was found.

Tuesday, April 18, 1876—About half past two this morning the band room of Shetucket street occupied by the City band was found to be on fire. The fire was discovered in a closet near the stairs. An alarm was struck from box 16 and the department rallied promptly but the rear of the building was in a blaze and it was with difficulty that the fire was controlled. Most of the band instruments were removed but some could not be reached. In the third story a quantity of furniture owned by N. S. Gilbert, valued at $2,000 was stored. It is injured by smoke and water.

Uncas lodge, I. O. O. F., was visited last evening by about 25 members of Pequot lodge of New London. The initiatory degree was worked to the satisfaction of the visiting brethern. After the ceremonies the guests were invited to dinner at Noss'. They left the city on the boat train.

The steamer City of New York which has been laid up all winter resumed her place on the line last night. She has been thoroughly overhauled and refitted. The steamer City of Boston will be withdrawn for repairs.

Wednesday, April 19, 1876—George McNickle and Frank Burnap, young men of 19 and 20, were arrested yesterday and confessed to setting fire to the building on Shetucket street partly burned about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Both McNickle and Burnap belong to respectable families and have hitherto borne good characters. Their examination will be held before the city court today.

The directors of the Dime Savings bank have declared a semi-annual dividend of six per cent per annum, payable on and after May 15th.

Thursday, April 20, 1876—George McNickle and Frank A. Burnap, charged with setting fire to the wooden building on Shetucket street owned by Mrs. A. Williams, were brought before the city court yesterday morning. A very large crowd was present. The boys maintained their self possession and showed no signs of emotion at their unfortunate situation. The court found probable cause to sustain the charges. Bonds were fixed at $3,000 for their appearance at the September term of the superior court, in New London, failing to furnish which they were committed.

The City band who lost about $300 by the Shetucket street fire Tuesday morning propose to circulate a subscription paper which we hope will be met in a liberal spirit. The band hopes to give a series of open air concerts this summer.

Novel Heating Plan

By storing up heat in water, engineers of a Milwaukee company hope to provide a way whereby electricity can be used without great expense for warming homes, and generators that normally remain idle at night can be run to advantage, thus eliminating the loss of unproductive equipment, according to Popular Mechanics.

Their plan is to heat the water by electricity in highly insulated tanks at night and keep the temperature at a useful height during the day by a small amount of current. The hot water would be made to circulate through the house in much the same way that it does in an ordinary furnace-heating system.

The value of electricity as a heating agent is recognized, but in daytime, when current consumption is great and capacity is taxed at peak hours, sufficient electricity for heating purposes could not be delivered without the expense of erecting additional plants. It is hoped that by the water-storage plan no extra generators will be needed and that equipment used at night will be available for service during the day. The idea will be tested out in competition with an ordinary furnace.

The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has asked $25,000 from the American Telephone and Telegraph company for use of copyright music by its broadcasting stations for the next year.

The New Home

The best place in the world, we're told,
Is home, however new or old.
—Mrs. Grouse

For several days Mrs. Grouse spent much of her time with Mr. Grouse and never did Thunderer show off to better advantage. He did his very best to make Mrs. Grouse proud of him. Sometimes he was so occupied in his own strutting that he was not aware that Mrs. Grouse had slipped away. Always she returned after a little while, so Thunderer didn't think much about it. But as the days went by, she slipped away more and more often, and several times Thunderer was quite put out when he discovered that she wasn't watching him strut.

"You shouldn't have secrets from me," declared Thunderer, speaking very importantly.

"Any time you say so, my dear, we'll go to look for that place for the new nest," said Thunderer.

"That will be fine," replied Mrs. Grouse and turned her head that he might not see the twinkle in her eyes. You see, Mrs. Grouse had quietly been looking about during those periods when she slipped away. And she not only had decided where this new nest was to be, but actually had finished the nest and there were some eggs in it.

Then one day Thunderer awoke to the fact that he was alone once more. He hunted all about, but he could not find Mrs. Grouse. It quite upset him. But it wasn't long. Soon he was drumming again. Then occasionally Mrs. Grouse joined him for a very little while. "What about that new home we were going to have?" demanded Thunderer.

"We have it," replied Mrs. Grouse demurely. "We have it and there are ten eggs in it."

"Where is it?" demanded Thunderer, looking very much surprised. "I want to see it."

But Mrs. Grouse shook her head. "It's a secret," said she.

"You shouldn't have secrets from me," declared Thunderer, speaking very importantly.

Just then a distant sound caught his attention and he turned to look in the direction from which it had come. His head was turned for only an instant, but in that instant Mrs. Grouse had disappeared. Quietly she had slipped away, taking care not to rustle as much as one dry leaf, and which way she had gone, Thunderer hadn't the least idea. It made him quite angry for a minute. But he was soon over it, for the most important thing in life to him was drumming just then.

Now Mrs. Grouse had not gone far. In fact, she was almost within sight from that drumming log. That nest was built against another old log, and when Mrs. Grouse was sitting on those eggs, she was so much the color of the dead brown leaves all about her that even Thunderer himself might have looked right at her without seeing her. It was a well chosen place. Mrs. Grouse suspected that no one would think to look there for it, because it was so near Thunderer's drumming log. At the same time, there was a great advantage in it, because now, if an enemy should appear, Thunderer would be likely to be within easy calling distance. So, once more Mrs. Grouse was happy and no longer mourned for the old home that had been broken up by Ringneck the Pheasant.

THIEF ABANDONED NEW LONDON CAR, BUT LEFT IT MINUS FOUR TIRES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 24—William E. Minnick, a chief petty officer attached to the United States Coast Guard and stationed at the sectional base, state police complained to the police this morning that his automobile, a Ford roadster, had been stolen. Minnick stated that he parked the machine for the night at the state pier and that when he went to where he had left the machine about 2 o'clock this morning the car was missing. The New London police upon notifying the state police Groton, of the theft of the automobile, were informed that the car was beside a highway in Center Groton, where it had been abandoned and all of the tires removed.

PARISH TESTIMONIAL TO FR. WOLLSCHLAEGER

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 24—Arrangements are being formulated for tendering Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger, for eight years a curate at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a testimonial. Following the reception of orders from Bishop Nilan at Hartford Wednesday that Rev. Fr. Wollschlaeger to become pastor at East Porthester, parishioners of the church together with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, rector, started plans for the testimonial. It is believed that the clergyman about to be honored will be given a substantial gift by the members of the church and that early next week the presentation will be made, an informal reception will take place later in the basement chapel hall of the rooms of the Knights of Columbus.

After a long absence from the police court, Eddie Tillman Bates appeared this morning and when he was accused admitted that he and Beatrice Lee engaged in activities that would have made Jack Johnson sore (?). Eddie is some "steamer" when he gets at work. The Lee woman is a stranger to the court. Both arrested with North Bank street both yesterday till at night they were in fighting mood. In manner Eddie is a ringer for Billy Rice, the minstrel when he is relating his stories on the stage. For years she has been carrying on in the vicinity of the police station, but says is coming to her and she is a bit slow, hon. Judge Prince found the story told by the prosecutor close as to what occurred, and the women nodded assent when their more naked at the recital described the exhibition women made when teed up on booze. They were fined $10 each and had the credit to make good.

Charles O'Hagan didn't appreciate the leniency shown him Thursday when he was allowed by the court to get out of town and to resume his residence in Providence. He was back in court this morning to answer to a charge of intoxication. Charles represented yesterday that he had been steadily employed at a restaurant here but had finished his engagement and was about to start for Providence. The court today denied that departure for thirty days, as he was ordered to go to work for the county during that time and to pay or work out at a dollar a day the costs of this visit.

Tom Connolly, a strolling, hopped into New London yesterday after a considerable time away from the city. He met former friends and scooped up booze enough to interfere with his locomotion. He was found helpless today he was told to leave town, in the 24 hours next ensuing.

Mrs. Carrie T. Burgess of New London made the error of stopping in restricted area on State street. Just as an officer appeared Mrs. Burgess was starting a passenger to the train, but seeing a bus approaching the passenger decided to take transportation on that vehicle. Mrs. Burgess stopped long enough to allow her passenger to alight, the road was stopped for minutes, but there was no arrest with a city ordinance directing traffic. Judge Prince regarded the violation as too trivial to warrant disciplining, so suspended judgment.

George J. Kiley has sold a building lot on Norwood avenue to Immaculata Tramontano.

David Doyle of 1 Moore court, has been admitted to Union-on-Thames, Norwich state sanatorium, where he will be under treatment indefinitely.

Charles M. Taylor, Jr., 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Taylor, 3rd, of Vauxhall street, died at the hospital of Bloomfield Monday morning, at which institution he submitted to an operation earlier in the week. Besides his parents Mr. Taylor is survived by two sisters.

I. Wessman of New Britain, owner of the cottage at Bonnybank, Ocean Beach, complained to the police this forenoon that the cottage had been entered by crooks lately, but no loss could be determined, nothing had been removed from the place. The break, it is believed, was perpetrated by a gang which makes a practice every year of "looting summer residences."

A section of a wooden fence on Hunt street, between Blackhall street and Mountain avenue is in danger of falling to the sidewalk as supports having become decayed. The building department has been notified of the condition of the fence.

An automobile owned by the Carroll Laundry company, Moore court, was visited in the yard of the company, some time last night, and two tires were stolen. The theft was discovered this forenoon and reported to the police.

When James N. Snow, manager of the Gardner Transfer and Storage company, Blackhall street, opened the establishment this morning he found a large white horse, the owner of which is unknown, tied to a section of fence there. Snow had the animal housed in the company's barn, sending its being claimed by its owner.

MISS MARY J. NELSON'S CAR CRASHES INTO A BIG TREE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 24—In an accident to a Hudson coach owned and operated by Miss Mary Jane Nelson of Union street, proprietor of a women's store, Miss Nelson and Miss Mary F. Dwyer, a State street store proprietor residing at 25 Starr street, were injured this evening, when Miss Nelson's car crashed against a tree on Williams street and was badly damaged. Both women suffered lacerations of the face and were attended by Dr. J. M. Ganey. The car was put out of commission entirely, being damaged to the extent of several hundreds of dollars.

Miss Nelson was passing through Blackhall street and at the corner of Williams street attempted to operate the machine to Williams street. She evidently lost control of the car, for instead of making the turn the car proceeded across Williams street and without the speed being decreased, it crashed against a large tree. The windshield and other glass of the machine was shattered, the steering shaft was broken off and the mudguard and running board were demolished. The crash caused residents to rush to the site of the accident and a hurry call was sent for a physician, Dr. Ganey responding.

Byron Pillsbury, 55 Huntington street, complained to the police this evening that Benjamin Fargo, 160 State street, was keeping a three-burner oil stove belonging to the complainant and that the later was unable to recover his property. Pillsbury alleges that he was a former occupant of the State street building and that when he was moving from the place he allowed Fargo the use of the stove, upon the promise of Fargo to notify him when the stove could be had by Pillsbury. This Fargo never did and today when Pillsbury sought the stove Fargo is alleged to have informed him that the stove was left in a hallway for Pillsbury to take it, but some one had entered the building and stolen it.

A grass fire started this evening on land on Tobin Hill road, off Ocean avenue. It was feared that some of the buildings adjoining the burning tract would become ignited. An alarm was rung in from Box 518, corner of Ocean and Gardner avenues. The Pequot and Ockford Hose companies were the first to arrive the firemen, directed by Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman emptied three tanks of chemicals upon the blaze, while others attacked the fire with hoofins, quickly extinguishing the flames. The same tract was set afire, presumably by boys three weeks ago, the firemen being called out to subdue it.

The much continued case of Jacob M. Linieus, of Glenwood park, charged with reckless driving, is scheduled to be terminated in the police court tomorrow morning. Linieus was operating his automobile on Montauk avenue two months ago and drove the car by a standing trolley car that was discharging passengers at the corner of Sherman street. Miss Agnes Svenberg, 28 Evergreen avenue, was one of the passengers and the young woman was struck, thrown to the highway and dragged a considerable distance. Miss Svenberg suffered a fractured leg and only recently was discharged from Lawrence hospital.

Raymond Neff, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Neff, Station 16, Waterford, is still in an unconscious condition at Home Memorial hospital, having sustained a fracture of skull Wednesday afternoon when struck by an automobile owned and operated by George Chapman, of Golden Spur.

Mrs. Guy Gusi and infant daughter, of 635 Montauk avenue, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Frederick Northrup, of South Lyme; Mrs. Eugene McCall, Providence; William Moorehead, 25 Willetts avenue; Mrs. Joshua Sands, Old Lyme, and Keith Kenyon, Jr., were patients dismissed today at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital.

Frederick G. Smith, of the Gager-Crawford Company, has lodged a complaint with the police because of youths destroying windows of a building owned by the company, corner of Main and Hallam street.

A fellow badly off from imbibing too freely was found in a structure owned by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad corner of Water and Hallam streets this evening by Patrolmen Thomas Lyden and Frank Philopena. He will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

Shortly after 11 o'clock this morning the burglar alarm of the New London City National bank started clanging and as it did so four police officers who were near the corner of State and Bank streets, rushed to the banking institution corner of Bank and Golden streets. Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith and Patrolmen Frank Philopena and John Courtney were the officers. But there was no burglar, the alarm simply having been set in operation by an employee, the bank unconsciously pressing a button behind one of the windows which caused the gong to clang.

Mrs. Effie D. Osborn Miner, 62, wife of Henry C. Miner, 66 Cottage street, Groton, died last night at Lawrence hospital where she had been under treatment but about two weeks. Besides her husband, Mrs. Miner is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Stuart, West Haven. Mrs. Miner was born in New London, the daughter of the late Henry G. and Eliza Huntington Osborn. She resided in New London until her marriage with Mr. Miner. Mrs. Miner was a member of Groton Congregational church.

Dorothy C., infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Avery, of Waterford, died late yesterday after a brief illness. Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the child's parents, Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of Waterford Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in West Neck cemetery, Waterford.

Mrs. Hulda W. Dean, 4, wife of Allen Dean, of Layerville, Old Lyme, died last night at Lawrence hospital, where she had been under treatment but a short time.

TALES BIG LEAGUERS TELL WHEN THEY BECOME COACHES

NEW ORLEANS, April 16 (AP)—In the spring the fancy of the fans turns to thoughts of baseball and sometimes older men think of jokes of baseball and baseball players.

A former pitcher for the New York Giants has been a successful college coach in the South for several years. A South Carolina institution honored the visiting team, coached by the former Giant, with a dance and much against his will the pitcher, a southpaw by the way, was prevailed on to attend.

"I was dancing with one of the girls," he said, "when some guy steps up and takes her away from me.

"I didn't want to walk over to the bench like I was struck out, so I grabs me another one.

"Have you ever been to New York, Coach?" she asks me.

"That was a laugh. I didn't have the heart to tell her I had been around the world with the Joints."

Another former big leaguer changed coaching jobs and was telling a friend about his new assignment.

"This is the finest place you ever heard of," he said. "Believe me or not you can drop in this gym and go out to practice and when you come back every stitch of your clothes will be right where you left 'em."

A third coach was complaining to a newspaper man about the collars players do not shrink from a baseball standpoint. "Of course," said he, "I don't expect these lads to be as smart as I am, but I have it to you, they don't have to be as dumb as they are."

Broadway Theatre

Two roles, so widely different that she literally becomes two separate personages, are played by Mary Philbin, Universal's screen wonder-girl in "Stella Maris," her greatest role since "Merry Go Round," which Carl Laemmle will present at the Broadway theater Sunday night only as the first feature. The new story, founded on William J. Locke's celebrated novel, was directed on a lavish scale by Charles Brabin, one of the foremost directors of the screen, and in every way the production is said to be the biggest opportunity ever afforded the star who leaped to fame overnight in "Merry Go Round."

"Stella Maris" is the graphic love story of two men, loyal friends, and a beautiful woman, crippled since birth, and the supreme sacrifice of a lowly slavey who, loving one of the men with a dog-like devotion, sacrifices her life to gain his happiness.

Miss Philbin is seen in both roles—in one as the beautiful invalid, fragile as a piece of Dresden China — the other, a coarse scrubwoman whose beautiful soul finally triumphs over every handicap of environment and appearance.

The lovers of action pictures will be glad to see an old favorite in the person of Miss Josephine Hill who will appear at the Broadway theatre as the second feature Sunday night only, when it will show "The Blind Trail", featuring Leo Maloney with the marvel horse Monte Cristo, and Bullet, the wonder dog.

Several short subjects include a comedy, news, etc.

Strand Theatre

The feature at the Stand Sunday night only is billed as "Dangerous Odds" and is the newest release in which Bill Cody, western stunt actor of rare personality and ability, appears. In this, Cody plays a part which is very similar to some of the incidents in his own life. He is cast as a clean-cut young western gentleman who has just returned from an agricultural college to take over the range holdings left him by his father. Supporting Cody is Eileen Sedgwick, a winsome young girl very much of the western type, who rides well and acts convincingly. The romance theme involving these two characters is almost fantastic in its lightness and will delight as much as the action and thrills with which the film is replete. You should certainly see this one.

Leo Maloney with Monte Cristo, the marvel horse, and the wonder dog, Bullet, will be seen in their latest feature "The Blind Trail" at the Strand theatre Sunday night only.

In this new opus of the open ranges Leo Maloney who plays the part of the hero with the aid of his pals Monte Cristo, the marvel horse, and Bullet the wonder dog, helps bring the murderers of the money lender to justice.

It is a wonderful story throughout, depicting a certain type of man known to the west who is forever following blind trails for no other reason than to see what may lie beyond the next green hill.

"Perils of the Wild" and comedy are the other subjects.

Those who are interested in questions of international policy may welcome the display in Norwich of the famous five reel moving picture film entitled "Hell and the Way Out." It is the more pertinent because of the uncertainty regarding America's entrance into the world court due to the drastic senate reservations.

The picture portrays a story of the war and also gives views of the sessions of the league of nations at Geneva. America is already cooperating in much of the research and humanitarian and philanthropic work of the league and the present question is whether America should further cooperate through political membership in the league.

Dr. Hannah G. Roach, professor of history and international law at Connecticut college, New London, will be present at the Norwich meeting to explain and to answer questions which may be asked. The meeting opens at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, daylight saving time. The public is invited and admission is free but opportunity will be offered to join the Connecticut branch of the League of Nations Non-Partisan association.

Next Week At United Congregational Church

The Sodalitas will meet in the junior department rooms of the church school at 7:30 on Monday evening, for business, a report of the nominating committee and a social time when members may bring their own work.

The fourth session of the Community Teacher Training school, open to the general public, will be held in the church school rooms at 7:30 on Thursday evening.

The executive committee of the missions department of the Woman's Guild will meet at the home of its chairman, Miss Nancy E. Lucas, 94 Sachem street, at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon.

The Camp-Fire will have a handcraft meeting, for work on ceremonial dresses and on the totem poles, at the Community house at 7:15 on Friday evening.

It's no trouble for a man to brag of his good judgment when he makes a good guess.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CHECKER CAB CO. COMING TO NORWICH

The Checker Cab Co. is going to inaugurate one of its branch cab service stations in Norwich within a short time, and believe that Norwich will give it a hearty support, as well as the other cities it operates in at the present time. The outstanding features of the company will be the attractive appearance of its cabs, and easy riding qualities, all cabs being equipped with hydraulic air shock absorbers, and extra long wheel base.

Sufficient cabs will be guaranteed, to give 100 per cent service 24 hours a day, and the taxi rates will be exceptionally reasonable. In looking over Norwich as a taxi cab field, the Checker Cab Co. can see nothing but success ahead of the them and only ask Norwich for a fair trial on their cab service.

Palace Theatre

Today will be the last showings of the current vaudeville bill at the Palace which has been playing to capacity houses the last half of this week. The bill features the Moulin Rouge Revue and the Lone Star Four a very wonderful singing act with a western atmosphere.

The feature picture is As Man Desires starring Milton Sills and Viola Dana. The show will run continuous today from 1:30 to 10:30. Sunday night will see two great features at the Palace with an entirely new change of program for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Feature No. 1 will be "Speed Mad" with William Fairbanks and Edith Roberts.

Evelyn Brent, star of F. B. O.'s famous crook melodramas, comes to the Palace theatre for a one day engagement Sunday, in a type of picture which departs radically from the roles which she has played recently. "Lady Robinhood," is heralded as the finest bit of dramatic acting Miss Brent has ever done, and the story gives her the picturesque role of a sort of Spanish Joan of Arc; the temperamental and fiery little leader of a band of brave "Carbonari" who have revolted against the unjust local rule of the Alcalde of Manzilla, a little seaport at the foot of the Pyrenees. Thrilling episodes, rapid-fire action, and the superb portrayal of "Lady Robinhood" by Miss Brent make this one of the best pictures of many months, in the opinion of the critics.

Short subjects include an Our Gang comedy, Fables and a charleston reel. The show will start 7 o'clock standard time.

"Any man over 50 years old can never understand the flapper-vamp," declares Constance Talmadge.

The flapper-vamp, by the way, is the latest characterization in Hollywood film circles. Constance has introduced her to the screen in her latest First National comedy, "Learning to Love."

In this fun film, the star as a pretty sub-deb, tries out her wiles on men from 18 to 40. She "flapper-vamps" them all. But as she progresses from one sweetheart to another in the age scale, her troubles multiply.

She finds that only the youth of 20 can understand the feminine machinations of the flapper-vamp of 20, while the man-about-town is inclined to "misunderstand." And of course such misunderstandings lead to trouble.

The comedy was written for Joseph M Schenck Productions by John Emerson and Anita Loos. It will be shown at the Palace theatre next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday.

Antonio Moreno is Constance's leading man.

Breed Theatre

Through the co-operation and aid of the United States government, the air service of both the army and marine divisions was put into use to achieve one of the most thrilling climaxes ever filmed in Marshall Neilan's production "Mike," the picture which comes on Sunday to the Breed theatre.

When the problem was put up to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials by Neilan, they agreed that the idea was marvelous, but doubted if any director could marshall the required number of planes, pilots and stunt men to work in one individual scene. And since the real thrill of the stunt depends upon its exact timing, they knew that no motion picture organization was capable of handling it properly, since they had never been called on to do such a thing before.

Neilan solved the problem by suggesting that the aid of the government be requested. The Army and Marine Air Divisions at San Diego were called upon, and were more than willing to assist in the working out of Neilan's idea. As a result a very thrilling and original climax was obtained.

The cast of "Mike" includes Sally O'Neill, William Haines, Charlie Murray, Ford Sterling, Muriel Frances Dana, Junior Coghlan, Frankie Darro, Ned Sparks and Sam De Grasse.

Moving Pictures At Y. M. C. A. Sunday

On Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, daylight time, in the big Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, moving pictures of real interest will be shown. In addition to a truly interesting reel on the subject, "On the Road to the Pyramids", A. Burton Holmes travelogue, exceedingly impressive pictures of great Bible characters will be shown. "Abram and Sarai", portraying Abram building an altar unto the Lord; Sarah gives Hagar, and later casts her out, and Hagar is confronted by an angel in the wilderness, returns and bears Abram a son, Ishmael. A reel of Isaac and Rebekah, shows the death and burial of Sarah. Abram sends a servant to seek a wife for Isaac. The servant meets Rebecca at the well and asks her parents for Rebecca as wife for Isaac. Isaac and Rebecca are wed. Another reel of Jacob and Rachel, pictures Jacob at Haran receiving instructions from the Lord and vows to serve God. Jacob meets and loves Rachel and agrees to serve her father, Laban seven years for her hand. Jacob deceived into marrying Leah, serves another seven years for Rachel. To this service both men and women are cordially invited, but no boys or girls under 14 will be admitted. Hugh Kinder will furnish music for the pictures, and a brief appropriate talk will be given.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks: Strong; many rails and industrials soar 5 to 13 points.

Bonds: Buoyant; newer bank rate rallies prices in record trading.

Foreign exchanges: Mixed; French franc firm.

Cotton: Higher; fears unfavorable weather.

Sugar: Barely steady; trade selling.

Coffee: Firm; European buying.

Chicago

Wheat: Lower; rains northwest.

Corn: Easy; poor cash demand.

Cattle: Quiet.

Hogs: Steady.

ADVANCE IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, April 23—(AP)—A general advance in stock and bond prices was Wall street's response to the lowering of the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate. Net gains in scores of active issues ranged from 1 to 13 points. United Fruit (old stock) jumped 28 1-2 points on a few sales. Total stock sales crossed 2,000,000 shares for the first time this month and total bond sales reached the gigantic sum of $21,565,000, being exceeded only by the record-breaking total of $25,570,000 on December 11, 1924.

The lower bank rate was accompanied by a further easing of all other monetary accommodations. Call money renewed at 3 1-2 per cent, and then dropped to 3, the lowest official rate since March of last year, but funds were available in the "outside market" as low as 2 3-4. Time money was practically on a flat 4 per cent. basis, as against 4 to 4 1-4 per cent yesterday, and prime commercial paper, which has held relatively firm at 4 1-4 per cent for weeks, was quoted today at 4 to 4 1-4 per cent.

Wall street interpreted the reserve bank's action as an indication that the over-extended speculative position in the stock market, disclosed by the gigantic volume of brokers' loans outstanding early in the year, had been sufficiently corrected to warrant the reduction in money rates as a stimulus to general business, several lines of which had shown a tendency to fall off during the last few weeks. The bank's action caught bear traders unawares, with the result that they were forced into a hurried covering of commitments, many blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares changing hands during the day. Commission houses also reported a substantial increase in public participation, with the operations of professional "bull" pools stimulated by the relative cheapness of money.

While the credit situation was the principal topic of discussion in financial circles, considerable interest also was manifested in the renewal of negotiations for the funding of the French debt, the announcement that General Electric stock would be split up on a four for one basis with the dividend on the new shares inaugurated at 75 cents quarterly the offer of $1,000 per share for Michigan Central stock by the New York Central, and the report that the International Mercantile Marine Co. had received a cash offer for the White Star Line.

The weekly mercantile reviews emphasized the fact that the warmer weather had been helpful to both trade and agriculture. Irregularities in the business situation persist, however. Dun's states that 45 out of the 65 price changes last week.

The advance in stocks was led by the industrial shares. Net gains of 2 to 6 points were recorded by such widely diversified issues as Adams Express Allied Chemical, American Safety Razor, American Smelting, Baldwin Locomotive, Butterick Publishing, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Childs and Co., Continental Insurance, Cuban Dominican Sugar preferred Independent Oil & Gas, National Tea, Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron, Pierce Arrow preferred, Remington Typewriter, Union Bag & Paper, and U. S. Realty. General Electric dropped from 310 1-2 to 308 1-4 on the traditional "Selling on the good news" which followed the announcement of the split-up, but it rallied later to 308 for a net gain of 1 point, closing 5-8 higher at 122 1-2, and Bethlehem Steel advanced a point to 41 1-4 with buying influenced by the splendid quarterly report made public after the close yesterday.

Local tractions were among the few weak spots, selling off on the announcement that the state senate had killed the Thayer bill designed to relieve them from expense in connection with street paving repairs. Interborough Rapid Transit and Third Avenue each fell back about 3 points closing slightly above the low levels of the day.

"Big Four" common soared 12 points to 185 1-4, but most of the other rails showed only moderate advances on the day. Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Frisco common, St. Louis Southwestern and Chesapeake & Ohio all closed a point or two higher.

Commodity markets were mixed. Heavy selling of May and July contracts, said to be for the account of an eastern speculator, brought about a sharp reaction in the wheat market. Cotton prices held steady. Raw sugar was unchanged but futures were slightly easier. Coffee futures advanced 16 to 22 points.

Foreign exchanges held relatively steady. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.85 13-16 and French francs were slightly firmer, just above 3.35 cents.

FAIR TODAY; SHOWERS AND COOLER TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

1798 1926

NORWICH, CONN., SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1926

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Saturday, April 24, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over the middle Mississippi valley Thursday night has moved eastward and dissipated and the northwestern disturbance has advanced to eastern Minnesota.

Pressure is relatively low over the Atlantic states and from southern California eastward to Texas.

Yuma Arizona reports a maximum of one hundred degrees which is the highest temperature reported so far this year from any station.

The Minnesota disturbance will advance eastward and it will be attended by general showers over the states east of the Mississippi river within the next 36 hours.

The weather will remain generally fair in the Atlantic states, however, until Saturday night.

Following the passage of this disturbance, cooler weather will overspread the eastern half of the United States.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Moderate and northeast winds and generally fair weather Saturday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate shifting winds and fair weather Saturday.

Forecast

For northern New England and southern New England: Fair Saturday; Sunday showers and cooler.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Friday:

	Tem.	Bar.
7 a. m.	56	29.96
12 m.	70	29.90
6 p. m.	58	29.90

Highest 70, lowest 56.

Comparisons

Predictions for Friday: Showers and cooler.

Friday's weather: Fair, continued warm, increasing cloudiness.

ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL TO BE BLESSED BY BISHOP

The new St. Joseph school which was just completed will be dedicated next Sunday, May 2, immediately after high mass. Rt. Rev. John Nilan, bishop of Hartford, will bless the new school and will preach at the high mass. At 3 o'clock Bishop Nilan will administer the sacrament of confirmation to some 300 members of the St. Joseph congregation.

Work on the new school was started a year ago. P. F. Sweeney being the general contractor. The building contains 17 class rooms offices for the doctor, principal, teachers, etc. In the basement is a large room with bowling alleys and pool tables for the use of the public. The building is fire-proof and modern in every respect.

The old school is being remodeled for a meeting hall, night school, a meeting hall and domestic science room. Father Hoik is endeavoring to make that a social center for all of the members of the town church but every one else is welcome to avail himself of the social features of the new school.

The building will be opened to the public for inspection next Saturday and Sunday afternoon. It is one of the finest school buildings in the city. The people of Norwich contributed generously toward its equipment and Father Hoik will be very glad to have as many come as possible to see it and to avail themselves of the opportunities that it presents for young and old.

Services in St. Joseph church Sunday will be on standard time, as the following Sunday all masses will be according to daylight saving time.

EVENING OF CARDS FOLLOWED BY DANCING

Division No. 54, Ladies' Auxiliary A. O. H., and O'Connell branch of the A. O. H., held a joint whist and entertainment Friday evening at A. O. H. hall Main street. There were 25 tables of whist, ten of pinochle and one of 45's. The prizes went as follows:

Whist—Ladies, first, Mrs. Edward Sullivan; second, Anna O'Neil; consolation, Mrs. Malone. Men—First, Frank Brooks; second, William Markee; consolation, Thomas Kane.

Pinochle—Ladies, first, Mrs. McCarthy, 6740; second, Mrs. Herman, 6360; consolation, M. Shea, 4850. Men—first, Mr. Rinella, 6630; second, Leslie Brown, 6490; consolation, Mr. McGee, 4240.

45's—First, Patrick Barry; second Daniel O'Neil.

The committee in charge comprised Miss Eva Hyde, chairman, Mrs. Margaret Medaffer, Miss Margaret Sweeney, Miss Catherine O'Connell, Mrs. Julia Brock, Mrs. Nellie O'Neil, from Division No. 54 and from the O'Connell branch, Thomas Connell, chairman; Daniel J. O'Neil, Patrick Barry, Michael O'Connor and Edward Sullivan.

Courtesies were extended by Rt. Rev. Mgsr. Michael Mac, Connecticut council of Catholic women, the Catholic Ladies of Columbus, Hourigan Bros., Quinn and Desmond and the Plastic Cutting company. The latter company loaned one of their new Victrolas to provide music for the dancing which followed the card playing.

CONTINUANCE TAKEN IN FRAUDULENT CHECK CASE

Two men who couldn't pay their fines for intoxication went to jail Friday morning for 15 days. They were presented in the city court at the Friday morning session.

The case against Edward L. McEvoy, former manager of the Palace theatre, was continued until May 1st. He is charged with issuing a fraudulent check on a Jewett City bank for $25 in favor of James Sellas of this city. Mr. Sellas Friday withdrew the charge against Mr. McEvoy, but it is understood that there are other similar checks which Mr. McEvoy has issued. Bonds in the sum of $500 have been given for him by Peter Sellas.

A Danielson man was fined $5 for violating the local traffic rules.

Tanney Company Increasing

The Tanney corporation of this city has just leased a bowling alley at West Warwick, R. I., to add this space to its West Warwick store. This will give 6,000 square feet of floor space and increase the store area to 9,500 quare feet.

The company is to open a store in Hudson, N. Y., and is making an addition, 30x21, to its store in Willimantic.

DIVORCES GRANTED TO FIVE PETITIONERS WITHOUT CONTEST

Five uncontested divorces were granted by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court at the short calendar session in New London Friday.

Dorothy Daniels Bingham of New London was given a divorce from Lewis T. Bingham on grounds of desertion, alleged since Aug. 15, 1919. They were married Sept. 29, 1915. The plaintiff was also granted the custody of two children, David, nine, and Evelyn 11.

On the grounds of desertion alleged since June 5, 1922, Emma Sylvia Burgess of New London was given a divorce from Nelson B. Burgess, formerly of Groton. They were married Dec. 25, 1920. A change of name to Emma Sylvia was also granted the plaintiff.

Bertha R. Greenhalgh, of this city, was given a divorce from Edmund Greenhalgh, of unknown address on the grounds of desertion. They were married in 1915 and desertion was alleged since October, 1925.

Among that list husband was a barber, Fred Wadsworth Green of New London, was granted a divorce and custody of one child from Cyrus A. Green, of this city. They were married April 26, 1919, and the plaintiff testified that her husband represented himself in the marriage application as "second widower." She said that a death notice of Ada Watts Green, published in a newspaper some time after their marriage had caused her to leave him. Another witness, a New London woman, testified that she was engaged to Green but a letter addressed to him by his sister, which fell into her possession caused her to break the engagement for the letter stated that he was married. The custody of Elizabeth, six, was given to the mother.

August Jackowski, of Mystic, was given a divorce from Anna Costik Jackowski on the grounds of adultery. The couple were married July 19, 1920, and the plaintiff testified that in 1924 his wife left him, residing for seven months in Philadelphia and after her return he discovered that she had committed an offense for which he brought suit for divorce. Deputy Sheriff William Casey of Mystic testified that when he served the papers upon the defendant, she said that she had told her husband what she had done. The sheriff said that just after he left the house he heard the sound of a bottle being smashed and upon rushing into the house found that the wife had taken a dose of iodine. A physician was summoned and she recovered. The plaintiff was also given custody of two minor children.

TRANSFER ALLOWED TO DO JUSTICE, SAYS JUDGE

In granting the motion of transfer made by Atty. Joseph P. Berry, counsel for the defendants in the cases of Dan Brewster Hall v. New London Board of State Aid; Atty. Hadlai A. Hull, counsel for Silas Allen & Co., Inc., Edward N. Allen, as vice-president, and Miss Florence Reeves, former store detective, all of Hartford, and also against the vice-president personally, both suits involving damages of $300,000, Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court in his memorandum of decision says:

"Since it is my opinion and conclusion on the facts set forth in the motion, and certain other facts which were in some measure alluded to and discussed during the arguments thereof, that the cause of justice requires the defendant's motion be granted. The case is hereby ordered transferred to the superior court in New Haven county."

Judge Brown in the same matter granted permission to amend the demurrer. Thereupon Reeves' plea in abatement was [illegible]

NORWICH SCHOOL BOYS EXHIBIT BIRD HOUSES

The annual exhibit of bird houses made by the boys of the seventh grade in the manual training department of the Norwich public schools, under the direction of Walter U. Frechler, manual training teacher, is made in the window of the Sisk drug store on Franklin square.

This exhibit is of particular interest at this time because both the president of the United States and the governor of Connecticut have issued proclamations on plant life of our country.

President Coolidge proclaimed the week April 18-24, 1926 as American Forest week in order to interest the people in tree planting and forest conservation. The governor of this state has in his proclamation designated Friday April 23 as Arbor and Bird day and urges all to turn their thoughts and actions toward preservation of our plant and bird life.

For a number of years past the boys in the seventh grades have been making bird houses as one of their manual training problems in the public schools of the town. After the boys finish their bird houses they put them up in their own yards if possible.

During the last three years 340 bird houses have been made. Of the 139 houses made last year over half of them are already occupied by the birds. Several boys report that the houses were used during the winter as shelters from the storms. With the 146 now under construction by the boys this spring, there will have been 486 bird houses built.

This shows that the boys are doing their part to save bird life which in turn saves the forests and other plant life. This prevents much damage as the birds kill the insects which cause millions of dollars of damage a year to trees and other plant life of this country.

The exhibit shows 15 houses of ten different designs. They include homes for bluebirds, robins, woodpeckers, wrens and titmouse.

Each house is made according to dimensions given out by the U. S. department of agriculture, which have proven to be the best suited to the various birds.

The bird houses are stained a dull green or brown and the roof is covered with bark which gives them a natural or rustic appearance which the bird desires.

COURT ORDER ALLOWS STONINGTON CHURCH SALE

Most of the motions slated to be heard at Friday's short calendar session of the superior court in New London before Judge Christopher L. Avery today, went off.

After a lengthy argument by Attorney John P. Huntington of this city, the motion to amend supplemental judgment in the case of the Norwich Savings society against the Ironsides Board Corp., and others, was continued for one week in order that further arguments might be made by the opposition.

Attorney Huntington, representing the savings society, sought to have the sum of $732.18, now in the hands of the clerk of the superior court awarded to the savings society. The motion was opposed by Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, representing the receiver of the Uncas Paper Board Co., and the Texas Co., while Attorney Thomas M. Shields represented the trustee in bankruptcy of the Ironsides Board Corp.

An order authorizing the sale of real estate and one authorizing the receiver to sell the personal estate of the Third Baptist society, of Stonington, in the case of Stiles H. F. Ross, and others, against the Third Baptist society, was entered.

A motion for bill of particulars and are for counsel fee for defendant; were granted in the case of John R. Taylor against Bernice Main Taylor.

The case of the state of Connecticut against John J. Metcook, executor, and others, was continued for one week.

The following cases went off:

George Walden against Ida Walden; allowance to defend.

O'Connor and others against Ball & Co., approval of receiver's semi-annual statement.

Dorothy M. Riley against Dimitry, and others; motion for default.

Florence M. Riley against Dimitry and others, motion for default.

Dunn against Lapointe Co., and others, appeal from compensation commissioner; motion to cause appeal from the finding and award of the compensation commissioner.

NORWICH ON DAYLIGHT TIME NEXT MONDAY

Beginning at two a. m. Sunday, April 25th and continuing until two a. m. Sunday, September 26th, the train schedules of the New Haven railroad will be changed to conform to the daylight saving law of Massachusetts and the city ordinances of New York.

In accordance with the daylight saving custom of the majority of the cities and towns of Connecticut and of New York state, as well as in many of the New England cities and towns Norwich will conduct its business on this summer schedule. All the factories, the stores, the banks and the offices in Norwich will operate on daylight saving time beginning next Monday April 26th.

THREE PASTORS ARE TO BAPTIZE AT SERVICE

Two special services have been arranged for Sunday in the First Baptist church, Rev. Lewis A. Walker of the Calvary Baptist church, Westerly, R. I., will preach on the topic, "The Secret of His Presence" at the morning worship hour. Rev. Mr. Walker was formerly the pastor of Rev. Edward C. Dunbar.

At the evening worship hour the ordinance of baptism will be administered by Rev. J. F. Speerli, Fitchville, Rev. A. G. Littlefield, Lebanon, and by the pastor of the church, Mrs. Grace Langlois will repeat by request her Easter solo, "Jesus Calls You." Both services will be on standard time.

MISSIONARY SPEAKERS FOR JUNIOR RALLY HERE

A rally for the boys and girls of the junior department of the eastern Connecticut branch, Woman's Board of Missions, will be held in the church school rooms of the United Congregational church on Saturday afternoon, April 24th, at three o'clock. The speaker is to be Miss Frances Tredwell, who has lived both in Spain and Mexico. She has interesting curios to show illustrating the stories of Mexican life which she will tell. All boys and girls fourteen years old, or younger, will have the opportunity of hearing more about our next door neighbors.

ECONOMY CO. WILL ENTERTAIN ITS EMPLOYES

The Economy Grocery company will on Sunday, April 25th act as hosts to a large group of employes and their families in their new warehouse at Park and Oakland avenue, East Hartford. Many will attend from distant points in the state where the company stores are located. Modern machinery used in the preparation and handling of foodstuffs will be in full operation. Entertainment will be provided in the form of a motion picture show followed by a luncheon.

EXTENDED DISCUSSION IS LIKELY ON FRENCH DEBT

Commission Will Ask Payment of More Than $25,000,000 Annually the Amount Proposed by Ambassador Berenger—Conference Will Be Resumed Today—Favorable Action by the Senate on the Belgians Debt is Anticipated Within a Few Days.

WASHINGTON, April 25—(AP)—Long steps toward a solution of America's war debt funding problem probably will be taken this week.

The debt commission will resume consideration tomorrow of France's new settlement offer and a showdown in the renewed negotiations is expected before the end of the week.

Favorable action is anticipated in the senate within a few days on a vote on the Belgian debt funding agreement, with the remaining four debt pacts receiving attention soon afterward. These include the agreements with Rumania, Latvia, Esthonia and Czecho-Slovakia.

Upon disposition of the French debt negotiations, the commission will take up, probably this week, a proposed settlement with Jugo-Slavia, one of the only two remaining debtor nations with which terms have not been arranged.

There is every indication, however, that extended discussion will be necessary before an agreement is reached on the funding of the $4,000,000,000 total owed. While pleased with the offer of Ambassador Berenger he will be asked to make a higher first payment than $30,000,000 annually, as he proposed, and he will be asked to offer even further any suggestion of funding balance in the event of failure of Germany to meet its reparations obligations.

HOUSE LEADERS FIGURE ON ADJOURNMENT MAY 15

WASHINGTON, April 25—(AP)—Unless word from the white house, republican leaders in congress will redouble their efforts this week to get the major portion of important legislation out of the way, adjournment can be taken by May 15.

Leaders declare that they can arrange for adjournment by May 15, even if the senate leaders are not certain that the senate can wind up its business within a space of three weeks.

Admittedly the end of the prohibition hearings has cleared the atmosphere for more serious consideration of senate business, but with the Belgian and four other debt settlements, and several other pieces of important legislation pending the senate would have to move with unusual celerity to get away before June 1.

The Belgian debt settlement bill will be taken up again Monday and will be followed by the legislative appropriation bill and the $165,000,000 public buildings bill.

Farm relief legislation also still is pending and there will be a drive for action before adjournment.

The house agriculture committee still has to report on a crop of surplus relief measure.

The Muscle Shoals committee must report on a contract for leasing that plant on Monday, but there is little prospect that congress will act on the report at this session.

The house plans to pass the bill for the re-organization of the prohibition unit in the treasury Tuesday, but the senate finance committee has yet to act upon it. Several other administration measures for tightening up the Volstead act have been submitted, but their fate at this session is in the balance.

Having concluded the prohibition hearing, the senate will turn to another this week—the investigation of the tariff commission, which will be resumed before the special committee with Commissioner Costigan again on the stand.

House committees will be comparatively inactive during the week, but the ways and means committee will resume consideration tomorrow of the controversial mills bill proposing that the government issue $250,000,000 in bonds to pay Americans awarded claims against Germany with these bonds to be retired eventually out of German reparations payments under the Dawes plan.

RIVER FLOOD THREATENS HARTFORD WATER FRONT

HARTFORD, April 25—(AP)—The Connecticut river which rose to flood stage Saturday, threatening water supply and river shipping, continued slowly over night and had reached a height of 18.6 feet late today, a rise of more than two feet in 24 hours.

Heavy showers early Sunday and Monday were in many parts of New England the cause of the river's rise. It reached flood crest at Hartford at 10 o'clock Sunday morning and the United States weather bureau continued to issue flood warnings stating that the rains of Monday would cause the river to rise 18 inches more during the next 48 hours.

The river which had reached flood stage at Hartford was at 17.5 this morning and continued to rise to ten o'clock when a strong current noticeably slowed the ship channel. The current in its course here at Hartford increased in velocity as the water rose and was swept along large quantities of debris which had been carried down during the afternoon.

Many families in the flooded area have moved to higher ground. Hundreds of people in the Connecticut valley and the East Hartford district were driven from their homes during the day. Many factories in the flooded area closed down during the day. Many reported no other cause for the shut down than the amount of drift in the river which was scarcely stationary, made progress backward.

CONNECTICUT RIVER PILOT SUICIDED IN EAST HARTFORD

HARTFORD, April 25—(AP)—William [illegible] 57, for 15 years a river pilot in the employ of the Hartford and New York Transportation company, committed suicide shortly after 2 o'clock this morning by hanging himself with a rope, in a barn in the rear of his home on Forbes street, East Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Mason, 185 Silver lane, East Hartford.

Mason had piloted his boat to New York Saturday night and returned to Hartford by rail early this afternoon, leaving his wife, Mrs. Jane Reed Mason, a bride of three months, at her home in Eastbrook to went to the home of parents. Where he hanged himself was later an hour later.

He appeared cheerful on his arrival, and nobody could be advanced as to why he should take his life. He leaves his wife and parents.

START OF THE NORGE FOR SPITZBERGEN POSTPONED

LENINGRAD, Russia, April 25—(AP)—The Amundsen-Ellsworth dirigible Norge was not expected for Spitzbergen before April 28. This announcement was made today when Colonel Nobile, commander of the dirigible, sent a message to the Italian air ministry in Rome stating that word from Vadso, Spitzbergen, indicated that the dirigible would be ready at the end of the month and the mooring mast [illegible] May 2.

Several Italian technical experts and workmen arrived at Kings Bay April 20 to speed up the work preliminary to the arrival of the Norge.

At Vadso, northernmost tip of Norway, where the Norge will make a stop before crossing the sea to Spitzbergen, everything is in readiness for the dirigible's reception.

STREAMS IN VERMONT EIGHT FEET ABOVE SUMMER LEVELS

MONTPELIER, Vt., April 25—(AP)—Water courses in this vicinity rose to flood heights as a result of heavy rain and warm today, following three days of warm weather. Streams were eight feet above summer levels. Cellars of several buildings in the business district were flooded, but no extensive damage was reported.

TROUBLE FOR MUSSOLINI IN THE ITALIAN TYROL

BASLE, Switzerland, April 25—(AP)—Seemingly undermined master of Italy, Benito Mussolini, has on the Italian Tyrol a problem before the war as part of Austria a political problem so delicate a nature that it will undoubtedly prove a great test of his patience and skill.

In a speech before the chamber of deputies in February last Mussolini declared with reference to Brenner Pass, that "Brenner is ours, if necessary, carry further beyond its treasury, but never lower it." Now, however he must by tactful politics seek to woo over to Italy some 150,000 people of German descent who dominate a district which [illegible] calls the Upper Adige, but which the Austrians and Germans call Southern Tyrol.

A special correspondent of the Associated Press has recently visited this district and has just returned to Basle. Many persons in the disputed district declare that Mussolini has begun wrong, because, contrary to what Austria did to Italian residents of Austria before the war, Mussolini has banned the teaching of German in the elementary schools throughout an immense area occupied for centuries by what are now German speakers. When Trent before the war was part of Austria, the Austrian empire permitted Italians who dominated the district to have their own schools with the Italian language, but the Mussolini government vetoed a similar privilege for the Germans, whose main college is to the north near the new Austrian frontier, and particularly at Bozzano, Merano, Bressanone and Brunico.

FARMERS ARE RESENTING CHANGE TO DAYLIGHT TIME

PLAINFIELD, April 25—(AP)—Farmers in this section have made good their threat to boycott the Providence and Willimantic railroad if they were forced to meet the morning train an hour earlier because of daylight saving time. Plainfield, Moosup, Central Village, Fast Rock, Black Hill, Sterling Hill, North Sterling, South Plainfield, and all outlying districts are shipping their milk to Providence by motor truck.

Agents of the farmers are also enlisting the interests of dairymen in the town of Lisbon, West Canterbury, and Sprague with a view to using motor truck transportation for milk.

FAIL OF AGREEMENT ON RIFFIAN AFFAIRS

OUJDA, Morocco, April 25 (AP)—The preliminary peace negotiations are at a standstill, while the delegates await instructions from Paris and Madrid. The French, Spanish and Riffians in various conferences Saturday failed to agree on several points, making it necessary to communicate with the capitals.

Present indications are that the delegations will get together again unofficially Tuesday.

OBITUARY

Ralph Mackenzie

CHICAGO, April 25—(AP)—Ralph Mackenzie, an "old timer" before the footlights died here today, his neck broken in the finale of a comic vaudeville skit while the unsuspecting audience laughed its approval.

Mackenzie played the part of an old professor who was hazed by a group of college students and finally tossed in a blanket.

While presenting the act Friday night, Mackenzie struck the taut blanket headlong. Other members of the company sensed his injury when Mackenzie became limp and they stopped the performance.

Smiling while the house rang with laughter, Mackenzie slipped off stage and was taken at once to a hospital. The actor was for years a stage manager in New York city, recently organizing his own vaudeville troupe.

WARNING BY CLERGYMEN AGAINST MODERN DANCING

OSSIAN, Ind., April 25—(AP)—The ecclesiastical hand was lifted here today against the modern dance. While church members were heeding the decrees of dancing officers of the Post W. Schooser post of the American Legion went ahead with plans for another dance on Wednesday, May 5.

Methodist and Presbyterian ministers warned their congregations of the dangerous contaminating influences. The Rev. Preston Edmonds of the Methodist church said "the basis of dancing is sex, and sex is like electricity. There is real danger in electricity not in having it in our homes but in what might happen from it.

At the Presbyterian church the Rev. N. A. Ardeen admitted that some of his members attended the dances.

"I do not want to be Pharisaic," Rev. Ardeen said. "I only want to guard the morals of the people of this community. The danger is in what will come of the dance hall if it is permitted to remain here. We will find that after it will come Sunday motion, Sunday baseball, and half a mile after that—pool houses.

R. W. Bushee, commander of the Legion post composed of unjust treatment of the heads of the church.

"The dances are not fair for any school district," he said. "Invitations are sent out and only those invited by legion members are permitted to attend.

"The dances are properly chaperoned and we have even invited the ministers, both to chaperone and to see that we are unashamed of the dances and the manner in which they are conducted."

NO TRACE OF AVIATORS MISSING IN ALASKA

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, April 25—(AP)—Efforts to pick up message radio signals from Captain George H. Wilkins, commander of the Detroit Arctic expedition, today, the tenth since he set out for Point Barrow in the expedition's single motor plane were unavailable, the North American newspaper alliance reported.

The expedition members, however, maintained their optimistic confidence that the missing commander was safe at the camp at Point Barrow.

Point Barrow now has from 18 to 20 hours of daylight with only a short dusk intervening between sunset and sunrise. It has been suggested as a possible cause for Captain Wilkins' silence and the difficulty of communication with the party which left Fairbanks by the overland route.

However, both Captain Wilkins and the overland party are equipped with short wave radio sets which are not so seriously affected by earthly sets using longer wave lengths.

BOSTON AUTO PATROLS TO WEAR REVOLVERS OUTSIDE

BOSTON, April 25—(AP)—Automobile patrols armed with riot guns have been established and motorcycle officers have been granted permission to wear their revolvers in outside holsters under a new general police order which went into effect today. Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley issued the order after analysis of similar experiments in other cities in an attempt to further check motor banditry and holdups.

From midnight until 7 a. m. daily two patrolmen from each division will patrol their district in an automobile, keeping in touch with their station house through route officers and call boxes. Both men will be armed with riot guns in addition to their regulation equipment.

The division patrols will be used for both prevention and pursuit purposes. Their routes will be so arranged that a number of machines may be concentrated quickly at one place and an automobile cordon may be established across any section of the city.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Death of Ellen Key

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 25—(AP)—Ellen Key, who has had a powerful influence on Swedish literature died today at the age of seventy-six years.

Ellen Key was a lecturer of great fervor and in her writings was noted for originality. Because of her intellect and moral teachings she was known as the "Pallas of Sweden."

She was the daughter of Emil Key and Countess Sophia Posse, and was unmarried.

Sir Shadforth Watts Dead

LONDON, April 25—(AP)—Sir (Fenwick) Shadforth Watts, chairman of the shipping federation, died here today. He had been president of the chamber of shipping of the United Kingdom and principal representative of the shipowners on the national maritime board. He was born in 1858.

BRIDGEPORT BOY MISSING FROM MILITARY ACADEMY

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 25—(AP)—Apprehension over the disappearance of Aaron Waldegg, 19, of Bridgeport, Conn., a cadet at St. John's military academy, Manlius, was not felt until today when Colonel Guido Verbeck, school commandant, received word from the boy's parents that he had not returned to his home.

The boy's unannounced departure from the academy was not discovered until yesterday when a search was made throughout the vicinity of the school and police of Syracuse notified of his disappearance. Even then no alarm was felt, schoolmates of Waldegg and authorities believing he had gone only a short distance and would return within another twenty-four hours.

When the time passed and it was learned that Waldegg had but $2 and a few personal belongings with him when he left, news of his disappearance was broadcast from radio station WFBL and the Syracuse police sent a description of the youth to all large cities. Meantime an intensive search is in progress in the vicinity.

Colonel Verbeck declared that the boy left school while despondent because of fear he might be dropped from school for low scholarship. Because Waldegg had often spoken of going "far west" on moments of discouragement when he had his troubles to his commandant, it was thought the most probable he had gone to the Pacific coast and would be found in the vicinity of Los Angeles.

The missing student is described as 5 feet, 7 inches in height, weighs 132 pounds, has a dark complexion, dark brown eyes, long, thin nose, black wavy hair, upper teeth protruding. He wore a gray suit and a soft hat with brim turned down.

DROPPED 800 FEET BEFORE OPENING HIS PARACHUTE

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 25—(AP)—Art Smertz, sergeant in the army air service reserve, dropped 800 feet before opening his parachute after leaping from an airplane flying at an altitude of 4,000 feet here today. He landed safely.

Smertz, who previously announced he would attempt to pull the rip cord of his parachute at 2,500 feet, expressed disappointment at his failure to set a world's record drop of 3,000 feet.

The aviator used a parachute which the army lieutenant Alexander Thompson of the 324th observation squadron had invented. Approximately 35,000 persons witnessed Smertz's performance.

TWO WOMEN INJURED IN COLLISION OF AUTOS

NEW HAVEN, April 25—(AP)—Miss Betty Robb and Miss Juliette Munat, of New York city, were injured in a collision of automobiles here today and were taken to New Haven hospital. Miss Robb sustained severe lacerations about the face from flying glass while Miss Munat received a broken leg.

Lloyd Reynolds, of New York, operator of the machine in which the two girls were riding, and Leo Mauro, the driver of the second car involved in the accident, were placed under arrest charged with reckless driving.

BORDEN $300,000 SUMMER HOME DSTROYED BY FIRE

REMSON, N. J., April 25—(AP)—"Old Oaks," summer home of Howard S. Borden, cotton manufacturer, was destroyed today by a fire believed to have been caused by lightning. The loss, estimated at $300,000, included a $60,000 pipe organ and numerous paintings. Arthur Borden, Princeton student, son of the owner, and the only member of the family at present in this country, did not know whether any of the paintings destroyed were masterpieces.

FORMER BULL FIGHTER LUIS MAZANTINI DEAD

MADRID, April 25—(AP)—Luis Mazantini, bullfighter and member of parliament died here today.

A man of vast culture and thrifty, he became prosperous, retired from the arena and entered politics and was elected to the cortes, the Spanish parliament. He was the only representative of the world of blood and sand in the Spanish chamber of deputies.

King Alfonso was a great friend and admirer of Mazantini.

NEW HAVEN, April 25—(AP)—Held up at the point of a gun by two men in Dixwell avenue, tonight, Michael Demato, employed in a motion picture house in the vicinity, was relieved of a gold watch and chain valued at $45 and $8.65 in cash. The hold-up men escaped.

Wheeler Scores The Tactics of The Wets

Finds That a Large Part of the Drys' Time Was Consumed by Filibuster Cross-Examination.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—Tactics of the wets at the senate prohibition hearing, which closed yesterday, were attacked again today by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, who explained in a statement that he refrained from taking the witness stand because of the "wets' plan to use up the drys' time by my cross-examination."

"I planned to take the stand," he said, "until it was evident what the wet plans were, and then the committee in charge of our part of the hearings agreed that we would circumvent them." Without mentioning Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, who was the wet prosecutor and cross-examiner, Mr. Wheeler declared that "as it was, a large part of the drys' time was consumed by filibuster cross-examination."

Mr. Wheeler's statement and another by Representative LaGuardia, progressive-socialist, New York, served to break the Sunday lull in the wake of the heated course of the hearing. Mr. LaGuardia suggested that Mr. Wheeler be appointed prohibition director, with a staff of officers approved by the "extreme dry advocates," and given until January or February to "do anything they desire to enforce this law."

"I will not," he added, "that they would have to admit that the prohibition law cannot be enforced and must be modified."

Asserting that "we have nothing to conceal about the league methods or programme," Mr. Wheeler said every phase of the organization's political activities were revealed by him in an admittedly unauthorized cross-examination by congress and Tinkham" before a sub-committee of the house appropriations committee when it was discussing prohibition appropriations.

At that time, he said, he inserted in the record the "indefensible methods of the wets and they have never dared use that testimony or document. The wet charge that we are now raising one million dollars for the coming congressional primaries and elections is false. I have their letters and literature in which they ask for $300,000 for this identical purpose in addition to the $200,000 which they claim they have regularly.

"Our legislative committee has sent out an appeal for $50,000 to offset this. We can make one dollar go about as far as twelve of theirs. We need only inform the people of the records of congressmen. Dry voters do the rest.

"Our opponents have to resort to the old-time costly political methods of saloon days and then get licked to a frazzle just as they did in the recent Illinois primaries."

Representative LaGuardia estimated that "at least one million quarts of liquor are consumed each day in the United States and in his opinion "such an enormous traffic in liquor could not be carried on without the knowledge, if not the connivance, of the officials entrusted with the enforcement of the law."

He believed that the percentage of whiskey drinkers in this country now is greater than in any other country, and that "prohibition is responsible" for that condition.

"I am for temperance," he said, "that is why I am for modification."

YOUTH FATALLY SHOT DURING POLICE RAID

FAIRFIELD, April 25—(AP)—The autopsy which was performed by Medical Examiner Dr. William H. Donaldson this morning at the Bridgeport city morgue failed to disclose the bullet which caused the death of Harry Fischer, twenty, of 505 Maplewood avenue, Bridgeport, when police officers raided a "crap game" in the rear of the Nathan Hale school early Saturday evening. The five officers who participated in the raid were placed under arrest by State Police Sergeant Walter Linehan of the Westport barracks today on technical charges. The action was taken because none of the officers admitted firing the shot which resulted in the fatality. The officers have been paroled in the custody of Prosecutor William A. Kinsella. They were not required to furnish any bond other than that which they were already under as police officers.

Coroner John J. Phelan will conduct an inquest tomorrow afternoon at the Fairfield town hall. The funeral of the youth was held this afternoon at his home.

TO MAKE CLINICAL STUDY OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

NEW YORK, April 25—(AP)—Teachers of international law and relations from 49 colleges in the United States will visit Europe this summer as the guests of the Carnegie endowment for international peace, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the endowment and of Columbia university, announced today.

The teachers, representing 25 states will make "a clinical study of international organization and international association," Mr. Butler said.

A visit to The Hague will be followed by a trip to Geneva, where the party will study the organization of the secretariat of the league of nations and the international labor office. All will remain in Geneva for the annual meeting of the league in September.

Mgr. Bazan held his seat since 1911.

Renew Efforts Today to Salvage Sub. S-51

Flotilla With 200 Officers and Men, Including 25 Expert Divers, to Work Off Block Island.

NEW YORK, April 25—(AP)—The navy's second effort to salvage the sunken submarine S-51 is under way. Three tugs will leave the Brooklyn Navy yard tomorrow to join the two tugs which left Friday for the spot 14 miles southeast of Block Island where the submarine is imbedded in sand 128 feet beneath the surface.

With the gathering of the salvage fleet, work will be pushed to raise the vessel and tow it to Brooklyn Navy yard, where it will be opened and search made for the 29 or more bodies of the crew, and only a few bodies were recovered.

The naval tugs Sagamore and Falcon left Brooklyn Navy yard Friday for the scene of the spring attempt to salvage the submarine, which resisted all their efforts last fall. Tomorrow morning the tugs Penobscot and Ioka, will sail, followed in the afternoon by the vessel Commander Ellsberg, naval construction expert in charge of the operations, will sail with his flotilla, and will command a working force of about 200 officers and men, including 25 expert navy divers.

The pontoons of 40 tons each which the navy expects will raise the submarine from its sand bed, after it has been sealed and the water forced out by compressed air, are being held at Newport, R. I., and will be taken to the scene of operations later.

WHITTEMORE CASE MAY GO TO THE JURY TODAY

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 25.—(AP)—With indications that the life of Richard Reese Whittemore, dapper leader of a New York bandit gang will be placed in the hands of supreme court jury tomorrow afternoon by Justice Thomas H. Noonan, there is a possibility that the verdict may be announced before night. Although about eight more persons will take the witness stand it is said that their examination will probably be brief and the court and opposing attorneys expect that the final proof will have been heard, summation made and the jury charged by late tomorrow afternoon.

District Attorney Guy B. Moore and defense Attorney W. Bartlett Sumner tonight said that they expect to cross-examine one witness each and to call three new witnesses each. They did not disclose the identity of their witnesses. It is known, however, that Mr. Sumner wants to question Alfred Quigglesberg of Lancaster, state identification witness and that Mr. Moore will seek to assail the defense alibi that Whittemore was in Philadelphia on the morning of the crime.

Whittemore is charged with participating in the robbery of $82,000 from the bank of Buffalo money car on October 29 and in the killing of Charles W. Clifford and Lewis M. Yerington, bank messengers.

Mrs. Whittemore known as the "Tiger Girl," is expected to attend the court session tomorrow. She visited her husband at the county jail today. The shadow of the electric chair was forgotten for nearly an hour while they laughed and joked. "I am confident Dick is innocent and that all will come out all right" Mrs. Whittemore told reporters.

Mrs. Whittemore admitted that she was born in Baltimore. In response to a question of whether she had known Whittemore's since childhood, she answered:

"I have known him a long time."

She refused to say where they were married.

FORMER TROOPER HAS BEEN CROWNED SHAH OF PERSIA

Reza Khan Pehlevi, Erstwhile of the Persian Cossacks, Yesterday Became the New Sovereign Amid Scenes of Oriental Splendor—Festivities Will Continue Throughout the Week—A Modern Feature of the Occasion Will Be the Opening of a New Wireless Station.

TEHRAN, Persia, April 25.—(AP)—The new shah of Persia, Reza Khan Pehlevi, who rose from the humble station of groom and trooper in the Persian cossacks, was crowned today amid scenes of Oriental splendor. The ceremony took place in the Museum hall of the old Gulistan palace. Festivities followed which will continue throughout the week, for the most part these will comprise the ancient customs of Persia, but a modern feature will be the opening of a new wireless station.

At the top of the hall facing the entrance stood the peacock throne. Immediately below were aides-de-camp with the imperial flag and a few feet away was the Naderi throne.

Shortly before 4 o'clock the young crown prince, followed by members of the cabinet, the governor of Teheran, the court ministers and functionaries entered the hall. The prime minister bore the Kajar crown, the chief court minister, the Pehlevi crown, which had been specially prepared for the occasion, the minister of war, the Jehanghoosha sword, the minister of posts and telegraphs, the pearl crown, the minister of justice, the royal sceptre, the minister of works, the collar of the Daria-I-Nur diamond brought from Delhi by Nadir Shah, the minister of the interior, the mace, and the minister of finance, the new shah's portrait.

The same commandments were carried by court officials, as well as the battle axe.

The crown prince stood at the right of the throne, beside the others being in a subservient active. On the right the peacock throne and stretching from the upper to the lower end of the hall were assembled separate groups of Ulema, including representatives of the Christian churches, judges, members of the nobility and representatives of the guilds of merchants in the order named.

On the left were ranged the diplomatic corps, ladies of foreign countries, first class military officers, the heads of the various ministries and representatives of the Persian and foreign press.

The shah entered the hall a few minutes later wearing the royal mantle. With him were the court chamberlains. He took his seat on the peacock throne. The head of the Ulema gave a blessing and offered prayers for the prosperity of the new shah. He presented the pendent crown which Reza Khan placed on his own head. The other ministers came then and presented the sceptre and other articles of the royal regalia.

At the close of the presentation the shah read a brief speech, after which there were speeches by the premier and the chief court ministers. The shah, accompanied by the crown prince, drove in state amid the cheers of the assemblage to the streets to the private Qadjar palace. He will return to Teheran tomorrow.

Reza Khan, after he became premier and assumed autocratic powers in 1925, really aspired to become sovereign. He was possessed of both strategy and statesmanship, and declared himself in favor of a republic. He carried out a successful coup which ousted the Kajar dynasty. He suddenly changed his mind and announced his intention of becoming monarch.

Shah Ahmed Jakar was then in Paris, and he was deposed. This latter was not a difficult one, for Ahmed Kajar spent most of his time on the Riviera and gave little attention to the needs of his country. From his Paris retreat, after announcement of his deposition, Ahmed Kajar issued a pronouncement saying:

"I am, and I remain, the legitimate and constitutional sovereign of Persia, and I await the hour to return to my country to continue to serve my people."

88-YEAR OLD WOMAN WINS THE LESLIE DANA MEDAL

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP)—Miss Louisa Lee Schuyler, 88 years old and confined to her home by illness, will be awarded the Leslie Dana medal this year for the most outstanding achievement in the prevention of blindness, the national committee for the prevention of blindness announced today.

Miss Schuyler was awarded the medal in recognition of her work in launching the movement to prevent blindness in eyes. She has retained an active interest in the work in spite of her confinement.

The national committee gave Miss Schuyler credit for reducing, by half, an infantile affliction which at the time she took up the work accounted for the blindness of 35 per cent of the children registered in schools for sightless.

The national committee, itself a result of her effort, also gave Miss Schuyler credit for much of the educational and publicity activity in aid of the blind.

FRENCH DEPUTIES HAVE ADOPTED THE 1926 BUDGET

PARIS, April 25—(AP)—In a late Sunday session the chamber of deputies adopted the 1926 budget, 427 votes to 156. The measure now will go before the senate for action on the minor modifications made by the chamber, and it is hoped that the bill will be finally enacted in the early days of the week.

The question of France's debts to Great Britain and the United States came to the fore in the closing minutes of the discussion, when M. Perret, the finance minister, pleading for the chamber's co-operation, said he was engaged under the most difficult conditions with the inter-allied debt negotiations, and promised that the government would "defend up to the last the rights and interests of France."

With the budget and debt settlements out of the way, he would devote the forthcoming parliamentary recess to preparations of measures that would provide for final rehabilitation of the country's finances and amortization of the floating debt.

FRENCH TAKE STRONGHOLD OF THE DRUESE INSURGENTS

BEIRUT, Syria, April 25.—(AP)—The French troops today captured Soueida, the principal stronghold of the insurgents in the Djebel Druse district, after a six hour action.

Soueida lies in the Djebel Druse country. It was first captured by the Druses last August. They failed, however, in an attempt to seize the French citadel.

A French relief column entered the Forst Sept. 24 and rescued the garrison of 500 Frenchmen who had held out for six weeks suffering much from lack of food.

The French shortly afterward withdrew from the Djebel Druse district and concentrated all forces in Damascus.

Operations intended to clear the whole Soueida country of rebellious tribesmen were started last week.

DR. WISE HAS ABANDONED STUDYING FOR MINISTRY

NEW YORK, April 25—(AP)—James Freeman Wise, son of Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue, and prominent Zionist, has repudiated formal Jewish theology after studying two years to become a rabbi, he announced today, and will not carry on his father's ministry.

Two of his beliefs are that "Judaism as a religion has ceased to play a vital part in Jewish life" and that "Judaism as a religion cannot survive."

The young man said that the Jew was "never further away from Christianity than he is today."

ANNUAL AWARDS MADE BY AMERICAN RED CROSS

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—The American Red Cross today announced its annual awards for unusual feats in first aid and rescue work achieved by Americans during the year, and also award of the Lockwood cup.

The cup was won by the junior life saving crew of the recreation department, Grand Rapids, Mich., for qualifying 160 boys and girls during the year as life savers.

James G. Wilkie, employed by the Western Electric company, Vancouver, Wash., was the winner of the first prize for first aid for saving the life of Charles M. Benham, a fellow-employe, who came in contact with a high voltage wire. Elmer Ray Porter, of Greensburg, Pa., got second prize for controlling the blood flow from a severed artery of Charles Fyock of Stoyestown, Pa. Third prize went to William Selman, an employee of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, for the rescue of Harry Salval, near Winnemucca, Nevada, after an automobile accident. Fred Wulint of Biloxi, Miss., got fourth award for rescuing C. W. Moore from the entanglement of a live wire.

First prize for life-saving went to George B Dimitroff, Jamaica Plain, Mass., for rescuing Eugene Churchill, 11 years old, from drowning at York Beach, Maine, last September. Mrs. Ruth Sutton, of Jacksonville, Fla., got second prize for rescuing four girls from the surf at Jacksonville Beach. Miss Helen Loux of Pocatello, Idaho, was awarded third prize, for rescuing two men from the surf at Seaside, Cal.

Fourth prize went to James F. Whitten, a 13-year old boy of Farmington, Maine, for saving Richard Morton, 12 years old, from drowning at Porter Lake Vineyard, Maine, last September.

BUCKNER PRESENTS "DRY" ENFORCEMENT ESTIMATES

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP)—Detailed memoranda in support of his recent testimony before the senate committee conducting the prohibition hearings was sent today to the committee by United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner.

In a memorandum supporting his estimate of the cost of enforcing prohibition in New York state without a state law, Buckner listed figures purporting to show a total of $20,021,760 annually, without jury trial, or $70,076,125 with jury trial.

An accompanying memorandum gave statistics which he said showed the production of denatured alcohol in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925, was 60,000,000 gallons more than the pre-war rate of increase would have indicated as legitimate. The increase of 800 per cent in production over that of 1910, could not be dismissed, he said, as the result of increased industrial demands.

N. Y. MAN THROWN FROM FIRE ESCAPE BY BURGLAR

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP)—John Kaye, 40, a fur salesman, was fatally injured today when hurled from a second-story fire escape by a burglar with whom he had grappled. Awakened by the intruder's flashlight, Kaye grabbed him, but was dragged to the fire escape and pushed over the railing. In falling he pulled the robber with him. The robber fell on top of Kaye, got up and escaped. Kaye died several hours later of a fractured skull.

CONDITION OF MRS. CAPPER IS IMPROVED

BALTIMORE, April 25—(AP)—The condition of Mrs. Arthur K. Capper, wife of the senator from Kansas, was "slightly improved" tonight, physicians at the Maryland Hospital for Women announced. Mrs. Capper, who underwent a major operation at the hospital several weeks ago, suffered a relapse a few days ago.

DAYLIGHT TIME NOW RULING WILLIMANTIC

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 25—In the race to save daylight Willimantic was among the towns of the state to push the clock hands just 60 minutes ahead in the great handicap with the sun. Clocks privately owned and not publicly displayed were robbed of one hour's ticking, which they will have to make up in September. The summer time schedule has been generally adopted in the city. Public functions, such as church services, theatre shows, dances, even police court sessions are being held to conform with the temporary schedule. The hospital visiting hours will conform with daylight time although vital statistics will all be recorded in standard time. Railroad schedules have been advanced one hour here and the postoffice hours will conform. There was considerable yawning Saturday, everybody had lost one hour's sleep and there is no chance to get that hour back until next fall. Many prisoners at the county jail tossed restlessly on their cots and rolled over on the feathers missing the church services or their dinner.

RAIDING THE TREASURY

Whenever the impression is gained that the federal treasury is full to overflowing, that the government is getting large revenue and that it is [illegible] expenditures, there is a reason to fear that [illegible] is going to [illegible] taxation. Whether the anticipated revenue under the new law for the first quarter will be maintained throughout the year is a question. What is for the next fiscal year that concern is being displayed at the present time.

If the idea is created that there are endless funds from which to draw there is no limit to which congress will go in the making of appropriations and it is not to be wondered at in view of the demand for tax reduction and the reduction of the national debt. It is thus well to call a halt before it is too late, and that is the purpose of the effort to bring about an early adjournment of congress. The desire to avoid treasury raids [illegible] effects of such reduction by making unwarranted expenditures, which would get their chief support at this time from the fact that the treasury was full.

There are expenditures which are needed and those which [illegible] There is legislation which should be adopted before the present session ends but there would be a grave mistake to undertake to [illegible] Avalanche. It is well [illegible] in accord with the [illegible] what the economic [illegible] time as well as money.

LIMIT IT NOW TO NAVY

That was a strong and convincing statement of the situation that was made before the American Society of International Law by former Secretary Charles E. Hughes of the state department. It was not only made by one who has played a prominent part in securing real disarmament but one who is thoroughly in touch with the matter. His views fully support those which have been set forth by Secretary Kellogg.

Mr. Hughes believes that further progress for naval disarmament is practical, but that land disarmament needs much consideration yet. Concerning naval disarmament he says: "The purpose is not necessarily to find formulas for all states having [illegible] to stand in the way of practical undertakings. There are only five powers with navies of considerable size. These powers are at peace and contemplate no acts of aggression. Naval strength [illegible] possible for a program to be formulated that will accomplish something. Agitation for land disarmament need not be abandoned, but the exercises of getting anywhere with it at present [illegible] Until further naval disarmament it is a different proposition. This would involve only the leading powers. The same experienced the benefit of the Washington treaties and these should be in the [illegible] Some of the desirable additions, steps were advocated at the time of the Washington conference, but did not meet with favor. The naval agreement has [illegible] and [illegible] considered in a different light. It at least would be in keeping with the belief that whatever is permanent in the way of disarmament should come gradually.

CONTROL IS NEEDED

[illegible] there has been no regulation by the federal court of [illegible] operated a broadcasting company which refused to abide by the rules which had been agreed upon by the radio interests. The making of the rules and the placing of the authority in the hands of the department of commerce to direct the regulation was for the purpose of ending and preventing confusion. The court decision destroys what was accomplished, for under it anyone recognizes his right to do as he pleases regardless of the other fellow. That may not be generally resorted to, for it is thoroughly understood in radio circles what that would mean. It was of course understood by the Chicago company when it defied the regulations which had been agreed to but which were not based upon legislation.

It has been no easy task to enforce the regulations and make conditions what they ought to be for the greatest number, but that of course is child's play in comparison with the difficulties faced when certain ones refuse to comply and there is no authority to command respect.

Secretary Hoover of the department of commerce has said that such a decision as the court has made would cause chaos and it is no wonder that he is desirous of abandoning his task and having it turned over to a commission.

What, of course, is needed is to have congress give the proper attention to the radio control measures that are before it and see that there is enacted a law that will definitely convey the necessary authority to some agency to handle the situation. With one broadcasting station kicking over the traces and doing as it pleases regardless of the others, there is a bad example which others are going to follow unless the situation is properly met.

Radio has grown to the point where adequate control has long since been shown to be necessary. Secretary Hoover's efforts have been excellent and it would be well to have the enforcement of new legislation left with [illegible]

WORN OUT THEIR WELCOME

New York has a federation of farm bureaus and that organization has undertaken the task of awakening "the consciousness of the city motorist to farm property rights."

There are those [illegible] have always considered that it was [illegible] for them to camp and [illegible] anything they could on farms or so long as it was in the way [illegible] To many the country seems to be a [illegible] stretch of land [illegible] trespass [illegible] those who are able [illegible] get away. The fact that the owners are obliged to pay taxes [illegible] and that depend upon the products therefrom for their living makes no difference.

The raids include everything from wild flowers to garden truck and poultry, and they have been made the easier because of the automobiles and the good roads. Those who ride can get there, get their loot and get away in a very short period of time. In many instances there would be no objection on the part of the owners of country property if those who sought wild flowers, a picnic place or only a stroll through the woods were [illegible] consideration of the property. [illegible] where they tear down walls, leave the bars down so that the cattle can go astray, start fires or cause other depredations that annoy and which are to say the least inconsiderate.

It is no small job that the New [illegible] has undertaken. It will require a long period of education and perhaps something a little more effective in the way of reminders. Of course there is no one to blame for the attitude of the federal members but those who have abused the privileges extended to them. They have not only made themselves unwelcome but they have cast suspicion upon other city motorists and they must all feel the effects of restrictions as the result. It is invariably the result of a lack of appreciation.

SUBMARINE PERILS

Interest is once more turned [illegible] the sunken submarine S-51 up from the bottom of the ocean off Block Island, it cannot fail to be even more centered upon having determined the cause of the explosion on the S-49.

In the case of the former it is known what caused the underwater boat to go down. It was run down by a steamship and such a great hole torn in its side that it could not remain afloat. But the S-49 was at its pier with nothing unusual but a slight odor of gas when one of the crew in making a test seemingly caused an explosion from which four have died and several are still in a serious condition.

In that regrettable affair there existed [illegible] which should be known if possible. Whatever it was, avoidable or not, it is to be hoped that the investigation will be able to fix the cause in order that [illegible] may be guarded against in the future, for while it is not to be expected that other submarines are going to be rammed the operation of submarines is going to go on uninterruptedly and it is important that the lives of those aboard should be safeguarded to the greatest extent possible. [illegible] determination of [illegible] on the S-49 will be given attention to preventing a repetition in the future.

The experiences on these two subs serve to accentuate the peril that is involved on such compact and complicated vessels even in times of peace.

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Save the broken toys for the rainy days. They are a real source of interest.

Young fresh vegetables are always better for canning than the older ones.

Frozen salads are something uncommon and very much enjoyed in hot weather.

Swedish fruit soups consist of combinations of fruit juices thickened with tapioca.

To clean screen doors wet a woollen cloth with kerosene and rub off thoroughly.

Always shut off the water supply even if you are only away from the house over night.

A good idea is to have egg spoons made of black horn; the silver ones discolor so badly.

When making a child's suit or dress use a well fitting old suit or dress for pattern. Rip carefully, place it over new material and, with a warm iron, press. Cut carefully around pattern. Now the suit is ready to make. This does away with any "trying on" a wiggling child.

White enameled furniture may be cleaned with turpentine and the gloss will be uninjured. Wet a soft cloth with turpentine rub the spots off the woodwork and rub with another cloth.

A floor covering of good linoleum should hold its own for at least five years. It needs no soap, ammonia or any strong cleansing agent. A simple wiping with a cloth, just moist with warm water, is all that is needed.

The lunch box or basket should be fresh and odorless. Always empty the receptacle at night and allow it to air thoroughly. If case of the basket scrub out once or twice a week, drying thoroughly afterward.

QUALITY IN YOUR PANTRY

Use up to the best advantage any uncertain brands of food you may have unthinkingly purchased and put the stamp of quality on your pantry door. Appoint every [illegible] food purchases in your family a committee, with yourself as chairman. Consider every food purchased as [illegible] stands for the quality your standard of living demand. There is [illegible] chance for waste in your canned goods for the time [illegible] your money [illegible] this releasing [illegible] for other [illegible]

CLEANS ALUMINUM

This is a surprising tip on cleaning aluminum, but it works. Try it. One may scour and scrub with no result. Put the dish on the stove, empty, and light the gas, but do not turn it up high. In a little while all the marks will vanish from the inside.

Turn it upside down and put it back. In a little while the dish will be like new you will find.

KEEPING CHEESE

Any strong-smelling cheese should be wrapped in tinfoil, then oiled paper and then stored in a covered jar. It can then be kept in the refrigerator without danger of tainting the other food.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

When one needs a stimulant, one of the best is hot milk.

As a substitute for the hot water [illegible] and a hot [illegible] you will find [illegible] gives a very pleasant heat. Cover it with a sugar bag and tie with tapes fastened to the bag for the purpose.

A surprising number of young women have prematurely graying hair. The trouble is an inherited one in some families, but usually it is due to excessive dryness of the scalp. Girls with fluffy dry hair should begin to use hot oil treatments in their 20's. Daily scalp massage is absolutely essential to hair health, especially for women with bobbed hair.

If you have dark hair that is too dry, get a little plain black ebony tar and pour a pint of very hot water over it. Let this settle and strain off this water hot to melt the tar soap, and use it without soap now and then to massage the scalp. That is, wet your fingers with the tar water and rub the scalp, letting the hair dry in the usual way afterward. It is very good for dandruff, and it gives luster and life to hair that has gone dead.

FINGERNAILS

"To me round very long pointed finger nails are in questionable taste," writes Hazel Rawson Cades, in The Woman's Home Companion. "An oval shape is better-looking than a sharp point, and for chubby little fingers, I like the nails frankly rounded. The shape of your hand and the amount of work you want to get out of it will determine the shaping of your nails. Pianists, typists, in fact anyone who uses her hands a lot, find that nails filed [illegible] with the tips of the fingers are most useful and least breakable. Few people have nice enough nails to call attention to them with violent tinting or high brilliancy. A little [illegible] is permissible, and nails should look as if they were on good terms with a buffer. The choice of liquid, paste or dry polish is a matter of preference."

THAT POWDER

A beauty expert writing for one of the women's magazines, says: "So many [illegible] with a [illegible] dab powder on it till it fairly shrieks for attention" and she continues to say that a girl with a conspicuous nose would better not use [illegible] powder at all, because it will give that prominent nose a "floury, circus look." She uses instead a liquid of fine quality, which she puts on with a bit of absorbent cotton and then forgets all about it. The girl with a thin sunburnt neck uses a tinted talcum powder, because the white talcum would not harmonize with the tan and would show too plainly. That tinted talcum has a little boracic acid in it to sooth irritated skins.

TO LOOSEN STOPPERS

To remove glass stoppers in cologne bottles, dip them in hot water, or place over the steam in a kettle. This will loosen a stopper so it may be easily removed.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The new shade of gray green and a tone which borders on chartreuse are among the most important colors on the spring chart.

Colorful parasols, which appeared at the southern resorts were made of organdie with the designs outlined in metal threads.

Shoes made entirely of snakeskin in shades of gray or beige are among the novelties in footwear shown for spring.

In the smartest coats of spring, many of which are made of black satin, the lining is frequently of natural toned kasha.

The latest version of the gold circlet which fits close about the throat is beautifully enameled in bright colors and curious designs.

The decided vogue in navy blue is evidenced in street frocks of taffeta made on tailored lines and softened with lingerie touches at neck and sleeves.

A soft and flattering shade of gray is the smartest color for hosiery at the moment and is in keeping with the marked vogue for beige in all shades.

New tub silks in beautiful plaided effects are featured not only for sports frocks and blouses but for the gay scarfs that are worn with simple tailored suits.

The smartest costume for spring is the tailored costume. Already one sees the chic little tailleur worn under the top-coats which are removed when the wearer enters the restaurant or tea room.

English smocks of printed percale are practical for play frocks and quite smart enough for almost any purpose. The designs are small rather conventional and in soft vivid colors.

Hats that show every indication of supplanting the mannishness felt are the new crocheted models from Italy. They are serviceable and flexible that they may be drawn through the ring and shapes that have made felts so popular.

DIOCESAN BUREAU HEARS REPORTS OF WORK DONE

In connection with the meetings of the Connecticut Conference of Social Work, the annual meeting of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service was held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Wauregan hotel ballroom, opening with a few words of welcome from John J. O'Rourke, chairman of the Norwich bureau, who introduced Rev. Matthew J. Judge, of Hartford, diocesan director and treasurer, who presided.

Father Judge spoke of the difficulty of getting the message across to the people and urged all to become interested and to give support to the work, not merely by giving material aid but by helping all those who are in need to help themselves. YALE PROFESSOR IS SPEAKER AS SOCIAL WORK CONFERENCE OPENS

At least 250 delegates from all sections of the state are expected in Norwich today (Monday) the second day of the 16th annual session of the Connecticut Conference of Social Work. Sunday night it was estimated that there were 100 delegates here for the conference which got underway Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church when the delegates and general public gathered for the opening session. Three group meetings were held during the afternoon. These included the annual meeting of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service from 4 to 5:30 p. m. at the Wauregan hotel, the final district meeting of the Western New England League of Y. M. and Y. W. H. associations, from 2:30 to 6 o'clock at Olympic hall, and a supper meeting of the American Association of Social Workers from 5:45 until 7:30 p. m. at the Wauregan hotel. All meetings were held on standard time.

With Mrs Frank A. Mitchell, this city, president of the Connecticut Conference of Social Work, presiding, the evening session opened at 7:30 o'clock with the singing of a hymn. Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, led the responsive reading, Psalm 72. Following an anthem by the church quartette all joined in a silent prayer for God's blessing on the four day conference, after which prayer was offered by Dr. Pitt, all repeating in unison, the Lord's Prayer. This was followed by an anthem by the quartette.

Welcome From Mayor Waters

A hearty welcome to the delegates was extended by Mayor Mile R. Waters. I am very glad to welcome to Norwich so many delegates gathered to service said Mayor Waters. I am sure I voice the feelings of the city when I say we are pleased that you selected Norwich. We hope that you will enjoy the conference, that the meetings will be successful, and we hope you will carry with you memories that will bring you back to us.

The response was given by Mrs Mitchell after which she gave a brief history of the conference. Mrs. Mitchell told of the appointment of the original committee to organize a state conference of charities in 1909, and of how the conference was organized at a meeting in Hartford, September 28th, 1909. The name was later changed to the Connecticut Conference of Social Work. The conference brings workers together for mutual acquaintance and brings the workers' and their accomplishments before the general public.

Mrs Mitchell announced that Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau department of labor, Washington, D. C., who was to have been the speaker at the meeting was unable to come to Norwich as she is confined to her home by illness. Mrs. Mitchell stated that Dr. Arnold Gesell, Yale university, New Haven, who was very familiar with the work done by Miss Abbott, had consented to speak in Miss Abbott's place and on the topic assigned to her. Advancing Child Welfare Standards. She then introduced Dr. Gesell to the audience.

Better Child Welfare Standards

Members of the conference, ladies and gentlemen of Norwich, I assure you I share your sense of disappointment in the unavoidable failure of Miss Abbott to speak here tonight. The children's bureau has accomplished fine work in a most admirable way. Those of you who see the bulletins of the bureau must be impressed. The bureau investigates all sorts of complications. We need their kind of influence in our social work.

Dr. Gesell went on to speak of the work being accomplished by the children's bureau in New Haven. At least 75 per cent of the children coming before the court there have to be shown evidence of rickets. The demonstration in New Haven has very practical ... and ... are being ... Local ... and ... Robert ... selling, ... nursing, ... Women and ... ed ... the ... of ... child ... The ... pre-school ... years ... parents ... and ... poverty.

Delinquency is a more complicated problem in these days than ever before. Scientific information is helping to solve this problem. The child guidance clinics are not waving any magical wand. They are beginning on the most cases of delinquency, they are co-operating with the courts. The child guidance clinic is utilizing some of the methods as a basis in their programme.

As our social work resources become better known we shall find we can do more than we ever dreamed of. The best kind of prevention is this child guidance work.

The dependent child is entitled to the advantages of a natural foster home. The large portion of our children are normal or near normal, but they come within the scope of welfare work. We ought to consider the public school as one of the most important achievements in connection with the protection of child welfare. It is almost literally true that every child in this country can have a preliminary education. The public school is found everywhere, ready to give service.

A very important period of childhood precedes the period of compulsory education. There is a national movement to improve the status of the pre-school child. The pre-school period has been neglected. The pre-school years are most fundamental because they come first. Both the physical and mental growth is more rapid in this period than in any other period. The pre-school years are the most precarious years of human existence. The new thing in social work is the protection of those years.

General Secretary Ralph Barrow of Hartford made several important announcements in connection with the conference and in connection with the housing of visiting delegates. The session came to a close about 9 o'clock, standard time.

Supper Meeting

Over two score social workers attended the supper meeting of the American Association of Social Workers held Sunday from 5:45 to 7:30 standard time at the Wauregan hotel dining room. Following the supper the session was called to order by John B. Dawson, vice president of the American Association of Social Workers, New Haven. The meeting was featured with a round table discussion on the question, Are Local Chapters Any Good? Several of those present were heard on the question and upheld the local chapter work as it is the agent through which the work of the American Association of Social Workers is done. The consensus was that the local chapters should be strengthened. The meeting came to a close about 7:30 standard time, when adjournment was taken to the conference meeting at the Central Baptist church.

Places for Meetings

The general session of the Connecticut Conference of Social Work this Monday evening will be held at the Elks hall, and will also be held at the Elks hall Tuesday evening. The general session, Community Life section, will be held at the Norwich State hospital for the insane, Tuesday from 3 to 5 p. m. All round tables are scheduled for the Y. M. C. A. where the conference headquarters is located. According to the conference programme all sessions are to be held on standard time.

WOMAN IN HOSPITAL AFTER AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Miss Catherine Albro of Willimantic is a patient at the Backus hospital with injuries to her knee and teeth received in an automobile accident Sunday morning about 6 o'clock at Norwich Town. A Chrysler sedan, owned and driven by Joseph H. Saba of 100 Summit street, Willimantic, in which she was a passenger, crashed head-on into a 2 horse off a pole near the Adams Tavern garage.

Miss Albro was removed to the hospital in the ambulance.

The automobile was crippled by the crash and was towed away by a wrecking car.

It was reported that the machine shot across the street and into the pole when the driver was turning out of the trolley track.

MATHEW GUSIZA, THREE, STRUCK BY AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, April 26—Mathew, 3 1-2 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gusiza, of 57 Elm street, suffered contusions on the forehead and neck and a bad shaking up, when he was run down by an automobile, in front of his home, about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The identity o the owner of the car was not established. The car was a coupe bearing Connecticut registration 67-654 and is said to be owned by a local party. The driver took the boy and his mother to a physician's office and returned to the house with them. No report was made to the police.

SMALL BOY DIES FROM ENJURIES BY AUTOMOBILE

Nicholas Valos, 4 year old son of John and Irene Isakiris Valos, of No. 277 Laurel Hill avenue, was fatally injured about 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon when he was struck near his home by an automobile, driven by Edward C. Birgivin, a sailor stationed at the Submarine Base.

The boy was rushed to the Backus hospital in an automobile driven by a man named Fisher and an X-ray was taken to determine his injuries. It was found that he was suffering from a fractured pelvis and other injuries. Everything possible was done to save his life but the boy died at 5:15 Saturday afternoon from his injuries.

County Detective William Lewis, an eye witness to the accident, is said to have stated that the boy ran directly in front of Birgivin's machine, which was being driven at about 20 miles an hour. Birgivin reported the accident to Sergeant Myron Morgan, who let him proceed on his way after questioning him.

As Coroner J. J. Desmond is indisposed the investigation of the accident has been placed in the hands of Judge John H. Barnes who will hold a hearing in his office in this city this Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Birgivin, who is on furlough and has gone to Gardner, Mass., is to report at the Submarine base this morning and will be notified to appear before Judge Barnes. The decision of Judge Barnes will depend largely on the testimony to be presented by County Detective Lewis, who was ... ... feet to the rear of the Birgivin ... when the accident occurred.

THREE CLUBS STAND OUT IN MAJOR BASEBALL DURING THE PAST WEEK

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP)—Three clubs stand out in the second week's play of the major leagues—Cleveland in the American and New York and Chicago in the National.

Each of the older circuit's leaders won four out of five contests, while the Indians of Tris Speaker, hardly contenders in the pre-season predictions won five bouts and met one reversal.

Increased home run hitting in the American league, in which only the Yankees had done any long-distance clouting a week ago, was notable. Seven homers came from the bats of the St. Louis Browns, eight were registered by the Yankees and Chicago, Washington, Boston and Philadelphia accounted for two each. Cleveland made one, that being delivered by the veteran, Speaker.

Against the American's 24 homers, the National produced seven in all, four of them by the Giants and one each by New York, Chicago and Pittsburgh. The Giants' accomplishment was a nine belt by Traynor on which Mueller of the Cardinals failed to make a shoestring catch.

Excellent pitching, with onors going to Ed Rommel and Bob Grove of the Athletics and Jess Petty of the Brooklyn Dodgers, featured the week. Grove held the Red Sox to three safeties and Rommel repeated against the league champion Senators. Petty, a lefthander, scored his third straight victory of the season by downing the Giants yesterday. He has won three or four Brooklyn victories. Nine fur-hit battles were recorded, three in the American and six in the National.

In offensive strength the Yankees led both leagues with a total of 70 safeties for 48 runs. The Chicago Cubs made 66 hits and 44 runs. Despite their tremendous attack with every man in the lineup upholding his end, the Yankees lost two games in six starts. Cleveland could produce only 36 runs from 73 safe blows but Speaker's pitchers kept the Indians in the running.

Cleveland also has proved capable defensively with only six misplays in nine contests, while the Browns made errors almost daily and already have amassed 26. After losing four straight contests in the opening week's play, Sisler's squad came back to win three of their seven games.

Washington's champions and the Athletics, regarded as candidates for 1926 honors, broke even on the week's play while the world champion Pirates won two of four, giving them three conquests against eight defeats. Up to Saturday the Giants has gathered seven straight victories. They have lost two games, both to Jess Petty of Brooklyn.

FABER PITCHES WHITE SOX TO VICTORY, OVER TIGERS

DETROIT, April 25.—(AP)—Urban Faber was too good for Detroit and 5000 courageous fans who braved the cold saw Chicago win today, 4 to 2. In the ninth only did Faber wobble, walking four men and forcing in one run. With Wingo at bat and the bases filled, Thurston relieved Faber and the game ended a moment later when Wingo filed out.

Mostil's hitting was an important factor, each of his three blows producing a run.

BROWNS POUND OUT EASY VICTORY OVER INDIANS

ST. LOUIS, April 25.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns staged a slugfest here today against the Cleveland Indians, hammering a trio of Indian hurlers for 16 hits to win, 11 to 5. Ken Williams, Browns' left fielder, led the attack with two circuit clouts, McManus Shockey and Hice also hit home runs for the locals, while Speaker registered a four bagger for the Indians.

PLANNING MEMORIAL TO WALTER CAMP AT YALE

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP)—Plans for participation of 485 colleges in raising $100,000 for a memorial to the late Walter Camp at the entrance to the Yale athletic fields in New Haven, Conn., were disclosed tonight by the National Collegiate Athletic association and Yale university.

Half the amount will be subscribed by Yale alumni and the remainder by the N. C. A. A. on behalf of other universities throughout the country.

The memorial, a massive colonnade at the gateway to the fields, will be flanked on either side with panels of bronze on which will be cut the names of contributing colleges. The grounds will be renamed "Walter Camp Fields" and the new title will be cut into the stone over the gateway.

L. K. Hall of Dartmouth has been made chairman of the memorial committee, which includes W. S. Langford, Trinity; P. W. Moore, Harvard; A. A. Stagg, Chicago; Walter Powell, Williamstown; Robert Zuppke, Illinois; J. P. Richardson, Dartmouth; J. E. Raycroft, Princeton; S. V. Sanford, Georgia; J. W. Wilce, Ohio State; E. C. Mann, University of Washington; J. A. Stroud, Jr., California; S. W. Beyer, Iowa State; D. A. Penick, Texas; F. G. Folsom, Colorado.

AGGIE TEAM PREPARING FOR CLASH WITH TRINITY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, April 25.—Following their impressive victory over Tufts, Coach Dole's Connecticut Aggie ball tossers will tomorrow begin preparations for the contest with Trinity to be played here next Wednesday afternoon.

This will be the first of two games between these two rivals, the second of which is scheduled for May 15 at Hartford.

Tomorrow afternoon the varsity will play a five-inning game with Alexander's freshman nine, with Metcalf on the mound for the yearlings. Metcalf is probably the best twirling prospect seen here in years, and Dole wants him to pitch against the varsity in practice tomorrow.

Dole is still uncertain as to who will fill the first base position. Against Brown, Makofski played the position, but when he pitched against Tufts Kennedy was used. Eddy will probably pitch against Trinity, and although Dole can use Makofski on first, he would rather use him in the outfield if the initial sack is well covered.

Kennedy played a good game against Tufts, and at the rate he is improving gives promise of developing into a fast and dependable player. He is new to the first base position, however, and Dole would prefer to use a more experienced man to play the position.

With this end in view, Ajello and Nanfeldt, in addition to Kennedy, will be used at first in practice during the week. Both have played the position before. Ajello as a member of the Seymour high school nine, and Nanfeldt here at Storrs.

Provided Dole can obtain a satisfactory first baseman from this trio, Makofski will be used in the outfield when not pitching. The Aggies' outer defense needs strengthening, and Makofski's experience would help considerably.

Dole does not plan to make any change in catchers and Williams will do the backstopping against Trinity. In the Tufts game, Williams was considered hampered by an injured finger, but even with this handicap, Dole believes he is the best catcher available. Williams will have two more varsity seasons, also, and Dole therefore wants to give him as much seasoning as possible this year.

ROBINS EVEN UP SERIES WITH GIANTS

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 25.—(AP)—The Robins evened up the series of four games with New York today winning a hard hitting battle by 8 to 6. A home run by Kelly with one on sent the Giants ahead in the third but Fournier's drive over the right field wall with one on gave Brooklyn the lead again.

New York used four pitchers while Jess Barnes went the route for Brooklyn. In the sixth Snyder took exception to a remark by O'Neil and threatened the fiery Robin backstop with his bat but Rigler stepped between.

SQUEEZE PLAY ENABLES CUBS TO BEAT PIRATES

CHICAGO, April 25.—(AP)—A perfectly executed squeeze play with the score tied in the eighth enabled Chicago to defeat the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates today in their first appearance here this year, 4 to 3. Wilson opened the inning with a double, was sacrificed to third and Grimm then grounded out to score Wilson with the deciding run.

Jones held the Pirates to four hits, one of which was a double which after the Cubs' pitcher walked three in a row in the seventh brought in three runs and tied the score. Bush then replaced Jones and pitched airtight ball the rest of the way.

The Cubs first runs came on opportune singles, during each scoring in which Wilson stole home and two errors by Smith, Pirate catcher.

LEADING ITALIAN AUTO RACER IS KILLED

CERDA, Sicily, April 25.—(AP)—Jules Masetti, Italy's foremost automobile racing driver met death today when his car overturned near here.

Piloting a Delage machine, Masetti was competing in the Targa Florio race. He had traversed about 14 miles of the first lap when the accident occurred.

Masetti won the Targa Florio race over the same course in 1922. He also was victorious in the royal prize of Rome last year.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Salute to the Trees

Many a tree is found in the wood,
And every tree for its use is good:
Some for the strength of the gnarled root;
Some for the sweetness of flower or fruit;
Some for shelter against the storm,
And some to keep the hearth-stone warm;
Some for the roof and some for the beam,
And some for a boat to breast the stream—
In the wealth of the wood since the world began
The trees have offered their gifts to man.

[illegible]
A pillar of power, a dome of delight,
A shrine or song, and a joy of sight!
Their roots are the nurses of rivers that run,
Their leaves and fruit the breath of the sun;
[illegible]
And [illegible] like the look of a lover.

I have glimpsed in the wandering drift
[illegible]
Of the [illegible] elm at the door of my house.
[illegible]
They have lived before time after me,
Third [illegible] friendly, faithful tree.
—Henry Van Dyke.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Now that the Easter vacation is over the Wide Awakes have commenced to dig down to earnest work. It is only a few weeks now to the close of school, when we should endeavor to make the most of our time. There is no reason why the close of school should be a time of idleness. It can be done if you are determined. If you are [illegible] during the [illegible] months [illegible] away from [illegible] you will be sadly disappointed when your school record is handed [illegible] measures of the coming summer vacation you will be sadly disappointed when your school record is handed [illegible] You say, to ask that you are right but if you stop and think you will discover that the day those particular questions were discussed in the class your mind was flying about helter skelter and not paying attention to what the teacher was explaining for your benefit.

Of course it is hard to keep your mind [illegible] and [illegible] when you would [illegible] and [illegible] but if you make up your mind to study you can do it, reserving after school hours for outdoor pleasures.

Don't be an idler for that is the way to become a dunce. That is the way to become a bad example to others and to become a disturber of school room peace. Work is healthy. Work and you won't be disappointed with the world and the world won't be disappointed with you.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Pussy Willows

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first letter to the Wide Awakes. I am going to write about spring. My friend and I went in the woods looking for pussy willows. We passed over logs and brush and we at last found a pretty bouquet. The distance was about two miles. When we arrived home we were very tired. I hope before the pussy willows go we will have a chance to get another bunch. Seeing that this is my first letter to you, it is not very long. I am interested in the Wide Awake circle. I will close hoping you will see my story. With greeting to the Wide Awakes and Uncle Jed.

GRACE ALICE BROMLEY.
Voluntown.

An Easter Visit

Dear Uncle Jed: My visit to the hospital, Friday, my mother told me that if I finished my work before noon I could go to visit my brother at the Day Kimball hospital. I hurried and finished it.

At 11:30 o'clock I had my work finished and was all ready to go. My sister called for me so I went. I did not know just where to find Jim, so I let her go first. We found him feeling quite well.

He had been through an operation for appendicitis, on Wednesday. We stayed with him for about 35 minutes. Then we had to leave. I went down [illegible]

HELLEN MAYO, Age 10
Pomfret.

The Coming of May

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awake circle and hope they will like it. The coming of May means the coming of flowers. The sun rises earlier in the morning and sets later at night. The flowers begin to blossom and the birds sing joyfully.

During this month we honor the blessed virgin because it is the month dedicated to her.

EDMUND ZDUNCZYK, Age 12.
Norwich.

Feeds the Birds

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell [illegible] I feed [illegible] for them. I [illegible] every morning when I [illegible] them come over to my house to eat the bread and corn. I am making houses for them every day after school. I like to listen to [illegible] One morning when I was [illegible] I saw my father's cat go right into their house. I knew what he went in and I ran to get my father's ladder and I climbed up and caught the cat. He had one bird in his mouth and he was alive yet. So I saved his life.

If we did not have any birds we would not have any insects because the birds eat them. [illegible] When I see a cat trying to shoot a bird I stop him and I scare the bird away. So I [illegible] the birds and the birds [illegible]

THE HABIT OF PARKING BOTHERS RAILROAD OFFICERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 26—At the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad a new problem has arisen for the railroad police to cope with, especially on Sundays. During the winter months railroad police have been sent from New London to prevent undesirables who had no business there from parking in the interior too long. Now ooh, the advent of warmer weather the parking of automobiles about the station grounds has so increased as to handicap the taxi service and people who have business there. Sunday last Railroad Police Sergeant Lantil Marks, of New London, was kept busy in seeing that necessary parking only was the rule on the drives leading to the waiting station. On Saturdays, afternoon and evening, the proximity to theatre and retail center causes a large number of autoists to make use of the drives and when both sides are used there is barely room for the automobiles to pass in the roadway remaining. At one end of the station yard a large sign "No Parking" has been [illegible] some months. If the practice of leaving autos in station property is not curtailed [illegible] the railroad author[illegible]

NORWICH MAN'S CAR IS DAMAGED IN NIGHT COLLISION, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 25—An automobile owned and driven by E. L. Dennis, 103 West Thames street, Norwich, and a machine owned and operated by Henry F. Hyde, 176 Howard street, this city were in collision Saturday night on Bank street, between Pearl and Tilley street. Both cars were damaged, but none of the occupants were injured.

J. M. LINICUS FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 24—Jacob M. Linicus was fined $100 in the police court Saturday for reckless operation of an automobile on the 29th of January last when he ran down Agnes Svenberg as she was on the way to her home from her work as a clerk in a State street store. The girl alighted from a beach car in charge of James Smith. She was struck and carried or dragged along the highway a distance of 90 feet, while the Linicus car travelled some 150 feet before it came to a stop. Miss Svenberg was so injured that she was a patient in the hospital several weeks. Her leg was broken. Linicus through his attorney demurred to the complaint and the circumstances were explained to the court. Then the demurrer was overruled and the fine was imposed.

ONE DEAD, SIX ARE ILL, IN WILFRED MARTIN FAMILY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 25—Edmund Martin, 3 son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Martin, died late Friday night at the residence of his parents, 55 Eastern Avenue, after a brief illness with pneumonia. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery Saturday afternoon. The death of the child reveals a most unfortunate condition of the Martin household for the father is seriously and five other members of the family are under the care of a physician.

WILLIAM STEVENSON SENT TO NORWICH STATE HOSP.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 25—William Stevenson, 305 West 42nd street, New York, was taken into custody late Sunday night by Patrolman Carlos Jeserinsky, the officer taking the action as Stevenson was apparently of unsound mentality. He was examined at the police station by City Physician George P. Chiener and a second examination was made Saturday afternoon, when it was decided that Stevenson should be committed to the Norwich state hospital for observation. Stevenson was accompanied to the hospital by Captain Charles A. Finney and Sergeant John Cavanaugh.

Antonie Sologub, a Quaker Hill farmer, has lost a horse to the outskirts of the law. The animal was in such condition that the officials of the state humane society would not permit Sologub to work him. Sol was driving the horse in this city with the animal so lame that he attracted attention from passersby as well as from police officers. Policeman Lorder made use of the horse at federal street to transport limping along on three legs. The muscles of one leg were drawn so that the horse was in pain and could not put the hoof to the street. Two veterinarians, George E. Bidgood and Dr. Johnson, were called in to examine the horse and both pronounced it unduly to work the animal. They declared under oath in the police court that the animal should be killed to get him out of misery. Dog Warden Sweet was of the same opinion and John R. Ashcraft of Quaker Hill testified that the horse was 11 years old and in no condition to do work. Fred H. Wilson, from Norwich, agent of the humane society, testified that it was cruel to work the horse as this one was worked. The accused represented that he bought the horse in good faith, that he called in a veterinary at the time and was then told that if he used the horse moderately the animal would be all right. He said he took good care of the horse. The court accepted the testimony for the state as representing the conditions as they existed and ordered Sologub to have the horse killed. To give him the opportunity of disposing of the horse the case was continued to October 26, and Sologub was released on his own recognizance.

Jack Manuel of Norwich got into the court Saturday as a violator of the city's parking ordinance. He drove to the lower end of State street and leading his car to the curbing shoved it to stay there a few inches. Jack represented that there were other cars at the curbing and for that reason considered that he was rightly in the position in which he put his car. It was not exactly clear to the court that Jack was not right in judgment and he was suspended.

Wallente Murach, a railroad worker, was charged with stealing a railroad tie from the New Haven Railroad company and admitted that he had taken the tie for firewood. He did not think that he did not have the right to take it as he saw others taking ties and splitting them for firewood. He was told that because others took ties he was not entitled to take them. Then judgment in his case was suspended for six months.

Thomas Leesard might have been sent to jail for intoxication when he admitted that he was drunk near the railroad tracks on Water street but as he had work in Williamsville he was permitted to get out of town after he was cautioned not to come back unless he could abstain from the use of liquor.

A breach of the peace complaint against Luigi Petrizzi was nolled. It has been in the court some months.

Complaint has been made to the police because of youths using the grounds of the Nathan Hale grammar school for a golf course. Friday balls used in the pastime smashed several windows of the building and other windows have been broken in the past.

City Manager William A. Holt Saturday afternoon notified Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney that the provisional appointment of Henry W. Iuma, Huntington street, to the supernumerary police list, had been made permanent. The provisional appointment was made the 15th inst. but the city manager specifies that the permanent appointment shall date from the 5th inst.

The New Haven police today requested the New London authorities to be on the lookout for two cars that were stolen from the former city late Saturday night. One car, a Ford runabout, carried Connecticut registration 1605 and the other, a Chevrolet sport model carried Connecticut registration A-2466.

Mrs. Carrie Fish, of 70 State street, Mrs. Benjamin Brody and infant daughter, 13 Hebron street, Miss Alma Kirchoss, Quaker Hill, Waterford, Mrs. Stephen Broney, 105 Bank street, and Charles Wade, 18 West Pleasant street patients at Lawrence Memorial associated hospital, were dismissed Saturday.

The determining of the cause of the explosion aboard the United States submarine S-49 at the Submarine base nearly a week ago will not be made known until the latter part of next week, if then. The board of inquiry that has been sitting daily since the crash that was resulted in the deaths of three sailors, is still in session and will be continued two or three days next week. With the board concluded its investigation, its finding will be forwarded to Washington and announcement of the cause of the explosion will be made by the naval department in due time.

Walter Jorlkowski, 19 Tenth street, was aroused from his slumber shortly after 1 o'clock this morning by an intruder who was vigorously pounding on a rear door in an endeavor to gain admission to the place. The fellow then left and when Jorlkowski investigated he found that the door had been smashed. The police were notified, but no trace of the intruder could be found by Patrolman Edward Riordan and John Sullivan, who made a diligent search of the neighborhood.

The fire department Saturday responded to three still alarms, the first blaze occurred on Thames street extension where youths had started a bonfire and it became necessary to disconnect the Oakford Hose company to extinguish it. The second fire was at the corner of Ocean and Gardner avenues and was also an area of brush. Pequot Hose company responded to the alarm and confined the blaze to the shrubbery. The third fire occurred when a car on the Ocean avenue hill took fire from some unknown cause. Pequot Hose company and Alice Hook and Ladder company responded, extinguishing the flames with chemicals and before damage was done.

Following the announcement by City Manager William A. Holt that Bank street is to become a one-way thoroughfare, merchants along that street are already voicing complaints and in a manner most forceful. The same merchants voice the doubletracking plan was constituted by the taking of two or three feet of the side walk and either one of the street were lost to parking purposes after the proposed plan was put into effect. Under the present nature of the traffic on automobiles is quite conducive to remedy for the congested condition. It would seem that by shifting the cars from one side of the street that the congestion of that street that the merchants would be dissatisfied, although it is an index to a point now where it is high time to take to relieve the situation of motor vehicles. City Manager Holt however, has decided that the only remedy for the conditions is the removal of the street cars and that plan is bound to be put in effect in spite of the opposition voiced.

The Community Chest council has named approval of a ... of the ... committees presented appointed to interest:

Recreation council — Robert C. Rice, chairman; Commander F. H. Young, vice chairman, Miss Gladys W. Taber, secretary.

Child welfare council — Frank L. Meissner, chairman; Rev. J. Russell Bardwell, first vice chairman, Mrs. Maurice Griswold, second vice chairman, Miss Lena M. Mansfield, secretary.

Health council — Dr. C. G. Brooks, chairman; Dr. B. N. Pennell, first vice chairman; Dr. Edward D. Middleton, second vice chairman, Miss Deborah Williams, secretary.

Negro welfare council — Mrs. Mattie D. Best, chairman; Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, ... Col. H. S. Dorsey, treasurer; Mrs. Frank Harris, first vice chairman; James H. Brown, second vice chairman.

Suggestions that the sub-committees of the general council set a definite date per [illegible] meetings and that the witnesses attend the meetings of the Connecticut conference of social work at Norwich, last week were made.

The police court will have its usual Saturday night and Sunday business to claim attention Monday morning. There will be a ... or more cases to be heard by Judge ... Oliver Prince. As usual the greater number of cases are drunks and there are eight intoxicated occupying cells at the station house tonight, the major portion being picked up by the police on North Bank street, Bank street and State street. Two other cases are scheduled for hearing these being for violations of the city's parking ordinances. Both are New Londoners. One is Miss Ruth Newcomb, 31 Vauxhall street, charged with parking over time on State street. Miss Newcomb's car was observed parked longer than the time permitted by the Saturday afternoon ... Traffic Officer Frank Linehan ... ordered Miss Newcomb into court. The charge against the young woman is the second daily violation to which she will have answered. Herman Quint, 59 Vauxhall street was ordered Saturday afternoon to appear in court ... Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy, when that officer detected Quandt's car parked longer than 60 minutes on State street. One other violator, Albertus A. Prentis, Poquonock Bridge, who was summoned to appear in court for overtime parking by Traffic Officer Linehan, was allowed to have his liberty upon being given a warning against future law violations.

The first convoy drill and outdoor tournament of Battery A, 102nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., took place this afternoon at Center Groton. The battery assembled at the state armory at 2 o'clock and at the afterwards started the march for Center Groton. The battery arrived at drill grounds about 3 o'clock and for three hours the guardsmen, under the direction of Captain Otto Schroter, Lieut. W. J. Linsenfeld and Frank S. Shea instructed the soldiers in the mounting of the heavy guns, went through regular maneuvres for positions and movements and other practice, including a blank firing drill. The battery prepared supper before returning to New London about 7 o'clock.

All of the nine injured in the explosion aboard the submarine S-49, and who are under treatment at the base hospital are reported as resting as comfortably as could be expected with the probability that all will recover, although in one or two cases, those of Mathew T. Greenville, quartermaster first class, of 15 Middle street, Saco, Me., and Sylvester E. Mattlock, fireman second class, of 203 State street, Charleston, Ill., there is yet doubt whether these seamen will survive, but they are considered to have better than an even change for recovery.

Mrs. Louisa Bishop, about 73, is at her home on Broad street, suffering from a fractured leg, sustained by falling in Hartford last Friday. Mrs. Bishop and other members of a local fraternal organization spent the day in Hartford and as Mrs. Bishop was coming from a restaurant she made a misstep and fell in such a manner as to produce the fracture. The victim was given medical treatment by a Hartford physician, after which she was brought to her home and attended by her family physician.

Oo-my! Lookit what Constance Talmadge is wearing in her new First National comedy, "Learning to Love." Us women will just revel in these details:

For scenes on a verandah, Constance wears an apricot silk slip, white lace overdress, apricot satin slippers with rhinestone buckles, black and white lace hat, a la Merry Widow, lace parasol and a string of pearls.

For afternoon [illegible] she had on a black velvet dress with very lace collar and a band of Oriental trimming at the bottom of the dress, and a green chiffon panel down the front.

In "Learning to Love," Constance is shown as a sub-deb with five fiances and a husband. The story, specially [illegible] Talmadge, written for Joseph M. Schenck Productions by Jane Emerson and Anita Loos.

The cast includes Antonio Moreno, [illegible] Johnny Harron, Wallace MacDonald, Byron Munson and Ray Hallor, four of Constance's ex-sweethearts. Emily Fitzroy, Edythe Chapman, Alf Goulding, Lilian Neison and Percy Williams.

Strand Theatre

That a beautiful girl cannot but be beautiful—no matter how she may disguise herself—is the striking truth Mary Philbin teaches in "Stella Maris," Universal's forthcoming filmization of William J. Locke's famous novel, now playing at the Strand theater until Tuesday.

Miss Philbin plays the beautiful "Stella Maris," heroine of the story, and also "Unity Blake," the little crossroads waif who possesses positive fascinating charms, but in the end, sacrifices her self on the altar of love's [illegible] throughout. This the star does by means of character make-up that reaches every vestige of her well known self, even through the [illegible] of the consciousness of the audience [illegible] beauty of the character as conceived by the author.

It is a whimsical plot such as Locke delights to picture and [illegible] a great deal of drama has been injected [illegible] the remarkable handling of the [illegible] director. [illegible] adapter, the scenario.

A notable cast appears with Miss Philbin, including Philippa Sinainey, veteran character actor as her father, Elliott Dexter and Jason Robards as the two lovers, Gladys Brockwell as [illegible] Nemesis of the girl's happiness, Lillian Lawrence, Robert Bolder and other well known character [illegible].

Scenic [illegible] are also being [illegible].

Wednesday and Thursday a new [illegible] Norma Talmadge and Mae [illegible] of the Literary [illegible].

Broadway Theatre

An enormous spring frolic of fun with five wonderful acts of Keith-Albee Vaudeville opens at the Broadway theater today.

The feature attraction is "The Artist Model" with Jack Collins in a musical comedy playlet, in which is introduced a quartette of beautiful artist's models. The book for the play was written and staged by Harry Sauber, the music and lyrics by Jack Stern and Clarence J. Marks. Six people are in the cast of the beautiful offering. The other four [illegible] to be no means less entertaining. The [illegible] will also [illegible] opens today for three days on which we take great pleasure in recommending to the attention of every theatregoer in Norwich who is seeking the best in screen entertainment. "Scandal Street," it is called, and it is as different from the usual run of motion picture productions as day is from night.

Much credit is due the players. Delightful Madge Kennedy is more delightful than ever—we more delightful than ever before in her brilliant career. Niles Welch makes much of a dual role. Cor Albertson, Edwin August and J. Mac Bennett—three seasons of troupers—are, each in his own way, splendid, while as for Louise Carter, well we see now why she is being hailed as one of the real "finds" of the year.

POETRY

THE OPEN DOOR

When I pass out through the door of life
Into the glow of the setting sun,
I will not recount the deeds of strife
But the things of love that I have done:
The years of striving have rent me sore,
Love I will find at the open door.

When I cross the threshold, face the West,
And take my way to the end of time,
Through the beams of light each lofty crest
Will catch the glint of a love sublime:
I will learn the art of loving more
In God's great spaces beyond the door.

When I leave this house, close fast the door,
And set my face to the land beyond;
The love I cherish flies on before
To multiply with a love more fond:
The love of live is a bitter sweet,
The gall is purged when the two lovers meet.

The loves I knew in this house of clay,
I can bear them with me as I go
Over the hills at the close of day
When twilight comes as the sun sinks low:
All else but these I have left behind,
Yet their sweet contentment clothes my mind.

At length I come to a portal grand,
A great white door with a cross above
Swung open wide by a mighty hand,
With a golden key, the badge of love:
A loving hand 'neath a love-crowned face
Gives me welcome to that house of Grace.
—W. T. H. SLATER in Boston Transcript.

The Voice of the Dove

Come listen, O Love, to the voice of the dove,
Come, harken and hear him say,
There are many Tomorrows, my Love, my Love—
There is only one Today.

And all day long you can hear him say
This day in purple is rolled,
And the baby stars of the milky way—
They are cradled in cradles of gold.

Now what is thy secret, serene gray dove,
Of singing so sweetly always?
"There are many Tomorrows, my Love, my Love—
There is only one Today."
—Joaquin Miller.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

The modern girl has been weighed and found wanting—most everything. —Lowell Widow.

We take great pleasure in introducing Pat and Mike, the original gaels of laughter. — Washington University Dirge.

Husband (unpacking)—Didn't you pack my liniment, dear?

Wife—No; it was labeled, Not to be taken.—London Mail.

Searcher—At what are you mouthing so?

Barbee—I merely said, It's a long jane that has no curves.—Denison Flamingo.

In order to detect which side of the bread is buttered simply drop it and see which side hits the carpet. It has never failed in a million runs.—Lehigh Burr.

A customer went into a store and picked up an article, walked out with it and told the clerk to charge it.

On what account? called the clerk.

On account of not having any money with me.—Lafayette Lyre.

Oh, I wish these recipes would be more definite.

What's the difficulty, my dear?

This one tells how to use up old potatoes, but does not say how old the potatoes must be.—T.-T.-Bits.

Teacher—Why, Jimmie, is it true that your mother has diphtheria?

Jimmie—Yes, ma'am.

But don't you know you mustn't come to school? You might get it from your mother and then give it to the whole class.

No, ma'am; it's only my stepmother, an' she never gives me nothin'.—The Progressive Grocer.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Indians of North America made mirrors out of mica.

France established the metric system of measures in 1799.

The lens of Galileo's first telescope was less than three inches in diameter.

Thirty Egyptian mummies of priestesses of Amon have been found in a tomb by British archaeologists working in Thebes.

A police report shows that there were in excess of 16,000 traffic accidents in Tokio last year, in which more than 10,000 persons were killed or injured.

A Hudson, N. H., man nearly died in winning a $1 bet. Four goldfish were swimming in a bowl in a waiting room, and the man wagered he could swallow all of them. He did, but for nearly an hour afterward he suffered severe stomach pains.

An interesting old custom, that of the wood market, has continued for more than 100 years at Claremont, N. H., and is still in progress in the same place, near the town hall and band park. On a Saturday noon, more than a dozen loads of stove wood waited for sale. By 3 p. m. they had all disappeared.

Professor Max Meyer, of the University of Missouri, has invented an organ, with which it is possible to play music written upon a scale of 24 tones instead of the usual 12. The tip of each key is detached on the instrument and, when depressed produces a tone half-way between that of the key of which it seems a part and the next lower one.

The school bell rings and Reuben Lopez, 13, of Bryan, Tex., runs out the front door, mounts his steer and rides four miles to attend his classes. The boy raised the steer and broke him to ride single or double. He has ridden about the streets of Bryan so regularly that the steer has ceased to cause any unusual interest. One of the favorite tricks of the steer is to round up cattle. The youth says that in the steer he has the best "cow pony" in Texas.

The fad of pushing their own baby carriages has taken fashionable German mothers in Berlin by storm. It used to be extremely bad form for a mother to be seen with her child on Kurfuerstendamm, Berlin's Montmartre. Now it is the proper thing for the Berliner frau to show off her latest spring hat or coat while giving the baby an airing. The avenue is crowded in the early afternoons with parades of baby buggies. Uniformed nursemaids are much in evidence, as usual, but mothers do all the work, the maids merely accompanying the youngsters.

WEEKLY BUSINESS REVIEW.

NEW YORK, April 25.—(By The A.)—Business conditions were brought into clearer focus last week simultaneously with developments which suggested that another period of readjustment was in order.

The return of easier credit conditions which followed the March slump in the stock market enabled the Federal Reserve bank of New York to lower its rediscount rate from 4 to 3-2 per cent. a change which it was felt would do much to stimulate slackening trade. The establishment of the 3½ per cent. rate by the bank last January was generally interpreted as a warning against unbridled speculation in securities, and if such a gesture were intended it was undeniably effective with the deflation of the stock market accomplished, however, the reserve bank authorities apparently saw a new opportunity of aiding trade by a lower discount charge, at the same time readjusting their rate with the down trend of the open money market.

After a record March output of steel, new business in this country began to fall off in volume, according to official reports of operations by the United States and Bethlehem Steel Corporations. Unless recessions become more pronounced, the second quarters activities will be maintained at a higher rate than a year ago.

Bookings of the U. S. Steel Corporation in April have averaged about 28,500 tons of steel a day compared with 26,261 tons in March and 17,179 tons in April last year. Shipments have been running at the rate of 48,141 tons a day against 51,143 tons. The Bethlehem Corporation's earnings and operations showed marked improvement in the first quarter but new business recently has fallen to about 77 per cent. of capacity while shipments have been running at the rate of 91 per cent.

Much of the blame for the irregularities of business has been placed upon the backwardness of the season which has retarded activities in the agricultural regions and many staple products. The trend of commodity prices has continued downward since early in the year but the preponderance of declines last week was less marked than usual.

The sudden strengthening of stock prices in response to the lower bank rate revived hopes in some quarters that the feeling of pessimism engendered by the previous reaction would be dispelled. If trade derives the expected stimulus from easier credit, these hopes probably will be realized. The action of the stock market, on the other hand, is not likely to play such an important part in shaping general business sentiment.

FAIR, COOLER TODAY; WARMER TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

1786 1926

NORWICH, CONN., MONDAY, APRIL 26, 1926

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Monday, April 26, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The storm that was central over Michigan Saturday night has advanced to Quebec, Doucet reporting the lowest pressure, 29.44 inches, and the secondary disturbance that developed over Virginia has dissipated.

High pressure prevails from Puget Sound southeastward to Wyoming and almost generally between the Rockies and the Appalachian mountains as well as from New Foundland and southwestward to Bermuda.

Generally fair weather will prevail Monday and Tuesday east of the Mississippi although cloudiness will increase Tuesday as far east as the Appalachian mountains.

The weather will remain cool in the Atlantic states Monday, but the temperature will rise slowly Monday in the lower lake region, the Ohio valley and Tennessee and the weather will become warmer Tuesday throughout the Washington forecast district, except along the New England and ... Atlantic coast.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: fresh westerly, fair weather Monday.

For northern and southern New England: Fair and cooler Monday. Tuesday fair, rising temperature in the interior.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Saturday and Sunday:

Saturday	Tem.	Bar.

TAFTVILLE

Mayer Wolfenden and family of Terryville have moved to Webster. Mr. Wolfenden has accepted a position.

Kevin Nolan has returned to his home in Long Branch, N. J., after spending several days in town the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Nolan of Brookhouse street.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Dejon announce the engagement of their daughter Marguerite to Mr. Norbert Hebert of Broadway.

At the weekly conference of Taftville Post K. of C. Lester McNally is leading.

Miss Mary Anna Daigneault of Merchants avenue is in Rockville.

Mrs. Arthur Caudish, a former Taftville resident, now of Fall River, Mass., is confined to her home with a broken leg. She fell down the cellar stairs at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Clements of Merchants avenue, have left town for Lowell, Mass., where they are to make their home.

The session for the French speaking men of Sacred Heart parish which was adjourned for the past week, at the church by Rev. Father Gregoire, Rev. Father Beaudoin, were held Saturday and Sunday. The services have been very well attended. Previous to the Lenten season there was a week devoted to services for the Ladies' Sewing Circle of the parish.

Word received from Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stutz, who were recently married in London, England, states that they have returned from their wedding trip to the continent, and are now at their new home in London. Their trip took them through France, Germany and Italy, with extended stays at Monte Carlo and the Riviera.

Miss Kate Mullen of South Street has moved to New York.

Miss Nellie Nolan and daughter who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phelan and family of South Street have returned to their home in Long Branch, N. J.

The new uniforms for the baseball team of the Taftville Athletic association have arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rondeau and family of North Third avenue are moving to a house on Providence street.

Taftville did not actually adopt daylight saving time until Monday, as the local churches held to standard time for their services on Sunday. However, as in former years, the new time went into effect today (Monday) as industries, stores and schools will go on that schedule.

A surprise miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Miss Joanna Briggs at the home of Mrs. Julius Jemery of Merchants avenue, Thursday evening. Miss Briggs is soon to be married to Herman Dickinson. The bride-elect received many useful gifts, including pink colonial glassware and money. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Jemery, and during the evening of games and music, Mr. Jemery and Mr. Dickinson danced a buck and wing, and sang "Show Me the Way to Go Home." Among the guests were Mrs. Claude Nelson, Miss Diana Brequit, Mrs. J. Howard Bibbins, Mrs. Edith Schofield, Mrs. Clifford Condy, Mrs. Ralph Littlefield, Miss Sophie Lewerk, Miss Julia Brequet, Miss Elizabeth Rothwell, Miss Rose Hodkinson and Miss Bertha Valente. Vocal and ukelele solos were given by Mrs. Jemery and Miss Hodgkinson.

The anthem after the offertory Sunday morning at the Taftville Congregational church was "If Ye Love Me." The church school met at 9:15, at which time it will continue to meet until the closing for the summer. In the evening there was the regular meeting of the Young Peoples society of Christian Endeavor. The topic was How We Can Help to Christianize Our City, and the meeting was in charge of the social committee.

Thomas Misch of Lisbon has resigned his position with the weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Gustave Tellier, 64, died Friday morning at his home on South Second avenue after an illness of three weeks. Mr. Tellier was born in Canada, but for many years had been a resident of the village, where he was highly respected by all who knew him. He was employed in the dairy department of Ponemah mills. He is survived by several sons and daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gideon Lacroix and family of South Second avenue have moved to Jewett City.

Mrs. Louis Gregory was the winner of the first prize for ladies at a whist attended whist party given by the members of St. Veronica's T. A. and B. society at their rooms on Providence street, Thursday evening. The second prize went to Miss Loretta Gregory and the consolation to Miss Annie Dailey. James Murphy won the first prize for gentlemen, Lawrence Benoit the second, and the consolation went to Edward Kelley. Following cards refreshments were served at the tables by a committee composed of Miss Mary Murphy, chairman, Miss Elizabeth Ward and Miss Agnes Murphy.

Mr. and Mrs. William Forrest, of South Fourth avenue have moved to Montville.

The new garage being erected by Edmond Proulx on the site of his barn which was burned several months ago, has been completed.

ESTIMATE $50,000 TO $75,000 DAMAGE IN PLAUT-CADDEN FIRE

What might easily have resulted in the most disastrous fire in the history of Norwich was averted early Sunday morning by the promptness and good work of the Norwich fire department in getting control of the fire at the Plaut-Cadden Company's big store on Main, Water and Shetucket streets. The alarm was turned in at 4.20 standard time, by Officer Charles McFadden, from Box 4, at the corner of Main and Shetucket streets who had seen smoke coming from the rear street floor window on Water street. The fire had made such headway when the firemen arrived that it seemed the company's tremendous stock was threatened with destruction but Chief Howard L. Stanton directed his men with such admirable effectiveness that they had the fire quickly under control and out within three-quarters of an hour after the alarm was sounded. Chief Stanton, Deputy Chief Taft and the firemen were given unstinted praise Sunday night by the officers of the Plaut-Cadden Co., for the manner in which they mastered the situation, which for a time, seemed an almost impossible and herculean task owing to the dense smoke and intense heat.

The firemen fought the blaze from the Water street end of the store, breaking in the windows there and turning on three streams of water which were handled by the crews of Engine Co. No. 1, the squad wagon and the West Side company. The heat on the main floor of the store was so intense that a great amount of blistering was done to paint and wood work and the finely finished furniture on display there, while every pane of glass at the rear of the windows on the Main street front was cracked, although the big plate glass show windows were not broken.

Cause Unknown.

The origin of the fire is unknown. It started near the musical merchandise department in the southwest Water street corner of the street floor and after burning the offices located nearby it worked its way along the walls and counters on the west side of the store, completely destroying the musical merchandise department and a large section of the [illegible] department. It was these departments and the most damage destroying also a great amount of rare imported art objects, statuary, bronzes, lamps, silverware, cut glass, jewelry, cameras and many other valuable articles.

That the fire must have spread with great rapidity is evidenced by the fact that the night watchman, Bernard J. Peterson, saw no signs of it while making his rounds shortly before his discovery of it. The store is protected by the Newmann clock system, which required that the watchman make hourly rounds during the night which are registered by key on the clock at different stations on each floor of the big store.

Watchman Nearly Overcome.

[illegible] station of the clock shows [illegible] and was made on time [illegible] Saturday night. The [illegible] and was made at 4 o'clock Sunday morning with the street floor [illegible] where the fire broke out. According to the watchman, there was no sign of a fire at this time and it was not until he was on the fourth and top floor about to go down, after making his round, which took 20 minutes, that he smelled smoke coming up the elevator shaft. Descending quickly and upon nearing the street floor he was met by a huge volume of smoke. Although nearly overcome by the suddenness and density of the smoke he succeeded in reaching the street floor and immediately telephoned the alarm to the night telephone operator, who also was given praise for the promptness with which she notified the fire department and the officers of the Plaut-Cadden Co.

Estimate of Loss.

Owing to the nature of much of the merchandise and the extent of destruction the officers of the company are unable yet to determine definitely the amount of the loss but it is certain that the destruction and damage of stock and property will be between $50,000 and $75,000. The greatest damage was done on the street floor, to which floor the fire was mostly confined, where a large stock of the company's finest merchandise was displayed, including overstuffed living room furniture and other furniture of the finest quality, rare imported Oriental and Chinese rugs, tapestries, lamps, hall clocks, art objects, mirrors, pianos, victrolas, draperies and hundreds of other costly exclusive articles. In addition to the fire damage on this floor there was also very great damage done by smoke, soot and water.

Flames Up Elevator Shaft.

There was also some fire damage on the second, third and fourth floors by the flames going up the elevator shaft but the most damage done on the upper floors was caused by soot and smoke, the latter leaving its imprint throughout the entire upper floors of the building. The basement, however, including the section where the company's heating device is located contains no indication of the fire, with the exception of a little water which came through from the [illegible] department.

This unfortunate fire is keenly felt by the management of the company because it is the first one in their 54 years of business history, which is a record of carefulness of which any business should be proud. It is unfortunate, too, it was pointed out, that it should come so soon after the company's brilliant opening of their extensively enlarged and newly decorated store a few months ago. However, an officer of the company said Sunday that this loss will not handicap them in their determination to continue growing but will act as an incentive to renewed efforts in providing Norwich and [illegible] Connecticut with the [illegible] store that is needed, a great metropolitan store of which they may always be proud.

The company will begin work at once to repair the damage and it is expected that there will be very little delay in accomplishing this. The store will continue to be opened for payments only, until the insurance adjusters have completed their work and the company has repaired the damage done to stock and property.

GOD'S SEEMING ABSENCE TEST OF FAITH, SAYS PRIEST

"A little while, and you shall not see [illegible] and again a little while, and you shall see me, because I go to the Father," was the gospel read and the message [illegible] day, June 16, 1924, was developed at the solemn mass in St. Patrick's church by Rev. COST SMALL FORTUNE TO DROP THIS BOTTLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, April 26—Leon Gagnon, who was forcibly dragged out of the Capitol theatre Saturday night by the house officer, Patrolman F. Rudolph Laramee, when he annoyed a woman seated next to him, pleaded guilty to two of the three charges of intoxication, breach of the peace and resisting a police officer, in police court this morning. Gagnon said that he had never been arrested before. Interceding for him was the proprietor of the boarding house where Gagnon makes his home. This man said that Gagnon was a good fellow but that friends from Attwic, R. I., had come here and given him drinks later putting a bottle of liquor in his pocket. This man said that when Gagnon went to take his coat off in the theatre the bottle dropped to the floor and in reaching for it his hand came in contact with a woman's face, resulting in a commotion. Judge Foss imposed a fine of $10 for resistance, suspending judgment for six months. On the other two charges fines of $5 for each with costs, amounting to $20.13 were imposed. Gagnon paid up.

James F. Doyle, arrested twice within 24 hours for intoxication, was given a lecture in police court Monday morning and fined $15 and costs, amounting to $21.16. Doyle had received a similar fine Saturday morning and a balance of $1.16 was added to his bill making a total of $24.16 which he is to pay. Doyle was placed under the surveyance of Probation Officer S. Arnold Peckham.

Walek Juras who promised the court some weeks ago that he would pay his wife seven dollars a week for the support of herself and children, was hailed before the judge again Monday morning to explain his failure to make good. Juras said that he was out of work but it appeared to the court that he had left a good job because he would have to pay money to his wife if he was working. Judge Foss stated that the suspended sentence of six months in jail would have to be put into effect unless Juras arranged to pay the money or furnish a bond for the same. Juras failed to locate a bondsman and he was taken to the county jail at Brooklyn.

Great Rejoicing by Rheumatic Cripples

If So Crippled You Can't Use Arms or Legs, Rheuma Will Help You or Nothing to Pay

Get a bottle of Rheuma today and wear a satisfied smile on your face tomorrow.

It's a remedy that is astonishing the whole country, and it's fast as good for gout, sciatica and lumbago as for rheumatism.

It drives the poisonous waste from the joints and muscles—that's the secret of Rheuma's success.

But we don't ask you to take our word for it; go to Lee & Osgood Co or any druggist and get a bottle of Rheuma today; if it doesn't do as we promise get your money back. It will be there waiting for you.

ASTHMA CURED BEFORE YOU PAY

Mr. D. J. Lane, a chemist located at 1609 Lane Bldg., St. Marys, Kans., has discovered a simple home remedy for Asthma. Mr. Lane has so much confidence in his ability to cure that he will send a regular $1.25 bottle free postpaid, to any sufferer who will write him. His offer is that he is to be paid for it if it cures. If not, your request cancels the charge. If you suffer from Asthma write him today. Send no money—just your name and address will do.

The principal needs for this year are a new church furnace and the painting of the personage and church. Money for the painting of the church has already been collected. H. C. Bathrop gave one quarter of the whole sum needed and the L. A. society gave $10.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

The entertainment which was to be given by the Women of the North Sterling church has been indefinitely postponed on account of sickness and death in the family of some who were to take part.

Several local people attended a social and dance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Adams Saturday evening.

Mrs. Arthur Tetreault spe. Friday afternoon with Mrs. P. H. Coffey.

James Hayfield Jr. was a visitor at The Oaks one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Place of Foster spent Sunday with local relatives.

Jacob Spaulding has resigned as sexton of the local cemetery on account of other business interests. His successor has not been appointed.

Practically every one here went on daylight saving time Monday morning. Now if the powers that be could arrange with the sun to go to work an hour earlier so crops would be ready to work on when the hired help report for duty it would be of great assistance to farmers, as there are many kinds of work on the farm that can not be done while the dew is on the ground.

Mrs. Edward Brown entertained friends from Hopkins Mills Friday.

Gertrude Hall of Lynn, Mass., is spending a week at her home.

If Teeth Lack Gleam Do This

Gives sparkling whiteness quickly

Accept full 10-day tube of this new method leading dental authorities urge . . . note the difference in teeth and gums as dingy film coat goes

UNATTRACTIVE teeth; dull teeth, toneless gums—don't let them handicap you any longer. It's been learned teeth are seldom naturally "off color." You can quickly restore them to gleaming, clear whiteness.

Why dull-looking teeth Due simply to a film coat

Dental science now traces scores of tooth and gum troubles to a germ-laden film on teeth.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it—a slippery, viscous coating.

That film absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. And that is why your teeth look "off color."

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea and decay.

Old ways won't clear it off

Ordinary dentifrices and cleansing won't fight film successfully. Feel for it now with your tongue. Note how your present cleansing method is failing in its duty.

Now new methods are being used. A dentifrice called Pepsodent—different in formula, action and effect from any other.

Largely on dental advice, the world has turned to this method. It accomplishes two important things at once: Removes film, then firms the gums.

A few days' use will prove its power beyond all doubt. Send the coupon. Clip it now.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON SHOOLS ON DAYLIGHT TIME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, April 26. — Public schools in Danielson will be in session hereafter until the end of the school year in June on daylight saving time. Standard time schedules of sessions were adhered to during Monday, when announcements of the impending change were made. Danielson's business is now being generally conducted on daylight saving time.

Her children and grandchildren and friends to the number of 14 gathered at the home of Mrs. Ardella Kennedy, Furance street, Sunday, for the observance of her 72nd birthday. There was a very happy dinner party. Mrs. Kennedy was presented a birthday cake embellished with 72 candles. The dinner party included her sons, Louis E. and Ernest of Danielson, Benjamin of Norwich, and her daughter, Mrs. A. E. St. Onge of Providence. Another son, Thomas, of Springfield, was unable to be present. Others at the dinner were Mrs. Benjamin Kennedy and Miss Alice Smith of Norwich, Mrs. L. E. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Soule, John Heidey, Jr., and Virginia Hedley, all of Providence.

A registered tournament of the Connecticut Trapshooters' association under the auspices of the Danielson Rod and Gun club is to be held at the traps of the local club in the Allen hill section on Saturday next. This affair will bring entrants from various parts of the state and from points in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The program provides for 125 16-yard targets, five events, 25 targets each. Shooters will be classified according to their A. T. A. average and known ability into four classes.

A distance handicap of 50 targets is listed, high gun to win. There is to be a doubles, 25 pair (50 targets), in one event.

The Danielson Rod and Gun club has a series of registered shoots planned for the season now opening.

Trapshooters representative of this territory and of Hartford, Providence, Attleboro and Woonsocket participated in a week end registered shoot at the traps of the Danielson Rod and Gun club. There were three events. In the low target class the scores were as follows, the letter indicating the class of each man: Holman, C, 85; Tebo, C, 90; Salisbury, D, 75; Todd, D, 77; W. A basket of ten fine trout was distributed here Monday by Fred Snarr of Wauregan.

Visiting priests have been at St. Joseph church in Danielson for the forty hours devotion, that will come to a close this morning having begun Sunday.

There are only a few more than 20 prisoners at the Windham county jail in Brooklyn at this time, a very considerable reduction from the largest number held there at any one time during the cold weather season.

Killingly grange is receiving applications for membership in a class of candidates to be initiated the latter part of May.

The zeal with which discarded automobile tires are being collected by local men is evidence of the value at this time of this sort of merchandise. Tons of old tires have been culled from this and surrounding communities within the past few weeks.

The past 48 hours rivers and brooks this territory have been at their highest level for a number of weeks, this due to the heavy downpour of Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

A Windham county Y team is to be assembled for the annual field contests to be held early in May, at the fairgrounds in Brooklyn, as has been the custom for several years.

This week Tax Collector James R. Walsh will devote time to collecting in communities in the northern section of the town of Killingly.

Arthur G. Roche of Pawtucket has been a visitor with friends in Danielson.

A change from the steady run of pictures was the musical comedy at the Orpheum theater at Monday's shows, this is an added attraction to the feature picture.

Although Danielson is following a daylight saving schedule in its manufacturing, banking and business life, its public clocks all display standard time and likely will continue that way during the summer season, as a state law prohibits a display of daylight time.

Announcements will be made later in the week relative to changes in the hours of service at various churches in the borough for Sunday next and for the remainder of the spring and the full summer period.

A minor case claimed the attention of the town court, Judge W. Benner Woodward presiding, Monday afternoon. There was no other court business developing over the week end.

Because of present exceptionally high price, an unusually heavy acreage of potatoes is looked for in this territory during the coming growing season.

A committee of Quinebaugh lodge, I. O. O. F., has adopted resolutions of respect in connection with the death the past week of one of the oldest members of the lodge—Charles L. Darble.

This week pupils in the graded schools of Killingly and Brooklyn are preparing for a speaking and spelling contest to be held here Friday evening of this week. All of the pupils are in grades from the sixth to the eighth.

PUTNAM

CREDITORS RECEIVING PAYMENT ON MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 26—The payment of the third dividend, amounting to ten per cent to depositors and other creditors of the First National bank began this morning. There were not many waiting in line at any time but there was a steady stream pouring into the Citizens National bank where Receiver Coffin has his headquarters, throughout the day.

Miss Helen Sharpe, Mr. Coffin's secretary, had a complete record of the claimants and the amount due them. After certifying to the correctness of the proof of claims she passed them on to Miss Ruth Pratt who made out the checks.

All creditors should remember that it is necessary for them to present their receiver's certificates before they can receive their dividend.

F. A. Stanley, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A. was here for the annual Father and Sons Banquet held last night at the Baptist church. There were nearly 100 in attendance and the program which included a fine address by Mr. Stanley and one by Ralph C. Jenkins, who presided at the exercises after a very delicious supper, prepared and served by the ladies of the church.

There was music by the high school orchestra and chorus singing under the direction of C. D. Sharpe.

Short talks were given by James B. Tatem Jr., Page Jenkins and James Mansfield, all younger boys, one by W. Perry Barber, and one by Harry Richardson of Moosup.

More than 400 members of the Knights of Columbus were assembled at St. John's hall Sunday afternoon when the third degree was conferred on a class of 18. William J. Mulligan, state deputy, conducted the degree work assisted by visiting and local officers. After the work Mr. Mulligan made one of the eloquent addresses for which he is noted, and short talks were given by other speakers.

There were visiting Knights present from many cities in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Grand Knight Armand Monteville and Past Grand Knight Frank Sherlock were elected delegates to the state convention to be held at South Norwalk May 9-11, and James J. Charron and Arthur Duvert were elected alternates.

The visiting officers were: State Deputy William J. Mulligan, Thompsonville; State Secretary John W. Phillips, Hartford; State Advocate Jerome J. Collins, New London; District Deputies John F. Herron, Jewett City, Henry P. Burque, Danielson.

The Northeastern Connecticut Fish and Game club will hold its annual banquet at the Putnam Inn on Thursday evening, May 6. Adding interest to the affair is the fact that Commissioner Frederick C. Walcott, Superintendent John W. Titcomb and Chief Game Warden A. Joseph Williamson have all accepted invitations to be present at that time.

At this time the visitors will spend three days in this section looking over trout streams and game refugees. Mr. Walcott, as the club members know, is spending a great deal of time and money in the furtherance of fish and game interests in Connecticut and more than any other person he is credited with the position the state has reached in these matters. What he thinks of this section is in a letter received by the club from him and is as follows:

"There are more opportunities in the neighborhood of Putnam for the conservation of game than in any other part of the state. We want to give you all of the co-operation we can as a commission and I want to discuss with your associates frankly some phases of our work."

He also adds that he wants to further investigate the situation here and that he is glad to do so at this time. Mr. Walcott is to bring three films on "Connecticut's Resources in Forests, Fish and Game." They are entirely new and have never been shown in this vicinity. In addition to the above the Hono-lulu Boys of Providence have been engaged to furnish music during the evening.

John Slack, 52, of Pomfret, died suddenly while at his work as chef of the Pomfret rectory school. He was in the kitchen at noon time when he complained of feeling ill and said that it was hard for him to breathe. He died within 20 minutes of an attack of heart trouble.

Mr. Slack was a West Indian. He was highly respected by those who knew him as having an upright Christian character. For some years he was employed at the Howe-Marot school in Thompson and after leaving there worked in several places before going to the rectory school. An effort to locate relatives failed.

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon and burial was in Grove street cemetery.

The sixth annual convention of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. is to be held in Putnam on Friday, May 7th. The members and all of those interested in the Y work are urged to attend as this convention is in the form of an annual get-together and will help the secretary and directors to accomplish more in their work. Further particulars will be announced later but all who are interested are requested to let Miss Ruby Payne know by writing her at 25 Front street, Putnam, Conn.

Mizpah lodge of Rebekahs will hold an anniversary celebration at their regular meeting in Odd Fellows hall on Wednesday night. A feature of the evening will be a drill contest between the guards of the Odd Fellows' first degree team and the Rebekahs degree team. Refreshments will be served.

The Ecclesiastical society of the First Baptist church of this city has received notice from Rev. Henry H. Hodges of Winchester, Mass., that he has accepted their call to become pastor of their church and will be ready to enter upon his new duties on the first of June. Mr. Hodges was for 10 years pastor of the Baptist church at Worcester, Mass., but left the ministry to engage in the Interchurch business.

Rev. F. W. Lougwell has been acting pastor of the church for the past year and many of the members will be sorry to see him leave.

The Putnam post office has changed time and mails will now arrive and depart one hour earlier. The office will now open at 6 a. m. and close at 7 p. m. daylight saving time.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Barnard of South Main street were visitors in Providence last week.

J. Fred Ash of Pomfret has been appointed fish and game warden of Windham county to succeed Charles M. Letters, who resigned some time ago. It is probable that Mr. Ash will move to Putnam.

At a meeting held recently by the members of the Scottish Lutheran church at North Grosvenordale it was unanimously voted to unite with the church at Auburn, Mass. The two churches are to be independent of each other but will have the same pastor who will reside at North Grosvenordale. A call has been extended to Rev. A. D. Mattson of St. James, Minnesota, to be pastor of the two churches if Rev. Mr. Mattson accepts the call he will take charge of the churches some time in the late summer.

At the meeting of the Thimble club of Thompson, Mrs. C. L. Knight told of her experiences in Florida in a very interesting way. Mrs. Oscar Munson read an account of the early history of Thompson. The club is to be entertained on May 10th by the Women's club of North Grosvenordale at the home of Mrs. John Reardon, when they will have a speaker from the Connecticut Agricultural college.

Edward McKenna of Walnut street is moving his family to Lowell, Mass., where he has secured a position. He was formerly boss weaver at the Beachmont mills in Mechanicsville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fanning and children of Worcester, Mass., were recent guests of Mrs. Fanning's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dumas of Providence street.

Mrs. Ralph Booth and little daughter of Grove street have returned from a visit with Mrs. Booth's parents at Shelton, Conn.

Miss Celia Benoit was a Worcester visitor on Saturday.

Miss Alice Devine of Fremont street has returned from a visit with her sister, Mrs. Walter Richards at Philadelphia.

Miss Dora Swift who has been spending the past year at Los Angeles will return to her home in Putnam about the first of May.

Mrs. George L. Booth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morse of School street has gone to join her husband at Chicago, Ill., where he is now employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Knowles and son of Swampscott, Mass., have been the guests of Mrs. Knowles' sister, Mrs. F. B. Christmas of Center street.

David Lown, who has been in Florida for the past winter is the guest of his mother, Mrs. Effie Lown on Grove street.

Mrs. W R. Barber of School street, regent of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., has returned from Washington, D. C., where she has been attending the nation D. A. R. convention.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Martin Walpole, 35, of Hazardville, is in a critical condition at the Johnson Memorial hospital where he was taken early Sunday morning after being struck and run over by an automobile while returning from a church fair in Somersville. Walpole, in company with William Donahue, was walking along the highway in Somersville when a car approached from the rear and struck him, probably passing over his body. He had three ribs broken, his skull fractured and his spine badly injured. The attending physician has but scant hope of his recovery. After striking the man the autoist sped away and the state police have spent the last two days checking up all cars in that vicinity Saturday night. Four Willimantic men were arrested in Somersville early Sunday morning but it is not known that they were connected with the running down of Walpole. The men gave their names as Joseph Dube, Emil Brochu, James Martin and Omer Ouelette. The men were brought to the detention rooms in the Stafford town hall and later in the day were taken to Somers when Ouelette was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 10 days in jail for driving while drunk and speeding. Brochu, Martin and Duby were each fined $5 and costs for intoxication. The cases were heard by Justice of the Peace Thatcher in Somers.

Anton Petrovich was fined $15 and costs of $11.22 by Judge Heald in the borough court Monday morning for operating a car when was not registered and using improper markers.

James Grundy pleaded guilty to intoxication and breach of the peace and was fined $2 and costs of $16.

Some women are never so happy as when they can talk of their ailments.

"Rinso certainly is a worker in my house—it does practically the entire work of washing for me. By soaking the clothes in Rinso suds all the dirt is loosened up, and all I really have to do is just rinse them thoroughly and they are ready for the line. Rinso certainly makes them snowy white! I never knew how really white clothes could be until I used it. And it is so easy on my hands. It never seems to redden or roughen them one bit, no matter how large a washing I do."
MRS. ADA M. REVELL,

Norwich, Conn.

Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this

What Mrs. Ada Revell, 58 Baltic St., says:

New quick way soaks clothes whiter

—whiter than you could rub them

YOU don't know how sweet and clean clothes can get until you've tried this new way. Everything white, bright and spotless—without a bit of hard rubbing.

Give up that washboard for good. Give up bar soaps, powders, chips. From now on your washday will be easy.

Get Rinso from your grocer. This granulated soap is all you need on washday.

The safe laundry soap

See what thick, creamy suds it gives, how soft and nice it makes the water.

Soak the whole week's wash in these cleansing suds—and watch the dirt float off! No scrubbing. No hard rubbing at all. Clothes soak whiter and brighter than you could rub them!

Rinso is easy on the hands and absolutely safe for your finest cottons and linens. Contains no acids, bleaches or harmful chemicals.

Rinso whitens better than boiling. A rub or two between the fingers makes even the most soiled parts snowy. Sterilizes, too!

Watch dirt float off

No more rubbing your strength away on washday! Rinso loosens dirt—gently. You can see it float off in the rinsing.

Saves clothes from being scrubbed and boiled threadbare. Saves hands from getting washworn and swollen.

Millions now do the weekly wash this easy way. You can, too. Just say "Rinso" to your grocer—and follow simple directions on package.

In washers, too!

Rinso is so fine in washers that 23 leading manufacturers recommend it. Quick and safe—and gets white clothes whiter, colored clothes brighter, than ever.

Such Flavor

as this comes only in real Quaker Oats

THE price you pay for substitutes is the same as for the genuine Quaker Oats. The difference is in the flavor. And flavor, above all things, is important in oats.

That rich and toasty Quaker flavor is the result of some 50 years' milling experience. Once you taste it, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

That is why millions demand the Quaker brand—why you should accept no other.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates, and vitamines and "bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently "balanced" food.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

Most Women

Have stopped old hygienic methods to assure real immaculacy. NEW way gives true protection—discards like tissue

FEW modern women but employ a new and different way in hygiene. A way that supplants the old-time "sanitary pad" with true protection.

Wear filmy frocks and light things . . . any time. Dance, motor for hours without doubt or fear.

It is called "KOTEX" . . . five times as absorbent as the ordinary cotton pad!

Thoroughly deodorizes . . . thus ending ALL fear of offending.

✓ Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it without hesitancy at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." Costs only a few cents. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

LOOKING TO DEBTOR STATES

Even though it is a bit uncertain as to what British bond holders may do when what they can do, there is nothing surprising or alarming about the belief to which they have given expression that a settlement ought to be made.

The war debt settlements made by this country gives them a chance to express themselves and perhaps get more attention than they would otherwise receive, for debt settlement should not be one sided.

The claims are against eight southern states, which borrowed money for public improvements and industrial expansion before and after the Civil war. They are not war debts but they have never been paid. The situation is that the states have repudiated the debts and inasmuch as it is impossible to bring suit against a state there is no way in which to get an adjustment.

The suggested plan of bringing the matter to the attention of the United States supreme court for the purpose of getting some action through its assistance will probably produce slight results. The way for action of that kind seems blocked, for that doesn't eliminate what is pointed to as the responsibility of the states to meet their obligations.

Prosperous states as a rule do not repudiate their debts. It doesn't react to the benefit of their credit and it doesn't create a good impression. The debt has stood for so long that it might be considered to be outlawed but there remains the fact nevertheless that the debt has never been paid despite of the fact that the money was received and used for the purposes intended.

Just when we maintain that other countries should pay their debts the British bondholders are to more than making the most of their opportunity to get what is due to them and it doesn't appear but what they are in every way justified. Perhaps the states might not feel in a position to pay the amount in one lump but they certainly should not feel aggrieved to be asked to pay on the instalment plan. It ought to require no suit, if any, and more reasonable to pay a state its debts.

PUTTING TRUCKS IN PLACE

Many who have had experience with the operation of the big trucks will look with interest the progress that is made on the campaign inaugurated in New York city for the suppression of the reckless and heedless drivers who not only hog the road but have no respect for the rights of others. The [illegible] to the rules of the road

The attitude taken by the truck drivers is that inasmuch as the trucks are likely to suffer if it is struck, the drivers of the smaller cars to do all the stopping. They pay no more attention to the other fellow than they are forced even can see this attitude, the point of discourtesy and defiance in their refusal to yield the right of way and in their demands for more than their share of the highway.

New York has had more than 100 truck drivers brought into court and to them there have been told what they are expected to do and that they do not limit the from the provisions of the law just because trucks are big and heavy.

There is no reason to expect but that trucks will make use of the highways for which they pay their license quite the same as other vehicles, but in doing so there are rules which it must be expected that all will obey. The traffic arrangements are expected to govern all and while some allowance might be made by the drivers of light cars for the trucks in bad places, it is not to be expected that they are going to tolerate discourtesy as a regular thing. That is apparently the situation which has prevailed in New York and the need is realized of breaking it up. It is a move in the right direction which can no doubt be applied in other cities where much the same conditions prevail. Where such a situation exists the longer it is permitted to go uncorrected the sooner it is bound to become chronic and more difficult to remedy.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA

In the conclusion of a treaty of amity and commerce between Germany and Russia the interest of the other nations of Europe is bound to be aroused until it is determined just what the effect is going to be. It will not be looked upon lightly until it is certain just what it means, and that it means nothing more than is indicated on the surface.

The situation has prevailed for some time where Moscow has been looking for financial assistance. It needs money with which to buy in other markets but it is unable to obtain all the loans that it might desire. It is natural that it should seek to buy in Germany and in view of its desire to get back on its feet and meet its obligations Germany must find a market for its goods. If it can do so in this big neighbor it will be materially aided.

There was the time when the British entered a trade agreement with Moscow. Much was expected of it but the results were not in keeping with expectations. Whether the outcome of the treaty between Germany and Moscow will be any different remains to be seen. The treaty is not one that gives all the favors to Russia, for Russia has been obliged to back down from the position it once took and display a different attitude. Economic conditions have forced it to take a different view of capital. Hinging upon the treaty is a large loan which Russia is planning to place in Berlin. That should help to cement the commercial relationship and it is probable that the loan will follow the treaty quite the same as international loans have followed debt adjustments.

There is apparently nothing in the treaty to stand in the way of Germany entering the league. It has not been shown, though there have been some intimations, that there is anything but a trade relationship involved. It is evident that Germany has reason for regarding it as of special advantage in meeting its many obligations. It should give its industries a chance to show what they can do once more.

ANOTHER COAL PROBLEM

The coal problem has once more shifted across the water. Six months ago it was the chief topic of conversation in this country with insistent demands for legislation to prevent a recurrence. The strike has been settled and we are slipping back into old conditions, but Great Britain faces a tie up of the coal industry which threatens to demoralize its entire industry.

The present situation is the outcome of a temporary adjustment made a year ago, when with the owners and miners unable to agree in regard to working conditions and wages the government stepped in and agreed to pay a subsidy to the operators, so that in the payment of higher wages they would not be obliged to sustain a loss, which reports showed would otherwise be the case.

The subsidy was followed by a government investigation with the result that public ownership of the mines and operation under a private lease have been recommended under the belief that the pooling of the profitable and unprofitable mines would permit of an adjustment in conditions and a balancing of the hours of the coal industry after keeping all the mines in operation.

The government subsidy ends with April. No new agreement has as yet been effected to take its place and without an agreement coal mining can be expected to stop. Whether the government will decide it is good policy to continue the subsidy until an agreement is reached remains a possibility, but because of its importance the threatened tie up of the British coal industry creates an interest not only at home but on the continent and abroad.

TREATY WITH TURKEY

In connection with the efforts for and against the ratification of the treaty with Turkey there are leaders of one church who are opposing it and those of another who are favoring it. In behalf of those who are urging ratification [illegible] to be noted that the [illegible] represent the Congregationalists [illegible] in charge for the most part of the missionary work in that country and has been for years. They do not regard the treaty as ideal or without its weak points, but they recognize the necessity of having treaty relations resumed and that the treaty drawn up at Lausanne is probably the best that can be obtained under the present conditions.

It is noteworthy that President [illegible] Roberts college, an institution of higher learning which has been in operation in Turkey for 60 years, is a strong advocate of ratification. Speaking as the result of his 45 years experience in that empire he says: "The Turkish government is working hard to make Turkey a modern state, a progressive state. Mustapha Kemal is a strong man, imbued with western ideas and possesses courage and firmness unknown in Turkey has adopted the Swiss civil code, done away with polygamy and cut loose the [illegible] bound it to the east."

Turkey has a long way to go to reach the point which some insist upon. Perhaps it will get there in time long enough, but it can hardly be expected that treaty relations with that country are going to be side-tracked until such a time by this or any other country. The next exists for the best that can be obtained in the way of a treaty now and its improvement as rapidly as possible as time goes on. It is the interests of this country and not those of Turkey which demand consideration now.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 26. — Vice President Dawes has the reputation of being a first class violinist as well as composer, but now some folks are taking the joy out of his life by stating he doesn't play the violin, merely writing delightful music for that instrument, and leaving the playing to some one else. His "Melodie in A" is a very beautiful bit of violin music and it won't be easy to persuade those who know Dawes in his softer moods and have heard the composition, that Dawes doesn't play it, himself, and play it well.

Old King Cole and his famous fiddle is said to be well illustrated by at least two top-notch men in senate and house, allowing the Dawes as a violinist to stand true. They are Dawes, vice president and presiding officer of the senate, and Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house. We know Longworth plays the violin for he has often been heard doing so, and we take the Dawes playing on faith, despite the latest rumor to the contrary. That makes old King Cole represented by two instead of "fiddlers three" so far as official information goes.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire has introduced a bill in the senate for a new building for the supreme court of the United States. The building is greatly needed. The court is the highest body in the government of the United States; its court rooms and adjacent rooms are the smallest and most inconvenient of any branch of the government. The court sits in the old senate chamber, constructed when the senate numbered less than 30 members—the adjoining rooms are equally small and inconvenient. The library is tucked away on the ground floor of the capitol, inadequately lighted, and small in dimensions, yet containing the most valuable collection of legal reference to be found in this country.

A building of dignity and with ample space is a great need of the supreme court, visitors from all parts of the world seek admission to a session, and often a long line of visitors stand an hour in the marble corridor outside the entrance to the chamber, waiting their turn to file in and secure one of the few seats accorded visitors. The court does not want to shut out the public, yet the constant rustle and hum of directing visitors, the constant going in and out under the very noses of the chief justice and his associates, who sit practically on a level with visitors and more than ten feet away from them is disturbing and distracting to both court and attorneys pleading before it. The Moses bill proposes a suitable building for the exclusive use of the supreme court and it is expected the bill will pass congress as one of the pressing needs for government buildings.

Washington's cherry blossoms got a congestive chill right in the midst of their prime and the visit of the D. A. R.'s and other spring "Washington guests". A week of warm fine weather was followed by a day of cold rain and a "snow squall" that left the ground only damp, but that chilled the beautiful pink and white blossoms, and spoiled their first beauty, or rather put it to an end some days before the blossoms would otherwise have faded. A pleasing episode of the opening of the first cherry blossoms was the visit to them by the ambassador of Japan and his family. The children, Japan and his family. The children, in quaint Japanese dress, played under the "home trees" and the ambassador made no pretence of putting diplomatic relations in the first rank so long as the famous trees, a gift from Japan to the United States, remain in bloom. The later deep pink double blossom trees will bloom in a week or so, following the other and single pink blossoms.

At one of the recent white house conferences with the press, President Coolidge made it clear that he should not be held accountable for the legislative program, as congress may carry it out. He said very frankly that having outlined in his message to congress last December, a program he hoped congress would see fit to carry out, that his part of the legislative program was completed and that it would be improper for him to go further. It rests with congress to comply, or take other steps. Mr. Coolidge seems determined not to mix administrative and legislative powers, and thus far has positively declined to interfere or attempt to influence any sort of legislation that may be pending. Sometimes irresponsible persons state that "the president favors" so and so, whatever the case may be, but rarely, if ever, are those statements made on information received first hand or from the white house, if the measure is one of legislative and not administrative caliber.

The man out at the weather bureau says that 85 per cent of the weather predictions sent out by the bureau are correct. The records of the past six years show this to be the average, which the bureau feels is a mighty good record.

The Connecticut delegation has been absorbed in routine work the past week, no measures of specific state interest having been brought before congress, except the Tilson bill, granting permission for the governor's foot guard of Connecticut to make its proposed trip abroad as a military organization.

Floor Leader John Q. Tilson of New Haven has had as his guest the past week, his brother, Dr. Jacob Tilson, a distinguished physician of Marshall, North Carolina.

The Daughters of the American Revolution from every state in the union are here in great numbers, and Continental hall is filled to overflowing at each session. Members of the order living in Washington, and high officials have entertained lavishly for the entertainment of the visitors from their home state, the magnificent Congressional County club, on the outskirts of the city being a very popular place for wives of senators and members of congress to give teas and luncheons in honor of the home delegation to the D. A. R. congress. In this case Connecticut proved no exception.

The wives of three New England governors, Winant, of New Hampshire; Trumbull, of Connecticut, and Billings, of Vermont, have been recorded before the senate committee investigating prohibition as supporting the opposition of the woman's national committee for law enforcement, to any modification, either of the prohibition amendment or Volstead act.

IN THE NICK OF TIME

The romantic young man dashed the newspaper to the floor, sprang to his feet and paced up and down rapidly, muttering meanwhile to himself, to the intense amazement of his roommate who never was very much disturbed about anything.

"Hey!" said the roommate at last, "anything the trouble?"

"Trouble?" echoed the romantic young man. "Merely the end of the world! I've just read the announcement of Hazel Hermit's engagement to that oaf, Marbell Mantle! Oaf, men, Marbell Mantle, whose idea of drama is musical comedy, wears [illegible] ties, and openly says he eats a boiled dinner with cabbage any time he can get it! He has a laugh like a landslide coming down the mountain and he slaps you on the back! And Hazel with her dreamy nature, her soul—"

"Were you expecting to marry her yourself?" asked the roommate.

"What?" the dark young man exploded, stopping as though shot. "How do I know? And if I did know I haven't an idea in the world whether or not she would have known. I've been going around these seven or eight times a week and calling her up about twice every day and sending her [illegible] and things and going to the theaters as fast as they come on and [illegible] thing new! Just ordinary [illegible] you know yet I sort of thought—Hazel seemed so glad to see me—

"Fast work!" the roommate [illegible] him. "Here you monopolize a girl's time for weeks and haunt her footsteps and bark at other men away and [illegible] you don't clinch the deal. Not [illegible] a word about matrimony and [illegible] bills! Give her every [illegible] all over but ordering the [illegible] ment cards and then have [illegible] the vocal chords! No wonder the poor girl got wild and desperate and [illegible] bed this Mantle man! Serves you right!"

"But—but," stammered the dark young man, "I hadn't a hint of it! I never saw Marbell Mantle speak to Hazel but once or twice and I don't see when he ever has had time to take her out—lately, that is. To-day she played such a trick on me—sent me to find it out from the papers. I, any stranger! Why, I was just over there last night and she never said a word or acted excited and nervous or anything! The more I think of it the more impossible it seems that a girl like Hazel Hermit should marry an individual who always looks as though he had just had his ears put on his head and runs to colored [illegible] handkerchiefs! He said he thought Babbitt a grand character! She might have sort of broken it gently—"

"Why?" demanded the roommate.

"She ought-a have known!" the romantic young man [illegible] to walk up and [illegible] that I—that or— dragged [illegible] I suppose back in my head I [illegible] some day I'd—don't [illegible] a peculiar sense warning [illegible] proposal is coming! Of course I scarcely knew myself that it was coming until this—we were having such a splendid time [illegible] I thought—oh, why did she do it—Marbell Mantle!"

"Now, now [illegible] vised the roommate [illegible] you see a girl [illegible] piece right away—

"I'll never [illegible] Hazel's place! [illegible] young man. "I'll never marry! How can you suggest such a thing! I never stepped to think that I was in love with her! I didn't know it until just now when it is too late—"

"You're just getting what you deserve," said the heartless roommate resuming the paper to look at the tragic society item. "Say, you nut! This reads Hazel Hermit instead of Hermit —the girl who lives way out in Sherman road, whose father is always getting in the papers! Your little Hazel is [illegible] still single, free, unattached, hanging out of the window waiting for you—"

But the romantic young man had already grabbed his hat and vanished, and with a relieved sigh the prosaic roommate once more settled down to his peaceful reading.—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Joel Chandler Harris, the Printer, Author of Uncle Remus

Who would think that a small boy sitting in the shade, listening to an old negro telling stories, was really gaining information that would make him famous? And yet that is exactly the picture that people in a little Georgia village saw just before the outbreak of the Civil war. "Marsa Joel also do like fo to heah dem tales!" said a white-haired old negro to the one who had been telling it. "He sho do," answered the other. "He sho am de [illegible] man 'mong dem fo to [illegible] dem tales an' lessun."

[illegible]—and the place was full of [illegible] Joel Harris. They took delight in telling him stories, and when they heard of some old negro who was particularly famous for [illegible] they brought him to little Joel. They sang to the little boy all the old rollicking songs that sprang from their own happy lives; they made him laugh at the [illegible] choruses they [illegible] and the cadence that crept into their music as [illegible] were dim memories of [illegible] Moon plays and of the quiet [illegible] Little Joel Harris, not much beyond 10 years of age, drank it all in and grew more and more fond of what he heard. That was his education and for him it was the best education possible. It is true that he went to school as well but what he learned at school merely helped him to pass on to others the joy he felt in listening to the stories the negroes told. Eatonton, in Georgia, was then only a small place. The boy had little money and little opportunity to spend it if he had had much. He was too young to work much—and he led a happy, contented life, enduring school so long as he could enjoy his stories and songs.

Into this carefree life the Civil war poured its currents and destroyed everything except memory. The young man found work setting type in a printing office of the extremely country kind, even for those days—a poorly furnished office that had in it nothing of promise whatsoever. Joel Harris was not discouraged. He did his work, and meanwhile set about serious study on his account. He picked up considerable information about the law and studied with an old lawyer.

Finally he moved to another place and tried to practice law. In his head there ran the old stories that he had heard as a child. He felt the desire to write, and gave up the law in order to take up newspaper work. Soon he found himself irresistibly drawn to write negro stories. Then there came from his pen those wonderful Uncle Remus stories that so delighted readers of all ages, and that so immortalized the primitive folk-lore tales of the American Negro. Nearly a score of books told to thousands of happy readers the stories that Joel Chandler Harris had heard as a boy or had gathered later because of his boyhood interest. Before Joel Chandler Harris arrived at middle age he had become one of the most noted men of the south, one of the most able to speak seriously for the serious interest of the south, and one who did most through writing, to make all people sympathize with the efforts to make a newer and greater south than ever before. He died in 1908 at the age of 60.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Women and Prohibition

Mr. Editor: "Make us, Eternal Truth, receive and practice all that we believe." If we could make people receive the truth and then practice it we would not have all this scandalous talk about prohibition; that it cannot be enforced. If it can not be, then America is the worst governed country in the world. We have no right to call ourselves a Christian nation, but a lawless people seeking our own selfish ends.

We do not deny that the enforcement of the national prohibition act has been a scandal, because no such failure of public officials to do their sworn duty has ever been known in the federal service. Boston politics has been allowed to run law enforcement, hence corruption, graft and non-enforcement. Our federal government has almost unlimited power to force its laws and can do it if it so chooses. Fortunately America has law abiding citizens, who have received "Eternal Truth" and "do practice all that they believe," and will continue to battle for law enforcement. President Coolidge always speaks to the point and never more so than in his address before the D. A. R. last Monday evening when he said, "Citizenship in America is not a private enterprise but a public function," and appealed to the women of the United States to do their bounden duty as citizens at the ballot box; she declared, "That thew hole system of American government rests on the ballot box." Women have failed just as men have failed in this duty. It was fitting that our president took this occasion to impress upon the Danughters of the American Revolution their duty as citizens; for they claim that they are maintaining in their organization the principles upon which the American republic was founded. If they fail to practice what they believe than their existence is not justified. If they are can women, as well as all American can women, as well as all "America" men to higher patriotism in daily life, they will show it in the future by the ballot box and will preach in their chapters the slogan, "To vote is the first duty of citizenship." Will they? The future will tell how many of them have received the "Eternal Truth" and are willing to "practice all that they pretend to believe." I am a D. A. R. and I am proud that our organization has had a leader who has stood unfalteringly and courageously for law enforcement and goes out of office with the earnest plea upon her lips for the defense of prohibition and the Volstead act. Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook is a born leader with the strength of character that stands for all that is highest, purest and sweetest in the history of America. Washington has been fortunate in having recently two organizations of women, that stand for the highest ideals of Christian America—The association for law enforcement representing ten million women, with that grand woman Mrs. Peabody as its leader and now the D. A. R.'s with Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, as its leader. It must have been such women that Lloyd George met when he visited America; for upon his return to England he paid to America the highest tribute that mortal man could pay to any nation. In a public speech he said, "American prohibition is a great success and one of the most advanced steps that any country has yet taken toward a perfect civilization." He advised England to follow in our footsteps.

It is unthinkable that America can take any steps that would weaken prohibition.

It is for the women, now to say whether America shall be worthy of this heritage given to their country by one of England's greatest statesmen.

It is for women to say whether America shall be the nation to create a "perfect civilization."

"Does the road wind up-hill all the way?
Yes to the very end.
Will the day's journey take the whole day long?
From morn to night, my friend."

MARINDA C. ROBINSON,
Washington, D. C., April 22, 1926.

Ford

Highest in Quality
Lowest in Price

Ford cars are built throughout of the finest materials that can be produced. The very best steels available are used in Ford manufacture. The plate glass for windshields and windows is as perfect as can be made. Upholstery material contains a larger percentage of wool than is ordinarily specified—even for much higher priced cars. The basic features of Ford design have never been improved upon by any manufacturer.

No other car offers greater dependability. The Ford car has won the favor of millions of users, under every conceivable motoring condition. Its convenience is known and appreciated the world over; its performance is taken for granted.

Such quality is possible at Ford prices because every operation, from mining of ore to final assembly is under direct control of the Ford Motor Company.

Iron is taken from Ford mines in Michigan; coal from the Company's mines in Kentucky and West Virginia. Glass comes from Ford glass plants; wood from the Ford timber tracts in the North. Raw materials and finished products are carried over the Company's own transportation routes; coke ovens, blast furnaces, a steel mill, foundries and saw mills—all are part of this complete organization. There are even salvage plants, paper mill, cement plant, etc., to transform waste materials into useful by-products.

In this way every possible economy is effected. Under no other circumstances could Ford quality be had at Ford prices.

TWENTY-TWO YEARS OF LEADERSHIP

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE REDUCED 40 POINTS

Specialist's Prescription Now Offered Through Local Druggists

After 30 years of research an amazing treatment has been perfected by a famous specialist that brings high blood pressure under control.

For over ten years this marvelous prescription has been used and perfected in hundreds of private cases. Now it is offered to sufferers from high blood pressure as a positive treatment for this dangerous condition.

Tenso, as it is called, goes right to the source of the trouble. It dispels at once the poisons that harden arteries and helps renew metabolism, thus restoring arterial elasticity.

"People who follow instructions carefully report a drop in pressure of 40 points in less than two weeks. Money back if you are not convinced. Buy Tenso at G. G. Engler, Lee & Osgood Co., Geo. M. Rathbone, Chas. C. Treat.

NORWICH TOWN

Mrs. Thurston B. Barber was given a surprise birthday party, Friday evening at her home Canterbury turnpike, by her cousins, Mrs. C. L. French and son Robert L. French of Montville, and their guest, Miss Simpson, of Haverhill, Mass. Mrs. French served delicious ice cream and homemade candy, also the beautiful birthday cake which was placed in the center of the dining room table. The decorations included a handsome table runner, and pink lighted candles on either side of the cake. Miss Simpson presented Mrs. Barber a large bouquet of variegated carnations, which also adorned the table. Mrs. French played several piano numbers which were much over the radio, concluded a most delightful evening in honor of Mrs. Barber's natal day.

Deacon Henry T. Frazier and Mrs. Frazier of Elm avenue, are included in the large delegation from the Norwich Town Congregational church who are attending a mid-week the special courses of the Normal Training school held each week in the United church rooms. Team tals church 25 or more have enrolled.

Theodore Sterry, one of the most skilled violinists of Norwich, with other musicians who formed the orchestra at a New London theater, will conclude their services the coming Saturday evening. May 1st, owing to the fact that a new organ has been installed at that theater. Since beginning his engagement in November 1925, Mr. Sterry has been popular among the patronage of the theater in New London having lost but a few days during the 29 months it was engaged due to the theater being closed for repairs. During this period which also included Sundays, trips to and from New London have been made by automobile except for a short period during the winter season, when he has remained in New London. That he has played continuously the same orchestra indicates his fidelity and his ability as a violinist.

Monday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock the funeral of Nicholas Valos, four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Valos, was held from the home of his parents, No. 277 Laurel Hill avenue. There were many relatives and friends of the family present and there were numerous and beautiful floral tributes. A service was held in the Greek Orthodox church at 2 o'clock and burial took place in Maplewood cemetery. Undertakers Cummings and Illig had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Arthur Higgins

The funeral of Arthur Higgins, 8 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Higgins, was held Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the home of his parents, No. 351 West Thames street, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. The service was conducted by Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church. Burial took place in East Village cemetery, Webster, Mass., the trip being made by automobile cortege. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes. The boy died as the result of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile last week. Undertakers Shea and Burke had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Delia A. Rogers

Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock, the funeral of Miss Delia A. Rogers was held from the family home, 40 School street. At 10 o'clock, in St. Patrick's church, requiem high mass was sung by the assistant pastor, Rev. Miles P. Galvin. Organist Harry J. LaFontaine directed the singing of the regular Gregorian mass, during which Roderick F. Sullivan sang De Profundis. Following the final absolution by Father Galvin, Mr. Sullivan gave Thomas' beautiful arrangement of "Jesus, Saviour of My Soul." One of Mr. LaFontaine's interludes was Cardinal Newman's "Lead, Kindly Light."

Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal services were read by Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, with words of sympathy and consolation for the bereaved relatives. The bearers were Joseph P. Conlon, Thomas H. Buckley, J. Edward Driscoll, William A. Somers, Thomas M. Shields and M. Frank Leonard. There were beautiful floral emblems.

The funeral arrangements were in charge of Shea & Burke. Among those attending the funeral were Charles T. Hoye and Dr. Henry J. Hoye, of Providence. Mrs. W. E. Noonan, of Hempstead, N. Y., Edward Rogers, of New Haven and Mrs. Allen Brosmith, from Hartford.

Gager, Franklin street, and were attended by a large number of relatives and friends from New York, Jewett City and other places. The floral tributes were most numerous. The service was conducted by Rev. Elmer E. Scates, pastor of the Jewett City Baptist church. Burial was in Ames cemetery, Lisbon, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Scates. The bearers were F. H. Stonebourne, Arba Browning, Charles Bromley and Calvin E. Bromley.

Lloyd G. Baton

Funeral services for Lloyd G. Baton were held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from his late home at No. 245 Main street and were attended by many relatives and friends. The floral pieces were numerous and beautiful. The service was conducted by Rev. F. L. Robbins of Preston City, who also conducted the committal service at the grave in Brewsters' Neck cemetery. Arrangements were by Church & Allen.

Miss Louise J. Brewer

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, friends and relatives from Norwich and other cities assembled at her home, 92 Washington street, for funeral services for Miss Louise J. Brewer. Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ Episcopal church of which Miss Brewer had been a member throughout her long life, read the service, reading also the hymn, always a favorite of Miss Brewer, "Let Saints on Earth in Concert Sing."

There were beautiful floral forms. Burial was in the Brewer family plot in Yantic cemetery, where the committal was by Rev. Mr. Budlong. The honorary bearers were Grosvenor Ely, Willis Austin, and Lucius Briggs, of Norwich, and Edwin T. Bynner, of New York.

Church & Allen were in charge of the arrangements for the funeral.

Mrs. Thomas J. Dodd

Funeral services for Mrs. Thomas J. Dodd were held Saturday morning at 8:15 o'clock from her late home, No. 195 Rockwell street. Requiem mass was held in St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock, Rev. Timothy Pellepier of St. Anselm's college, Manchester, N. H., being the celebrant. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ during the service and used the organ chimes during the recessional. At the offertory Roderick F. Sullivan sang De Profundis.

The floral tributes were most beautiful and there was a large attendance at the service, including relatives and friends and delegations from the Rosary society and Catholic Woman's club of St. Patrick's parish.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, assisted by Rev. Father Pellepier. Arrangements were by Shea & Burke.

Sunday Afternoon Y. M. C. A. Meet

A good sized audience attended the Sunday meeting at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium at 4 o'clock. The opening exercises of hymns, scripture reading, prayer and vocal solos by Hugh Kinder were enjoyed and then several reels of interesting moving pictured were shown. A Burton Holmes travelogue, "On the road to the Pyramids" delighted the audience. Three reels on great Bible characters deeply impressed the people, and these were very true to the Bible narrative. Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk between the reels.

SELF OBEDIENCE TO LAW CHECK TO CRIME WAVES SAYS SPEAKER

We can strike the hardest blow at crime by becoming law abiding citizens ourselves, said Dr. George Kirchway, of the New York School of Social Work in an address at the Elks hall Monday evening. Dr. Kirchway was speaking before the second general session of the Connecticut Conference of Social Work which is holding its 16th annual session in Norwich this week. The meeting Monday evening concluded an extremely active day filled with nearly a dozen meetings of various kinds.

Over 200 men and women attended the general session at the Elks hall. This was called to order promptly at 8 o'clock by Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, president of the conference. Mrs. Mitchell introduced as the chairman of the meeting, Hon. W. M. Maltbie, justice of the supreme court, Hartford, and he in turn presented as the first speaker of the evening, Dr. George W. Kirchwey of the New York School of Social Work. Dr. Kirchwey's topic was Crime Waves. He handled his subject in a manner that gave proof that he is well read on crime conditions in this country and proved a witty and most interesting speaker, holding the close attention of his audience throughout his address. Hearty outbursts of laughter greeted many of his remarks concerning the more or less humerous side of the so-called "crime waves."

Dr. Kirchwey deprecated what he considers unwarranted sensationalism in connection with crime waves. He said he could remember crime waves since the Civil war. Speaking of the real situation in regard to crime Dr. Kirchwey said there has been a marked diminution of crime in this country, not year by year, but decade by decade, for the past 40 or 50 years. He went on to quote statistics in support of his statement.

Dr. Kirchway showed that while there has been an increase in violation of the liquor laws, city ordinances and automobile laws carrying jail sentences, there has been a decrease in intoxication, varrancy, burglary, etc.

Robbery with a gun is the crime wave, said the speaker. He explained how sensational newspaper stories are responsible for the cry of "crime wave." Our crime rate for a civilized country is preposterous, he said. In Europe they don't know what to make of it. One reason for this seething crime, Dr. Kirchwey said, is that our criminal procedure is a little slipshod.

Crime is diminishing just as fast in proportion as we learn respect for law. We will be a law enforcing people about the time that we become a law abiding people. We can strike the hardest blow at crime by becoming law abiding citizens ourselves.

At the second speaker Judge Maltbie introduced Dr. Elton Mayo of the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Mayo's topic was Fatigue and the Incidence of Obsession. The speaker in the course of his brilliant address told of the relation of fatigue to mental obsession and illustrated his point with several stories showing how mental obsession acts on the human mind. His address was of a highly technical and scientific nature, showing the effect of the mental obsession on the lives of those so afflicted. He also explained how "rest periods" in mills and factories tend to speed up labor efficiency. During his address Dr. Mayo used a half dozen stereopticon slides showing statistical tables to illustrate various points in his address. The session came to a close about 10 o'clock, s. t. The stereopticon was operated by Joseph Adams.

Programme For Tuesday.

The Tuesday programme for the conference will begin with round table conferences at the Y. M. C. A., from 10 to 12, standard time. In the section on the family the principal speaker will be Miss Helen P. Kempton of the New York School of Social Work. The section on mental hygiene will have for speakers Dr. Arthur H. Ruggles, lecturer in psychiatry, Yale college, and Dr. Phyllis Blanchard, psychologist in All Philadelphia clinic, child guidance.

At 11 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. for a kindred group meeting upon Next Steps in Legal Aid Work in Connecticut the speaker will be John S. Bradway of Philadelphia, secretary of national association of legal aid organizations.

At 12.15 the delegates will be taken from the Buckingham Memorial in automobiles provided by Norwich citizens to the Norwich state hospital for a luncheon meeting at 1.15. From 2.30 to 3 there will be an educational tour of the state hospital conducted by Dr. Wilcox, superintendent, Mrs. Wilcox and members of the hospital staff.

A general session, at which Mrs. Frederick P. Thenk will be chairman, will be held from 3 to 5, with Recreation Activities as the general topic. Speakers are to be Dr. A. G. Ireland, of the state department of physical education, Prof. Jack Crawford of the Drama League of America and Yale university, Elmer L. Manning of New Haven, and Miss Florence L. Shaffer, physical director of the Norwich public schools. Demonstrations of athletics, dramatics, and games will be given by the recreational workers of Norwich and New London. At 5.15 the automobiles will bring the delegates back to the city.

The supper meetings are to be held from 6 to 7.30, one at the Y. M. C. A. on social service exchanges and the other at Odd Fellows' hall on publicity methods.

The general meeting in the evening at Elks' hall will include the sections on family and health. The chairman will be Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve of this city and George L. Warren of Bridgeport. The speaker from the health viewpoint will be Miss Sophie C. Nelson, director, visiting nurse service, John Hancock Insurance Co., Boston. The speaker from the family viewpoint will be Lawson Purdy, secretary, charity organization society of the city of New York.

PROPOSE WAITING PERIOD FOR MARRIAGE LICENSES

Three new legislative measures to be submitted to referendum vote of the member organizations were proposed today at the annual meeting of the Connecticut committee on social legislation, held with a supper meeting Monday at the Y. M. C. A. in connection with the state conference of social work. The first is on the recommendation to make the five day waiting period for marriage licenses apply universally instead of only to non-residents as at present. The other two refer to non-support cases, one to change the law so as to make non-support an extraditable offense, and the other to give the lower courts power to call the bond in non-support cases for failure to make payments.

George H. Day, Hartford, chairman of the committee, presided and the following directors were re-elected for three years: Miss Mary G. Hills, New Haven; Clarence King, Bridgeport; Mrs. P. T. Walden, New Haven; Mrs. Lewis Phillips, New London; Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith, Farmington.

The supper was served by Charitable circle of the King's Daughters.

FAST FLYING EAGLES LEAVE FORESTERS BEHIND

Starting with a margin of 9,980 the Eagles flew over to the woodland of the Foresters and added 13080 to that on Monday night, making a total of 23,070 for the losers to shoot at.

The team put on by Managers Clement and Dunlon was completely outplayed, and after play was over it was stated that an entirely new team would journey over to the birds' nest next week.

Message Service at Spiritual Academy

Rev. Millicent Wilson of Boston gave an evening of rare enjoyment to an exceptionally large congregation at the Spiritualist Academy Monday evening. By the time for opening of the services, the Academy was well filled and by her interesting discourse the speaker held the undivided attention of all.

In her demonstrations of psychic phenomena, Mrs. Wilson read old jewelry, and flowers and delivered well-directed messages to nearly everyone present.

President Chas. A. Dowsett announced the appearance of Rev. Lucy B. Moran, of Providence, at the coming Sunday services at the Spiritual Academy.

Broke Plate Glass Window

An automobile owned and driven by Charles F. Combies, Jr., 54 Church street, broke a plate glass window Monday afternoon in the Welsinger store at the corner of Market and Water streets. In reporting the accident, Mr. Combies stated that the accelerator on his car got stuck, causing him to lose control of the machine.

Wrist Broken in Auto Crash

X-ray pictures have revealed that Miss Mary Dwyer of 33 Starr street, New London, has a fractured left wrist and a fracture of the fifth left rib as the result of injuries suffered when the car driven by Miss Mary Jane Nelson crashed into a tree at Blackhall and Williams street, in that city Friday night. Miss Nelson suffered severe bruises of both eyes and bodily bruises in the collision and was reported improved today.

FOR SUPERIOR COURT ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

At the Monday morning session of the city court Judge Arthur F. Libby disposed of three new cases and one continued case. A local man paid $3 for failing to have his driver's license with him when apprehended by an officer. The case against John Miller of New London, charged with reckless driving, was continued until Tuesday.

The often continued case of Miss Mary Kearney, charged with embezzlement when she was employed as cashier by the Plaut-Cadden Co., came up in chambers before Judge Libby. A demurrer was entered by her counsel, Andrew F. Davies, which was overruled by Judge Libby who bound the accused over to the May term of the criminal superior court. Bonds were set at $1,000 and were secured.

Miss Kearney was arrested over a month ago on a warrant charging embezzlement of $1,000. The case has been continued from week to week several times. Although the warrant set the amount of the alleged embezzlement at $1,000, it has been learned that an investigation has shown approximately $5,000 alleged to have been taken by her while she has been in the employ of the firm.

DIES SUDDENLY AT HIS BRATTLEBORO HOME

Frank Denison Tucker, 77, for the past 15 years employed as caretaker in Brattleboro, Vt., fell dead about 10.30 Friday morning in the yard at his home there. Mr. Tucker was obliged to give up work last November because of ill health, but had been about the home as usual.

Born in Griswold, this state, July 3, 1848, he was the youngest of three children or Denison Baldwin and Abigah (Burbank) Tucker, and was the last surviving member of his family. He married Miss Harriet Malona of this city, April 14, 1877, and three children were born to them. Besides his wife he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Nellie C. Greenwood and Mrs. Benjamin Howard, both of Brattleboro, and four grandchildren, Alfred T. Greenwood of Beebe Plains (Vt.), Mrs. Mildred Clark and Tracy and Philip Howard of Brattleboro. He also leaves two great grandchildren, Robert Borden Clark and Jeanne Telfair Clark of Brattleboro.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at undertaking rooms in Brattleboro and burial is to be in this city.

GAVE COMEDY AT NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

"Dad's Troubles," an original three act comedy was given at the Norwich state hospital, Monday evening by the St. Mary's Parish Players, the well known dramatic organization of this city, under the direction of their coach, James E. Murphy.

A large and appreciative audience composed of the staff, nurses, attendants and patients greeted the hilarious farce. As in al their productions, the cast presented the play in a snappy, professional manner, each and every character gave a clear cut interpretation of his or her lines.

Miss Celine Bowen was enthusiastically received in a demonstration of the popular "Charleston," while E. T. Connelly, the well known soloist, was well received in a coupe of numbers, "Heaven at the End of the Road," and "Take a Look at Molly."

Members of the players who took part in the evening's performance were the Misses Mary Brennan, Retta Gadie, Lucile Bowen, Elinore Donovan, Retta Sheehy and Edward Connelly, Napoleon Keroack, Warren Kane and Joseph R Portelance, Jr. Much of the success of the production was due to the assistance rendered by the business manager of the players, Rev. F. W. Coholan.

Dr. F. S. Wilcox cordially expressed his thanks to the St. Mary's players for presenting the play at the hospital.

SUSIE AND HER BOY FRIEND TAKE UP HORSE-BACK RIDING AS A SPORT

Susie spent the week end on the farm and during her stay indulged in a little horse-back riding and now she is recuperating at her home. Her letter follows:

Dear Ed:

Say Ed. old dear, didja ever have a feelin' like you wanted to sit down and then when you did you hadda sudden longin' to stand up again? Well, that's me, just now. Yea, I'm takin' my three squares a day and they is being served to me on the mantle. How'd I get that way? Why, I been doin' some wild stuff on top of a horse and, believe me, I ain't no Tom Mix, nor yet no Buffler Bill. Them fellers and girls what rides horses has got stronger constructions then I has, if you know what I means.

Me and the boy friend spends the week end down on Uncle Ezry's farm and we has a great time 'till I gets the unfortunate idea that I wants to ride horse-back. I been seein' some of the fellers and girls up to the 'Cademy dashin' 'round on them horses like they was havin' fun and I says if them flappers kin do it, I can. But I'm wrong again, but that's gettin' ahead of my story. Sunday afternoon I says to the Unk how'd chanceg of becomin' a female cowboy? (I guess you call 'em cowgirls in the movies.) Fine, says Unk, I got just the critter for you to ride. He goes into the barn an' brings out old Jack. The last time I seen Jack he was draggin' a plow over the cornfield so's I says to Unk, you don't think I wants ride that old plug do you, I want something with a lotta pep. Say Girl, says Unk, seein' how's you ain't rid much you better begin on this hoss.

Well I ain't goin' to argue about them steeds, what I wants is action so's I says, put the seat on him an' lets go. Unk drags out the saddle and ties it on the steed and we is ready for th efirst act of my burlesque on circus ridin'. I climbs up into the seat, Unk havin' put a chair long side of the horse. I grabs the steerin' wheel, I mean the reins, and I sits astride that animal lookin' like Nap Bonapartes at Waterville. Then I gives them reins a shake and says, come on you old crow bait shake a leg. Believe me, he didn't shake only one leg but he shakes all over and then he starts to move. I am kinder scairt at first but I gets use to bein' up so high an' things is fine.

I rides around the yard a coupla times an' I gets over thinkin' I'm gonna roll off so's I says, open the gate, Unk, I'm goin' out in the great open spaces. Well I pilots that hoss up into the pastur and I says, get goin' you pesky old home for fleas and I hits him a clip with them reins. I been cravin' action and right there's where I gets it and plenty of it. That old plug may have looked like old Dobbin to some folks but he was Man o' War to me. He gives one look over his shoulder when I clips him and there ain't no love-light in them eyes of his'n. He gets a toehold on the ground and then shoots ahead like he was in a rear-end collision with a freight. There ain't no place for me to go 'cept in the same general direction, which I does. I yells "stop," "brakes" and "reverse" but that drey steed don't understand none of them modern auto terms and I can't think of the word "whoa" to make him stop. He gets under way mighty fast and I is floppin' 'round in that seat kinda loose-like same's a pea in a hot skillet. I goes up in the air at every bound that old critur makes and when I am comin' down that horse is always goin' up so's we meet in the air with no comfort to me. I lets one foot slip out them stirups and I thinks here's where me and Mother Earth comes into close contact, so's I grabs the animal round the neck an' stick's to it. But this ain't no better cause every time he bounds my stumick turns over and feels kinda loose insider me. Well, we goes around the lot a coupla times and every time I comes by Unk he shouts 'Ride 'im cowboy and don't let 'him throw you." I sees the boy friend rollin' on the ground laughin' his fool head off, and I thinks that ain't no way to treat a girl what's in distress, and believe me Ed., I means distress.

Well, bime bye the horse slows down and I manage to get my foot back in the stirup and I sits up. Just about as I sits up, my hat being down over my eyes so's I can see nothin', that dam horse, ('scuse that last word but that's just what I mean) takes it into his head to run under a tree. This tree has a lotta branches and one of them limbs catches me right across the stumick but that horse keeps goin' while I stays with the limb. I musta looked like something hung out to dry but I don't stay that way more'n a coupla seconds 'cause that limb busts under me and I is dropped to the ground, landin' in a sittin' position in the middle of a he hitistle. Oh boy, maybe that ain't some sensation. I looks around and Unk and that fool boy friend is laughin' like they was goin' to split and that done make me feel no sweeter. I is mad clear through from the thistle to the top of my head and I determines I'm goin' to have revenge on somebody and that somebody is that shriek of mine.

I disengages myself from them thistles and briars and starts over to them male fools. Some cowgirl, says Unk. You aughta be in the movie comedies, remarks the aforesaid boy 'Course them remarks make me feel nice and cheery. I guess not. But I don't let them know what's in my mind and I looks kinda sweet like well, as sweet as I can with all them thistle things stickin' in me. I goes up to the boy friend and says, gosh, I ain't so bad at that am I sweetie. No, he says, but I don't see how you could be any worse. Well, says I, if you think you is a Bill Hart go catch that plug and do your stuff. Well he falls for it and starts after that horse whats eatin' grass up in the pastur. While he's catchin' the animal I goes over an' plucks some of them thistle leaves. When he comes back with the horse I goes up and pats the animal saying how I knew he didn't mean to throw me but while the boy ain't lookin' I slips them thistle leaves under the seat. I ain't going to have that boy have no laugh on me, I ain't takin' no chances.

Well the boy puts one foot in them stirups and swings up into the seat and when he sits down I sees that horse kinda shiver like somebody had given him a shot of electricity and then he comes right up off the ground about a foot, all four feet in the air. Then he starts off on a dead run straight for the swamp whats NEXT to the pastur. All the time the boy friend is doin funny stunts in the air but he manages to land on the horse when he comes down. Believe me, he ain't no Bill Hart and he don't look like he was enjoyin' it much. Well that horse as I said before heads for the swamp and at every bound he hops up into the air a coupla feet and lands stiff legged and I kin see the boy's head sway every time he lands. Takin' but a coupla seconds before they hits the swamp and then the horse stops goin' all of a sudden but the boy keeps on goin' He turns a couple summersets in the air and then does a nose dive into the swamp. Gosh but I laugh some but not much cause it hurts me too much.

Well when the boy comes up for air he's covered in swamp mud from head to feet and he comes limpin' back to where me and Unk is standin'. I grins and says hello Paul Revere, that was some ridin', but believe me boy, you sure do look like Al Jolson doin' a black face act. Well, the boy ain't partickler what he says and he tells me where to go but it aint no place where you wear fur coats. Well I can't lame the kid much so I don't get sore, not anymore, 'cause I'se as sore as its possible.

Well that ends the wild west stuff for me and on the way home me and the boy buys a coupla bottles of liniment and borrows a coupla sofy cushions to sit on on the way home. That's why I is takin' my meals standin'.

Well be good Ed.

SUSIE.

RICKARD TO SETTLE HIS DIFFICULTIES WITH BOARD

NEW YORK, April 26—(AP)—With Jack Dempsey's signed contract in his pocket, Tex Rickard is expected back in New York tomorrow to straighten out the remaining tangles in the heavyweight title situation.

Since Dempsey is definitely out of the program until after August 3, when the champion's contract with his former manager, Jack Kearns, expires, Rickard now is expected by observers to arrange an elimination contest between Gene Tunney and Harry Wills, in July or August, the winner to battle Dempsey for the title at the Yankee stadium, on or about September 16.

Previously it has been understood Rickard planned to ignore Wills and arrange a Dempsey-Tunney battle without any preliminaries. An elimination between the two outstanding contenders, however, it is pointed out, would serve the purpose of restoring harmony between the state athletic commission and Rickard by offering an avenue for the commission to modify its present stand on the heavyweight situation. At the same time, it would permit Rickard to stage the fight in the Bronx baseball park, instead of using his alternative site, Boyle's thirty acres in Jersey City.

As matters stand now, the commission is split on the subject, with Chairman Farley insisting that Wills be given first chance against Dempsey and Commissioner Muldoon favoring Tunney as an opponent. The third member of the board, Commissioner Brower, has not committed himself on the subject.

The commission holds its regular weekly meeting tomorrow but the heavyweight situation is not expected to be discussed unless Rickard arrives in time to appear voluntarily before it. The promoter will not be summoned to attend the session, Chairman Farley said.

PHILLIES BEAT OUT GIANTS IN OVERTIME GAME

PHILADELPHIA, April 26—(AP)—The Giants were overtaken and beaten out by the Phillies today in an eleven inning game, by a score of 6 to 5.

Clarence Mitchell, quaker pitcher, started the winning attack with a single and scored the deciding run on a sacrifice fly by Wrightstone.

Cy Williams hit a homer for the victors in the first inning. The score:

ERRORS IN TENTH LOSES GAME FOR CARDINALS

CINNATI, April 26.—(AP)—Errors by St. Louis in the ninth and tenth innings were partly responsible for Cincinnati overcoming the visitors two runs lead and turning the game into a victory today by a 3 to 2 score. Walker gathered four of the Reds seven hits and also drove over the winning tally in the tenth with a single. Jakie May, who relieved Donahue in the ninth held St. Louis in check. Score:

USE OF RESIN COMES UP FOR DISCUSSION AGAIN

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP)—Renewed discussion of the resin question developed today as tabulations of the first two weeks' play in organized baseball revealed abnormally heavy hitting and high scoring in spite of the edict of Commissioner Landis that pitchers in all circuits may use it.

Attention has been attracted particularly to the international league, where an average of more than 15 runs per game thus far has prevailed. Newark, with a team batting mark exceeding .400, has averaged ten runs per game, while the Baltimore Orioles have an even better scoring record with 11 1-2 runs per game. Four of the clubs are clouting the ball above .300.

The Orioles broke a league record by scoring 30 tallies against Syracuse in a single game last Saturday, only to have Buffalo come back a day later and win against them by 19 to 6. Ten or more runs in a single inning has been common. Newark and Rochester staging rallies yesterday which resulted in 17 runs in one inning.

Club batting in the American league, which also has banned the resin bag, is far ahead of that in the National, while home run totals for the major circuits up to today, are 34 for the American and 20 for the National.

Attention also has been called to the fact that pitching in the senior circuit has excelled that in the younger league. Forty-seven National hurlers aided by the official use of resin have been able to go the full nine-inning route while but 30 had accomplished the same feat in the American up to today.

PITTSBURGH EVENS UP COUNT WITH CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP)— Pittsburgh evened the count with Chicago today, by bunching hits off Cooper and Piercey to win the second of the series with the Cubs, 8 to 6. Meadows weakened in the 7th inning and was driven from the mound, but Oldham took up the burden and repeated a thoroughly Chicago rally. Score:

AMATEUR ATHLETIC UNION TO START INVESTIGATION OF HOFF'S EXPENSES

BOSTON, April 26.—(AP)—The Amateur Athletic union, of America, will investigate the status of Charley Hoff, Norwegian pole vault and track star who is charged with exorbibant expenses for his appearances in this country and violation of amateur rules. This announcement was made here today by officials of the union.

The coming investigation is of charges made against the Norwegian in Chicago newspapers. This includes accusations that Hoff, world's champion pole vaulter, has exacted set prices for his performances in various cities, and there are other charges of more or less serious nature. Fred W. Rubien, secretary of the A. A. U., has been in touch with William C. Prout chairman of the foreign relations committee. Rubien will investigate and report his findings to Prout and to Murray Hulbert, president of the union.

The announcement had special interest because about a year ago Paavo Nurmi, Finnish running marvel, and his expenses, were under fire at the close of his record smashing tour through this country.

INVESTIGATION CAUSED BY COMMENT OF SPORT WRITERS

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP)—The newspaper comment which occasioned the A. A. U. inquiry into the expenses paid Charley Hoff for his appearances in recent amateur track carnivals appeared here immediately after the Norwegian vaulter's appearance at the Kansas meet, and said that Hoff was reported to have received $600 for his presence there.

An unsigned article in the Chicago Tribune also said that "according to information" Hoff would receive $500 for his appearance at the Drake relays last Saturday.

Hoff's attitude at the Kansas meet, where he refused to essay a pole vault until moving picture men were ordered off the scene, occasioned adverse comment from several of the university coaches at the meet.

While George Daan, Hoff's brother-in-law and manager, maintained that the champion objected to moving pictures because they revealed some of the technique of his record breaking vaulting, the Tribune said it was "the general opinion that Hoff has agreed to make some pictures when he reaches the Pacific coast and that the agreement calls for no movies except by the firm which has the contract."

TWILIGHT LEAGUE MEETING PROVES UNSATISFACTORY

The meeting held last night at the Duwell room relative to the forming of the Twilight league for 1926 was rather brief, owing to the fact that only three of last year's teams were represented. The managers of the St. Josephs, Centrals and Yantic teams were the only ones present. It was decided to adjourn the meeting to next week when all managers connected with any teams expecting to enter are requested to be present so as to get things started. It is getting well along in the season and something must be done soon and it is hoped that at the next meeting all the managers will be present. One of the reasons why some of the representatives were not present was because of the fight in Hartford which drew many of those representatives away from the city.

LAMPHERE PITCHES PERFECT BALL BUT LOSES, 9-4

Sunday afternoon at the Ashland park, the Jewett City Centennials were beaten by the Jewett City All-Stars by a 9 to 4 score. Stanley on the mound for Jewett City received perfect support from his teammates. On the other hand Lamphere, who pitched better ball than Stanley, was given terrible support. Six infield errors which resulted in five runs were the cause of Lamphere's downfall. Stanley struck out nine men and was touched for eight hits. Lamphere struck out fourteen men and was touched for six hits.

The score:

	R.	H.	E
Centennials	4	8	10
Jewett City	9	6	1

Room 20 vs. Manual Training

Room 20 plays the fast team from the Manual Training building this Tuesday, at 1:45. Room 20 has been successful in all its games so far, therefore the meeting of these two heavy-hitting aggregations will bring forth a wonderful game. Room 20 is strengthened by the acquisition of Goldblatt, which strengthens the infield 100 per cent. Tombari, the to-hit, no-run pitcher, will twirl for Room 20 with Mish upholding his sharp breaking benders and slants. Goldblatt will cover the initial sack. Pete Labenski will cover second with plenty of pep. Cimikowski will cover third and keep the balls well handled; "Home Run" Sadinsky will be at short; "Radio Ed" Brewer will do grass hopping in left, Williams or Shannon at center with Murphy in right. Among the utility men will be Fat Schwartz, the sensational base stealer; Mascot Talbot will keep the water pail full and will endeavor to keep the bats straightened out at the bench. Thune will be cheer leader.

RUTH LEADS HOME RUN HITTERS IN MAJORS

CHICAGO, April 26 (AP)—The name of George Herman Ruth once more appears in the home run records, the babe and his Yankee team mate Pat Collins sharing the lead in the race for circuit drives with a trio each. Ruth made all three during the second week of the season, driving out the 215th homer of his Major league career Saturday.

American league players generally followed the lead of the two New York sluggers, having made 28 home runs during the week including Sunday's games, for a season total of 33. Todt of Boston, Hargrave of St. Louis and Williams of St. Louis each made two four-base drives in single games.

National league sluggers found the pace less to their liking. They registered only seven four-ply blows in as many days, and 19 for the season.

The leaders:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Collins, New York, 3.
Ruth, New York, 3.
Meusel, New York, 2.

DETROIT LOSES FIFTH STRAIGHT GAME TO SOX

DETROIT, April 26.—(AP)—Detroit's losing streak was run up to five games today, when Chicago scored a five to 1 victory over the Giers. Solid smashes bunched in the fifth and eighth innings gave the White Sox the game. Harris, with three hits including a triple, was the batting star, driving in two runs in the fifth and another in the ninth.

Manush's home run in the first dropped into the right field bleachers. The score:

POST OFFICE BASEBALL LEAGUE ORGANIZED

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 26 (AP)—The Eastern Postoffice Baseball league, the first of its kind in the country was organized here Sunday at a conference of representatives of all the large cities in this section. The following cities were accepted as members: New York city, Brooklyn, Paterson, N. J., Boston, Hartford, Waterbury, Springfield and Providence. It is expected that Bridgeport, New Haven, Long Island City and Holyoke, Mass., will also join.

To save travel expenses, and because of the difficulty in arranging leave from duty for players, three sections will play local championships to be followed by a series at the end of the season to determine the Eastern champion. Brooklyn, New York, Paterson and Long Island City will form one division, Springfield, Boston, Providence and Holyoke a second and the Connecticut cities a third.

The following officers were elected: J. F. O'Gorman, Boston, president, Martin Hogan, Providence, vice president; Francis Donovan, Springfield secretary, J. Provost, Hartford, treasurer; L. Schwartz, New York, treasurer.

On Monday morning at 9 o'clock funeral services were held from her late home, 2 Nelson avenue, Pawcatuck, for Miss Rosa Mucci, daughter of Vincenzo and Anna Mucci. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9:30 o'clock at St. Michael's church by Rev. Michael J. Keating. A large number of relatives and friends were present at the service including a number from New London, Norwich and Bristol.

Burial was made in St. Michael's new cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Father Keating. The bearers were Giuseppe Dimaria, Paolo Miceli, Giovanni Scira and Anthony Lazzara. There were also four little flower girls, Misses Minnie Lombardo, Annie Lombardo, Annie Diangi and Mary Macaione.

The death of Mrs. Dora L. Wright Jerue, wife of Enoch D. Jerue, Hope Valley building contractor, occurred Saturday afternoon at her home in Hope Valley following an illness of about a year. She had been operated upon three times within ten years.

The deceased, a native of Richmond, married Mr. Jerue June 15, 1899, and resided in Hope Valley continuously thereafter. Besides her husband, she leaves [illegible] Mrs. Hazel R. Pendleton, and one August.

Miss Louisa Wallace of 42 Granite street was taken to the Westerly hospital Sunday night as a result of a fall sustained in her yard when she caught her foot in a grapevine and sustained a fractured leg.

The annual dinner of the World [illegible] Guild of the Pawcatuck Congregational church was held Wednesday evening with a supper and entertainment. The tables were decorated with [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] Mrs. Addie D. Allen, Mrs. Mary B. Babcock, Miss [illegible] Mrs. Donna L. Tarbox, Miss Marie E. Crandall.

The officers of the society for the ensuing year are: Mrs. Lucinda K. Pendleton, president; Mrs. Addie B. Allen, vice-president; Mrs. [illegible] Clark, secretary; Mrs. Peter Scott, secretary. The reports of the committees who served with Mrs. Carolyn M. S. Heath, the retiring president, showed the society to be in a flourishing condition.

Before Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck Monday morning at a special session of Stonington town court Mrs. Maria Gonzalez of New York pleaded not guilty to a complaint of reckless operation of an automobile on Industrial Place in the Mystic Annex of Pawcatuck. Attorney [illegible] Mellen [illegible] Mrs. Gonzalez that the complaint was made following the collision of her car with a Ford roadster owned by [illegible] Hooker, Watch Hill, R. I. Mrs. Maria Gonzalez was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of [illegible] and the costs of the prosecution. This [illegible] amounted to $7.60, which she paid.

One of the men in the Ford sustained a broken collar bone, a second one a fracture of his left arm, just above the elbow, and a third man was so badly bruised that he was unable to attend the session of the court.

The first witness was Homer W. Davis of Norwich who was driving the Ford. He testified that he was coming toward Stonington, when the car being driven by the woman on her way from Jamaica Plains, Mass., to New York City, pulled out to the left to pass two other cars which were ahead. This forced the Ford roadster onto the trolley track, and the front wheel of the west-bound automobile struck the Ford with such force that it was turned over twice.

The second witness was George Lambert of Occum, Conn. He told how the car was struck and how the men were injured. He sustained a fractured collar bone.

Arthur Whitmarsh, state policeman, called to investigate the accident, stated that from the place the car was hit to where it stopped was a distance of 46 feet.

It is likely there will be several civil suits as a result of this accident.

The case of State vs. Eugene Perry, charged with criminal assault, was postponed until Saturday, May 1, at 9 o'clock.

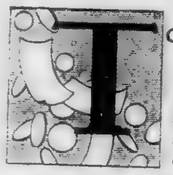
Banking on the Telephone



TO many people, a bank seems simply an institution where money is passed in and out through barred windows. They are not able to look behind the scenes and grasp the vast amount of detail necessary in handling this money. To the banker, however, the actors on the financial stage are very familiar, and he sees one of the leading parts taken by the telephone.

The First National Bank of Bridgeport does an incoming counter business of better than $1,000,000 a day. Mr. R. A. Beers, cashier, says: "You can readily see that with this large volume of business there are many things to be considered, thus necessitating the collection of quick and valuable information. Through the use of toll calls, we are able to communicate with our correspondents by telephone and collect data which would otherwise take days and sometimes weeks."

Here, in Mr. Beers' statement, is more evidence of the advantage of intelligent use of toll telephone service to the business man, whatever his field may be.

Our local Exchange Manager will gladly outline the various classes of toll service, and explain how they are adapted to your particular needs.

Mrs. Grouse Had a Bad Night

Why does the darkness of the night
So often seem to double fright?
—Mrs. Grouse

It is queer, but it is true, that the thing you are not afraid of in the daytime scares you at night. At least, that is the way it is with most people, of course. It isn't so with the Little People of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows who sleep during the day and come out at night. But for other little people the night is full of fears and really there shouldn't be any at all.

Mrs. Grouse is one of those who sleep by day and sleeps by night. She cannot see in the dark, so she sits and trusts that no one will see her. But she sometimes has some great frights. More than once she has heard the footsteps of Reddy Fox as he has passed very close. Then she has held her breath. But frights are a part of the daily life of the Little People of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest.

Reddy Fox, Old Man Coyote and Yowler the Bobcat are bad enough, but even worse in the minds of some of these little people is Hooty the Owl. This is because Hooty flies so silently. There is never anything to give warning that Hooty is near. In spite of all his care, Reddy Fox will occasionally rustle a leaf. But Hooty the Owl is like a great shadow in the night. Their feathers. He seems to float rather than fly.

Now it happened that one night as Mrs. Grouse, fast asleep on her nest with her ten eggs under her, was dreaming the happiest kind of dreams, Hooty the Owl came to the tree just above her. He didn't know she was there and of course, Mrs. Grouse didn't know that he was up above her. It is Hooty's way to hoot with that terrible voice of his and then instantly listen with his wonderful ears. That sudden "hoot" in the darkness wakens the little people who may be sleeping somewhere near. It is apt to make one or two start and rustle a leaf or two. Hooty's great ears catch the very faintest rustle of a leaf, or the scratching of a claw on the bark. Then his eyes, made for seeing in darkness, are quite sure to find the one who made that tiny noise.

Hooty hooted up there above Mrs. Grouse. It was a terrible sound. Her eyes flew open instantly, but she didn't move, which was very fortunate for her. For quite a while all was silent. It seemed to Mrs. Grouse that her heart was beating so loud that Hooty must hear it. She didn't know just where he was, but she knew that he was somewhere near. Then he hooted again. Poor Mrs. Grouse! It seemed to her that her heart had stopped beating for a moment or two and then began to thump again. She knew now that Hooty was in the tree just above her. It was dreadful to have him so near. She just felt his great eyes looking down at her. Of course, they were doing nothing of the kind, but she couldn't know that. Oh, how hard she tried not to move the tiniest, tiniest bit! and how she dreaded hearing him hoot again. You see, that voice was so sudden, so loud, and so altogether frightful, that she was afraid she would move in spite of all her efforts not to.

After the third time Mrs. Grouse waited and waited and waited and dreaded to hear that voice again. It got so that it was almost as bad not to hear it as to hear it. When she did hear it she knew where Hooty was. When she didn't hear it, she imagined that Hooty was very close, indeed. By and by, after seemed to her half the night, Hooty hooted again. This time his voice came from a long distance away. Mrs. Grouse gave just the faintest of sighs and settled herself on her eggs once more. "Such a fright," she murmured, "such a dreadful fright. I do wish jolly, round Mr. Sun would hurry up and get out of bed."

But Hooty the Owl wasn't wishing anything of the kind. You see, he hadn't dined yet in spite of all his hooting.

Hooty the Owl came to the tree just above her

All modern improvements are planned.

The sub-contracts have been let for the plastering, electric wiring, plumbing, heating and painting of the house being built for Henry Coogan in Mercer street. The house is of frame construction, containing six rooms with a three-car garage space in the basement.

Work has begun on a 15-car garage for John McGarry in Walker street. The garage will be of frame construction with a frontage of 54 feet on one side and 42 feet on the other. It will be 20 feet wide with an ell and will contain a boiler room with a steam heater at one end.

The house of Colonial design being built for Robert Tetrault at 840 Montauk avenue is nearing completion. The house contains six rooms and is of similar design to another house next to it, recently completed for Mr. Tetrault.

The contract has been awarded to a Norwich contractor for the addition to the house in Alewife avenue of Max Sternlieb of Norwich. The addition will consist of a second story to the present frame structure.

A two-story house of Colonial design, 30 by 26 has been started for Dr. O. H. Youngs at Vauxhall and Ledyard streets. The new house will have seven rooms on each floor with modern improvements and is expected to be ready for occupancy by Aug 1.

The frame work is progressing rapidly on the two-family house being built for Philip B. Grove at Marshall place. The sub-contract for the wiring has been let. According to the plans the house will be of duplex design.

Work has been nearly completed on the two-family frame dwelling erected for Thomas F. Moran in Blydenburg avenue.

The house of Mrs. Mary Burke of Waterford is being remodeled by a local contractor.

The sub-contract for the structural steel work at the new factory building, being erected for the Palmer Manufacturing Co. at Mystic, has been awarded to a Hartford concern.

Extensive alterations and remodeling have taken place during the last two weeks in the shoe, drygoods and notion store of the H. Marcus Co., at 46 North Bank street. A portion of the ground floor, formerly used for residential purposes, has been opened up for space of the store, adding more than 250 square feet to the former store space. New metal ceiling with designs and painted white has been installed and all the woodwork painted on the interior and exterior of the store.

The remodeling of the store at 10 State street in the building of Herdel and Elfenbein has been finished. The store was damaged by fire last January.

The frame garage, 18 by 18, being constructed at 32-34 Center street for Anna and Ella Coffey has been inclosed.

Plans are being made to alter the former brick and paint shop in Home street into a one and one-half story cottage for Harris Schulman. Specifications on the plans call for new floors and partitions, new plumbing and heating, and electric wiring.

The contract has been awarded to a local contractor for a 6 by 6 feet addition to the house of Walter Le[illegible] 75 Granite street. Interior changes are planned.

TURF SCANDAL OF 1908 RULED OFF THIRTY MEN

CHICAGO, April 23 (AP)—Action by Kentucky racing authorities to purge the sport of crookedness recalled to old time turf followers here the drastic steps those who would keep thoroughbred racing clean were forced to take during the summer meeting of 1908 at Salt Lake City, when 30 men were suspended, or ruled off the turf for life.

Trainers, book-makers, touts and jockeys were numbered among those banned.

That was in the days of bookmaking, and the rulings hit those who were trying to beat the bookies by cheating in actual racing; outsiders who tried to beat the bet-takers by obtaining the results quickly and then betting on a certainty, and book-makers who sought to cheat the public.

Some horses were running without racing plates and some were run shod in work-horse shoes.

Horses were pulled deliberately by jockies, and others, apparently in excellent condition, were sent to the post unfit to put forth their best efforts.

Batteries and drugs were used on the horses, and at least one winning horse was disqualified because he carried five pounds less than the weight assigned him, a trivial performance in common usage but enough to decide the issue in most horse races.

A mere "twist of the wrist" action is enough to "pull" a horse. As the jockey sits or stands high up on the animal's withers with his reins extended alongside the horse's neck, a quarter turn of the wrist will suffice to hold the thoroughbred back enough to cause him to lose.

Racing plates are tiny shoes weighing only a few ounces, just enough to protect the horse's feet and each additional [illegible] keep the racer from [illegible] best efforts.

FEELING LOTS BETTER NOW

Writes Ethel May Snider Who Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Hartford City, Ind.—Doing housework and taking care of a sick woman proved to be too much for Ethel May Snider, R. R. 1 of Hartford City, until she started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Overwork had so undermined her health that she had to give up all outside work, and when she saw this medicine advertised in the "Star" and other papers, she went to a druggist and got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She took it regularly, was greatly benefited and now feels very much better.

Ethel May Snider's experience is similar to that of thousands of other women in all walks of life, who have sent testimonials to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass.

From Maine to California, from Wisconsin to Texas, and from Nebraska to Florida letters are received every day from grateful women who say the Vegetable Compound has helped to restore their health.

WAYWARD NEW LONDON GIRL OF 16 SLIPS AWAY FROM THE POLICEWOMAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 26—Elsie Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Potter, 114 Shaw street, was taken into custody by Policewoman Jane Cassidy this forenoon, charged with violation of parole. The girl, who is but about 16, did not remain a prisoner long, for hardly had she been arrested than she made her escape.

The girl was committed to Long Lane farm, Middletown, some time ago, and later she was allowed to go to a residence near Middletown to be employed. While at the place the girl is alleged to have stolen several articles of apparel and then she fled. The New London authorities were requested to be on the lookout for the girl and this morning Policewoman Cassidy went to the Shaw street house in an endeavor to locate the girl and there the policewoman found her. The girl has always been noted for her cunning and she displayed her talents along this line immediately after she had been apprehended. The girl listened to the story of the policewoman and realizing that she would be returned to the institution at Middletown the girl leisurely sauntered from the room in which Policewoman Cassidy and Mrs. Potter were discussing the girl's plight. A few minutes later when the policewoman sought her prisoner she discovered that the girl had made her escape. The policewoman then sought aid and Patrolman William Corcoran was sent to the Shaw street house and instituted a search for the girl but was not successful in locating her.

A Meriden correspondent writes: Rev. Alexander C. Wolschlaeger an assistant pastor of St. Martin's Star of the Sea church, New London, who has been appointed pastor of Sacred Heart church East Portchester, a native of Meriden. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. August Wolschlaeger. He has four brothers, Vincent J., August A., Frank M. and Henry D. Wolschlaeger, living here; also a sister Mrs. Thomas J. Gilligan.

Father Wolschlaeger attended St. Rose's and St. Mary's parochial schools, and upon graduation studied for five years in St. Thomas' seminary, Hartford. He then took a four years' course in Gregorian University of Rolanda, Italy. He was ordained a priest August 9, 1925. He said his first mass in St. Mary's church, the day his name was read, September 27, 1925. His first assignment in the diocese was to St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, and during the 8 years a New London he has made many friends before leaving to study in Italy. Father Wolschlaeger was a member of the C. M. T. A. B. society.

The usual grist of Sunday drunks came to the police court this morning when the session of that tribunal was announced by Court Officer Corcoran. The table of the attorneys was decorated with a half gallon of alcohol taken from a sailor and there was a pint of the same liquid that came from another inebriate, evidence that there was alcohol to be had in this city if one knew where to look for it. The alcohol was not obtained at a store; a kitchen barroom had supplied the pint. There were no offenders against the provisions of the Volstead act in the court and each pleaded guilty. One of the accused appeared at the police station last night wearing bandages, as was the impression he was presented in court today. Some of the witnesses labored under the belief "cases" and "offenders" as they did not make the personal charges they were seeking work on the island. They said they had been there or that they would bring up there when they could get across the Sound. The navy and the coast guard were both represented.

Two violators of the parking ordinances of the city were summoned to court, but they were not there when the court opened its session and will appear Wednesday. One of the accused is a young woman from the Post Hill section of the city.

Clocks in public places and store windows about the city paid no attention today to the change in time from standard to daylight saving, and therefore this forenoon were an hour behind the clocks that were showing the advanced time.

After having the residence of Nina G. Bryan, colored, of 16 John street, under suspicion of being a house of ill repute as well as a place where liquor was sold, the police raided the resort, shortly before noon and much evidence of both alleged violations of the law was found. Besides the Bryan woman, Della Mason, colored and a lodger at the house; Mary E. King, colored, 22 John street, and Carter Payne colored, 57 Franklin street were found in the place. Payne and the Mason woman occupying the same bed, and all were arrested charged with frequenting The Briar woman secured a surety on her bond of $500 for her appearance in the police court tomorrow morning where she will be charged with violation of the liquor law and conducting a disorderly house. The other women and man were also successful in obtaining bail.

The police have received numerous complaints from frequenters of the house who declared that they had been robbed there, while men had been frequently observed leaving the place under the influence of liquor. The raid was made by Sergeant Nolan, Sewell and John Cavanaugh and Patrolmen William Riordan, William Graham and Clarence Martin. A half dozen receptacles that had been used in the place and which had contained liquor or alcohol were seized as evidence that the liquor had been dispensed there.

A. C. Smart, of Mimico Beach, Ont., Can., communicated with the New London police this forenoon requesting that Herbert Armstrong, supposed to be a local store proprietor, be notified of the death of his grandson at Mimico Beach, Sunday. Armstrong is not known to the New London police, nor does his name appear in the city directory.

James A. James, 32, of 16 Richards street, died Saturday night at Home Memorial hospital where he had been under treatment but a short time, although he had not been in sound health for many months. He was employed as electrician by the New London Ship & Engine company. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Nora James, Bragaw street, his wife and three brothers, William, John and Roderick James, and a sister, Mrs. Robert Madison, all of this city.

Mrs. Esther M. Bennett, 82, widow of John J. Benenti, died this morning at the residence of her son, Robert A. Korb, 148 Willetta avenue, death ending a lingering illness. Mrs. Bennett, besides her son, is survived by a brother, John A. Butler, of this city. She was a native of Westbrook, but had resided in New London several years.

The funeral of Charles M. Taylor, Jr., was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M Taylor Sr., 105 Vauxhall street, the services being largely attended and were conducted by Rev. Canales M. Eldridge, Niantic, and Rev. J. Beveridge Lee this city. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Edward E. Galbraith, nine months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Galbraith, was found dead in bed at the residence of his parents, 9 Ledyard street, Sunday afternoon, having stopped breathing. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, who conducted an investigation, decided that the strangulation resulted from a slight affection of the throat. The child had been left for some time in a crib and when a member of the household went to the bed the lifeless body of the infant was found. The funeral was held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the child's parents, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ Conducting the services. Burial was in Lawlers cemetery.

Benjamin A. Armstrong has sold a building lot on Fitch avenue to Mary Beatrice.

Edward Bull of Williams street, has resumed his duties at the Union Bank & Trust company after a week's vacation.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Roberts B. Stoddard today ordered the operator's licenses of George McLean, chief petty officer, United States Coast Guard station here, to be returned to the owner, the license having been suspended about two weeks ago.

An automobile, owned and operated by William Passmore, 138 Main street, Hallville, and a machine owned and operated by Joseph Contino, Jr., Clark Lane, Waterford, were in collision late Sunday night on Pequot avenue, near New London lighthouse. Both machines were damaged, but the passengers escaped injury.

An automobile owned and operated by George Farrell, 345 Montauk avenue, and a car owned and driven by John Enos, Waterford, collided Sunday night at the corner of Huntington and Jay streets. Both cars sustained damage.

John Syracusa, 133 Jefferson avenue, operator of a public service automobile, parked his car on Hobron street early this morning and when he returned for his car an hour later it was missing. Syracusa reported his loss to the police and several hours afterwards Patrolman Patrick Sweeney discovered the car parked on Woodbridge street. It is believed that acquaintances of Syracusa transferred the car as a joke for the car was found less than two blocks from where it was taken.

In the Waterford town court late this afternoon Judge Frederick Dimmock imposed a fine of $25 and costs upon Aldo Montali, New London, of a charge of reckless driving. Montali was arrested Sunday by Constables Peabody and Brigham following the automobile he was driving narrowly averting collision with a machine operated by Henry Hick, New London police officer, near the former East Lyme car barn, even after the New London officer's car had left the highway in order to escape Montali's machine and Hick barely escaped hitting a woman pedestrian, Mrs. Viola, Waterford.

Stanley Searle, New London, was fined $5 for parking his automobile alongside the highway without lights displayed.

Joseph E. Lavelle, of Pawtucket, was fined $10 and costs for speeding Sunday, being apprehended by Constables Peabody and Brigham.

Andrew Secchiarelli, Miner Lane, Waterford, was ordered by Patrolman Charles Martin this afternoon to appear in the police court tomorrow morning and answer a charge of operation of the automobile he is operating in automobile which is equipped with defective brakes.

Mrs. Charles Zuccardy, of Noank; Thomas Rondeau, United States Coast Guard, Mrs. Charles Shaw, 11 Howard street, Miss Maria Creamer, Fishers Island; Mrs. Frank Congdon, Waterford; Mrs. Glen Bly, Groton; Mrs. Lloyd Everson, 33 Tenth street, David Bridgeman, Old Lyme, Mrs. Francis O'Hara and infant son, 103 Lincoln avenue; Mrs. Theodore Gasperini, 35 Summer street, and Mrs. Ernest Walker and infant son, 780 Walden avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Mrs. John Bruce and infant son, 62 Coit street; Mrs. Bernard Hyatt and infant daughter, 199 Huntington street, and Mrs. Harold Frost, 84 Rosemark street, were patients dismissed today at Home Memorial hospital.

Announcement is made of the marriage April 12th, of Aldrich Guery, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Miss Laura Dean Bronk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Brooks, of Bushers Island. Mr. and Mrs. Guery will make their future home in Titusville, Fla.

Mrs. Margaret Morgan has returned to her home in Detroit, after having spent the week end with Miss Anna Seidel, of Taftville.

In the Groton town court this forenoon Judge Cornelius C. Costello not only imposed a fine, but meted out a jail sentence to two men found guilty of violation of the liquor law. James Alvano, of Poquonoc road and James Secrelli, of Thames street. Both entered demurrers through their counsel, the demurrers being overruled and a fine of $100 together with a jail sentence of 30 days was imposed. Judge Costello informed the accused that a further conviction against them would result in a much more severe sentence being given.

Alvano's home was raided Saturday night by Captain of Police Andrew McCarthy, Patrolmen Edward Morgan and Bernard Chapman, Supernumerary Officer C. Fay Chapman and State Police Officers Frank Kolowsky and Frank Schweikert. The officers were armed with a search warrant for the Alvano premises and upon entering the house two men were found seated there. The search revealed a considerable quantity of wine, a gallon container of alcohol and a pint jar of coloring. A two and one-half gallon still, but not in operation, was seized, as was a barrel containing 100 gallons of raisin mash and a barrel of wine.

At the Secrelli house, seven men were found seated at a table when the raiders entered the place. On the table were several glasses of beer and three glasses alleged to have contained whiskey. A search of the house revealed four pints of whiskey and seven half pints of whiskey and several large containers that had held whiskey.

Mrs. Catherine Bass, Perry street, was given a hearing on a charge of failing to pay her personal tax, but the case was nolled upon the failure of the prosecution to prove through testimony that the accused had been served with written notice to pay the tax and upon Mrs. Bass making payment of the $2 assessment.

MAYOR WANTS TAX RATE KEPT AT PRESENT 27 1-2 MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 26—The city council was in session this evening just an hour. The annual appropriation ordinance was read for the first time in the progress of its passage. It was amended by Councilor Murray of the finance committee, to increase the appropriation for the Chapman Technical school by adding some $25,000 to the amount for that institution. Councilor Streeter objected and voted against the amendment. It was pointed out that the taxrate would probably be 28 1-2 mills on the dollar this year. That made Councilor Streeter object more earnestly. He said that the probability was that a larger sum would be turned back into the treasury this year than has been turned back in any year since the city manager form of government has been in existence here. If the tax rate was made 28 1-2 mills.

Mayor Fox was of the opinion that the tax rate should be kept at 27 1-2 mills as at present, and advocated a larger collection of back taxes. He said they could be collected if the proper effort was made, in his opinion and declared that the amount of back taxes due here is greater than in Hartford. Council Whiton asked that the matter of paying the taxes in two payments should be considered. He believed the taxpayers would pay back taxes and their current taxes if they could make the payment in two installments. The matter is to be taken up further before the ordinance has its third reading.

Ordinances providing for sewers on Summer street was passed, and an ordinance providing for the issuance of water works refunding bonds was read and its passage then deferred for the fixing of some dates.

Amelia A. Williams gave notice of a claim for damages by falling on a defective sidewalk between Shaw and Hobron streets. The matter was referred to the director of law.

The council voted to contract for between 10,000 and 11,000 gallons of gasoline for city-owned motor vehicles and automobiles (his led Councilor Whiton to ask how many machines the city owned that such a quantity of gasoline should be consumed. The city manager could not give the desired information, but responded that the purchasing agent might supply the information.

The Products Store company asked permission to erect a tent and steel frame building that is portable on Jefferson avenue for the sale of goods. There was objection to granting the permission and the matter went over till Monday next for action.

The Chautauqua guarantors were given permission as usual for the erection of a tent in Williams Memorial park for their entertainment in July.

Several requests for permits for the erection of garages, etc., were received and granted.

ELECTRICIAN FELLDS DIES AFTER LEG OPERATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 26—Claire Daniel Fellds, electrician's mate, first class, one of the dozen injured in the explosion aboard the submarine, S-48 at the Submarine Base a week ago died at the base hospital this forenoon. Fellds' home was in Reno, Nev., where his father resides.

Fellds' condition has been critical since the explosion and this morning in an attempt to save his life, base surgeons amputated the right leg, just below the knee, but Fellds' physical condition was such that he could not survive the ordeal and expired a short time later and without regaining consciousness. Prior to undergoing the operation, Fellds made a statement to Lieut. Com. W. D. Snyder, commandant of the S-49 in which Fellds described his acts immediately preceding the explosion in the battery room. The statement has been turned over to the board of inquiry, but it does not tend to show what caused the terrific blast. It is understood that Fellds was in the act of taking a battery reading and exposed the battery. A pocket of hydrogen had collected on the battery and the explosion occurred from spontaneous combustion when the battery chamber was opened. Fellds was one of the most seriously injured, receiving the full force of the explosion.

PRESIDENT BLOOM NOT TO TREAT WITH STRIKERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 26—The committee representing the strikers of the Edward Bloom Silk company are seeking a conference with President Edward Bloom, but in the statement made today of President Bloom is carried out, there will be no conference and that the strikers will return to work under the former wage schedule. President Bloom states that he absolutely will not listen to a conference because of the fact that the weavers walked out deliberately leaving their employment and that if the strikers desire, they can walk back to their work just the same as they left it, but that no conference would be granted. About 300 hands are out of work because of the strike, which started April 12th.

Saturday Night Rainfall

The heavy rainfall of Saturday night and early Sunday morning gave a precipitation of .65 of an inch, according to the measurement taken at the water office.

This should show some effect on Stony Brook reservoir, which at a measuremen: taken last week showed about two inches up on the extra five feet where the dam was raised last spring.

Fairview reservoir continues to remain at full pond.

Initiation Was Held

One new member was initiated at the last regular meeting of R. E. Hourigan post auxiliary, No. 894, at which the business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Annie B. Turner. The state meeting held at Norwich recently was a huge success, according to the report made by the committee in charge.

Hellman's Blue Ribon Mayonnaise Convention

Five hundred representatives of Richard Hellmann, Inc., makers of Blue Ribbon Mayonnaise, are assembled at the Long Island City, (N. Y.) plant for the sixth annual convention of that organization.

The session opened Friday, (April 23rd,) with an address of welcome by Richard Hellmann, founder and head of the business. A tour of inspection of the plant and general business discussions marked the first day. Addresses were made by Richard Hellmann, founder and head of the business. A tour of inspection of the plant and general business discussions marked the first day. Addresses were made by Richard Hellmann, John Behrmann, Edwin P. Esterbrook, Robert T. Moore, Earl C. Berling, Chas. D. Meschter, Gustav A. Sehwerk, William Maxwell, Thomas G. Spates, W. T. Jones, V. F. Connelly, T. F. Kiernan, and P. D. Herbell. In the evening, the entire delegation were entertained at a theatre party.

Saturday, (April 24th) the programme comprised a morning and afternoon business session, and in the evening the entire body was given a banquet at the Hotel Commodore.

Brimful of enthusiasm, the representatives all praised the quality of Blue Ribbon Mayonnaise, the ideals of Mr. Hellmann in rigidly adhering to the principle of pure ingredients and the wonderful distribution enables the housewife to get pure, fresh mayonnaise.

Strand Theater

The seared words of the judge burnt into his flesh—

Seven years in San Quentin prison. He was young—a wedding. His own finger turned away from him.

And then the prison shadows—the machine shop, the hot crucible that made him into a man.

The open gates—freedom, a fighting chance to come back.

Then the "no hard wanted sign"—disheartened embittered. Slow footsteps that led to the Barbary Coast land of the tinted cheeks and painted smiles. Camille—queen of the dance halls, in her armor of the underworld. But— A helping hand—a person who could understand. A woman who played the wrong game, but who knew gameness. Companionship, friendship, love, marriage. On the road again that led from despair to happiness. Hope. The flaming halls of sin forgotten. And then the father—stern hardhearted, searching out the boy who seemed to have wrecked two lives. The meeting—Camille turning away, ready to give up, to turn back to the penniless paths that lead to oblivion. The youth, a man—unwavering, true to his marriage vow, true to the woman who lifted him from the gutter.

This is the story of Camille of the Barbary Coast—a drama of a great comeback, a drama of two lost souls climbing up the long road that was so easy to slip down.

Wednesday and Thursday at the Strand theater Mae Busch and Owen Moore in an Encore picture true to life vivid, colorful, entertaining. Camille of the Barbary Coast.

Don't fail to see Mary Philbin in Stella Maris at this theater which is showing for the last time today.

NEW DEALER APPOINTED FOR PAIGE AND JEWETT

William C. Noyes at 317 Lawrence avenue has been appointed local agent for Paige-Jewett cars.

The new Paige and Jewett representative has obtained the local distributorship just when the outlook for both popular lines is for even greater success than ever before. Both cars are entirely new in design, the new-day Jewett having been introduced in December and the Paige in February. Both cars however, carried quick recognition and the factory at Detroit is running on a production schedule that calls for more than twice as many cars this year as were made in 1925.

The new-day Jewett was designed from the ground up to solve the many problems that have arisen with the tremendous increase in motor traffic.

The aim was to create a new type of automobile without departing radically from standard American practices. There is, therefore, nothing freakish in the new-day Jewett. Its adaptability to present-day conditions lies rather in the skilful combination of the most desirable tested features without sacrifice of any of the fundamentals.

Paige offers a two-door brougham, midway in size and price between the Jewett and the Paige. The engine, clutch, transmission, radiator, etc., are the same as those used in the large Paige, but the wheelbase is 145 inches, 10 inches shorter. Hydraulic four-wheel brakes, operating in 12 inch drums, are standard equipment. The tires are 31x5 1-4 inches.

The combined Paige and Jewett lines include nine models, of which seven are closed cars. There is a wide variety of choice in body styles, as follows:

Closed cars—Jewett standard sedan, $995; Jewett de luxe sedan, $1095; Paige Brougham, $1295; Paige standard sedan, $1495; Paige de luxe sedan, $1670; Paige seven-passenger sedan, $1995; Paige surburban limousine $2245.

Open cars—Jewett de luxe touring $1095; Paige cabriolet, $2295.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any druggist.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

The exotic beauty of the Everglades of Florida is used as a background for Betty Compson's picture, "Ramshackle House," which comes to the theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

The cast is an unusually strong one, including John Davidson who scored a distinct personal hit as the villain in support of Rudolph Valentino in "Monsieur Beaucaire"; Robert Lowing, William Black, Henry James, and others of equal note.

Today's show consists of Marshall Neilan's great comedy hit, "Mike," featuring Sally O'Neill, Ford Sterling and Charley Murray. A two reel comedy with Lupino Lane and the Pathe News.

Palace Theater

"The screen needs new faces," declares Constance Talmadge, star of "Learning to Love." "When a picture is made cast it is so easy to fall back upon the tried-and-true actors and actresses who have appeared in so many other productions, that the poor extra girl is often overlooked.

"There are hundreds of potential stars in Hollywood, waiting and ready for the chance to become famous. But it is so difficult to choose them and so easy to follow the routine that many of them miss their opportunities through no fault of their own.

"The modern pictures need some organization which will take the time and trouble to winnow out the really talented, the deserving, the beautiful, and the best all-around aspirants for stardom. Such an organization would do a real service, not only to the vast army of ambitious girls in Hollywood, but to the industry and the motion picture public which wants new faces, and which is ever anxious to hear of fresh instances of success in the motion pictures.

In Learning to Love, Miss Talmadge has a role entirely new to others she has portrayed. It is that of a frivolous schoolgirl, just out of boarding school who suddenly finds herself with five dances and one perfectly good husband, Antonio Moreno, as the husband, finally eliminates the fiancee, after a deeply amusing series of episodes.

Celotex

Cutting across the north seas the S. S. Countess, sailing Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd and his 40 other Ice explorers with their two sailing and accessory ships, anchored in Kings Bay where they plan to erect for themselves temporary houses, the walls of which will be fortified with Celotex. This Celotex is a synthetic wood made by the Celotex company of New Orleans by shredding sugar cane waste remaining after the sugar has been extracted. The shredded cane product is a fibre which is compressed into sheets of synthetic lumber, just as in the lumber regions sawmill wastes are machined and compressed to produce the well known wallboards and sheathings.

They appreciate also another quality found in Celotex, the quality that fitted the Polar explorers to take it along to build their temporary homes at Kings Bay and even to line their ship quarters with—its high insulating value. That this boarding simmered from sugar-cane waste also deodorizes sound was immaterial to them. What they valued most was that it would keep out cold—cold more than expected would reach 50 to 60 degrees below zero during part of their journey towards the pole, and that it would keep within doors heat adequate for comfort.

Celotex is for sale in Norwich by Edward Chappell company.

Broadway Theater

Those of you who go out of town for vaudeville entertainment need do that no more for the program of Keith Albee vaudeville that opened at the Broadway theater yesterday is as good and far as the best that is offered in larger cities.

Yamamoto and McNally offered some Japanese magic and funny in their ring-a-ma-jig. Allen went over in great style.

Lucille Boyer, a petite miss of charming personality rendered a song medley of characters in a charming and pleasing manner.

The big hit of the evening was the feature attraction. The Artist Model, in which is introduced a quartette of beautiful models, in the company of six people. It is a musical comedy theater with Mr. Jack Collins, an able comedian, singer and dancer, who is seen as the man about town. A more polished revue was never before seen in Norwich.

The brightest kind of comedy with a punch is offered by Jack Freeman and Eve Lynn who well deserved the applause they received.

Another bright spot on the bill was the beautiful closing vaudeville offering with Jeanne Miller and her brothers who are billed as the three colleens in song, dance and music.

The photoplay is Scandal Street, featuring Madge Kennedy and Niles Welch.

POETRY

"WHEN JONQUILS BLOSSOM ON THE WINDOW-SILL"

When jonquils blossom on the window-sill,
The Spring has come, although a jealous rain
May hurl its ice-tipped javelins 'gainst the pane,
And smoke-grimmed snow-drifts rim each street and lane,
And winds rage—than December's breath more chill.

When jonquils blossom on the window-sill,
The sun shines out past power of cloud to stay,
Yes, lingers even after close of day,
Till one by one along the sky's dark way
The star-fires their appointed courses fill.

When jonquils blossom on the window-sill,
I hear the son from life's first springtide sung,
The flute-notes from a robin's soft throat flung,
And breathe the incense from grape-centers swung
By the wind's acolytes o'er field and hill.

When jonquils blossom on the window-sill,
The lassitude and loneliness depart,
Piercing the clods of silence new hopes start,
And "Courage—Courage"—sings once more my heart.
"Beneath the snow Love's first rose is asthirst."
Frances Bartlett in Boston Transcript.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks easy, weakness of motors offset early gains in rails.

Bonds, irregular, traction and oil issues react.

Foreign exchanges, mixed. Belgian francs higher.

Cotton, easy, favorable weather.

Sugar, steadier, firm spot and market.

Coffee, higher, trade buying.

Chicago

Wheat, firm, bullish visible supply.

Corn, steady, sympathy wheat.

Cattle, irregularly lower.

Hogs, lower, slow demand.

MARKET WAS PROFESSIONAL

NEW YORK, April 26.—(By The A. P.)—Profit taking and bear selling halted the advance in the industrials, which had continued uninterruptedly for seven consecutive days, in today's market, but the railroad shares continued their rise to higher ground. The session, which was largely of a professional character, showed a marked falling off in volume, the day's sales just exceeding the 1,500,000 share mark, as against 973,400 on Saturday's short session, and 2,328,700 on Friday.

The rise in the industrials was not associated with anything in the day's news, but was widely regarded as a natural readjustment after the sharp setback last week. Despite the traditional bullishness of stock dividend news, the stock of the Motors Corporation, which declared a dividend of 2 3-8 and then rallying to 126 7-8 a new high record of 129 5-8 on earnings of 2 3-8 on the day, following also broke out in Hudson Motors, which was driven down 9 points to 21.86 cents, but other changes were rather narrow.

Bonds, irregular, traction and oil issues react.

Foreign exchanges, mixed. Belgian francs higher.

Cotton, easy, favorable weather.

Sugar, steadier, firm spot and market.

NEW YORK, April 26.—(By The A. P.)—Profit taking and bear selling halted the advance in the industrials, which had continued uninterruptedly for seven consecutive days, in today's market, but the railroad shares continued their rise to higher ground. The session, which was largely of a professional character, showed a marked falling off in volume, the day's sales just exceeding the 1,500,000 share mark, as against 973,400 on Saturday's short session, and 2,328,700 on Friday.

The rise in the industrials was not associated with anything in the day's news, but was widely regarded as a natural readjustment after the sharp setback last week. Despite the traditional bullishness of stock dividend news, the stock of the Motors Corporation, which declared a dividend of 2 3-8 and then rallying to 126 7-8 a new high record of 129 5-8 on earnings of 2 3-8 on the day, following also broke out in Hudson Motors, which was driven down 9 points to 21.86 cents, but other changes were rather narrow.

FAIR TODAY; PROBABLY SHOWERS TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

NORWICH, CONN., TUESDAY, APRIL 27, 1926

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Tuesday, April 27, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

High pressure prevails from the North Pacific coast eastward over the Canadian northwest and pressure remains in the vicinity of Bermuda and from western New York southwestward to the Texas coast.

Fair weather will prevail in the Washington forecast district, but the northwestern disturbance will move east southeastward and cause showers in the Atlantic and East Gulf states, except Florida on Wednesday.

The temperature will rise almost generally Tuesday east of the Mississippi river, but cooler weather will again overspread the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic states Wednesday night.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Moderate to fresh west and southwest winds, fair weather Tuesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate winds, mostly westerly, fair weather Tuesday.

For New England: Fair and slowly rising temperature in the interior Tuesday. Wednesday probably showers.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes, Monday:

TAFTVILLE

Miss Lillian Laramie has returned to her home on North B street after spending the past week as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sisco and family of Attawaugan.

Theresa Lippe, aged one year and eight months, died Sunday at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Armand Lippe of North A street, of pneumonia, following an attack of measles. The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Allen who likewise had the embalming of the remains. Burial was in the cemetery where the parents also lie.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson have taken a house on South A street.

Jerry Chubbuck, patient at Uncas-on-Thames, spent the week end with his family in town.

Mr. and Mrs. David Mann of South Main avenue are to move soon to a house on South Park avenue.

The regular weekly meeting of the Odd Fellows' Camp Fire group is to be held this week at the home of Miss Dorothy Hunt on North Main avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Williams of Providence, R. I., were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lars M. Wood of North Third avenue.

Anthony Campagna of Lovers street is enjoying a short vacation.

A committee of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Taftville Congregational church, Mrs. Baptiste Gauvreau and Mrs. Lucien Bergeron, is at present in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Hewlett and children, Reginald and Ruth, have returned to their home on North B street from Lake Pocotopaug where they have been spending the past week with relatives.

A ford was in the town Norwich recently near the residence of Jean Dubois, and unfortunately, within a few minutes after the car was seen there, a valuable dog belonging to Mr. Dubois was missing.

Miss Josephine Wolsard of Norwich spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex L. Wolsard of North Third avenue, and attended a Whist party.

A meeting of the community service class was held Monday evening at the Red Cross rooms in the Hunsdon building.

A short session of the members' conference was held Sunday morning at the Taftville Congregational church, with Superintendent Victor H. Davis presiding.

Men employed by the state highway department were busy during the past week, grading off and working on the embankments of the new road over Merrick avenue and toward Norwich.

CLASH IS PREDICTED BETWEEN COUNCIL AND WATER BOARD

Predictions have been made that there will be something in the line of fireworks when a joint meeting of the common council and the water board is held to discuss the recent suggestion from the common council that the water board should not let out to a contractor the work of laying the Deep River reservoir water pipe where it is within the town limits, but that the city water department should do the work itself.

At the April meeting of the common council the vote was passed that the water board be advised to continue the laying of the reservoir pipe within the town limits in the same manner as has already been done, viz.: By men in the employ of the department and not by contract. Mayor Milo R. Waters advocated this way of handling the work on the ground that it ought to be done, as it would give employment to many local men, which would be desirable under the existing conditions of unemployment, even if it cost the city more for the work than if it were put out to contract.

It is understood, however, that some members of the water board have not been disposed to accept the advice of the mayor and the common council as the final word of wisdom in the matter, so that a joint meeting of the two bodies is to be called for an exchange of views.

It is expected that the meeting will be held some time this week.

AMERICAN LEGION MAKES MEMORIAL DAY PLANS

At the last meeting of the Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, plans were made and committees were appointed for Memorial day. Commander E. C. Dunbar appointed the following as his committee: Harold T. Robinson, Charles Olson, William L. Fletcher, Jr., Jonathan Johnson, Clarence Whitaker, William A. Anderson, John R. Bowman, Jr., Leon P. Raymond, Joseph Bellefleur and Frederick Bielefield, Jr. The Boy Scouts have kindly offered to scrape and paint the grave markers for which the post is very grateful. The membership is coming along in a fine way and the prospects are for a banner year in the history of the post. The house committee has made great improvements in the rooms and expect to install a new pool table within the next few weeks. The service committee is being kept busy assisting ex-service men in reinstating their war risk insurance and hope that if there are men who served in the world war who are not familiar with the workings of this law and wish any information that they would get in touch with the officers of the post who will assist them in any way they wish. The officers of the post also wish at this time to make an earnest appeal to all ex-service men who have not made out their application for the adjusted compensation to do so at once and offer their assistance in this matter also.

National Commander McQuigg is to visit the state and will be present at a banquet to be held in Hartford on May 15th at which a large delegation from the local post will attend.

RADIO PROGRAMME WAS RELAYED FROM HARTFORD

Last Monday night programme from the Norwich chamber of commerce station with studio at Hartford's Chandler's store, was relayed to the Travelers Insurance company at Hartford.

The programme as follows: Last Tuesday evening will be given by Miss Anne and Miss Ida Gruner of Taftville and the Hartford Male Quartet.

WILL BUILD ROAD TO NORTH WOODSTOCK LINE

The selectmen of Southbridge, Mass., have received official notification from the state highway commission that the state would defray one-quarter the expense of building one and one-half miles of macadam on North Woodstock road as far north as the Connecticut line. Southbridge appropriated $5,000. The county commissioners have consented to pay their share of $15,000 when completed the distance to Providence from Southbridge [illegible] and four miles.

When the state Theatre conference was held over the week end at the Taftville Methodist church, delegates from Holyoke, Mass., Meriden, Danbury and Waterbury were entertained at the homes of members of the local Epworth league.

Joseph Pera of Norwich is a medical patient at the William W. Backus hospital.

Miss Albertine MacAusey of Providence street who has been enjoying a vacation of several weeks, has returned to her work in the local mills.

The Army and Navy club orchestra is to broadcast from station WCBH, Norwich, this (Tuesday) evening at 8 o'clock.

Michael Buda of Terrace avenue has purchased a new automobile.

Uncas Knight Jean Duke, presided at a meeting of Ponemah council, No. 34, Knights of Columbus, which was held in the council rooms on Providence street, Monday evening.

Miss Josephine Wolsard of Norwich called on Taftville friends Monday.

Lizcar Carignan, Jr., of North A street is a patient at a New London private hospital, following an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle, and Rev. Father Donahue of Worcester, Mass., were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Nolan and family of Providence street.

A new porch is being added to the four tenement house owned by Christopher Krauss in Lisbon.

The nine months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tessier died Sunday night about 11 o'clock, after only a short illness.

Peter Gauvin is confined to his home on School street by an attack of the grip.

Miss Christina MacMillan and Miss Ida May MacMillan of Greenville, R. I., have been recent guests of Alexander Miller of South Second avenue.

George Serus and Arthur Durocher of Norwich avenue were in Putnam Sunday attending an exemplification of the third degree, Knights of Columbus.

Clarence J. Nagle of the Ponemah house has been a recent visitor in Providence, R. I.

Chester Oddie of Elissville road has returned to his work after an enforced absence due to an injury to his finger.

Taftville fire department, No. 2, was called out Monday afternoon, the cause being a brush and grass fire near Maennerchor place.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Davignon and family of Plainfield have been recent guests of Mrs. Davignon's mother, Mrs. Mary McCarthy of Merchants avenue.

Armand Davignon and Miss Joanna Briggs were quietly married Monday morning at Sacred Heart church, by Rev. John Malley. The bride wore a gown of old rose georgette crepe with hat to match and carried roses. After the ceremony the newly married couple left on a wedding trip which will take them to Providence, R. I., and New Bedford, Mass., and before returning to Taftville, they will visit Mrs. Davignon's parents in Marion, Mass. They are to make their home on South Second avenue.

DRAW BRIDGES COST STATE $50,413.36 IN YEAR

It cost the state of Connecticut an average of $17.13 for every opening of the nine draw bridges in the state last year, a statement prepared by the state highway department shows. The total cost of opening and closing the bridges was $50,413.36 for 8,934 operations of the machinery.

The main item of the expense of the bridge maintenance was salaries, which called for an expenditure of $42,108. The cost of power and light reached $3245.36, making a grand total cost of $50,413.36.

The Westport Bridge is shown to be the most expensive conducted by the state, where river navigation called for only fifteen openings during the twelve months. The total cost of each opening there, was $99.07. For salaries, $1,260 was expended and the power expense was $285.68.

The Niantic River bridge was conducted on the least expensive basis, the average cost of each opening being only $1.33. At this bridge, the expenses were practically the same as at Westport, but the river traffic called for 1,141 operations of the draw bridge. The heavies traffic in navigation or ships large enough to require the draw bridges to be turned was at the Thames River bridge in New London, where 1,441 boats passed beneath the bridge during the year.

Following is a table showing the detailed expense of each bridge for 1925:

NORTHFIELD CLUB HELD ITS ANNUAL MEETING

The closing meeting of the New London Northfield club was held in the parish house of the Central Baptist church, Saturday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. At the business session the following officers were elected: President, Miss Elizabeth V. Smith, vice president, Mrs. Richard M. Harding; secretary, Miss Jessie G. Parsons; treasurer, Miss Nellie J. Starr. Attending the meeting was also Miss Maude E. Allen of this city, retiring president, for her unceasing activity in founding and carrying on the work of the club. Following are the plans for the summer meetings discussed.

Miss Sarah L. Ayer of Danielson, former resident and teacher at Northfield seminary, was the speaker of the afternoon. She told in a most interesting manner of her present life at Northfield, of the new system of student partnership, the use of cap and gown and gave glimpses into the lives of the girls and students, answering the numerous questions of those present. A rising vote of thanks was extended to Miss Ayer for the delightful way in which she took us back to Northfield.

Those attending were Miss Sarah L. Ayer and Mrs. Frank J. Bailey, Danielson; Mrs. Dwight C. Stone, Hanover; Miss Blanche V. Smith, Franklin; Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, Norwich Town; Miss Nellie J. Starr, Uncasville; Mrs. George H. Lincoln and little daughter, Norma, of New London; Mrs. Richard M. Harding, Mrs. Rufus Turner and Miss Maude E. Allen, Norwich; and Miss Jennie G. Perkins, Gales Ferry.

MAKES FRAUD CHARGE IN FARM PURCHASE

Claiming to have been fraudulently induced to pay the defendant $1,000 on a $12,000 farm, Israel and Sylvia Kramer of New York have brought suit against Jacob Levita of Lebanon for damages of $1,500, according to papers filed Monday with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court.

It is alleged that on Feb. 1, 1926, the plaintiff bargained with the defendant in the purchase of the farm, when the defendant stated that it cost him $50 a week to care for his livestock and that he sold milk upon his route for nine and one-half cents a quart. He is charged with having stated that he derived $450 income from the farm. It is alleged that the defendant also represented that he had 250 live chickens on the farm. On these representations, it is alleged, the plaintiffs paid down $1,000 on the farm.

The plaintiffs claim that they found it cost $400 a week to care for the livestock, that the defendant sold milk for six cents a quart and that but 150 chickens were on the farm. The plaintiffs also allege that the income from the place is less than $300.

SUIT FOR FORECLOSURE ON LEBANON FARM

Foreclosure of mortgaged premises located in the town of Lebanon, is sought by Morris Kaplan of Windham from Hyetka and Jacob Chus, both of Windham, Dora Retzen, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Hyman and Rose Leopold of New York, according to papers filed with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court and returnable in May.

On Aug. 30, 1920, the defendants, Hyetka and Jacob Chus owed the plaintiff $2,000 on a note, secured by mortgage, and have only paid $300, leaving a balance due of $1700.

On Sept 4, 1920, Dora Retzen owed Hyetka Chus $600 on a note, secured by mortgage of the witnesses mentioned above. Chus assigned the note to the plaintiff and Dora Retzen refuses to pay. Hyman and Rose Leopold are now in possession of the premises.

HAD BEEN LEDYARD RESIDENT OVER 50 YEARS

The death of Augustus O. Ackley, one of Ledyard's oldest residents, occurred at his home at Gallup Hill Saturday, April 17. Mr. Ackley was born at Rumford, Me., Feb. 2, 1839, in the early years of Maine's statehood. He was the grandson of Samuel Ackley who served in the revolution and was a true representative of the rugged characteristics of his colonial ancestors and his pioneer surroundings.

Most of his mature life was spent in Connecticut, and he had been a resident of Ledyard for more than fifty years. He made farming his business, and gave his attention chiefly to gardening. He was a strawberry grower of considerable extent, and was well known to the merchants of the older Enterprise of Norwich and New London.

AUGUSTUS O. ACKLEY

Mr. Ackley was a man of varied interests. He kept himself well informed in regard to national and world affairs.

He was a lover of music and poetry and was familiar with most of the poets whose works appear in the English language.

His life exemplified the highest type of citizenship. His character was the embodiment of excelling honesty and indefatigable industry. He fulfilled in the highest measure his duties as citizen neighbor, husband and father.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS WILL ATTEND STATE ROUND-UP

Over 400 boy and girl 4-H club members from all parts of the state, with their leaders, will attend the third annual Connecticut 4-H club round-up to be held in Hartford, April 30 and May 1.

Cooperating with the 4-H club authorities to make the round-up a success is the agricultural committee of the Manufacturers association of Connecticut, the Connecticut chamber of commerce and the county farm bureaus.

The [illegible] is limited to the room. Up [illegible] Mr. Brundage, and reservations may be made at the county farm bureaus, or by writing direct to Storrs.

Activities will get under way Friday evening with a banquet at Hotel Garde, when the club members will be the guests of the state chamber of commerce. Clark Bolden, acting secretary of the chamber, and vice president of the Hartford Advertising club, will give the address of welcome.

Connecticut's 4-H club champions for 1925 will then be introduced to the delegates, after which an attractive speaking program featuring accomplishments of 4-H club members will get under way.

"Raising a State Champion" will be the subject of a talk by Wilson Reynolds of Newtown, owner of the grand champion baby beef at state fair last fall. This baby beef, incidentally, was the animal which sold for a dollar a pound at the beef auction that featured 4-H club activities at the fair.

"A Champion's Clothing Club" will be discussed by Elizabeth Ailing of Durham, member of the state champion clothing team in 1923. "Championship Rhode Island Reds" will be described by Max Sinoway of North Haven, a member of the national poultry judging team in 1925.

Henry Trumbull of Plainville, vice president of the State Fair association, will explain "Why the State Fair Is Interested in 4-H Club Work."

"My 4-H Club Work" will be the subject of a talk by Faith Grant of East Windsor Hill, judged the most outstanding 4-H club girl in Connecticut for 1924. Next will come a demonstration on "The Perfect Foot and How To Care For It," by Dorothy Baldwin and Evelyn Camp of Middletown, the two young women who made up the national champion clothing demonstration team in 1925.

"How Club Work Helps the Homemaker" will be explained by Mildred Bristol of Collinsville, judged the most outstanding club girl in Connecticut for 1923. "Why I Went Into Farming" will be told by Sherman Ives of Goshen, member of the state champion poultry team in 1919, and a graduate of Connecticut Agricultural college in the class of 1923.

The program for Saturday will get under way in the morning, when the club members will meet at the state house in the hall of representatives. James R. Case, Fairfield County club agent, will discuss "Achievement Day Programs", after which specialists from Connecticut Agricultural college will lecture to the delegates.

This will be followed by an announcement of awards, and an outlining of goals and standards for 1926, by Miss Elsie Trabue, assistant state club leader, and A. J. Brundage, state club leader.

The agricultural committee of the State Manufacturer's association will be hosts to the 4-H club members at a luncheon at Hotel Bond Saturday noon. The address of welcome will be given by Wilson H. Lee of New Haven, chairman of the manufacturer's committee. Ernest E. Rogers of New London, president of the Connecticut chamber of commerce will talk on "Why the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce Is Interested in 4-H Club Work". Robert Foster of the U. S. department of agriculture will discuss "4-H Club Work In the United States."

"Egged On Through College" will be the subject of a talk by Thomas Connors of Windsor, a freshman at Connecticut Agricultural college who is paying part of his expenses by keeping a flock of hens at Storrs.

"What Club Work Has Meant to Me" will be told by Ernest Visty of Bethel, while "The 4-H club at Connecticut Agricultural College" will be outlined by its president, Garry Miles of Mansfield.

"From Grades to Pure Breds" will be the story of George Wood at Watertford, a member of the state champion dairy judging team for 1925. "What Good Health Means To Me" will be told by Charlotte Babbitt of Baltic, a state health champion in 1925.

"Fairfield County's Best Club" will be described by Mrs. John C. Howe of Stratford, leader of the county champion club. "The Middlesex County Pure Bred Heifer Club" will be talked of by Russell Anderson of Cromwell, grand champion dairy judge in 1925. "What I Think of Club Work Now" will be explained by Marion Eisenhood of Salisbury, a member of two state champion club teams.

PROBATION OFFICERS DISCUSS DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT

The Connecticut Probation Officers' association met in a kindred group at the Y. M. C. A. at noon Monday.

Judge George H. Day of the Hartford police court was chairman of the meeting. In introducing Miss Frances L. Roth, assistant city attorney of New Haven, who spoke on "The Domestic Relations Court," Judge Day said:

The matter of family relations must pass in the east, through four courts—the probate court, the juvenile court (in case of children), the superior court should there be a divorce, and many times through the police court. We all know that too many cooks spoil the soup. When it comes to legal matters, four courts leave nothing but the grease. There must be many times in the life of a social worker when she could say, "The parent be damned." But the business of social work is the science of relationships. If it isn't the parent it is a guardian. There is no question but what it is a matter of relationship—not individuals. Talk about the juvenile court dealing simply and exclusively with the child is not to be heard of—it should always include the child's family. In the west there has been created a group of courts which would seem ideal. They are the old-time domestic relation sessions.

Judge Day then introduced Mrs. Roth, who has but lately returned from a tour of the western cities which house these courts. She described minutely the domestic relations courts of Cleveland, Detroit and Cincinnati.

Mrs. Roth's official title is assistant city attorney but her work is to have care of all family complaints as they come into the court at New Haven. Of the 500 cases coming to her attention in the last six months' period, only 20 per cent were ever brought to the attention of the court. The majority of them were settled privately in her office. When questioned as to her election to such an important office, Mrs. Roth said it was her private opinion that the three men on duty tired of listening every day and three nights a week to women complain and had decided to turn the job over to the patience of a woman.

Two other luncheon meetings were held—a group on Community Organization met at Odd Fellows' hall under the chairmanship of Clarence King of Bridgeport, who introduced Pierce Williams, secretary of the American Association for Community Organization, New York city.

The Children's Section gathered at Buckingham Memorial. Miss Majory Cheney of South Manchester, director of the Connecticut Children's Aid society, opened a discussion on Everyday Problems which was taken up by E. W. DuVall, superintendent of the Children's Community Center of the New Haven Orphan Asylum.

Court House Pansies Planted

Joseph J. Fields, superintendent at the court house, set out the beds of pansies Monday. In other years it has usually happened that snow has regularly followed the pansy planting but this seems hardly likely this year as they have usually been set out several weeks earlier.

SPOKE ON VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE IN SCHOOL

Translating School Training into a Livelihood was the topic upon which Miss Susan J. Ginn of Boston spoke at the round table conference on children which was held Monday morning at the Y. M. C. A. from 10 to 12. Dr. Arnold Gesell of Yale was chairman. She is director of vocational guidance in the Boston public schools.

In part Miss Ginn spoke as follows:

One of the newer developments which is attracting attention today is what is known as the vocational guidance movement. The idea is as old as the schools themselves. Who is there among us who has not had some teacher interested in our welfare beyond the class-room work to ask what we were planning to do when we left school, and give us the best advice he or she knew. It remained for Frank Parsons, however, in 1908 to isolate the germ, so to speak, and give it a name. He was the first to use the term "vocational guidance." His book entitled "Choosing a Vocation" made a plea for a scientific study of the problem, and a definite organization of the work. His untimely death shortly afterwards inspired others to take up the work he laid down.

What is vocational guidance? According to a definition adopted in 1924 by the National Vocational Guidance association, vocational guidance is the giving of information, experience and advice in regard to choosing an occupation, preparing for it, entering it, and progressing in it. Educational guidance is the aid furnished individuals in making such decisions as choice of studies, choice of curricula, and the choice of schools.

Why is organized vocational guidance needed today? Let us go back in thought for a moment to the early Colonial days. Practically all the occupations, with the exception of the professions were centered about the farm on which the boys and girls were reared. Here the son learned not only the raising of the food for the family, but carpentry, blacksmithing, and all the other trades needed to keep a farm in good condition. The daughter followed closely in the footsteps of her mother in the household. The wool that was cut off the sheep raised on the hillside was made into cloth within the precincts of the farm. With the exception of tea, coffee, and spices, the farm produced all the necessities of the household. The boy and girl knew what their life work was to be at an early age. What a far cry from that day to the present. The factories removed from the kitchen to large buildings in industrial cities. The various occupations have become specialized, and today instead of being centralized are decentralized and specialized to such an extent that the job of old is hardly recognizable. The complexities of living today in both the economic and social life, and the expanding educational opportunities which are a natural result, make it positively necessary that something be done so that the worker of the future will not arrive at his working destination in a hit or miss fashion. The present age demands more of its people than ever before. The child must be aided in every way to meet these demands, in order that he may become a well-trained worker, a happy and contented member of society, and the highest type of citizen.

After Flu and Colds Tanlac Brings Back Health

After a bout with the flu, when your knees are wobbly and your feet like lead, when your back is weak and your head swimming, tone up your system with Tanlac. Note how you pick right up from the first few doses.

Thousands of men and women are happy and vigorous today because Tanlac carried them over similar periods of weakness and depression. Its action is perfectly natural because its ingredients are all natural. Roots, barks and herbs long known for their medicinal values, combine their tonic properties and give to Tanlac its amazing power to revitalize the blood and invigorate the digestive organs. It snaps the whole system into fighting trim.

If flu has left you just "half-alive," don't delay in taking Tanlac. So long as your system is weak and run-down it cannot resist fatigue; it cannot throw off the attack of any germ or illness you may be exposed to. Tone up your whole body; enjoy the vigor of natural health and let Tanlac rid your system of all after-flu impurities. Then you'll feel fit, and be fit; natural vitality and resistance will be yours again.

Step into your druggist's today and get this amazing tonic. The first bottle will convince you of its merits. And as an added precaution, keep your bowels open with Tanlac Vegetable Pills.

BETTING TAX HAS BECOME GREAT ISSUE IN BRITAIN

Controversy Over the Issue Has Dwarfed Other Budget Projects Submitted by Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchhill—A Tremendous Opposition to the Proposal Has Developed Throughout Great Britain—Even the Wesleyan-Methodist Church is Opposed to Such a Tax.

LONDON, April 27.—(AP)—The betting tax, proposed by Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill in his budget speech yesterday, has become a national issue overnight, with its moral aspect looming large.

So fierce has the controversy become about this highly debatable proposal, that the rest of the chancellor's budget projects have been well nigh forgotten.

Taken altogether, the chancellor has thrown down a tremendous opposition movement Great Britain, and even in his own party, voices have been raised against his proposal. However, he probably will get a safe majority for its passage when the government whips get to work on the big majority in the house of commons.

As far as the legislature is concerned, many conservatives oppose the tax on moral grounds. Most Labor members are dead against it and leading socialists predict that the labor party will take a stand against it.

Outside of parliament there are many elements opposed to the tax for various reasons, the bookmakers and backers being both for once finding themselves on the same side of the fence. Astrology, horse racing, dog racing, and even aeroplane—it's dog racing—have their pet foes. The examples are opposed to it in a memorandum issued by the betting control committee. The memorandum points out that betting comes from the middle and working people and not from the social workers.

Even Lady Astor has come out with the assertion that the government should not "make a tool. They take money from the pockets of the chancellor announced in his speech. "I am not looking for trouble. I am looking for revenue."

A recent report of a commons committee estimated the annual turnover on legal betting at more than 200,000,000 pounds. This would figure out approximately five pounds per capita of the total population yearly.

Chancellor Churchill estimated that there would be a revenue of one hundred pounds a year based on a five per cent. tax, which would indicate that he figured on a taxable turnover of 120,000,000 pounds.

Opposition to the tax has developed in many quarters. The Methodist Church, which includes leading members of both Anglican and Nonconformist bodies met this morning and made arrangements for definitely opposing it. The National Free Church Council has also taken the lists against the chancellor's plan.

Lloyd George believes the betting tax thoroughly bad. "It is going to drive hundreds of bookmakers to the streets," he said today. "The government proposal by increasing street betting will increase the evil, an illegal evil, in its worst, pernicious forms."

Ellen Wimkinson, noted laborite member of the house of commons, taking her stand beside her conservative colleague, Lady Astor, says:

"I didn't think even Mr. Churchill was going to join the saddle club. His betting proposals are quite definitely taking a backward moral step. Betting causes as much misery as drinking, but betting is increasing while drinking is decreasing. Women's opinion, irrespective of party, is against legislation of any forms of vice and the proposals do stamp betting with state approval. The proposals will drive betting to the streets with increased temptation to young boys and women."

Of course, Chancellor Churchill also has many supporters who contend that as long as credit betting with bookmakers at racetrack enclosures offices and betting at race courses are a regular feature, it is no use the government should not make a tool. They take pretty much the attitude of the chancellor himself who announced in his speech, "I am not looking for trouble. I am looking for revenue."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

ROME, April 27.—(AP)—The results of Premier Mussolini's trip to Tripoli have been so satisfactorily that he has decided it is reported, to visit Cyrenaica in September.

PARIS, April 27.—(AP)—Victory H. Berenger, French ambassador to the United States has contributed 5,000 francs to the fund to be applied toward French internal debt.

VERSAILLES, April 27.—(AP)—"The City of Kings" will soon have a "Rockefeller street." The street will be named in honor of the gift of John D. Rockefeller, for the restoration of the famous Chauteau of Versailles.

PARIS, April 27.—(AP)—The French senate by a vote of 274 to 7 today passed the complete budget for 1926. The senate adjourned until tomorrow night in order to give the chamber of deputies opportunity to pass on the measure as voted in the senate.

CALCUTTA, India, April 27.—(AP)—Ten persons were killed and 15 injured today in a resumption of rioting between Hindus and Mohammedans. Sporadic fighting between the two factions has been going on for the past few days.

SMILED AS HE WAS INDICTED FOR FIRST DEGREE ROBBERY

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Surrounded by a score of fraternity brothers, Alexander R. Hodges, former star athlete of the University of Kansas, stood smiling in court today as the grand jury indicted him for first degree robbery.

Hodges presented an appearance in contrast to the night of his arrest, when, in tears, he threw his fraternity pin away in a prison washroom to conceal his identity. He later retrieved the pin and wore it today.

Hodges was charged with holding up a restaurant cashier and stealing $15.

Telegrams sent to Hodges' family by members of his fraternity, expressing amazement at a recent performance, have been received from former college associates. Hodges said he held up the restaurant on the spur of the moment when he found himself without funds. He will be arraigned tomorrow.

Among the telegrams was one from the Real Estate Mortgage and Trust company, of Chicago, and St. Louis, by whom Hodges was employed last summer. The company wired instructions to draw on them for any funds necessary for his defense and offered him an old job back.

$504,111,356 INCOME TAX COLLECTIONS FOR MARCH

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—Income tax collections for March, under the new revenue law, were $504,141,356, or $65,412,739 more than for March, 1925, when the higher rates were in effect.

The figures, made public today by the internal revenue bureau, include payments made March 15, the first regular receiving date for taxes to be paid this year. They showed New York with the largest collection Florida with the greatest proportionate increase, and seven states and Hawaii with lower returns than last year.

States which showed declines were: Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Arkansas, Georgia, New Mexico and Oregon.

The following table shows the income tax collections for the New England states and New York for March 1925 and 1926:

	1925	1926
Connecticut	$6,745,858	$7,175,157
Maine	1,861,501	2,005,627
Massachusetts	23,690,383	25,800,237
New Hampshire	780,556	774,653
New York	128,674,195	145,941,713
Rhode Island	3,252,920	3,447,296
Vermont	795,918	824,000

MARTIAL TROUBLES OF A 25 YEAR OLD COAST GUARDSMAN

BALTIMORE, April 27.—(AP)—Harrison B. Knighton, 25 year old coast guardsman, who was swept into the sea at New London Conn., in an attempt to rescue the crew of the S-51, when the big submersible sank, struck another snag in his matrimonial ventures today. Lydia E. Knighton, his first wife, filed suit for divorce in circuit court here. Last month, Knighton was arrested in Milwaukee, charged with bigamy after his marriage to Lois A. Horning, a school teacher of that city. He is reported to have admitted in an affidavit that he is still the legal husband of Lydia E. Knighton.

Off Block Island, New London, Knighton then a coast guardsman, was washed from the deck of a rescue boat at the scene of the S-51 disaster, and was confined in a naval hospital for several weeks. He was married to his first wife in 1922, and married Miss Horning last March 9 at Waukegan, Ill.

PASSAIC TEXTILE STRIKE REMAINS AT STANDSTILL

PASSAIC, N. J., April 27.—(AP)—Plans for the settlement of the textile strike in this district were at a standstill today.

Henry F. Hilfers, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, and Dr. Andrew F. McBride, state labor commissioner, of Governor Moore's mediation commission agreed to withdraw from that commission when it was reported that Albert Weisbord, strike organizer, whom the governor refused to deal with, had said he would withdraw if they would.

Weisbord later said he would not withdraw but would sanction a subcommittee composed of strikers to meet with the governor's commission in preliminary conference and report back to the united front committee.

Sheriff Charles W. Morgan of Passaic county withdrew the 150 special deputies who were on duty in the mill zone in this city. He said he felt the local authorities were able to handle the situation.

Sheriff Mimmo, of Bergen county, whose deputies armed with shotguns have patrolled the streets of Garfield since he read the riot act in front of the Forstmann and Huffman plant two weeks ago, stated he would not withdraw his men until he had conferred with the municipal authorities who asked him to come in and take charge.

STORM WARNING ISSUED BY THE WEATHER BUREAU

WASHINGTON, April 27 — (AP)— The weather bureau tonight issued the following 10 p. m., advisory storm warning:

"Southeast warnings hoisted Delaware Breakwater to Boston. Disturbance of considerable intensity central over northern Indiana will move rapidly eastward."

Three Foreign War Debt Pacts Ratified

Senate Yesterday Approved Settlements With Latvia, Esthonia and Rumania.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—Approving the war debt settlements with Latvia, Esthonia, and Rumania in rapid succession, the senate today cleared its calendar of all of the refunding agreements except that with Czecho-Slovakia, which will be taken up tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the American and French debt commissions marked time awaiting further word from Paris before renewing their negotiations. The Americans met for 15 minutes and then decided to adjourn until Ambassador Berenger gives notice that his government has new proposals to offer for those in the original offer found unacceptable to the American commission.

The three agreements ratified today by the senate involve a total of $64,195,000 and were put through by even more overwhelming majorities than was the Belgian settlement yesterday and the Italian agreement last week. The Latvian settlement was approved, 59 to 15, and the other two by the same margin, 61 to 16.

The chief fight was of the Latvian agreement, involving only $5,775,000 and interest at 3 per cent for the first ten years and 3 1-3 per cent thereafter. Senators Reed, democrat, Missouri, and Howell, Republican, Nebraska, again led the fight.

Characterizing the Latvian settlement as not only "wasteful, but illiberal," Senator Reed predicted that long before the end of the 62 years over which payments are spread Latvia again will have been absorbed by Russia and the United States will lose a part of the payments.

Senator Howell contended that all the agreements were in the nature of cancellations of the principals of the debts and again argued that the debt commission was saddling a burden on the American taxpayers and relieving those of the debtor nations.

Renewing his charge that the senate machinery was "well oiled" for the approval of all of the settlements, Senator Reed called attention that no quorum call, two such calls, one into the chamber and voted "aye", assuming that the roll call was on one of the settlements.

Although a definite division has developed on the latest proposal of France for a settlement of its debt, officials are still hopeful an agreement can be reached.

One member of the American debt commission described the situation tonight as "both sides think they are asked", and he predicted both would yield to effect a settlement.

In addition, to the amounts of payments a difference has developed as to the method of payment and this has been referred by M. Berenger to his government.

Chairman Mellon of the debt commission discussed Jugo-Slavia's $65,000,000 debt briefly today, but it developed that now the work is necessary to bring a definite decision and further discussion of terms will ever.

INDIAN TAKEN FROM POSSE AND HANGED

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 27.—(AP)—Old fashioned frontier justice was dispensed near the Rown Point Indian agency Monday when Santiago Platero, Navajo Indian, charged with the slaying of J. N. Kimmell, government cattle inspector, was hanged by citizens who took him from a sheriff's posse.

Meager advices received here today said a group of ranchers met the sheriff's posse late Sunday night and seized Platero as he was being taken to the Crown Point jail for safe keeping.

A coroner's jury found that the Indian met death by hanging "at the hands of parties unknown". Superintendent Stacher of the Crown Point agency and his deputies are conducting an investigation.

NEW HAVEN MAN DIED IN STAFFORD HOSPITAL

NEW HAVEN, April 27.—(AP)—After being traced by the slender clue that he had a sister who lived in Willow street, New Haven, whose husband worked in a bank, a man was picked up unconscious on the road in Stafford Springs yesterday morning and who died in a Stafford hospital, has been identified as Martin Walpole, 34 years of this city. Henry O'Brien, assistant treasurer of the American Bank and Trust company, went to Stafford today and identified the body as that of his brother-in-law. It is believed that Walpole was struck by an automobile.

DEATH OF MAN WHO WAS OLD IRONSIDES CABIN BOY

BOSTON, April 27.—(AP)—Cary W. Jefferson, who served as cabin boy on "Old Ironsides," died today. The aged negro, who had been employed at the Charlestown Navy yard more than 46 years, was known to many officers and men of the navy.

Jefferson was born in Portsmouth, Va., but his actual age was not known. He was proud of his two enlistments in the navy, and boasted that his first sea duty was as cabin boy on the frigate Constitution.

For many years he had been employed in the dispensary at the Navy yard. Burial will be at Portsmouth, Va.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The house passed a bill to create a prohibition bureau in the treasury.

The Husted, Tincher and Curtiss-Aswell farm relief bills were reported to the house.

Senate ratified debt agreements with Latvia, Esthonia and Rumania; debt commission in recess.

Senator McNary urged president to fill the North-West vacancy on the shipping board.

President Coolidge asked congress for supplemental funds for the Coolidge dam and Columbia basin projects.

Commissioner Costigan criticized Chairman Marvin and Commissioner Burgess at the senate tariff hearings.

Mrs. Willie Hoppe, divorced wife of the former billiard champion, applied in New York for full custody of their two children.

Bandit Whittemore Jury Disagreed

Outcome of Trial at Buffalo Greeted With Applause by 300 in Court Room.

BUFFALO, April 27.—(AP)—The jury trying Richard Reese Whittemore for murder came into court at 11 o'clock and reported it was unable to agree on a verdict. Justice Noonan discharged them.

The outcome of the trial was greeted with applause by some 300 persons who had waited patiently for the verdict.

There was no indication as to how the jury stood, although a member of the jury requested the court to take a poll. The court said this was not permissible in a murder trial.

District Attorney Guy B. Moore, was not in the court room when the jury was discharged. When informed of the outcome he said: "I have nothing to announce at this time."

Court attaches expect Whittemore will be taken to Baltimore to face trial on a charge of murdering a guard in the penitentiary while making his escape.

At the news of the jury's deadlock more than 300 men and women who crowded the first floor of the city hall burst into cheers. Caps were thrown into the air, whistles were blown, and Whittemore was given a great ovation when he was led down the stairs to be returned to a cell in the county jail.

SAYS 135,000 MURDERERS ARE AT LARGE IN UNITED STATES

NEWTON, Mass., April 27.—(AP)—Approximately 135,000 persons who have unlawfully taken human life are at large, unpunished and unafraid in the United States, Robert T. Haslam, first assistant district attorney of Middlesex county, told the Newton Kiwanis club tonight. He quoted figures to show that 30,000 more slayers are at large than there are policemen in the country.

"According to figures compiled by a reliable statistician," he said, "the underworld, the thugs, gunmen, swindlers, murderers, cost the great 98 per cent. of honest men and women twelve times as much each year as do our army and navy combined. The business men of the country should turn their attention to the question and we receive more encouraging signs that they are doing so, that at last they realize that this problem is their problem.

"One billion dollars is taken from the public every year by bucket shops, land and stock swindlers. One hundred and twenty-five million dollars an average is embezzled every year. Approximately $525,000,000 is taken from the homes of property owners by burglars each year. Forgers as their share receive approximately $200,000,000. Fraudulent bankrupts and credit trimmers take four hundred million, while political grafters and persons who steal from the government run off with two hundred million dollars.

"A conservative estimate of the cost of prevention, detention, prosecution and punishment of crime is one billion dollars. When you add to this the cost of maintaining prisons and institutions you have a grand total which staggers the imagination and defies apology."

U. S. STEEL ON REGULAR $7 ANNUAL DIVIDEND BASIS

NEW YORK, April 27—The establishment of United States Steel common stock on a regular $7 annual dividend basis was approved by the directors today at the suggestion of J. P. Morgan. Although extra payments have resulted in the distribution of this amount annually since the beginning of 1924, the action of the corporation in authorizing a fixed $7 rate was interpreted as an indication of its confidence in continued prosperity.

The new 7 per cent. dividend basis of the corporation, which will take the shape of regular quarterly payments of $1.75 a share instead of a 50 cent extra and a $1.25 quarterly, is the highest fixed rate ever paid by the U. S. Steel.

GOV. TRUMBULL TO VISIT GROTON SUB BASE TODAY

HARTFORD, April 27—(AP)—Governor Trumbull and his staff will make an official review and inspection of the United States navy submarine base, at New London, tomorrow. The visit will include a dive in a submarine at 1.30 p. m.

The governor's party will leave in automobiles at 8.30 a. m., in order to be at the base at 10 o'clock for the official review and inspection of personnel followed by an inspection of the base at 10.30 o'clock. Luncheon will be served at 12.30 o'clock preparatory to the submarine dive in the sound.

It will be the governor's first dive in a submarine.

AIRPLANE DETROITER GIVEN A TEST FLIGHT

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, April 27—(AP)—The airplane Detroiter which yesterday turned back after traveling 100 miles toward the Arctic ocean in search of Captain George H. Wilkins and Lieutenant Carl B. Eielson, was given a test flight here today.

Crossing of the Brooks range by the Detroiter, was held impossible yesterday. One of the three engines went dead and a compass did not work correctly.

Wilkins, leader of an expedition in search of land in the Arctic ocean and Eielson, his aviator, have not been reported since their plane, the Alaskan, was seen April 15, 100 miles east of Point Barrow, Alaska, and over the edge of the ocean.

EXTENSIVE FLIGHT BY DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES

LAKEHURST, N. J., April 27.—(AP)—The first extensive flight of the navy dirigible Los Angeles since it was reconditioned after ten months' idleness, today took the ship to Atlantic City, Cape May and Philadelphia.

When the airship returned to Lakehurst and was safely berthed in the hangar early tonight, Captain George W. Steele, Jr., commandant, said the trip had been successful.

"We encountered rougher weather than I liked" he declared, "but that was what the structural engineers aboard were looking for in order to test various parts of the ship."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

Representative Hawes, democrat, Missouri, resigned his membership in the house, effective next fall, to become a candidate for the senate.

The Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission at Arica, Chile, unanimously voted to prolong the period of plebiscitary registration for 25 days.

Seven persons adrift in a speed boat were rescued when the vessel was found stranded on a coral reef ten miles off shore at Clearwater, Fla.

One hundred and ten men were arrested when state police of troop K raided a cocking main in a barn on the sawmill river road at Elmford, White Plains, N. Y.

Fire in the Nonpareil Laundry plant in Blatchley avenue, New Haven did damage to building and machinery estimated at $30,000. Quantity of family washing were lost.

The Housatonic river at Pittsfield, Mass., is higher than at any other time this spring, but so far no damage has been reported. The last of the ice is just leaving some lakes.

Although rivers and streams in northern and eastern New York are still at flood stage, weather bureau officials at Albany, N. Y., said the situation was "not alarming."

HOUSE VOTES TO CREATE A BUREAU OF PROHIBITION

Administration Bill Designed to Strengthen the Dry Law Enforcement Was Pasesd 196 to 4—Measure Would Also Create a Bureau of Customs—New Bureaus Would Be Headed by Commissioners Appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)— By a vote of 196 to 4 the house today passed an administration bill proposing drastic revision of the dry law enforcement machinery in the treasury, including the creation of a bureau of prohibition.

The measure, which now goes to the senate, was approved after an amendment by Representative La Guardia, progressive-socialist, New York, to legalize the sale of 2.75 per cent beer, had been thrown out on a point of order.

The four votes against the bill were cast by Representatives Auf Der Heide, New Jersey, and Black, Cullen and Somers, New York, all democrats.

The proposal weathered nearly a dozen amendments and was passed as reported by the ways and means committee, to which it was sent by the treasury.

It would give legal sanction to the reorganization in the prohibition unit effect last August by Secretary Mellon, and besides the prohibition bureau would create a bureau of customs. The new bureaus would be headed by commissioners appointed by the secretary of the treasury.

Wet members of the house offered no formidable opposition, a number supporting the bill on the ground that it would make prohibition enforcement more drastic, thus bringing about increased demand for modification. Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, recognized wet leader in the house, voted for it.

Urging passage of the bill, Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, a dry leader, endorsed the prohibition administration under Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury. He asserted Andrews has shown "zeal and success" in enforcing the dry law, adding:

"Don't give a man the handest job in the United States and then criticize him."

After Mr. La Guardia had accused drys of acting in bad faith because they would not accept another amendment by him, Cramton asserted he did not care for a "cesspool from either recent convert to prohibition or "those who are habitual drinkers at all."

La Guardia's other amendment would have provided probation that employees to receive the salary other than that from the government, and was defeated overwhelmingly.

Mr. Hill, [illegible] Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair, Assistant Secretary Garner, of Texas, [illegible] the ways and means committee, [illegible] the prohibition bureau.

DISABLED SCHOONER IN TOW OF REVENUE CUTTER

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—After a voyage from Georgetown, S. C. during which she ran out of food and began leaking badly, the three-masted schooner Roseway of Boston, was brought to Sandy Hook bay by the United States revenue cutter Seneca and anchored for the night.

The vessel's master, up day and night for several days in a "nervous wreck", according to coast guard officials who were in wireless communication with the Seneca. One coast guard officer answered reports of a mutiny at sea by admitting that the boat's crew was "a little unruly". Seven men were believed to be on board.

The vessel's distress was first noted yesterday when the steamer Davison picked up the schooner of Amesbury, Mass., and reported it rocking and out of food. The Seneca and a coast guard destroyer were sent out to investigate and found the vessel in no immediate danger.

Today the Seneca went out and took the vessel in tow to keep it from becoming a menace to navigation, although it was in no actual distress.

The schooner is listed as being owned by the Boston Ship Brokerage company. It has 291 tons displacement and is 120 feet overall. It left Georgetown on April 13.

CLOSE OF CONVENTION THE NATIONAL Y. W. C. A.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 27.—(AP)—Definitely aligned by their action today with the forces opposing the attempt to modify the Volstead act, and proponents of world-wide peace, the Young Women's Christian association of the United States of America closed its biennial sessions today.

The convention by rising vote, expressed opposition to the sale of light wines and beer.

The 1500 delegates pledged co-operation of the Y. W. C. A. "not only for law enforcement, but for the building of intelligent public sentiment for law observance."

Outstanding among the subjects to be studied by the national board is the plan for the outlawry of war.

The associations endorsed state legislation leading toward improving women's working conditions as part of the Y. W. C. A. program. They will seek the establishment by each state of an eight hour day, abolishment of night work and a minimum wage.

Continued support of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution and the movement to create federal department of education was given.

ENGLISH WOMEN ARE HONORED FOR BRAVERY

LONDON, April 27.—(AP)—Two women representing 35 others who launched a lifeboat and braved the terrors of a wild winter night have been honored by the Royal National Life Boat Institution.

Miss N Stephenson, daughter of the coxswain of the lifeboat at Boulmar, Northumberland, and Mrs. E. Stanton, wife of the second coxswain, received from Lord Foster the thanks of the committee of the institution inscribed in vellum. The tribute was for their gallantry on the night of December 20, when they, with the other women, dragged a lifeboat a mile and a quarter in the face of a blizzard and then stood by to launch her.

FREIGHTER WITH CREW OF 29 MEN IS OVERDUE

NEWARK, N. J., April 27.—(AP)—The freighter Suduffco, with a crew of 29 men, which was due at the Panama Canal March 22, has not been found and officials of the transmarine corporation, her owners, said today the Suboatco and the Sucarosco, sister ships, have given up the search.

The boat, commanded by Captain Thomas [illegible] Turner of Holmes, N. Y., left Port Newark on March 13 for Pacific coast ports.

$750,000,000 FORECLOSURE OF THE C. M. & ST. P. R. R.

CHICAGO, [illegible] P—The way was paved today for the reorganization of the $750,000,000 Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, one of the largest property ever to come [illegible] ownership, when Federal Judge Wilkerson entered a decree of foreclosure and sale.

He retained from sale a sale date, fixing an upset price of [illegible] and any one [illegible] reorganization.

It was proved that the sale should be held at the main office of the St. Paul starke at Union, Montana. The decree, consisting [illegible] pages, was entered [illegible] of counsel for bondholders [illegible] and the railroad's junior [illegible] who were in court on another phase of the reorganization and of D. H. Cassatt, counsel for Herman L. Ekern, attorney general for Wisconsin, in which [illegible] the property is incorporated.

Judge Wilkerson named as special master in chancery to [illegible] sums of the [illegible] Herbert Lundahl, who was [illegible] master a year ago to hear claims against the road.

The decree of foreclosure was entered upon petition of the Guaranty Trust company, of New York, and the United States Mortgage company, representing the principal creditors.

The reorganization plan chiefly mentioned is that of the National City bank and Kuhn, Loeb and company of New York. When he petitioned for intervention several weeks ago, former Governor Miller told Judge Wilkerson that conditions did not permit any of the possibility of there being holders for the property other than the two New York banks, because none had been made depositories for the great majority of the road's securities.

It was stated that the annual rush of traffic was over and the volume of April business great normal. Anthracite coal mined [illegible] to replenish stocks depleted during the suspension of operations, and some general traffic delayed by February storms went forward in March.

MEDICINES AND SERUMS NO CURE FOR CANCER

PARIS, April 27—Medicines and serums are ineffective against cancer in the opinion of Dr. J. Tiscot, professor of general physiology at the Paris Natural History Museum, who created a stir at the Academy of Science yesterday with a paper describing cancer as a form of mildew.

In an interview with a representative of the Associated Press, Dr. Tiscot asserted that cancer, like tuberculosis and syphilis, is mildew—a decaying of part of the system, a returning to the primitive state.

Hope for humanity afflicted with these diseases, he went on, lies in finding a method of reversing the process of decay and restoring the organism affected.

BINGHAM WARNS AGAINST CENTRALIZATION OF POWER

PHILADELPHIA, April 27—(AP)—A warning against centralizing power in the federal government was voiced by United States Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, speaking on "present day problems in the senate" at the annual dinner of Philadelphia credit men today.

He warned against the creation of two more federal bureaus. He cited the efforts of a number of school teachers throughout the country for a large federal subsidy and the creation of a cabinet position of secretary of education.

Putting everything on the federal government and evading local responsibility and spending was something [illegible] he said today at the price [illegible] citizens dearly he declared:

"I don't believe in any more departments or bureaus," said the senator. "It is not safe in a popular government to give anything more to do to the central government. Insist on exercising power in your own locality in order that you may be citizens and not subjects. If, as a citizen, you don't exercise responsibility, your ability as a [illegible] will deteriorate."

DEAF MAY "HEAR" BY FINGER TELEPHONE

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—Teaching the deaf to "hear" through their fingers by the use of a specially constructed telephone receiver was described today to the National Academy of Science in session here by Dr. Robert Gault, professor of psychology at Northwestern university who predicted it would result in the development of a new art of music for the deaf.

The apparatus used, he said, is a superior phone transmitter, an amplifier which magnifies sound vibrations 100 times, and a receiver held in the hand with the finger-tips on the diaphragm.

Soundless sound waves that kill fish were described by Dr. R. W. Wood of Johns Hopkins university. The waves have a frequency of 100,000 to 4,000,000 a second and are produced by an electrical device. Directed against water, they heated the surface, 9 degrees in one minute, killing small fish and worms in less than that time.

FRENCH AND SPANISH IN CONFERENCE WITH RIFFS

OUJDA, Morocco, April 27.—(AP)—The first day of official negotiations seeking to bring peace to Morocco ended tonight with the French and Spanish delegates determined to push the conference to a speedy conclusion.

A communique issued tonight said the Franco-Spanish delegates, in the course of a two hour discussion with the Riffians, had studied measures assuring maintenance of security and observance of international treaties.

French officials hope to hold two daily sessions with the Riffians to expedite the negotiations. To save time General Simon, the French chief delegates, is presenting the viewpoint of both France and Spain.

The session today was interrupted only once in order that Si Mohammed Azerkane, the Riffian "foreign minister" might deliberate with the other Riffian delegates on a reply to General Simon.

The conference will be resumed tomorrow.

FAILED TO LOCATE THE SUB S-51 OFF BLOCK ISLAND

NEW LONDON, April 27.—(AP)—Following an all day search for the submarine S-51, rammed and sunk last September off Block Island with the loss of 33 men, reports of the finding of several pieces of hose, used in previous operations reached the base here tonight. This discovery led the salvaging to believe that the sunken vessel, which could not be located when operations were started this morning, was not far from the position at which they were now working.

The salvaging fleet discovered this morning at the gas buoy used to mark the grave of the S-51 had drifted from its location and it was necessary to set the entire fleet at work trawling for the sunken vessel. The gas buoy was later found and a short time after a marker buoy located which was believed to have been moored near the spot where the submersible lies.

REPORT OF SALES OF NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT STORES

BOSTON, April 27.—According to reports received by the Federal Reserve bank of Boston, the volume of sales of New England department stores during the first quarter of 1926 was the largest on record for the first quarter of any year. This condition is attributable to the exceptionally large volume of sales during January, since the sales during February and March were low, due chiefly to the snowstorms during February and the cold weather which lasted through the entire Easter season. Since weather conditions were unfavorable until late in April, the weekly sales of the Boston department stores showed little if any improvement during the first three weeks of that month.

DANIELSON

HOPE FOR LANDING FIELD IN DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, April 27—Press despatches say that it has been decided to establish the Boston-New York aerial mail service on May 15—two weeks from Saturday. This is the air route that is over Danielson and the one about which there has been considerable talk as to its having an emergency landing place on the borough farm. It is said that there are few suitable places for such landing fields between Boston and Danielson, a fact that makes it seem likely a field eventually will be developed here.

There is at least a promise of warmer weather in the fact that the Danielson Firemen's association has made a deal for the appearance here a few weeks hence of a carnival company. For several years the department or companies thereof have sponsored such outdoor attractions as a means of helping along the social part of their activities throughout the year. No date has yet been set for the event.

All the native chestnut trees being dead, where are the wire service companies getting their supply of chestnut poles from? This question was asked the manager of a local company that uses many such poles. His answer was that we continue to get the poles—that men who sell such poles keep bringing them in from one quarter or another. These poles are not guarded against deterioration by treating them chemically, so it likely will be years, it is said, before substitutes for chestnut poles will be urgently needed in this territory. And perhaps by that time wire lines will be underground.

Insofar as its industrial and business life is concerned, Danielson was practically for daylight saving time. By Tuesday, some changes from standard time having been made that day. Not in years has there been such a rushing in this borough all through Killingly and the adjoining industrial towns as is now in force until September 25.

Monday of next week is the time set for arguing Mandzig Kammillian before the town court to answer to a charge that he is responsible for the death of Peter Charron, whom Kammillian is charged to have beaten with a club at the Kammillian farm in the Attawaugan section of this town the early part of this month. Kammillian is behind the bars in Brooklyn in default of bail.

At St. James' church Tuesday morning Rev. James McGarrity, M. S., was celebrant of a high mass of requiem at the obsequies of Sidney Brown, who died in Danielson Saturday night. Burial was in St. James' cemetery. The bearers were Charles Brown, Joseph Weaver, Lucien Weaver, George Kent, Thomas Kenny, Oscar Guilfoliant, Louis E. Desjardin was in charge of the arrangements.

At St. John's church in Plainfield Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock relatives and many friends attended the funeral services for Mrs. Amelia Jarvais, Rev. Henry J. DesSureault of Occum being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Jewett City, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. P. J. Glassy of Plainfield. The bearers were George Gosselin, William LaBlanc, Arthur Jarvais, Wilfred Lamontte, and E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

From her home in Killingly Center the funeral of Mrs. Ann Kelley was held Tuesday morning with a high mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church in Danielson at 10 o'clock. The bearers were Patrick Riley, James Corcoran, Leon Ryan, Andrew Higgins, Frederick Gardner and Harvey Baker. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

A feature of today's activities in Danielson will be the presence here of members of the Federated clubs of Windham county under the auspices of the Reading Woman's clubs. Mrs. G. [illegible] president of the Connecticut Federation of Women's clubs, will be among the guests. Gathering in the [illegible] congregational church, the day will open at 10 o'clock daylight saving time, with an informal reception. The day's program provides for an interesting list of speakers, speaking [illegible] and the transaction of business. Taste is to be a luncheon period.

It [illegible] passed by the Senate and [illegible] now proceeding to [illegible] conference. [illegible] expect cancellation. One of [illegible] the big obstacles in the previous negotiations has now been removed through the elimination of the clause that would have required France's reparations payments. Ambassador Herenger puts that in the discard and differences now seem to center upon the payments and the amounts that will be paid during the first years.

Such progress as has been made is, however, favorable and gives promise of a successful outcome even though it may not come in time for congress to act upon it at this session. [illegible] drawing of the teeth in the railroad labor board, on which there is public [illegible] has been made [illegible] labor board, and the belief prevails that the public interest in the matter of strikes deserves to be safeguarded. As for the [illegible] may be [illegible] with but one step to [illegible] think how ineffective the railway labor board, on which there is public representation, has been made [illegible] drawing of the teeth in [illegible] labor board, and the belief prevails that the public interest in the matter of strikes deserves to be safeguarded. As for [illegible] may be [illegible] with but one step to [illegible]

J. Whether it is [illegible] that the proposed law will meet the situation much better is something [illegible] apparent. [illegible] If no action [illegible] taken upon the measure at [illegible] upon the responsibility will [illegible] must rest upon the senate which [illegible] peacefully resting.

DISGRACEFUL MOB ACTION

[illegible] dispatches [illegible] the town of Carteret, N. J., where one man was murdered, another seriously stabbed, a church deliberately burned and the colored population driven from the town. It was a race demonstration in the end with the mob dispersing [illegible] over [illegible] that [illegible] was natural but it was an individual affair to all appearances. The man who committed the crime deserved to pay the full penalty for it [illegible]

[illegible] to have acted in behalf of that organization. The whole demonstration was in every way characteristic of a southern mob. Instead of proceeding to bring about the full punishment of the murderer in the manner provided by law the mob sought to take the matter into its own hands. It was as unpardonable and irresponsible as the [illegible] who wielded the knife. It [illegible] display any better balance wheel at the critical time than did the black man with a dagger.

BRAKE INSPECTION

Those who are contemplating driving into the state of Rhode Island [illegible] the announcement to the effect that the state police of the state to the east have started a campaign against defective brakes, and that in their determination to secure respect concerning this part of the equipment they will stop cars and insist upon a demonstration.

Some drivers pay little or no attention to brakes. They may be good, bad or somewhere between and all goes well until some emergency arises where the brakes are seriously needed. It is just such conditions that lead to serious accidents and it is proper action that is taken by the Rhode Island authorities to bring about greater respect for the requirements.

By insisting upon a test, brake conditions are certain to be disclosed quite the same as it can be ascertained whether legal lenses are being used by taking a look at them and whether lights are correctly focused by taking a squint at the different cars as they come along at night, and it is preferable that dangerous conditions should be discovered in that manner, warning received and orders issued to have repairs made within a certain time, than to go on without being checked up until it is found out through some bad accident that the brakes were bad and the accident might not have happened had they been given needed attention.

Those with good brakes have nothing to fear from an inspection by the state or any other police. Those who are complying with the law in other respects are likewise above worry about such steps as may be taken to bring the careless and heedless up to scratch.

Whether you are contemplating a trip into Rhode Island or not it is an excellent idea to see that your brakes and other equipment are what they should be, but in case of a trip east it will be well to be prepared for what can be expected from the Rhode Island inspectors.

DEBT AGREEMENTS

Ratification of the Italian debt funding agreement apparently removes the obstacle to similar action relative to the Belgian debt. That it would be approved was not doubted but it was being held up until the Italian debt had been disposed of.

Now interest centers upon the negotiations that are underway between France and this country. Such proposals as have been disclosed indicate that progress is being made, that Ambassador Herenger is using different methods than did Caillaux when he expressed confidence that he would have the whole thing settled in a few days only to result in a complete failure.

There are healthy indications that France desires to get the debt problem settled. It recognizes the fact that it is certain for the benefit of internal conditions that even the negotiations are having a good effect upon the franc and that there is no reason to expect cancellation. One of the big obstacles in the previous negotiations has now been removed through the elimination of the clause that would have required France's reparations payments should Germany fail in its reparations payments. Ambassador Herenger puts that in the discard and differences now seem to center upon the payments and the amounts that will be paid during the first years.

Such progress as has been made is, however, favorable and gives promise of a successful outcome even though it may not come in time for congress to act upon it at this session. [illegible] drawing of the teeth in the railroad labor board, on which there is public representation, has been made [illegible] drawing of the teeth in [illegible]

OUTLAWING WAR

[illegible] and Lee Wallace [illegible] and Lee Wallace [illegible] introduced in the senate a bill which would outlaw war. It isn't any halfway measure but proposes an amendment to the Constitution that would forbid any preparation ever and would force us to trust to the mercies of other countries and our good judgment in keeping out of trouble or away from aggressive action by others.

According to the bill the provisions are: "War for any purpose shall be illegal and neither the United States nor any state, territory, association or person subject to its jurisdiction shall prepare for, declare, engage in or carry on war or other armed conflict, expedition, invasion or undertaking within or without the United States, nor shall any funds be raised, appropriated or expended for such purposes. All provisions of the Constitution and all the articles in addition thereto and amendments thereof, that are in conflict with or inconsistent with this article are hereby repealed null and void and of no effect. The congress shall have power to enact appropriate legislation to give effect to this article."

This of course would mean that such a proposition would have to be submitted to the states for ratification [illegible] should [illegible] the view that such action was advisable.

[illegible] sweeping sentiment throughout the country for peace within and without the country, but it is seriously doubted if the country is ready to take [illegible] such a step as that proposed. [illegible] are ready to [illegible] such a movement. It may come in time but there's no prospect that it will come immediately.

MODERN METHODS

When George Raymond first came to Chicago the place and everything in it was merely a delightfully brilliant blur that fascinated and bewildered, including girls.

George had been brought up by a thoroughly admirable but narrowly set mother, who was always sure she was right and went ahead on that principle, and two sisters with a genius for copying and none for originality. They copied after their mother, and so George had attained the age of 22 with no familiarity whatever with powder puffs, rouge, cold cream and lipsticks, his mother holding those modern trappings as anathema.

But when Irene had dawned upon him a few months after he had come to Chicago she dawned so blindingly that he had not had time to be backward—she swept him along unthinkingly, ardently, yet he had actually been struck cold up and down his spine the first time he had taken her to the movies and she calmly reddened her lips and applied powder while the news reel was showing. He had watched her horrified, so close to the operation that he could sniff the powder, and had sneezed.

"Catching cold, boy friend?" she had inquired, glancing at him sideways, while she plied her tiny powder puff across her altogether cunning nose. Her smile completed his rout—somehow if she had been embarrassed he could have borne it better. Apparently she did not care in the least that he should know that her roseleaf skin and deeper rose lips were artificial.

Back in his mind always was the desperate complication of Irene as viewed by his folks—for right along George had known that Irene was the girl for him and that she liked him. He intended to make her like big, better. She was so bright, so sweet, so sensible beneath that flapperish veneer, but he groaned at the task of convincing his mother of this. Irene with her powder puffs and rouge boxes, lipsticks, cold cream and French perfumes, descending on the austere dressing tables of his sisters with their prim wooden-backed brushes and three-piece toilet sets! It couldn't be done and yet he knew that it was going to be. Even worse, they were going back to the downstate town to live, for George had just received a promising offer from the sash- and-blind factory back there, which had kept track of his progress in business in Chicago.

"It'll be great!" Irene had agreed happily when he told her. "Vine-clad cottages and everything! Pink gingham dresses and a literary club studying Tennyson! Oh, George, I can't wait to get there!"

He was so grateful to her for not acting as though sentenced to banishment from all that courted and so sure of the uncomprehending coldness of her reception from his family in spite of his happiness. Poor little Irene, so unsuspecting, so friendly.

"Do you think they'll like me?" she asked for the hundredth time as the train sped toward their future home. They had been quietly married that morning at the church, with no guests, and their new wardrobe bought with the daze of the proceeding. Irene was repairing her complexion as she spoke. George opened his lips, thought better of it and crushed her to him, rather fiercely. "They'd better!" he growled and then he followed it up with some strenuous "Two words!" he told himself mutely. To have things [illegible] when they so easily might have gone [illegible] tragedy, seemed [illegible]

He set his jaw as he proceeded Irene from the train with their bags. She had done her best with her vanity case and tripped along confidently. And she did look mighty pretty! He stood looking around on the platform as the train pulled out and stared unseeingly at two girls who rushed upon him. They giggled!

"Good gracious, George!" gasped Sister Sarah's voice, echoed by sister Mary's. "I'll bet you don't know us! Look us over. Mother wouldn't speak to us for a week when we began using the stuff, but she's resigned now—you see, when Hugh said—yes, I'm going around with Hugh Lennox a lot now—when he said why didn't I fix up like the other girls, why I did—and then Mary did and we're crazy about the result—are you mad at us?"

"You look absolutely grand!" gasped George Raymond in a gorgeous relief, relaxing for the first time into a blissfully happy bridegroomish state. "Girls! This is my wife!"—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

William Pengelly, the Sailor, a Great Scholar

With hands smeared with tar and calloused by constant handling of ropes, and with a face tanned by long exposure to wind and sun, young William Pengelly stood on the deck of a schooner and looked at the white cliffs of England; with a face that reflected thought and study, William Pengelly, Fellow of the Royal Society, one of the most learned men in England, stood before an audience of scholars and told the results of his investigations.

The ignorant, common sailor, with scarcely a penny to his name, and the distinguished scientist, the idol of the empire, were one and the same person, with only the difference of a few years between.

"Bill is a queer boy," his father, the sea captain, said. "He's always picking up odd stones and looking at them as if he saw something in them. I can't make the lad out. I take observations, but never a sailor do I see in them—and he's a sailor, too! He's a rum 'un, Bill is."

"Bill likes books better nor ropes," the mate answered. I never was a hand at a book. Give me a boat, I says."

At 16 William Pengelly left the rough and dirty little boats with its contrasting cargoes and settled down ashore, much to the disgust of his father, the old sailor. On shore the youth continued to pick up odd stones and to look at them. He made a collection of them that grew and grew until his landlady complained, "He's fillin' the house with stuns!" At the same time the young man studied all the books he could lay hands on, mastered difficult mathematics and tried to find some one who could tell him about the odd stones. As he grew older he learned more and more about science, and gradually picked up the rudiments of geology. He interested other studious young men in the finding of queer stones, and soon he had a complete collection of the fossils and rocks of his section of England.

Patiently he examined all that he found, wrote down his observations, and found that he was slowly translating the ancient history of the island of Britain, the history written in the rocks by the finger of Time, the geologic story of the earth. His work the societies he established, and the reports that he prepared attracted attention. Here was a very Christopher Columbus, an explorer of new knowledge. When he was 51 he was made a member of the Royal Society, the greatest scientific honor. He went on with his work, an enthusiastic investigator, unearthed the remains of human beings who had lived millions of years earlier, reconstructed the history of humankind, and added immensely to the knowledge of geology. He lived until 1894, when he was 82 years old, but to the very last he had the inquiring mind, and he was still studying "the queer stones" that had interested him as a boy. His great collection of fossils is now carefully preserved. The curiosity of a common sailor had made him one of the world's most learned men.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Two Robinsons—Extremes Met.

Mr. Editor: It is intended that the title to this letter shall not only attract the attention of your readers, but emphasize the gap that exists between the reasoning of Mrs. Marinda C. Robinson and that of Judge Lucius F. Robinson as shown in her letter of Tuesday's Bulletin and in his valedictory, as president of the bar association.

One cannot read Mrs. Robinson's letter without admiration for the clearness and cogency of argument and thankfulness for the amendment of our constitution that has placed woman, yes, women "with feminine passion," side by side with men possessless of passions that make for any higher altitude or attitude in good citizenship.

It was fortunate for our country that at its conception of liberty and independence, it possessed lawgivers and statesmen of a superior sort and type. Men who, when they had drafted the best instrument ever given to the world for government purposes, conceived that future contingencies would make additions necessary and there and then formulated wise methods by which amendments could be constitutionally made. And, that when these are so made their effect is equally binding with the original part.

This seems to be a fact that many of our citizens have not yet learned and are opposed to learning even when shown. Mr. Robinson says in his speech, "The encroachment of the central government upon the state's internal affairs is rapidly impairing the integrity of state governments."

Although this is intended to sound as a classic, it shows that the speaker gravely misunderstands the genious of our government.

This country is not a bunch of "free states," holding charters from an imperial head.

This is the best, that, at its best, a limited monarchy can offer. But ours is a government, only constitutionally limited; with all rights defined by a writing and interpreted by a supreme court; and when this interpreted no infringement [illegible] or encroachment can take place. And when the ballot box and the supreme court have decided in agreement, the discussion is ended.

The citizen's duty, by his oath was fixed beforehand, which is legal obedience. Anything short of this is rebellion, which being bad it cannot, is still worse if open and pronounced.

We need this kind of teaching today lest we become a laughing-stock to the world, rather than what we have been and should be, an object lesson in the high observance of the most perfect principles of government that the world has been called to take notice of and imitate.

In approving Mrs. Robinson's excellent sentences on the latest amendment to the constitution and its enforcement, some few ecclesiastic teachers, who should be the foremost guides in morals, have endeavored to make themselves more conspicuous by throwing cold water on the movement. This is, "giving aid and comfort to the enemy," and to such we recommend the reading and study of their Constitution, which is the Bible. This will furnish them with religious ethics in regard to the use of intoxicants of which they are yet apparently unaware.

JOHN TROLAND.

Norwich, April 27, 1926.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

From a private in the ranks to one of the highest posts in the military service is the climb accomplished by Brig. Gen. Harry F. Rothers, who has been appointed assistant quartermaster general of the U. S. army. He enlisted in the service in 1893 and three years later was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry. In 1915 he was transferred to the quartermaster corps and has served in the corps ever since, being promoted through the various grades to brigade rank. He was cited for gallantry in action at San Juan in 1898, and for gallantry in action against the Boxers in China in 1900, and was awarded the distinguished service medal for meritorious service as chief quartermaster of the base section in England during the World war. In addition, Gen. Rothers saw active service in the Philippines and in Mexican campaigns.

Stories That Recall Others

They All Smiled.

The human propensity to smile under the influence of certain circumstances recently caused confusion when a group photograph was being taken. The crowd was posed and the photographer had just let the bird fly for a panoramic picture. At this juncture a little boy, seeing his father in the crowd, waved his hand at the group and cried: "Smile, daddy, smile."

Half of the crowd already photographed showed in the film as sober faced and the faces in the other half of the picture were wreathed in smiles. The picture had to be taken over.

In the Wrong Pew

He belonged to several lodges and the hall where the lodges met Friday night was also used by a lodge of which he was not a member. Without checking up on his Friday nights he decided to attend the lodge meeting, went to the hall, absent mindedly walked past two guards and to the altar in the center of the lodge room, where he saluted the flag. He was about to give the counter sign when he noticed an unfamiliar figure in the presiding officer's chair.

Then like a flash it dawned upon him. It was the wrong Friday night. Hastily stating that he "guessed he was in the wrong pew," he saluted the officer and hurried out, after which the two guards received a reprimand that was right to the point.

A good blush is often more effective than a bad act.

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING HAD ITS BEGINNING YEARS AGO

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—English advocates of simplified spelling who are at the present time petitioning parliament, have found their cause an ancient one.

About 300 years ago, the then Rector of Rotherhithe, Thomas Gregorie [illegible] ted a system of [illegible] has published works [illegible] such as "question," "true," "red," and "believe" were among those he invented. Advocates of phonetic spelling, however, claim Milton as a [illegible] authority because the original [illegible] "Paradise Lost" contains words like "eev'n," "eeve," "limms" and "dred."

The Famous Model "C" Glenwood

"The kind your mother used to bake with"

Glenwood ranges have made cooking easy for two generations of housewives who have made New England baking famous.

"It's a Glenwood" that's all the guarantee you need

THE one word "Glenwood" on the oven door of any range you may buy is a guarantee in itself. You don't need any further assurance of its worth. One of the oldest range manufacturers in New England stands back of that name to see that the range gives you the kind of service you have the right to expect. You can take that for granted, always.

The "C" model coal range shown here is just the right size for the average family. Its big, square oven bakes food exactly right—top, bottom and all through. It has six covers in the cooking top and is finished in either black and nickel or in pearl gray porcelain enamel that you can wipe clean in a jiffy with a damp cloth. Come in and see our new Glenwoods.

Headaches

Come from Constipation

Most headaches are due to poisons formed in the waste matter and absorbed by the blood. Slowly but surely these poisons undermine your health. Get rid of constipation and your headaches will disappear.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

OBITUARY

William Henry Musgrave.

The death of William Henry Musgrave, 84, of Old Mystic, occurred on Monday at his home, following an illness of one week. He suffered a shock a week ago.

Mr. Musgrave was born in Norwich June 29, 1841, the son of Thomas Musgrave and Jane Wormald. At the age of 13 years he entered the employ of the Mystic Woolen company at Mystic and remained in the service of that firm for 70 consecutive years. Owing to slight infirmities attending old age, he gave up his work about a year ago. He was married in Mystic 52 years ago and in November, 1924, Mr. and Mrs. Musgrave celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. George A. Swain, of Old Mystic, two grandsons, William Holmes of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Clifford Holmes of Old Mystic, and three great-grandchildren.

FINDING BY CORONER EXONERATES E. J. RAVENELLE

NEW HAVEN, April 27—(AP)—Coroner Eli Mix in a finding handed down today in the case of the death of Joseph Grenier, 30, of Norwich, who was killed in an automobile accident on April 18, holds that the driver of the car, Exeverio J. Ravenelle of Norwich, was not criminally responsible for the death.

Grenier was one of four passengers in the machine, which was traveling from this city for Norwich on the Middletown turnpike. The accident was said to have occurred when Ravenelle saw one machine parked at the side of the road and another coming toward him. At this spot there is an upgrade and a curve and the side of the road was lined with small piles of sand. In trying to avoid colliding with the on-coming car, Ravenelle went off the road and the rear wheels skidded in the sand, causing him to lose control of his machine. The rear right side brushed into a telegraph pole and resulted in the death of Grenier who was sitting on the right in the rear seat.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Frederick Sewall Camp

With a very large attendance of relatives and friends, the funeral of Mrs. Frederick Sewall Camp was held from her home, No. 280 Broadway Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. There was a wealth of very beautiful floral tributes. The service was conducted by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, and burial took place in Yantic cemetery.

The honorary bearers were Oliver L. Johnson, Frederick T. Sayles, Calvin Tribble, and Charles H. Davis and the active bearers were Frederick C. Camp, Raymond G. Camp of Norwich and William B. Chappell and Robert Chappell of New London, grandsons. The Henry Allen & Son company had charge of the funeral arrangements.

William Frederick Rodman

Funeral services for William Frederick Rodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Rodman, were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock (S. T.) at the home of his parents in North Franklin. The services were conducted by Rev. Millicent Wilson of Lebanon and there were many beautiful floral tributes.

Burial was in the family lot in Pautipaug cemetery, Franklin, where the committal service was read by Rev. Mrs. Wilson. The bearers, classmates of the deceased at Windham high school, were Arnold Manning, Herbert Ward, Nelson Robinson, Harold Healy, William Gurnick and William Gelsoack.

Included in very large attendance of relatives and friends from Glastonbury, New Haven, East Hampton, Norwich, Willimantic, South Windham, Baltic, Providence, West Bridgewater and Somerset, Mass., was a delegation of classmates from Windham high school. George G. Grant of Taftville was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

BLOWER STARTS FIRE IN UPHOLSTERY FACTORY

The upholstery manufacturing plant of Charles and David Gordon in the old G. B. Rogers building basement, Thames street, was threatened with destruction by fire late Tuesday afternoon, when flames broke out in a blower at the plant. An alarm from 14, Thames square, at 4:14 o'clock called out the fire department, and a prompt response by the firemen saved the plant. The ever-present firemen, the sprinkler system, kept the flames in check until the department had a chance to run three lines of water hose and a chemical line into the building. The flames were quickly squelched and the recall was sounded about 10 minutes after the box had been pulled. Two tons of material were damaged by fire and water.

The concern manufactures furniture and automobile upholstery and uses salvaged cotton in the process. This material is blown through a blower in the basement to machines on the upper floor. It is thought that some metallic substance in the raw material got into the blower and that friction caused a spark setting fire to the highly inflammable cotton. Some of the machinery in the plant was slightly damaged by fire and water. The burning material was pulled out of the blower and thrown into the yard so that there would be no further danger of fire in the plant.

SEDAN STOLEN FROM STREET NEAR THEATRE

Local and state police authorities all over the state were on the watch Tuesday night for the seven-passenger Cadillac sedan of William H. Allen, president of the Uncas National bank, which was stolen from Church street between 7:30 and 9:30 while Mr. Allen and his son were attending the theatre. The car has registration 821.

Mr. Allen and his son reported the loss to Captain Thomas Murphy of police headquarters as soon as they discovered it and Captain Murphy immediately spread the alarm far and wide by telephone, besides sending out Officer P. Murphy in the motor patrol wagon to make a search about the city streets.

Up to an early hour this (Wednesday) morning no trace of the sedan had been found.

UNDER ARREST ON FRAUD CHECK CHARGE

Thomas Reeve, 42, arrested here Tuesday by Officer Albert Lamphere on a warrant charging the issue of a fraudulent check remained held at police headquarters over night. He communicated after his arrest with his daughter in Westerly. The young woman and her father were recently here giving demonstrations in a theatre of a touch system invented by Mr. Reeve.

The charge against Reeve is on a check for about $100 given April 7 to H. B. Tiger of this city, who made the complaint.

SOCIAL WORKERS DELEGATES TO TOUR CITY THIS MORNING

The 16th annual session of the Connecticut Conference of Social Work which has been holding forth in Norwich since Sunday will come to a close late Wednesday afternoon with the annual election of officers. The hearing of annual reports of the officers and election of new officers to serve during the coming year will comprise the major portion of the business to be transacted at the business session which is scheduled to be held at the Y. M. C. A. building from 3:30 to 4:30, standard time.

This (Wednesday) morning from 9 to 10 o'clock standard time a number of the visiting delegates will be taken on a tour of the city by four or five local automobile owners who have kindly loaned their machines for this purpose. The delegates who are to make the trip have been requested to meet in front of the Y. M. C. A. building this morning by nine o'clock.

Announcement of the city tour was made at the general session of the conference held Tuesday evening in the Elk's hall just before the meeting was formally called to order by the conference president, Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell of this city. General Secretary Ralph Barrow of Hartford stated to the 150 present that several local people had volunteered the use of their machines for the trip and that those who wished to avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing the historical points of interest in the city should report at the Y. M. C. A. building by 9-standard time. He asked how many of those in the audience would like to make the trip and nearly a score responded to the invitation. Others, who were not present at the time the invitation was extended will no doubt avail themselves of the opportunity of touring the city. Secretary John J. O'Rourke, of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, who was a visitor at the meeting, is assisting in securing additional machines for the city tour.

Pleased With Norwich Hospitality

A number of the delegates have expressed themselves as highly pleased at the hospitality shown by the people of Norwich during the conference. They are especially pleased at the general display of flags in their honor and at the welcome cars placed in the windows of local stores through the Norwich Chamber of Commerce. Several of the delegates stated that Norwich has extended as much, if not more hospitality, than any other city in which the state conferences have been held, and expressed a desire that the annual conference may be held in this city again.

The General Session

Addresses by two speakers on the general topic The Meeting Ground of Family and Health Agencies for Effective Service, featured the general session Tuesday evening in Elks hall. This was the final night session of the conference for this year. Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, president of the conference, called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock, standard time, and introduced as the chairman of the first half of the session, Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve of this city. Dr. Glidersleeve, after brief opening remarks, introduced as the first speaker, Miss Sophie C. Nelson, director of the visiting nurse service of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance company Boston.

What are some of the difficulties of the family and health agencies, asked Miss Nelson. We have similar objectives and this similarity brings us into difficulties, she said. We overlap each other and we focus on different things. The health worker has been slow to recognize that social factors have a bearing on health. Health has become a very popular thing. We are trying to teach certain health factors. Certain definite fields have arisen to which both groups have contributed service. Our difficulties keep us from being 100 per cent in efficiency. We must try and get together in some tangible way. We must first get together in spirit. We must begin to learn to think in the same terms.

We must have a right about face in our attitude towards each other. We must be tolerant. That is a very important factor in getting together.

Address by Mr. Purdy

The principal speaker of the evening was Lawson Purdy secretary of the Charity Organization society of the city of New York, who spoke on "From the Family Viewpoint."

Mr. Purdy spoke as follows:

The meeting ground of family and health agencies for effective service is the common recognition of identical ends and of the value of the service that can be rendered by each. Such health agencies as are engaged exclusively in propaganda are outside the field of this discussion. When health agencies are engaged in service to particular persons then there arises the necessity for cooperation with family agencies dealing with those same persons at the same time. Such health agencies are case working agencies to the extent to which they are dealing with particular persons for their benefit on the basis of the particular characters of those persons served.

I have had the privilege of reading the report of a committee of the American Association for Organizing Family Social Work. This committee has for some time been studying the matter of training case workers. The members of the committee have been meeting together three years. I am permitted to quote from this report and from an address by Miss Kempshall who has served as chairman. The committee strove earnestly to formulate procedures for training but finally came to the conclusion that before they could do this successfully they must come to an agreement as to the content of training.

There was substantial agreement that as to subject matter case work concerns itself with the conscious attempt to make adjustments between people and their social environment. Common mal-adjustments with which case work deals are implied in such problems as ill health, mental and physical, behavior, conduct disorders and delinquency, unfavorable personality traits, faulty industrial and economic structures, legal entanglements, inadequate education or recreation, migration difficulties, and inferior housing or living habits. There was general agreement that there are certain underlying principles common to all case work interpretation. The first of these concepts was an appreciation of people as individuals, recognizing that every individual is the result of his particular heredity and environment. To understand the individual there must be adequate knowledge of the past and the present factors in his history, in particular an understanding of the relation of the individual to himself and to his family and the relation of the family to the community.

It has been contended sometimes that the family agency was all-inclusive, but this committee came to the conclusion that the family agency has a specialized duty as well as those various agencies more particularly concerned with a single individual, whereas as a rule the family agency is concerned with a family of two or more persons.

The meeting ground of family and health agencies, then, is in a common understanding that in dealing with individuals they have a task which is based upon the same principles applicable to all human beings. They have both to deal with particular persons on the basis of those particular persons' past, present, and future. This committee in its study came to the conclusion that there were no special ethics binding on any one group of case workers and not on others, and that it was to the interest of all case workers to have a common code of ethics. The committee came to the conclusion that the time had come to recognize that the practice of case work, like the practice of law medicine, or theology, calls for post graduate training. In all case workers should have the same training up to a certain point they would speak the same language, they would be prepared one to understand the other's point of view, they would have the same common object, they would be more ready to recognize that when one agency calls in another agency doing the larger part of the work assumes the major responsibility, but still their work together is a sharing process.

As a preparation for writing this paper I procured a number of illustrations of friction between case workers in a family agency and case workers in a health agency, but for my present purpose I do not think it will advance the cause materially to be too specific about those occasions of friction. If we would avoid occasions of friction we must center our attention on our common purposes and recognize to the full the service each can render.

In the reaction against careless relief giving family agencies have sometimes failed to recognize that they have the very important power of relief giving and from time to time other agencies call on them for help because they have that power. From time to time a good deal of trouble comes from lack of a proper frankness about this. Two agencies may be conferring about the problem of a person who needs some form of financial assistance. Both the agencies may be short of money and, instead of saying so, they each contend that it is the duty of the other one to provide this form of relief. Frankness there would help the situation. This is not to say that in some cases it may be reasonably clear that this financial burden should fall on one or the other. That question should be settled on its merits so far as possible. Sometimes one has the money and the other has not, and in that case the one who has the money may pay the bill although the duty might fairly fall on the other.

If case workers have a common training for a common purpose, specialties can be added with ease. The family case worker should have a special knowledge of family relationships and family economics. To work for the family satisfactorily there must be a knowledge of how family income is gained and how family income should be spent. That may not be required by case workers dealing with single persons as do case workers for the Travelers Aid society or for a child placement society although a person who can place children successfully must know the family both from which the child came and to which the child is to go, and it may well be said that for child placing the case worker must be as fully informed concerning family problems as the case worker who deals with the family as a whole.

The medical social worker has the same purpose as other case workers, namely, the promotion of mutual satisfaction social relationships. Health, physical or mental, is no more the final job of the medical social worker than it is of any other social worker. It is a means to a common end. In this case, however, it is the means with which the medical social worker is most concerned because of her association with a medical institution. The content of medical social work is essentially the same as that in other forms of social case work. Problems presented are those of persons hampered in their social life by defects, disabilities, inadequacies and physical or mental mal-adjustments. These problems should be studied in terms of social experience past and present, not the least of which is family life. The medical social worker must have certain knowledge not ordinarily in the scope of other case workers. She must know the medical machine.

From time to time I have suggested to case workers who were admirably groomed to deal with their clients that they might to advantage use more of their skill in dealing with other social workers and those with whom they had other contacts incident to their work than they always saw fit to employ. If they have been well taught as to how they should win the confidence of a client, how they should secure from him the information needed to treat his case, they might be more successful in their dealings with cooperating agencies if they applied their skill as diligently to procuring the results they sought, the good will of cooperating agencies as they deemed it their duty to employ them when they dealt with their clients.

PECK'S CORNER COLLISION WITH NO ONE HURT

A Ford coupe, driven by George L. Rathbun of 14 Garfield avenue and a Hup touring car driven by its owner, Dr. N. G. Gray, the veterinarian, were in collision Tuesday night about 10:30 o'clock at Peck's corner but neither driver was hurt.

Dr. Gray was coming down the Canterbury turnpike into Washington street and the Rathbun car was proceeding along Washington street towards Scotland road. The doctor's machine struck the other at the right forward mudguard and both machines carried across the street till they came to a stop in the gutter, side by side. The front wheels of the coupe were in a culvert and the doctor's car was up against a tree. Both tires of the coupe were blown and one tire on the doctor's machine, while the steering gear of the Rathbun machine was badly twisted.

Police headquarters was notified and word from there was sent to Constable Lucius Fenton of Norwich Town who investigated. The drivers reached an amicable settlement as to the repairs.

The funeral of Murdock McPherson, who died at York, Pa., Saturday, was held Tuesday at 9 o'clock, standard time, at the Lucina Memorial chapel in Grove Hill cemetery, Rockville. For many years Mr. McPherson was proprietor of the Rockville hotel.

WEST TOWN ST. MEETING FAVORS NEW SCHOOL

What the president of the town school board, Walter F. Lester, called a community forum, held Tuesday night at the West Town street school house, learned what the school board is contemplating in regard to school buildings at the north end of the town and voted unanimously, on motion of former State Senator Hermon J. Gibbs of Yantic, that it favors a new school building in the fourth voting district.

An attendance of about 60 was at the meeting which was held in the upper room of the school building, in which electric lights had been installed so that the evening meeting could be held. Five members of the town school board attended the meeting, but Dr E. J. Brophy was unable to attend.

In explaining the purpose of the meeting, President Lester said that the reports of Superintendent E. J. Graham, made from time to time for the past few months, had convinced the board that they ought to bring the situation as to inadequate school buildings to the attention of the people of the district. The board was unanimous for the construction of a school building in the north end of the town. Enumeration in the Yantic section had increased so much that the two-room building there was overcrowded, was inadequate as to teaching facilities and its sanitary and hygenic conditions. The building in which the meeting was being held, he said, was also not what you want for the children of the future. The Town street school building is more worthy to survive, possibly, and it is the proposal of the school board to give up the West Town street building, but retain the Town street school and effect a new building of about 16 rooms at a probable cost, with land of $250,000. This would be located at some point as convenient as possible where the needed land could be secured.

Mr. Lester said it was the intention in calling the meeting to find out if the people in the districts affected would be solidly behind the plan.

It was developed in the course of the meeting that the school at Yantic would probably be retained for the lower grades.

Superintendent Graham Speaks.

Superintendent Graham was called upon to explain what was shown by a survey that he has made. He told the meeting that the two rooms at Yantic have 16 and 20 registered, respectively, the attendance for years has been 93 or better and it has been necessary to take away the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, sending the children to the West Town street school. Three grades in one room at Yantic are far too many.

In the West Town street school a room that should have only 20 children has more than 40 registered. There is no place for the children to put their hats and coats, or lunch boxes. Downstairs it has been necessary to partition the room and put in two teachers. Lighting conditions are all wrong, and ventilation is inadequate in all the buildings.

Proper light, heat and ventilation will give better results for the children, and it is due to the pupils of this end of the town to have equal educational facilities with the other parts of the town. The best results educationally can be obtained by having all the higher grades in one building. In the proposed new building, the pupils could get their manual training and domestic science without being sent somewhere else and an auditorium would be a great stimulus to community interest and spirit.

Residents Give Opinions

Former Senator Gibbs was the first to respond to the invitation for expressions of opinion from residents of the district. He said he felt that two buildings were needed and the Yantic school should not be abandoned. There were about 100 pupils in Yantic and they should not be required to travel out of the district. He was in accord with the plan for new buildings, he said, but he thought Yantic ought to be taken care of.

Raymond V. Congdon said that the Yantic group deserves separate consideration. Some of the pupils come a mile as it is now and would have to cross two railroad crossings if obliged to come to a new school building farther south than Yantic. It was too far and too dangerous. He thought the number was sufficiently large for eight grades in Yantic.

Superintendent Graham answered that transportation could be provided and reiterated his argument for having the older grades in the same school building.

A. J. Bailey said that the information so far was not definite enough for him to say what his opinion would be. Transportation is not taken care of now, he said, for the 15 or 20 Yantic pupils who go out of the district and he would not be satisfied with a bus transportation plan, but would approve of trolley transportation. He would oppose the total abandonment of the Yantic school and thought that the matter of taxation did not enter into this question.

Sebastian P. T. Connell said he thought everybody favored a new building and if the Yantic building is retained for the smaller children the plan proposed by the school board will be generally favored.

Edward C. McKay, James C. Macpherson, Judge T. J. Kelly and Robert McNeely, members of the school board, each spoke briefly when called upon by President Lester, and after the vote already mentioned had been passed, the meeting adjourned about 9:30 with an expression of thanks from President Lester to those who had attended the meeting and expressed their views.

ORCHESTRA, QUARTETTE AND SOPRANO GAVE PROGRAMME

DR. T. H. GALLIVAN USHER AT BISHOP'S CONSECRATION

For the consecration today (Wednesday) of Bishop-elect M. F. McAuliffe, president of St. Thomas Seminary at St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford, several eastern Connecticut priests have been chosen for special duties during the imposing ceremonies.

As chaplain to the bishop of Raleigh, N. C., Bishop Hafey, Rev. D. A. O'Brien, pastor of All Saints' church, Somers; sub-deacon, Rev. Ulderic O. Bellerose, pastor of Sacred Heart church, Tattville; cremiale bearer, Rev. Joseph E. McCarthy, pastor of All Hallows' church, Moosup, Rt. Rev. Thomas Joseph Shahan, titular bishop of Germanicopolis and rector of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., will be the preacher.

Members of Bishop McMahon assembly, fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, will act as a guard of honor and the ushers will be representative Catholic men of the city of Hartford.

One of those invited by the new bishop to act as an usher is Dr. Thomas Humphrey Gallivan, of Hartford, son of Timothy Gallivan, of West Thames street, Norwich.

At the week end also it was announced that Dr. Gallivan had given the fine new church of Our Lady of Sorrows, the LaSalette shrine, on Park avenue, Hartford, a costly ostensorium, in memory of his mother, Julia Hartnett Gallivan. The inscription is being engraved on this rich golden gift, which is for use during Benediction and which has been gratefully acknowledged by the pastor of the church, Rev Henry Galvin, M. S.

Dr. Gallivan was graduated from Norwich Free Academy in 1905 and from Yale Medical department in 1909.

TWO CHIMNEY FIRES CALL OUT DEPARTMENT

In addition to the bell alarm from box 14 Tuesday afternoon the fire department was called out twice during the day for chimney fires. The first call came in at 9:33 a. m., for a chimney fire in Young's block, Franklin square. Twelve gallons of chemical were used in extinguishing the blaze.

At 1:58 o'clock the department went out on an oral call for a chimney fire at No. 54 Shetucket street, occupied by Miss Mary Ludlow. Three gallons of chemical were used in putting out the fire.

STORRS FRATERNITY HOLDS BANQUET IN WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, April 27—The annual banquet of Pi Alpha Pi fraternity of Connecticut Agricultural college was held at the home of its president, William Tiebout, '26, of Willimantic, tonight. About 30 undergraduates, alumni, and honorary faculty members were present. Impromptu speeches given by Mr. Tiebout, who acted as toastmaster, and by Professor David E. Warner, Jr., of Storrs, honorary member of the fraternity.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

The Monday Afternoon Sewing club met with Mrs. Frederick B. Culver of Montville.

Mrs. Albert M. Van Winckel entertained the Monday Bridge club, the prize being won by Mrs. Frank S. Bunnell.

Following a fortnight's visit at the home of her brother, Oliver L. Johnson, Mrs. Henry Hatch has returned to her home in Windham.

THE HAPPY HOUSEWIFE

Four walls can make a house, but it takes a woman to make a home.

The woman who prepares nourishing and attractive meals, does her housework without grumbling, raises a family of healthy boys and girls and still finds time to be a pal to her husband and a friend to her neighbors, is accomplishing the biggest job in the world. Homes like hers—little havens of peace and love—are the bulwark of the nation.

To be a successful homemaker a woman must guard her health. When mother is not well, the home is upset. Women everywhere are learning through their own personal experiences, the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hair Dry, Brittle from Constant Waving, Curling

The constant curling and waving demanded by present styles in bobbed hair, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, and full of dandruff; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

Since girls just must curl and wave the hair to appear their prettiest, try "Danderine" to offset any bad effects. After the first application your hair will take on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appear twice as thick and abundant. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears.

ACADEMY CLASHES WITH WEAVER HIGH AT CAMPUS THIS AFTERNOON

TODAY'S LINEUPS

Tumbar, ss		rf, Ruffkess
Burke, 1b		cf, Phelps
Brewer, rf		lf, Goldberg
Mark, c		c, Orefice
Greene, p		p, Mooney

This afternoon at the Academy campus the Academy team will engage in its first game with a high school from the western part of the state when Weaver high of Hartford will be the opponents. Weaver high is one of the leading high school baseball teams in the capital city and the Academy is not expected to have a soft afternoon of it. Weaver is known as a heavy hitting team and their pitching department which includes Mooney and Montel is exceptionally strong.

Coach Brigham has given the pitching assignment to Johnny Greene who worked as an relief against Plainville a week ago. Lloyd Jarvis who pitched Saturday is being saved for game with Crosby high of Waterbury on Saturday. Mish, Greene's regular catcher will do the backstop work this afternoon. Eddie Brewer draws the outfield assignment in right as does Hamm, and Marks are on the injured list. Hamm suffered a sprained ankle while sliding to second in practice earlier in the week. Marks injured his knee in the game against Windham on Saturday. While the injury is not serious, being a bad muscle bruise, it is very painful and Coach Brigham deemed it best to keep Marks on the bench until the Crosby game.

Tuesday afternoon the Academy put in a long drill both in the field and while the stick. At the conclusion of practice which was seen by a large number of local baseball enthusiasts it was apparent that the Academy was working in smooth fashion and that their batting eyes were becoming accustomed to fast pitching. Given a fine and warm day the Academy should play one of the best games of the season and Johnny Greene, who is a warm weather pitcher, be in great form.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock (D. S. T.)

LENGLEN WILL NOT PLAY AT FOREST HILLS

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen will not compete in the United States women's tennis championships at Forest Hills in August in connection with her forthcoming trip to this country to fulfill a motion picture contract.

This was disclosed today by Charles C. Pyle, Chicago promoter, after filing a request with the United States Lawn Tennis association for sanction of exhibition matches contemplated for the French women's tennis champion.

The advisory committee of the U. S. L. T. A. was to have considered this request at its regular weekly meeting but postponed action until next week without indicating what course would be taken.

Miss Lenglen's plan to stay out of the American title tournament is not expected to meet with favor among tennis officials, who pointed out today that, inasmuch as she is coming to this country anyway, it would be looked upon as a return courtesy for her to compete here in view of the entry of Miss Wills in the French championships.

According to Pyle and his representative, William H. Pickens, who closed negotiations with Mlle. Lenglen abroad recently, the French ace plans to arrive here late in August. Her attention now is not to compete elsewhere in the national championships, postponed to start August 16, or in the proposed Franco-American women's team match here inasmuch as she expects to try conclusions abroad with Helen Wills, as well as other American stars, in the French and English championships in June and July.

"Our idea in seeking the sanction of the Tennis association for an exhibition schedule is to eliminate any question about the amateur status of Mlle. Lenglen in connection with her visit here. Her father already has received assurances from French tennis authorities that it will have their approval."

The proposed exhibition schedule for the French star has not been arranged. Invitations already have been received by Pyle from Cleveland, Chicago, Minneapolis and Los Angeles clubs desiring her to display her racquet skill.

INDIANS BEAT BROWNS IN OVERTIME GAME

ST. LOUIS, April 27.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns rallied in the ninth today for two runs to tie the score but the Cleveland Indians came back in the tenth with two more to win the game, 5 to 3. The Indians took the lead in the fourth when Summa poled a home run scoring two ahead of him. Doubles by Jacobson and Hargrave enabled the Browns to even the count in the ninth. Benge's double, together with two singles and a sacrifice constituted the Indians' winning punch. The score:

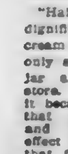
Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy Well-Groomed all Day



"Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drug-store. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

WINDHAM COUNTY "Y" TRACK MEET ON MAY 15

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 27—The track meet of the Windham county Y. M. C. A. will be held at the Brooklyn C. A. grounds on Saturday May 15, beginning at 9 a. m. standard time or (10:00) daylight saving time.

This meet is not restricted to boys who belong to a division of the Y. M. C. A. but is open to any amateur athlete of Windham county. Any that is required is that any one wishing to compete shall fill out the registration card, which will be sent on request. There will be three classes. Junior class, boys registering between 9:00 to 12:00 points; intermediate class, boys registering 9:00 to 14:00 points. The following is the basis for classification: Multiply each month of age by one and one half, multiply each inch of height by four and one half, multiply each pound of weight by three and three sums together and the total will give the number of points under the boy registers. Example: Bill Beret, age 15 years, 4 months, 154 months by one and one-half equals 276 points; five feet, five inches or sixty five inches by four and one half equals 292 points; 154 pounds multiplied by three equals 366 points or a total of 264 points. Any boy may enter the individual events which is composed of two events, to four together.

There will be four different sets of events as follows: Juniors to register at Putnam and intermediates at Brooklyn. Events for Juniors: 50 yard dash, baseball throw, standing broad jump, baseball throw, 100 yard dash, 12 pound shot put, baseball throw, 220 yard dash, 12 pound shot put, baseball throw, 440 yard run, baseball throw, pole vault, baseball throw, running broad jump, baseball throw, 880 yard run. Intermediate events: 75 yard dash, baseball throw, 12 pound shot put, baseball throw, running broad jump, baseball throw, 100 yard dash, baseball throw, 16 pound shot put, baseball throw, 220 yard dash, baseball throw, pole vault, baseball throw, 440 yard run, baseball throw, 880 yard run, baseball throw, 1 mile run. Other events: 220 yard dash, one mile run.

All track rules will be strictly adhered to and each boy is to compete in only one event. He cannot enter more than one event.

Ribbons will be awarded to the first three men in each event and a banner will be awarded to the county whose team scores the most points. This banner will be held by the county winning it for one year. Windham county produced the state champions last year and the committee wish to give it a fair trial again in defending the best he can enter this event and give us an opportunity of making a good showing at the state meet. Anyone participating in the county meet is eligible to enter the state meet at Wesleyan field in Middletown providing they place. There is no reason why this county should not come home victorious and bring with them the state shield.

KAPLAN MUST FIGHT GARCIA OR BE BARRED

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, featherweight champion, must accept Bobby Garcia for camp Upton, Md., as a substitute for Johnny Dundee for a title match at the Queensboro stadium in June is the state athletic commission announced today.

Tex Rickard, matchmaker of the Queensboro A. C., complained to the Commission that Kaplan had refused to meet Garcia in place of Dundee, who is nursing an injured leg in the battle of champions over the light heavyweight title match between Paul Berlenbach, champion, and Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, Conn., challenger. Jess McMahon, Tex Rickard, matchmaker, said he has Berlenbach's contract, while Humbert J. Fugazy, Delaney's manager, holds Delaney's contract.

The board ruled that Berlenbach must meet Delaney but it refused to take sides until Berlenbach's time expires June 15, under the six months' rule.

Permission was granted to Jess McMahon to select another opponent for Harry Greb who was signed to meet Tiger Flowers, middleweight champion, at Madison Square Garden, May 27. Flowers withdrew from the match owing to an injured eye suffered in a fight with Allentown Joe Gans at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 17.

The board reported a request from the Cleveland boxing commission for connection for a bantamweight title match between Charles (Phil) Rosenberg, champion, and Chick Suggs, New Bedford Mass., negro challenger. The commission refused to give its sanction on the ground Rosenberg has ignored a challenge from Bushey Graham and any fighter who meets him before he faces Graham will be subject to suspension.

Chick Suggs and his manager Dave Lumiansky were reinstated but Bobby Mill of Syracuse was given 30 days to recover from an illness which forced him to cancel a contract to fight at Syracuse April 23.

PRINCE HAMLET WINS FEATURE AT HAVRÉ DE GRACE

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Prince Hamlet outsprinted Redstone and Goldbeater to win the Greenwich purse at Havre de Grace today, covering the 1 1-16 miles in 1:46 3-5. The Hartford juvenile purse went to Beatrice Noyes, with A. P. Canale second and Landlord third. The time for the 4 1-2 furlongs was 54 2-5 seconds.

Golden Mac, Timmara, Punlab, Marche Militarie, Son Ami, Rock Man Carter, Display and Montferrat are scheduled to start in the $10,000 Chesapeake stakes at Havre de Grace tomorrow.

Columbus' best offering today was the Seneca Hotel handicap at five furlongs with Coral Reef the winner, Findas second and Edna third. The time was 1:01 1-5.

Gen. Haldeman from the Kenton Farms stable captured the second at Lexington easily, running the four furlongs in 47 1-5 seconds for a new track record. Two sixty was second and Reading third.

Racing at New York state opens at the Jamaica track on Long Island tomorrow with two features, the $7,500 Paumonok handicap and the $4,000 Suffolk Claiming stakes.

Saratoga will be absent when the Pimlico starters are lined up but speed is going to be displayed with Silver Fox, Nous, Mido and Magic Cadet entered. Nouh won the $5,000 Harford handicap at Havre de Grace the last two years.

Bearcats Win Opener

The Taftville Bearcats opened their season Sunday afternoon on the Ponemah mills grounds with a victory over the Farnsworth team of Central Village by a score of 6 to 5. Lemieux Phalen and Martin featured in the hitting for the Bearcats. A return game will be played on Sunday on Central Village.

Suzanne Wins Again

ROME, April 27.—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis champion, continued her winning exhibitions today by defeating Miss Ducros of England, 6-0, 6-0. Mlle Lenglen and Miss Ducros then defeated countess Carpigna and Signora Malaspina of Italy, 6-0, 6-0.

COLUMBIA PUBLICATION DISAGREES WITH PROFS

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—The Columbia Spectator, student publication, today attacks the American association of university professors for what it calls an "disillusionment and disappointment" in the report of a committee which found intercollegiate football a menace to morals and education.

"Spectator does not intend to refute the charges," says the paper. "Any college student knows just how immoral and, what is more to the point, just how prevalent they are. What we are interested in, is that the faculties are aware of just how immoral and prevalent they are.

"To add to our disillusionment they have seen fit to propose as a solution what amounts to the obliteration of intercollegiate contests, a scheme obviously too radical to succeed in the face of the present popularity of the game.

"Our real disappointment, though, lies in the fact that a group of faculty members has descended to the level of the watch and ward society. Our feeling that they have hit upon the wrong method for reform is not half so important as our feeling that they should know better. They could so easily have done the thing quietly among themselves but they will find it difficult to obtain the cooperation of a laughing undergraduate body."

TY COBB'S HITTING HELPS TIGERS BEAT WHITE SOX

DETROIT, April 27.—(AP)—The hitting of Ty Cobb, making his first start of the season, enabled Detroit to beat Chicago, 8 to 7, today, despite the ineffectiveness of both Holloway and Dauss. Cobb hit a single, a double and scoring two himself. Senational fielding by O'Rourke and Cobb broke up two White Sox rallies. Cobb taking one long fly from Harris' bat one-handed while on a dead run, and O'Rourke doing the same on a blow by Falk. The score:

FEELING STILL HIGH OVER BOXER'S DEATH

CARTERET, N. J., April 27.—(AP)—Police vigilance today again kept in check threatened outburst of race feeling that has been at the boiling point since the death of Johnnie Carroll, popular boxer, in a street fight and the burning of a negro church Sunday night.

Herbert J. Seligman, counsel for the National association for the advancement of colored people, today visited Mayor Mulvihill and requested that every possible step be taken to prevent any disturbance.

Mr. Seligman said he had requested Gov Moore to insure protection for negroes in the community.

Three photographers who said they represented New York newspapers were released after being detained at police headquarters all night. Police said they had encouraged a crowd to imitate the riot that occurred Sunday night.

A Challenge

The Taftville Town Team, recently organized under the management of Red Burelle is seeking games and would like to hear from Asswaugs Mills for a game Sunday. Write to Red Burelle, Box 12, Taftville if challenge is accepted.

RICKARD ARRIVES FROM WEST WITH CONTRACT BUT GIVES FEW DETAILS

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)— Tex Rickard came home today with Jack Dempsey's signed contract in his pocket and a dazzling Texas sombrero on his head.

The contract, he explained, binds Dempsey to fight under his promotion in defense of his heavyweight title against either Harry Wills or Gene Tunney, sometime in September "somewhere in New York or New Jersey." The hat, he said, was a gift of Amos G. Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star Telegram, a boyhood friend in whose office the articles of agreement were signed.

Rickard refused to stipulate just who would be Dempsey's opponent and furthermore he said the opponent may not be announced until two months before the fight, the final date for naming the challenger under the terms of the agreement with the heavyweight champion.

"I don't know who it will be," said Rickard, "but I'll tell you right now Dempsey would rather fight Wills than Tunney. He figures the negro will be an easier opponent.

"As soon as I'm ready with an opponent, I will go to the state athletic commission, lay out my plans and ask for official approval."

"The contract stipulates that Dempsey must fight under my direction for a percentage and that he must not engage in any bout prior to the date I select in September. Of course, a new contract will have to be signed under the laws of the state in which the fight is held."

Despite questions from all sides the promoter refused to intimate where the fight will be held or who will be the opponent. He also scoffed at reports that Tunney and Wills will meet in an elimination test before the Dempsey fight under his direction. But he admitted he knew Paddy Mullins, Wills manager, had signed a contract with another New York promoter binding Wills to fight Tunney in the event his alleged contract with Floyd Fitzsimmons for a Dempsey match is abrogated.

"Only two weeks ago I had Mullins in here trying to sign him up to fight but as soon as I got a Tunney match mentioning he was tied up with other interests which prohibited him from meeting with any other promoter.

"Mullins is always getting tied up with someone. Wills and Tunney would have fought two years ago if Mullins hadnt been tied up with someone."

Harry Wills, however, had another version of affairs in an interview today, when he said he never received any money from the Floyd Fitzsimmons' interests for a proposed match with Jack Dempsey. Rickard contended, however, that Mullins received $25,000 but that Dempsey did not receive a cent and therefore the Chicago interests abrogated their contract with Dempsey and made it possible for Rickard to step in and get the champion's signature.

In the interview, Wills is reported to have said that he was considering a break with Mullins owing to the latter's dilatory tactics in arranging matches for him. This was not taken seriously in boxing circles here, as Mullins has made plenty of money for the negro heavyweight in the past.

DERBY CANDIDATES HAVE FIRST FULL DISTANCE WORK

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27.—(AP)—Kentucky Derby candidates in training here worked the full distance, a mile and a quarter, at Churchill Downs today for the first time this season.

Rhinock, from Parkview Stable, Cincinnati, and Recollection, Kohn and Theisens b.m., owned three year olds, were sent the route they will be asked to travel May 15th. Rhinock worked with his stable companion, Royal Omar, and the clockers snapped the colts in 25 for the quarter; 50 4-5, for the half; The three quarters in 1:18 2-5, mile in 1:46 3-5 and the mile and an eighth in 1:59 2-5. Rhinock breezed the additional eighth in 2:13 2-5 Handily.

Recollection, wearing blinkers came out with the mare, Midnight Rose as pace maker. The quarter was reached in 24 1-5, half in 50 three quarters in 1:15 3-5, while in 1 42 3-5 the additional eighth in 1:56 4-5 with recollection finishing the mile and a quarter in 2:12 3-5. He was well in hand at the end. Midnight Rose showed plenty of foot and held recollection for the first mile.

FAST BOXING BOUTS AT LORRAINE COMMUNITY CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I. April 27—Jim Ross of Westerly won a technical knockout over Sailor Shatraw of the Sub Base here tonight in the third round of the scheduled six round main bout of the card put on at the Lorraine Community house. Ross punished the sailor extensively and in the third round Shatraw suffered a sprained shoulder and was forced out of the fight.

In the six round semi-final, Al Conley of New London won a technical knockout over Young Reta of Westerly in the fourth round when the referee stopped the bout to save the local boy from further punishment.

Battling Ink took a decision fight from Young Fancour in a four round preliminary. Hankie Jackson got the verdict over Kid Tramp and Jackie Ross and Young Sposato fought a fast draw, as did Young Lawrence and Kid Mack in the preliminaries.

About 600 fans were present at the bouts.

JAP BILLIARD PLAYER CONTINUES HIS WINNING

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan continued his sensational play in the second block of the National junior 18.2 balkline billiard championship match tonight and won from the titleholder, Ary Bos of Holland, 400 to 223.

Matsuyama now has a total of 800 to 413 for Bos, who won his crown in a tournament here a few weeks ago, and the match will be decided in a third block tomorrow. The challenger had a high run of 182 tonight and an average of 36 4-11 against 38 and 29 3-11 for Bos.

TRINITY MEETS AGGIES AT STORRS THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, April 27—The Connecticut Aggie baseball nine will engage in its third encounter of the season tomorrow afternoon, when Trinity is met at Storrs on Gardner Dow field. This contest will be the first of a two-game series between the nines of the two institutions.

Although Connecticut held Brown to a 10-7 score, and defeated the strong Tufts team 5-3 the Aggies are not overconfident as they view tomorrow's game with Hartford Hilltoppers. With few exceptions, the Storrs nine is composed of green material, and although the showing to date has been exceptionally good, the team may not always play the brand of ball displayed against Tufts. In that event, tomorrow's contest will be anyone's game, with neither club showing any great advantage.

Trinity's showing to date has not been impressive, though against Connecticut tomorrow the Hartford nine can be expected to play a strong game. Chris Leary of Holyoke, Mass., will umpire the contest, and he will call the game at 3:30 standard time.

Coach Dole plans to start Eddy, a sophomore, on the mound for Connecticut, with Williams on the receiving end. Makofski, first string twirler, will play center field, and his presence is expected to strength the outer garden considerably.

Dole also expects to start Nanfeldt at first base in place of Kennedy. Nanfeldt has hit well in practice, and he is expected to strengthen the team offensively.

The Aggies probable lineup, announced today, is Ahern 3b; Schofield ss; Makofski cf; Eddy p; Horne lf; Gilbert rf; Allard 2b; Williams c; Nanfeldt 1b.

The probable lineup for Trinity is Whitaker cf; Thomson c; Eberle 1b; Solms 2b; Bond 3b; Newsholme ss; Kiley lf; Ebersold rf; Mastronade cf.

GIANTS FIGHT UPHILL BATTLE TO BEAT PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—(AP)—The Giants came from behind today to beat the Phillies, 9 to 8, in a loosely pitched game, tying the score with a five run rally in the eighth inning and winning in the ninth. George Kelly drove Ross Young over the plate with the winning run. Home runs were made by Kelly Snyder and Dean.

Two Giants infielders had to leave the game because of minor injuries. Freddy Lindstrom struck himself with the handle of his bat and gave to Groh, while Jackson twisted his lame ankle. Score:

Broadway School Wins

The fast Broadway grammar school club annexed another victory to their fast growing string by defeating the Laurel Hill Cubs, 15 to 8. Burdic played a good game for the losers, while every man played good for the winners.

The lineup for the winners was: Busch, c; Datri, p; Ruffo, 2b; McFarland, 3b; Bruckner, ss; Lambert, rf; Morell, lf; H. Wolmacott, cf; Frochello, rf; Flaherty, 1b.

ACADEMY OPENS TRACK SEASON ON THURSDAY

The Academy track team will open the 1926 track and field season on Thursday of this week in a dual meet with Chapman Tech at Morgan field in New London. The Academy squad looks the best in a number of years and under the guidance of Coach Courtland Whitney should show up well against the high schools in this section of the state. There are no Charley Hoff's or Nurmi's on the squad but all are performing in good style for the high school standards.

In the 100 yard dash Armstrong is doing the distance in better than 11 seconds as is Courbois. Armstrong is also a dangerous man in the 220 yard dash and in the 220 yard hurdles. McCluggage, Waters and Kramer are reliable distance men and are expected to place in the events on Thursday. Mousley, Fellows and Armstrong are also expected to be point winners in the jumps and pole vault. Mousley has been clearing the bar in the pole vault at a creditable height while Armstrong has been clearing the bar at considerably better than five feet in the high jump.

The array of talent in the field events is very promising this year and includes some of the heavy men of the school in the shot-put and javelin throw. Coach Whitney put his charges through a strenuous afternoon on Tuesday but today the boys will only have light work to eliminate any danger of their going stale before the meet. Reports from Chapman Tech would indicate that Chapman is paying considerable attention to her track men this season.

The following Academy men are entered in the events:

100-yard dash—Armstrong, Courbois, Krohn and Grover.

220 yard dash—Armstrong, Courbois and Palmer.

Broad jump—Fellows, Mousley, Armstrong, Waters and Greene.

High jump—Fellows Mousley, Armstrong, McCluggage and Sullivan.

Pole vault—Krohn, H. Disco, Mousley.

Shot put—Gilbert, Gulomb, Schwartz, Polsky and McCluggage.

Javelin throw—Waters, McCluggage, Levine and Woods.

880 relay—to be named later.

DODGERS NOSE OUT BRAVES IN SIXTH

BOSTON, April 27—(AP)—Felix singled to center with the bases full in the seventh inning today and knocked in two runs to give Brooklyn a 6 to 5 victory over the Braves.

WESTERLY

EIGHTEEN MONTHS FOR BREAKING AND ENTERING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 27—Superior court for Washington county, Judge Antonio A. Capotosto on the bench today completed the Kingston hearing of the criminal docket. On Wednesday morning the jurors are called back there to take up the civil docket cases.

The case, State vs. Adam Bigos of Westerly, an indictment in which larceny of cloth from the Westerly Textile company is alleged, is set down to be taken up when the superior court reconvenes to Westerly, possibly next week.

State vs. Terranova was also set down for the Westerly calendar.

Francis O'Brien, indicted for the breaking and entering of the store of Franz Holliday in Westerly on Granite street, and who was released on [illegible] with Peter Hallect as surety, did not appear in court. Deputy Sheriff Fred Bull thrice called the defendant and surety to come into court or the bond would be forfeited and the default recorded.

Emil Anderson, who was arrested in Norwich on Monday morning, March 29th, by Officer Henry C. Davis, and who was subsequently brought to Westerly to answer to a larceny complaint, was then brought into court. The complaint made by Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, charged the defendant with the breaking and entering the Potter Hill Woolen company at Potter Hill, R. I., on March 28th, in the town of Westerly and the larceny of [illegible] tools, wrench, hammer, saw gage, etc., the property of Charles W. Austin, [illegible] in the sum of $100 and of a [illegible] machine and punch, the property of the Potter Hill Woolen company.

Mr. Sweetman told the court that Anderson, arrested in Norwich, attempted to dispose of the tools at the second-hand store of Nathan Welsington of Market street, Norwich, when he was taken into custody. Chief Brown, Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell and Charles W. Austin had gone to Norwich and identified the tools at the police headquarters.

Attorney Lewis told the court that having been named to look after the interests of the defendant, he had talked with Anderson, and now wished to change plea of not guilty to nolo, reserving counsels arguments after. Before sentence Judge Capotosto told the defendant that the maximum penalty for the crime with which he was charged was ten years, and if he had not changed his plea, he intended to impose a three year sentence. If he was found guilty. In view of all, he said, "sentenced to eighteen months."

The following jury was empaneled: Robert D. Lewis, dresser tender, South Kingstown; Arthur N. Peckham, South Kingstown; Columbus Pasetti, grantcutter, Westerly; John E. Waldron, mill employee, South Kingstown; Edward Donnelly, clerk, Narragansett; Joseph W. Hazerton, farmer, South Kingstown; Charles M. Tallman, railroad man, North Kingstown; Frederick A. Lane, retired, South Kingstown; Isaac L. Hoyt, chauffeur, South Kingstown; Ray L. Cutler, weaver, Richmond; Clarence A. Church, laborer, Charlestown; James P. McCall, clerk, South Kingstown; Roger W. Thomas, manager, North Kingstown; John W. Mitchell, flagman, South Kingstown; Albert E. Kenney, North Kingstown. Arthur N. Peckham was named as foreman.

Seven jurors were excused until Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Judge Capotosto asked Clerk Cassacl how many spare jurors were left and learning that there were nine, said seven attorneys had exhausted their challenges, the court could not worry.

Major C. David, police officer in Norwich, was the first witness called. He identified Anderson whom he saw in Washington's shop, when he came back after a few minutes absence. He stated that he asked him where he got the tools and was told that he purchased them in New London and said he intended to pawn them. He placed him under arrest and took the tools, the box in which they were carried, the marking machine and punch to police headquarters. Cross examined by Mr. Dunn he stated that it was three minutes after his arrival at the pawn shop that Anderson returned and the time of the arrest was on Monday, March 29th.

Nathan Welsington, second-hand dealer of Norwich testified that he knew Anderson in the court room to be the man who brought the tools into his shop and asking $8.50, for them. He told him he would give him $1.25 and Anderson replied "All right, I'll take it." The defendant told him he came from Passaic, N. J. and the toll box which he had the tools had been broken. Mr. Dunn asked Mr. Welsington if he was sure that he was not getting the tools and was told by the latter that he had no pawn license and the time of the transaction was between 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning. Anderson had told him he wanted to go to Passaic.

Charles W. Austin, of Potter Hill, Westerly, identified his tools. James B. Hart, overseer of finishing identified the marking machine and punch. Mrs. Joseph Reese identified cloth found on Anderson and cloth picked up by her [illegible] which was not manufactured there.

Westerly Police Patrolman Leroy H. Norman also identified cloth given him by Mrs. Reese and then to Chief Brown.

The private combination car Connecticut, used by officials of the New Haven road, was attached to the rear of the New England express, pulling out from Westerly station on Monday morning. Departure of the train from the station was held up when it was discovered that the car had lost a pin which was a part of the [illegible] equipment of the car. Its loss was reported by the train conductor.

Recorded at the office of the Westerly town clerk appear the following transfers:

April 24. Westerly Realty company to Sylvester Capalbo et ux lot No. 2 pla tof Charles L. Fontana et al at Pleasant View Beach.

Peter A. DeRocco to Serafino Celestino and Teresa Celestino, a certain lot or parcel of land at the rear of the Alba Inn on Canal street, formerly the land of Sanford Stillman on right of way to High street bounded on the east by lands of Thomas E. Mrs. Grouse Is True to Her Eggs

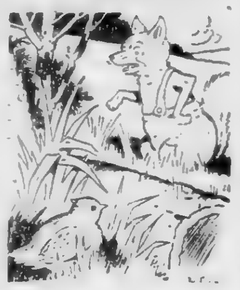
Those to duty always true
You'll find, I fear, are rather few.
—Old Mother Nature.

It may not seem that it would take very much courage just to sit on a lot of eggs, but you ask Mrs. Grouse. Yes sir, you ask Mrs. Grouse about it. Mrs. Grouse is a very quiet small person but she is a very brave small person. Often you will find that small people are braver than big people.

Now, you know the nest of Mrs. Grouse was on the ground, close to an old log, and quite hidden by young hemlock trees—tiny little trees that were just getting started. In that nest were ten eggs. Mrs. Grouse of course, had to sit on those eggs to keep them warm in order that the baby Grouse she was looking forward to might hatch out. She left those eggs only long enough to stretch her legs and to get something to eat. I am afraid that she hurried her eating somewhat for she always was most anxious to get back to those precious eggs.

Now, although those eggs were quite well hidden, there always was the chance that some one with a love for a Grouse dinner, or an egg dinner, would come along that way and discover them. Mrs. Grouse knew this, and, while she sat on those precious eggs, she watched and listened for the approach of an enemy and wondered



"I am sure he sees me," thought Mrs Grouse

what she would do if one should come that way.

It was late one afternoon that she had the chance to find out what she would do. As she sat there, looking and listening, she heard the patter of feet on dry leaves. Those feet were coming nearer. In a moment or two she discovered Old Man Coyote. Old Man Coyote was hunting, for he kept putting his nose to the ground, examining each old stump, poking his head into each clump of young trees as he came along. It looked as if he would pass very close to Mrs. Grouse. She began to shiver. What should she do? Should she try to slip off those eggs and run away? Should she take to her stout wings? She could surely escape that way. She wanted to do it. You have no idea how much she wanted to do it. But there were those precious eggs. She felt that they were a sort of trust. She alone was responsible for them. If any harm came to them because she was cowardly and had run away and left them the fault would be all hers. She must be true to her eggs.

Mrs. Grouse drew her feathers down close, so as to keep in all the scent possible. She fixed her bright eyes on Old Man Coyote and watched him come nearer and nearer, until it seemed as if he certainly must see her. You have no idea how greatly she wanted to fly. Old Man Coyote was looking right at her now and he was within jumping distance.

"I'm sure he sees me," thought Mrs. Grouse. "He can't help but see me. If I jump into the air quickly I may escape even yet. Oh, dear! What shall I do? I can't leave these precious eggs. No, sir, I can't leave those precious eggs."

Mrs. Grouse didn't move so much as a tiny feather. She didn't blink one of her bright eyes. If she had been made of wood or stone she couldn't have been any quieter. When an animal or a bird remains motionless it is said to be "freezing." You know, a frozen thing cannot move. So Mrs. Grouse "froze" on her nest. That means that she kept just as still as if she actually had been frozen. Old Man Coyote looked straight at her and didn't see her, for she knew that she could tell by his eyes. He came a couple of steps nearer and then turned to examine an old stump, to see if Whitefoot the Wood Mouse might be there; then he trotted away.

Mrs. Grouse gave a noiseless sigh. She had been true to her eggs.

SITE OF WESTPORT BATTLE MAY BE A NATIONAL PARK

KANSAS CITY, April 27 (AP)—Unrecognized by the government for more than half a century, the Battle of Westport, fought October 21-23, 1864, is in the fair way to be commemorated by the establishment of a national military park, similar to those at Gettysburg, Chickamauga and Shiloh. The park will be on the ground where the deciding phase of the battle was fought.

Termed by historians "the Gettysburg of the west," the Battle of Westport marked the end of the General Sterling Price's great invasion of Missouri, and dashed his hopes of taking Fort Leavenworth, with its rich army stores and its dominant position on the western frontier.

A bill to acquire a 110-acre tract in the southwestern part of Kansas city has passed the senate, where it was introduced by Senator Reed, and now is before the House.

The golf course of the Kansas City Country club now occupies the site of the proposed park. The pending bill would authorize the government to purchase the ground for $400,000.

General Price's Missouri invasion, with the great military center of Fort Leavenworth as its ultimate objective, started about Sept. 6, 1864. He was not stopped until the three days fighting in the vicinity of Kansas City, culminating in the final unsuccessful assault on the Northern lines at Westport. It then was a town of little more than 3,000 population, four miles south of Kansas City.

Opposing General Price were the armies of Generals Pleasanton and Curtis, whose total strength about equalled that of Price.

ADVISES LITIGANT TO AGREE IN GOLF CLUB INJUNCTION SUIT

Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court at New London suggested to counsel that they get together and try to reach some agreement in the suit for an injunction brought against Joseph Hall & Son, Inc., operators of a woolen mill at Trading Cove, by ing that the use of flashboards on the the hearing on the injunction application to next Friday and said he would settle the matter if no agreement is reached.

Judge Avery heard the evidence presented in the case, in which the golf club seeks a temporary injunction against the mill company, claiming that the use of flashboards on the dam at the cove causes an overflowing on the fourth fairway of the course.

Among the witnesses called by Attorney C. V. James, counsel for the plaintiff, was Charles Bowce Boss, president of the golf club and a director of the Norwich Golf Land company. Attorney Henry H. Pettis of Norwich is the defense counsel.

It is alleged by the plaintiff that by the use of flashboards on the dam, the woolen firm has caused the water to set back so as to overflow the northerly bank of the brook, the land, fairways and other parts of the golf club property, where it is claimed, the woolen mill owner has not and never has had any flowage rights.

The golf club has also sued the mill owner for damages of $10,000. The suit is now pending and the plaintiff claims that because of such overflowing on the golf club land, the fourth fairway cannot be used, thereby causing the whole golf course to be depreciated in value.

HOWARD GREEN'S SET WINS DANCE CONTEST

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 27—Howard W. Green's old fashioned dancing set copped the honors for Windham county against the set headed by John McConville of Manchester, and representing Hartford county, before a capacity audience at the Capitol theatre here tonight. Both teams are already the champions of their respective counties. The judges A. E. Carter of Scotland, Fred Colburn of Willington and Clarence Rathbun of Hebron found three errors against the Green set and seven against the McConville group. C. H. Humes prompted for the Green set. Judge and Mrs. Albert M. Gilman of South Coventry rendered old fashioned tunes on the violin and piano respectively. The winners were awarded prizes by Manager George A. Bartlett, the women receiving studded bar pins and the men gold stick pins with platinum settings. During the program the Misses Medora Depathy and Helen Nichols gave an exhibition of the Charleston.

POLICE RAID THREE PLACES AND CATCH ONE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 27—The home of J. Misak, at 49 Brook street was raided about eight o'clock tonight by a squad of local police and Misak was arrested for violation of the liquor law when a 10-gallon still, coil, syphon, bottle capper and two dozen quart bottles of home brew were seized. The contraband was loaded into an automobile and taken to the police headquarters. Misak furnished a bond for his release until Wednesday morning.

The raiding crew, which had made two other raids and without result, was composed of Acting Captain Frank McLean and Officers Larriviere, Arthur Burley, Laramee and Montle.

PLAN WILLIMANTIC PUBLIC PLAYGROUND

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 27—The Rotary and Exchange clubs joined forces tonight in the G. A. R. hall in the town building to listen to talks and a general discussion on the subject of community playgrounds. The meeting was presided over by President Egbert A. Case of the Exchange club. He welcomed the members of Rotary and the response was made by President James P. Bath for the Rotarians.

The speakers of the evening who supplemented their talks with stereopticon and motion pictures illustrating the park and recreational work in Hartford, were George Hollister, superintendent of parks, and James C. Dillon, superintendent of recreation. Superintendent Hollister is a brother of Professor Herman P. Hollister of Storrs who is a local Exchangite.

The program was in charge of Edwin J. Donnelly, chairman of the Exchange entertainment committee. An excellent meal was served and was followed by group and competitive singing led by Harry W. Standish, Albert B. Smith, Dr. R. Bullock Jones, the latter being at the piano. Albert O'Neill Rotarian, former stage professional, favored with two excellent violin solos, with Dr. Jones as accompanist.

Among the guests were Ralph Booth of Putnam and Henry S. Lyons of Norwich, both Rotarians, accompanied by John T. Frazier. Charles W. Prentiss of Antrim, N. H., with Postmaster Frank M. Smith.

"The women's clubs of Willimantic," said President Case of the Exchange in his introductory remarks, "are trying to give serious and valuable attention to fundamental civic problems. Many who lack of knowledge of the true facts are forced to base opinion on current conversation. There is nothing unsocial in contrary opinion but before arriving at a conclusion the real facts should be assimilated and studied. It is the purpose of this joint gathering to listen to facts and then determine whether or not it is advisable that Willimantic should enter the community playground field."

The talks given by Messrs Hollister and Dillon, assisted by the illustrations on the screen were highly informing and it was apparent that those present had been convinced of the moral, physical and financial value of proper supervised playgrounds. Both speakers recommended the use of Windham field for a playground and went into some detail as to the method of financing the project and operating the grounds to the best of advantages. Hartford was the first city in the country to institute a public park, Bushnell park having been established in 1853. The parks and playgrounds there are an unquestioned success and in growing demand. During a forum Mayor John C. Tracy stated that proper steps were being taken to secure an appropriation to make playgrounds a reality here this summer and that a committee was already at work to secure the proper locations.

SHEEP SHEARING WITH SHEEP BREEDERS' MEETING

Machines will be furnished at the farm. Contestants furnish shears.

Norwich Guests at Party

At a birthday surprise party given Daniel D. Home, of Montville, supper was served and Mr. Home received many gifts. Those present were Mrs John Killeen and children of Springfield, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Johnson of Norwich, Mr. and Mrs. John Home and son Ralph, Mr. and Mrs. Armand Plouffe and children and Mr. and Mrs Ray Woodmansee.

The hopes of three women who share in the $50,000,000 estate of the late Senator William A. Clark, of Montana, seemed shattered following the death of another William A. Clark, a resident of Butte, who signed a statement saying that he and not the late Senator Clark was the father of the women.

POETRY

That Pavement

They took a little gravel,
And took a little tar,
With various ingredients
Imported from afar;
They hammered it and rolled it,
And when they went away
They said they had a pavement
To last for many a day.

They came with picks and smote it,
To lay a water main,
And they called the workmen
To put it back again;
To lay a railway cable
They took it up once more,
And then they put it back again
Just where it was before.

They took it up for conduits,
To run the telephone,
And then they put it back again
As hard as any stone;
They tore it up for wires,
To feed the 'lectric light;
And then they put it back again
Which was no more than right.

Oh, the pavement's full of furrows,
There are patches everywhere;
You'd like to ride upon it,
But it's seldom that you dare.
It's a very handsome pavement,
A credit to the town;
They're always digging of it up
Or putting of it down.

A Town Window

Beyond my window in the night
Is but a drab inglorious street,
Yet there the frost and clean starlight
As over Warwick woods are sweet.

Under the grey drift of the town
The crocus works among the mould
As eagerly as those that crown
The Warwick spring in flame and gold.

And when the tramway down the hill
Across the cobbles moans and rings,
There is about my window-sill
The tumult of a thousand wings.

—John Drinkwater, in "Poems."

An epidemic of measles has been afflicting California grapevines, and a new remedy is put forward by L. O. Bonnet, of the California agricultural experiment station. The disease is the same as the affliction of the vine known in France as "apoplexy," though it was not known to either measles or anything in human beings. It makes dead patches in the leaves, and then kills whole shoots and ruins the fruit, working from the top of the vine downward. Mr. Bonnet has found that spraying the vines with 4 or 6 per cent sodium arsenite solution will prevent the development of the disease.

VERY LITTLE MOVING IN NEW LONDON, DESIRABLE REAL ESTATE SO SCARCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 27—It is [illegible] that really desirable real estate is hard to find in the market in this city and that there is a demand which is not satisfied. Still taxes are high. A drop in the cost of owning property would make the real estate still scarcer. Tradesmen declare that there never were fewer changes of residence at the first of April than the beginning of the current month.

STATE OFFICER SISSON SUMPED FROM MOTORCYCLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 27—State Police officer George Sisson, of Groton [illegible], took a nasty spill on Bank street, corner of State street, this afternoon. He suffered only a minor [illegible] and his motor cycle escaped damage.

Sisson left the barracks about 2:30 to go to the New Haven turnpike to perform patrol duty. Passing State street he operated his machine across the front [illegible] when a car of the Connecticut Co. came along and Sisson could get it under control was hurled to the pavement. An automobile was following closely behind the officer and but for the fact that the driver of the automobile had his machine under control, Sisson would undoubtedly seriously hurt, for the car was brought to a stop with the front wheel almost touching the fallen officer. After regaining his cycle Sisson [illegible] the incident to the police station.

The police cleaned out another dive [illegible] there yesterday and arrested [illegible] charged with [illegible] and intoxication. Judge Patrick Reardon in court and sentenced them to jail for 30 days each. Before the sentences were imposed, however, the police arrested yesterday after the submarine base was [illegible] with liquor which it is said came from the [illegible] John street. The warrant was filed today and produced the evidence and [illegible] the automobile. The police had evidence [illegible] there were fewer changes of residence at the first of April than [illegible] beginning of the current month.

There were two alleged violators of the automobile law in the court, but in each the infractions were of the trivial sort and judgment was suspended. In one case a truckman was charged with operating with defective brakes, but it was shown that he went to the man who complained of him to have his brakes put in order and was told to appear the next day. Then there was a collision and the car of the blacksmith was damaged.

James Barron was fined $5 for violation of the parking ordinance. Perhaps he would not have been penalized but for the fact that he has been several times in the court for the same offense and fails to learn from experience.

Two parking ordinance violators are to appear in the court tomorrow, they being among the dozen or more persons who are tagged every day for defying the laws of the city as to where cars may remain in the public streets.

The bearers were John Sweeney, Edward Rowley, George Cooper, Daniel Shea, Thomas Noonan and Charles Sugrue. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh this afternoon held up a pair of reckless youths. One was armed with a loaded .38 calibre revolver while the other was possessed of a toy revolver. Both are minors, being of 21 and 13 years respectively. After they had been escorted to the police station and the weapons taken from the pair, they were turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The apprehension of the boys resulted when Officer Cavanaugh observed them apparently examining fire-arms on Bank street. The officer decided that one of the guns was a most dangerous weapon, so he took charge of the boys.

Strawberries are in the market at 60 cents a quart. They are of good size and of excellent flavor.

It is believed that Riverside park will attain greater popularity during the coming summer than it has ever enjoyed, for the city contemplates making the spot more attractive than it has been in past years. The city council has moved for the establishment of an overhead pass from the grove to the water, but such will not come the present year, as the expenditure is more than the city can afford without increasing the taxes. All the indications are that the tax will be some 28 1-2 mills on th dollar of the grand list. When that is compared with the tax that prevailed during the time the late George F. Tinker was the mayor of the city the change is astonishing. But Mr. Tinker displayed the resentment that a bull is supposed to manifest at a red cloth when it was proposed to increase the tax above 16 1-2 mills. But that was some 20 years ago and things have changed since then. Whether we have attained the equivalent in conveniences is sometimes disputed, but general opinion is that we have had all that was paid for. In the Tinker days the streets were all of the dirt formation while now they are paved or macadamized. There were few electric lights to illumine the streets then and the automobile had not made its appearance as the only facility almost for getting about and for the transaction of business.

No tidings of the automobile stolen from Attorney G. Curtis Morgan when he left it parked near the Mohican hotel nearly a week ago has been obtained. It is understood that the automobile was insured against theft, fire, accidents and that Mr. Morgan carried the various sorts of insurance that are available to the owners of cars, so he will eventually recover the amount of his insurance.

Rev. Alexander C. Wollschager was tendered a farewell party last night by the members of the Italian Ladies' Aid society at Temperance hall on the eve of his departure to assume his new duties as pastor of the parish in East Portchester, Conn. Father Wollschlager has served as pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church for over 17 years.

Mrs. Otto Almetti presented him a handsome brown leather fitted traveling bag, in behalf of the members of the society saying in conclusion:

Dear Father Wollschlager with this bag goes the very best love and appreciation of the Italian Ladies' Aid society and with it a fervent prayer that your new duties in your new parish will be congenial, successful and most beneficial to our church.

Father Wollschlager responded, expressing appreciation both of the gift and the cooperation of the society, and extended a wish that the members keep up their good work.

Miss Elvira Nocera sang Rogers' The Star. She responded to the enthusiastic applause with several encores.

Every member of the society was present at the party. Refreshments were served. Hansen's Moonlight Serenaders played.

Funeral services for Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Walker, 16 Walker street, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of her parents, Rev. Sinclair Grimstead, pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Robert Anderson, of 61 Golden St., a patient at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital, was discharged today.

Louis Itzcowitz, of Squire street, who was injured when the automobile in which he was riding in Norwich Sunday night crashed against another automobile parked beside the highway of Laurel Hill avenue, was discharged at W. W. Backus hospital, Norwich, this afternoon and returned to his home here. Mr. Itzcowitz, suffered bad lacerations of the face, it being necessary to take eight stitches to close the cuts.

Emil Nelson, 30 Barrow street, and Miss Marion Roselund, of the same address, were married Saturday at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ, by Rev. J. Remeyn Danforth.

Everett H. Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Chapman of Poquonoc Bridge and Miss Jessie Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias N. Chapman, Baker's Cove, Groton, were married yesterday afternoon by Rev. E. E. Knapp, at the residence of the clergyman, Cedar Crest, West Mystic. The couple were unattended. Upon their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Chapman will make their home at Poquonoc Bridge.

In the Waterford town court yesterday afternoon John Sadusky of Norwich, was fined $5 and costs upon pleading guilty to violation of the automobile law in parking his automobile along a highway without lights being displayed. The fine however, was remitted. Sadusky was arrested Sunday night by Constable Trigham.

WM. SCHRAGOWITZ MISSING— LEFT CASH, CHECKS, CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 27—Where is William Schragowitz? That is what his family desires to know and what the police are inquiring about. The missing man is an agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. He was at the beach Monday with his automobile. There he left the machine until the police department was notified that the machine was without a claimant. The registration of the car disclosed who the owner was, or is, and then the Schragowitz family was notified. The Metropolitan company was also notified when it became known that the agent had not been seen for a couple of days. Mr. Schragowitz is not the sort of man to disappear, so his absence has occasioned some alarm. He was in the dry goods business for a considerable time and then took up soliciting insurance business.

Mr. Schragowitz left his coat in the automobile and there was cash and checks in it, so that the theory that he has gone away on business or otherwise is scouted by the police. He is a man of good appearance, age about 40, and easy in manner, a man that would make acquaintances and be agreeable to them.

HEASING ON BATH HOUSES BY COUNCIL AS COMMITTEE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 27—In the council chamber, municipal building, this afternoon at 5 o'clock City Manager William A. Holt had the council sit as a committee for the purpose of hearing the representation of Charles E. Schall of the C. E. Schall Co., Inc., that the bath houses of the Bath and Beach club encroach upon city property and by so doing create a nuisance. Mr. Schall was represented by Attorney Morris Lubenitsky, who declared that the bath houses were on city property, that the buildings were a nuisance and that the city should take over the property for its own use. Director of Law Thomas E. Troland said it was his opinion that the bath houses were located on city property and if such was the case, the city should exercise its rights and have the use of the property. Councillors James A. May and Edward L. Streeter, Jr., did not consider the existence of the bath houses a nuisance, asserting that the club members had a right to provide themselves with bathing conveniences, but they believed that the bath houses occupied property owned by the city and that the city should have the use of the land. No progress, whatever was made, for the session adjourned until next Friday evening for the purpose of allowing counsel for the Bath and Beach club, Attorney Frank L. McGuire, to be heard on the matter. Messrs. Maitrose and Johnston are the owners of the Bath and Beach club and the property is listed in the name of Lucius E. Whilton, a member of the council. Neither Mr. Whilton nor Councilor Malcolm M. Scott attended this afternoon's session.

IRELAND TO MINT OWN COINS FOR FIRST TIME IN CENTURY

DUBLIN, April 27 (AP)—Ireland is to mint her own coins for the first time in a hundred years. The law assimilating Irelands currency with that of England was passed in 1825, but the Free State parliament recently decided to establish a token silver nickel and copper coinage for amount up to 40 millings (about 10 dollars.) Eminent artists have been asked to assist the government in the designs of the new coins.

The first Irish coins were struck by the Danish Kings of Dublin in the tenth century, and in mediaeval times there were mints in Dublin, Waterford, Trim and Drogheda.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

An exceptional treat is in store for local vaudeville fans when they see the five-act Keith-Albee vaudeville bill at the Broadway starting tomorrow.

The most novel stage offering will be seen as the feature. Every child from six to 60 knows the story of Snow White and the Dwarfs. This story has stepped from the covers of a book to the stage and brought up to date. There are nine midgets in the offering that are exceedingly clever and are going to tickle you pink with their modern comedy, tunes and dances. This offering alone should be enough to tax the capacity of the theatre for the three days. The other four acts are also direct from the big time.

The photoplay features Glenn Hunter in "The Little Giant".

Lyceum Theater, New London

A play that you will discuss with praise and interest the next morning at breakfast table is the description given to John Bowie's drama of modern society Just Life, which will be the attraction at the Lyceum theater, New London, tomorrow night, and according to the verdict of the public and critics at the original production in Cincinnati last September this prophecy will be borne out. Amelia Bingham who has been identified with the best of the theaters for years heads the cast together with Marjorie Wood, Vivien Tobins, Millicent Hanley, Esther Lyons, Elaine Ivans and Mary Wall, all actresses of quality whose names are constantly found in the New York programs. Equally interesting and promising is the male contingent which John Kane, Clyde Fillmore, Pierre Gendron and James A. Boshell. Miss Bingham was specially engaged as the "guest star" for the original Cincinnati production and it was the success achieved by her coupled with the unusual praises of the play that induced the present producers to acquire the New York production rights.

This is a play portraying a chapter of life that will interest both men and women.

Strand Theatre

The Barbary Coast before the quake in San Francisco is vividly portrayed in the screen production "Camille of the Barbary Coast," an Encore picture which comes to the Strand theatre today.

The rowdy took dance halls, the tin pianos, dancing girls in their abbreviated skirts of the day, crooks, politicians and underworld denizens all figure in this picture which carries Mae Busch and Owen Moore in the featured roles. Miss Busch is at her best in this line of work. She will be remembered for a similar character portrayal in "The Unholy Three," with Lon Chaney.

"Camille" in the picture is a woman of the dance halls, while the boy, Owen Moore, son of a banker, finds himself gradually being pushed further and further into the mire. The plot deals with their redemption — the attempt of each to make good for the sake of the other.

The production is said to be one of the leading pictures of its kind of the year. The featured players are supported by a strong cast of well known cinema artists headed by Burr McIntosh, Harry T. Morey, Tammany Young and Fritzie Brunette. It is a Hugo Dierker production from a story written by Forrest Halsey.

A new comedy and Kinegrams are the short subjects.

Have you heard the ladies' orchestra? It is certainly a fine innovation with perfect novelty music for pictures.

Palace Theater

Ten well-known photoplayers are in the cast of Constance Talmadge's First National comedy, "Learning to Love".

In addition to Antonio Moreno, who is Constance's new leading man, the cast includes Wallace MacDonald, Emily Fitzroy, Johnny Harron, Ray Hallor, Edythe Chapman, Alf Goulding, Byron Munson, Edgar Norton and Percy Williams.

"Learning to Love" is a modern society comedy in which Constance shows modern girls the various ways to capture a husband. It is a First National attraction, written for Joseph M. Schenck by John Emerson and Anita Loos.

The picture is now showing at the Palace theater.

Rin Tin Tin in the Night Cry will be the feature picture attraction at the Palace for the last half of this week. Those who see the Night Cry will easily say that it is the greatest picture the famous dog star has ever made. It deals with Rin Tin Tin as a watch dog on a sheep farm and while performing his duty engages in a battle with a monstrous and mysterious bird. Of course there is a beautiful love story connected with the picture. June Marlowe and Heine Conklin appear in the cast. The five act vaudeville bill will be headed by Carl Dean and Co. in a miniature musical comedy, one of those full o' pep acts with good singing and comedy chatter. As a special feature Thursday night the management will give away a German police puppy bred at the Chase Cliff kennels. Your attendance at the Palace Thursday night may be the means of owning a Rin Tin Tin of your own.

German police dogs from the Chase Cliff kennels will be on display in the lobby the remainder of this week.

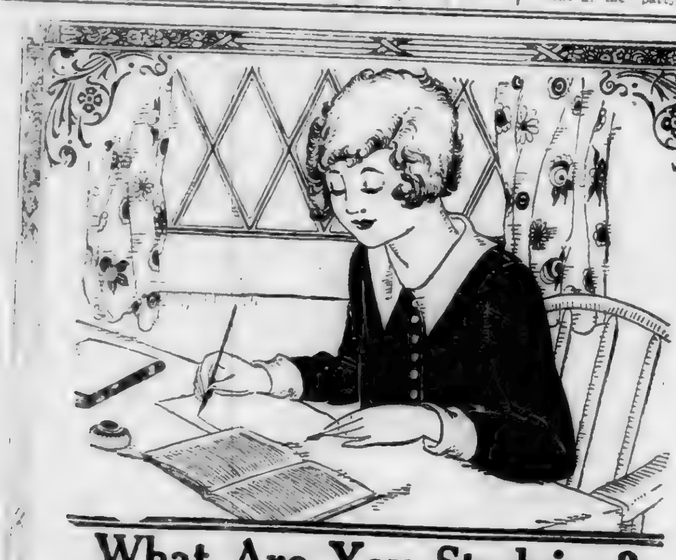
ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

'Tis said that the dyed-in-the-wool movie fan, who prides himself upon always being at least two reels ahead of the projection machine when a feature picture is being shown and can forecast every twist, punch and angle of the story, is in for a big surprise when he views Betty Compson's latest starring vehicle, Rameshackle House which comes to the Breed theater today and Thursday.

Never a dull moment is the motto of the producers of Rameshackle House, and the vivid picturization of Hulbert Footner's popular novel more than makes good the boast. It is a murder mystery, but not of the conventional type which depicts the crime in the first reel and leads the audience through a maze of confusing details until the guilt is finally fastened upon someone quite above suspicion. This is a powerful human interest picture with a mystery background; the story of a young girl who finds that the man she loves is being hunted down for the foul murder of his business partner, hides him in the forest to save him from being lynched by an overrighteous mob and then, with her back against the wall, fights single-handed the overwhelming forces of law, money, public opinion and one of the greatest villains ever portrayed on the screen.

Beautiful Betty Compson is the star of this spine-tingling tale and gives one of the best performances of her career.



What Are You Studying?

HISTORY, mathematics, literature, languages, science? In your whole curriculum, there is no lesson more important than how to guard your health. Long after your hard-won French vocabulary is forgotten, you will be putting into daily practice—if you are wise—the rules of health.

School work, with its continual studying, its sports, dances and social affairs demands a vigorous body. How discouraging it is to miss the good times. And sometimes, how unnecessary.

First of all, then, learn the lesson of health. Find out what fresh air will do, exercise, sleep and proper food. Many school girls have learned that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them to find the health they needed and has made their school days happier.

"I gave my fifteen year old daughter, Louise, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it did her a wonderful lot of good. She had been out of school for four months. I read the advertisements of the Vegetable Compound, and since she has taken it she has improved and has gone back to school again. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other mothers with girls who are not as strong as they should be."

AUCTION

Auction Notice.

By Witter Bros., auctioneers, office 42 Main street, Danielson, Conn. We will sell at Public Sale for Harry Matson, at his farm located about four miles north of Voluntown, Conn., on the road leading to Ekonk Hill and near the Wiley school house, on Saturday, May 1, at 10 o'clock a. m., the entire farming equipment of a high class nature, consisting of one horse mower, plows, harrows, cultivators, corn planter, hay rake, one horse lumber wagon, one potato digger and hiller, grind stone, two incubators of 250 and 150 egg capacity, cream separator, coal oil brooders, and many other articles. Live stock consists of 100 head of very fancy Brown and White Leghorns, 3 extra good, young family cows, and a very desirable young farm horse. A full line of clean and useful household goods will also be sold. Mr. Matson should have a large attendance at his sale as he is selling out everything for the high dollar. He bought the best when he bought, therefore he has good property to sell. The farm of 100 acres more or less with a complete set of buildings thereon is for sale or rent. Terms cash. Lunch will be served. Harry Matson, owner

MERCHAN

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.
New York.

Stocks steady; "Big Four" rises 19 points.

Bonds irregular; International Marine 6s heavily bought.

Foreign exchanges mixed; Norwegian kroner advances.

Cotton advanced; trade buying.

Sugar easy; commission house selling.

Coffee lower; liquidation.

Chicago.

Wheat barely steady; favorable crop advices.

Corn steady; light receipts

Cattle irregular.

Hogs lower; packers inactive.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(By The A. P.)—Further irregularity developed in today's stock market, with trading showing a further shrinkage in volume. Net gains and net losses were about evenly divided at the close. Banks called about $20,000,000 in loans during the day, which kept the official call money rate firm at 5 1-2 per cent., although that rate was shaded in the outside market."

The other financial news development of the day was the placing of the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation on a regular annual basis of 7 per cent, through the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 1 3-4. A regular quarterly dividend of 1 3-4 with an extra of 50 cents have been paid for over two years. Total earnings of the corporation for the first quarter of 1926 were $45,061,235, compared with $42,281,465 in the preceding quarter and $36,482,992 in the corresponding period a year ago. U. S. Steel common fluctuated between 130 1-4 and 131 1-4, closing at 131 1-2, unchanged on the day.

Trading in the general list was largely of a professional character with public participation still nominal. News developments continued generally favorable, with several splendid quarterly railroad reports making their appearance during the day. Missouri Pacific earned $1.07 a share on the common in the March quarter, against 26 cents in the corresponding period last year.

Rails were subjected to further pressure but the selling generally was well described. Two of the most important automotive trade developments and the day were the earnings reports of the Hupp Motor Car Company, showing $4.03 a share, earned on production in the first months as against $1.08 in the first quarter of 1925, and the announcement of price cuts by the Franklin Automobile Company. Hudson was driven down to 66 3-8 but rallied to 66 5-8 off 1 1-4 net. General Motors closed a point higher at 147 7-8 after fluctuating between 145 1-4 and 149. Mack Trucks showed a small fractional loss at 115 1-2 after having sold down to 114 1-4.

Heavy buying of Skelly Oil, which touched a new high for the year at 41, was based on rumors that negotiations were under way for the purchase of that company with some Standard Oil unit. Davidson Chemical moved up a point on a heavy turn over with buying based on reports of greatly increased earnings. Pool activity also was apparent in a number of other industrials and specialties, with net gains of a point or two being recorded by Colorado Fuel, Famous Players Lasky Corp., Elsewhere and several others.

Marines preferred fell nearly 1 1-2 points to 49 1-2 on the traditional "sell on the good news" which follows the announcement of the proposed sale of the White Star Line to International Mercantile Marine Company, Marconi Wireless and Company, and International Investment Company. Marketing pressure was apparent in Radio Corporation Company, Victor Talking Machine Company, Dairy Products, Famous Players Lasky Corporation, Shubert Theatres, Inc., Fleischmann and Woolworth.

Bankers attributed much of the selling to switching operations by investment buyers in some of the rails, utilities, which hitherto have been neglected. Some sharp declines were recorded by ordinarily active issues, including Penn Seaboard common and Baltimore and Ohio, both record lows for the year.

Wheat prices were mixed. Cotton advanced. Sugar was unchanged but the coffee market was easier. Coffee prices were lower to 25 points lower.

Silver was at the highest price in Japanese history at 47 7-16 cents featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly easier around $4.85 7-8 and French francs sold down a few points to around 3.33 cents. Belgian francs held relatively steady just above 3.60 cents, the senate's approval of the Belgian settlement apparently having been anticipated. A slightly higher premium for the Canadian dollar was accompanied by reports of new gold shipments to Montreal.

WEATHER
Conditions

The disturbance that was central over Minnesota Monday night has continued to move southeastward and is now centered over northeastern Indiana. It will advance eastward to the north Atlantic coast in 24 hours. It will be attended by showers in the Atlantic states after the passage of the disturbance, cooler weather will prevail in the eastern half of the country.

The temperature will rise during Thursday in the far east as the Mississippian influence.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic coast from Delaware breakwater to Eastport.

Winds

North of Cape Hatteras: Increasing northeast and east winds, probably reaching gale strength by morning; Wednesday and Thursday fresh to strong southerly winds, becoming strong southwesterly to west and northwest Wednesday afternoon or evening; showers Wednesday.

Forecast

Connecticut and southern New England: Unsettled weather, followed by clearing Wednesday; Thursday fair; cooler Wednesday; fresh southerly winds.

TAFTVILLE

[illegible] Mrs. Albert Labarre of [illegible] have been recent guests of [illegible] town.

William Wolfenden, formerly of Terryville, has taken up his residence at the Ponemah house.

The Young Peoples' society of Christian Endeavor of the Taftville [illegible] congregational church are planning to [illegible] entertainment and supper.

Taftville radio fans listened with pleasure to the playing of the Army and Navy club orchestra, Tuesday evening from station WCBR, at Norwich.

Dr. Louis I Pratte has had his office on Hunters avenue remodelled into two apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Boenig and family have vacated their apartment in the brick house on School street.

Roger Dennis has resigned his position with the carding department of the Ponemah company.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Comtois and family of South B street are moving to town.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cote and family have moved into a house on Norwich avenue.

The members of Troop 3, Boy Scouts, held a meeting Tuesday evening in the recreation rooms in the basement of the Taftville Congregational church. The troop has recently been reorganized, with Victor H. Davis as scoutmaster to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Harold E. Lindeyson.

After spending the past few days with friends in town, John Lambert has returned to his home in Providence.

Taftville anglers continue to whip the neighboring streams for trout, but no startling records have been established.

Hector Brunelle has been confined to his home by an attack of the grip.

The funeral of Gustave Tellier was held Monday morning from his late home on South Second avenue with a solemn high mass of requiem at Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. The celebrant of the mass was Rev. U. O. Bellerose, the deacon, Rev. Henri Chagnon and the subdeacon, Rev. John Malley. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends and there were many beautiful flowers. The bearers were Napoleon Plaseut, Edward Adams, Oscar Archambeault, Francis Belque, Joseph Martin and Louis Paquette. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery on the old Canterbury turnpike where Fr. Bellerose read the committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The funeral of Theresa Lippe, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Lippe was held from the home of her parents on North A street Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services at the Sacred Heart church were conducted by Rev. John Malley and burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Funeral services for Agnes Tessier, infant daughter of Arthur and Leona Carignas Tessier, were held Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the home of her parents on North Third avenue. A service at the Sacred Heart church was conducted by Rev. John Malley and burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Lawrence St. Marie, Maurice Brochu, George Couture and Roger Leclair. Undertaker George Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

TOLERANCE IS NEED IN HANDLING ENTHUSIASMS OF THE ADOLESCENT

The unwise attempt to curb the natural impulses of adolescence by repression always defeats its own end, declared Dr. Phyllis Blanchard, psychologist of the All-Philadelphia child guidance clinic, speaking Tuesday upon The Girl as a Factor in Social Development, which was one of the outstanding addresses of the day in the meetings of the state conference of social workers. Dr. Blanchard spoke at the round table conference on Mental Hygiene, which was held in the morning at the Y. M. C. A.

The enthusiasm, the energy, the open-mindedness, the experimental attitude of adolescence should be cherished and preserved to later years, she concluded. We need understanding and tolerance of age for youth and youth for age.

In part Dr. Blanchard said:

The problem of the adolescent girl is not essentially characteristic of the present century, despite implications of the popular press to that effect. Ramsay Traquair, discussing "The Modesty of Men" in a recent issue of the Atlantic Monthly calls attention to the fact that "there were evidently 'flappers' in the 12th century, too, and moralists to correct them."

The peculiar aspect of the whole affair is the naive surprise of the older generation. They look at the present situation with regard to their daughters as if they had sprung into existence with complete dissociation from the past. They fail to see that the same fundamental principles which now govern the behavior of youth have always been operative. Social innovators are always a minority group among their contemporaries, but very often they become models for the mass of youth in the following generation.

That at present our scrutiny is more searching in the case of the girl than of the boy is a result of certain general conditions. There has been no more profound change in the social relations of human beings than the new equality between the sexes. This has already affected education, politics and economics. It would be future to suppose that it could stop there. As a matter of fact, it is because there are so many signs suggesting a modification of the moral code for women that the girl of today finds herself such a significant figure, waging her own battles and with battles waged about her.

There is also another reason for our greater concern for the girl than for the boy. We have not yet sloughed off our conventional way of thinking about her sex. The concept of the "moral woman" the symbol of purity and motherhood, is still fresh in mind. The tendency to regard the girl as the potential mother of the race, thus holding her something above and beyond the individual, colors our reactions toward her adventuring and [illegible] public at the hitherto [illegible] passive.

Difficult for Both

[illegible] the situation today is a trying one [illegible] parents, both mind, more so [illegible] the girl. It would be difficult [illegible] to find the way through this transition from the old order to the new had she a wisdom and breadth of experience far beyond her years. Her difficulty is immensely complicated by the intolerance of age for youth and of youth for age, so that those who should be her guides feel helpless to reach her, and she has no confidence in their ability to understand her problems should she turn to them for advice.

It is essential that this background be clear to us if we would understand the youth of today. The psychology of adolescence is primarily unchanged, in the girl is enabled to react differently because her environment has been greatly modified. Adolescence is now, as it always has been, the age of abundant energy and enthusiasm, of optimistic daydreaming and high creative endeavor, of interest in the opposite sex and desire for thrills and excitement. But there are new means of expression for these dynamic forces within the adolescent girl. The perfection of mechanical inventions offers opportunities for excitement not available in the past. The joy-rides, the jazz parties, the flights through the air [illegible] are everyday matters to the girl, may seem too daring to parents who were unfamiliar with the automobile, the radio and the aeroplane before years of maturity. If the girl marries of marriage more flippantly and with less sentimentalism, it is because marriage and the bearing of children are now matters of biological fact instead of mysteries into which she can be initiated only by ceremonial rites. Perhaps the petting party is regarded as a casual occurrence by the present generation, but this is also an outcome of their superior information. In the past, many girls were withheld from an expression of their real feelings by the fear of motherhood, which in their ignorance they often fancied could be caused by such contact with the male as even a kiss. With all her alleged cynicism, the girl still has her daydreams but their scope is not so limited as formerly. Her dreams are no longer confined to those of marriage and child-bearing, they embrace a whole field of vocational ambitions previously denied to her sex. There is no curb for the expression of the creative urge of the girl under modern social conditions.

Conflict in the Family

It is within the family that we see the conflict between youth and age at close quarters. Here the individual members of the old guard exert their parental authority to restrain the girl from following the new patterns of adolescent conduct. If they succeed in their purpose, they may handicap the girl for life by rendering her permanently incapable of assuming independence. A part of the adolescent urge to freedom is the inevitable necessity of emancipation from the family as a preparation for a separate life and the assumption of adult responsibilities. In the old times, when the girl merely moved from the home of her father to the home of her husband, or stayed unwedded in the home of some relative, it was not imperative that she attain an independent status. In this age, when she is a competitive unit of society, she must be thoroughly self-reliant.

The unwise attempt to curb the natural impulses of adolescence through repression always defeats its own ends. Instincts and emotions which are thwarted in their normal outlets find vicarious ones which are frequently abnormal or antisocial. Some of the mental breakdowns of the adolescent period, and much of the criminal conduct of the younger generation which is featured in newspapers and popular magazines, may be traced directly to these conditions.

Great changes have been made in political and economic institutions, but the social institutions of marriage and the family are still under fire. What will be expected of woman in the future? Since this issue is confused, the elders try to find reassurance in insistence upon the old regulations, in the vain hope of thus bringing about some semblance of stability.

Girls Are Experimentalists

Meanwhile, the adolescents are creating the standards which will some day be accepted by society. Since it is largely the place of women which is undecided, the girl has the largest share in this determination. The girls of the present generation are therefore experimentalists, out of whose trial and error procedure some results will eventually emerge. They are, of course, not conscious of their social function. They are willing and eager to experiment, but for them th egoal is personal happiness—that will-o'-the-wisp which the individual has always pursued when actually serving biological and social purposes. Some of the bravest adventurers will be sacrificed to the experiments they are making, but others will move on into a settled and mature security.

The adolescent has qualities of which society is sadly in need. Never again do we have strivings toward the same high social ideals as in youth. The enthusiasm, the energy, the open-mindedness, the experimental attitude of adolescence should be cherished and preserved into later years. To some extent they are qualities which make the older generation tremble for the safety of the younger. We need understanding and tolerance of age for youth and youth for age. Could this insight be given, and the forces of adolescence [illegible] the rift between the generations, which has existed through so many centuries, would be narrowed, and perhaps eventually the two would merge imperceptibly into one another. Such a solution of the so-called adolescent problems would increase both individual happiness and social efficiency.

SUCCEEDS IN EUROPE. MRS. GARDNER RETURNING

"Mid pleasures and palaces, though we may roam, be it ever so humble, there's no place like home," writes Leila Troland Gardner, of New York, to friends in Norwich. There was special point to this, since Mrs. Gardner was then—April 11th—a guest at Hotel Royal Danieli, Venice, and had just come from the gardens of the King's palace—the tenth palace used by royalty which she had visited during her tour abroad.

She added that she envied not the royal owners, who, after all lack that freedom to come and go which is the right of every American citizen.

Mrs. Gardner was delighted with Venice, the islands, the gondolas, and the palatial hotel where she was appreciating the rest, after the strain of singing her Negro spirituals in broadcasting in Rome and Milan. It is not easy for an American singer to succeed in Italy, especially in Milan, the musical center of Europe; but she felt that she had made good, judging by the magazine and newspaper notices and she had repeated her success in Rome.

In the Eternal City she was received and blessed by the pope. Of this signal event of her travels she writes: "His Holiness was very gracious—a fine example for the world to follow in gentleness, sweetness and humility. I shall always appreciate his having granted me an audience."

She was to remain in Venice for a week, then on to Paris for two weeks, then London, Belfast, Dublin, Edinburgh, finally Glasgow, from the last-named city sailing home May 15th on S. S. Transylvania, the same steamer which carried her to Europe several months ago.

Referring very modestly to her musical triumphs Mrs. Gardner closes her interesting letter with an affectionate tribute to her birthplace, "Dear old Norwich."

LOCAL BREEDER GUEST OF FAMOUS RIN TIN TIN

Recently Sterrill M. Chase of the Chase Cliff Kennels, was the recent guest of Lee Duncan and his wonder dog Rin Tin Tin at New Haven. In room 117 of the Taft Hotel Lee Duncan, owner, director and educator of Rin Tin Tin, gave a short synopsis of the life history of the dog.

Mr. Duncan's talk was followed by an exhibition of the famous dog star in action. Many of the difficult stunts performed by Rin Tin Tin seen so often on the screen were explained and illustrated at the hotel.

Mr. Chase learned that no Rin Tin Tin puppies have ever been on the market as the famous dog has never been used for breeding.

Williams, Mrs. William J. Partridge, Mrs. Walter C. Brinkmann, Mrs. Oscar H. Main and Miss Alice L. Bennett. Bishop Brewster presided over the breakfast and there were addresses by Rev. Floyd S. Kenyon of New Haven, chairman of the department of Christian Social service, diocese of Connecticut, Miss Christine Boyiston, assistant organizing secretary New York city, Edward L. Parker, son New Yorkc ity, Edward L. Parker, son of the late Bishop Parker of New Hampshire, and secretary of the Family Welfare society of Bridgeport and others.

Clergymen present included Rev. C. C. Kennedy, rector of St. Johns church, New Haven; Rev. Gerald A. Cunningham, rector of St John's church Stamford; Rev. Sidney W. Wallis, rector of Trinity church, Portland, Ct.; Rev. Henry A. Link of Blackhall; Rev. Leonard R. Richards, rector of St. Alban's church, Danielson, Rev. John R. Jones, rector of St. Andrews' church, this city, Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ church, this city; Rev. Thomas H. M. Ockford, rector of St. James church, Puquetanuck. Others present from out of town included Miss Sophie Brown and Miss Helen Sturgess of the Diocesan branch of the Church Mission of Help, and other prominent social workers of the diocese.

A vote of thanks was given the Parish Aid committee and Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of the church, for their hospitality.

CONGRATULATES BLIND GEORGE FOR RADIO SUCCESS

A letter of congratulation from the Connecticut Institute for the Blind has been received by George Bemont (Blind George) for his success over the radio with his harmonica playing. The letter follows:

April 20, 1926.

George Bemont,
Norwich, Conn.
Dear George:

We have the Norwich Bulletin Saturday's, and note that you made a hit over the radio with your harmonica. I'll bet you'll beat anyone whom they put against you for the championship. Am glad to know you are having such a good time. Come over and see us when you get a chance.

With best wishes, I am,
Very truly yours,
A. L. CURADO, Supt
Conn. Institute for the Blind.

SETTLEMENT REACHED IN SUIT BETWEEN SISTERS

Settlement out of court was effected Tuesday morning at New London in the case of Joanna V. Sullivan against Annie J. Kennedy, her sister, in which the plaintiff claimed that the latter secured a warranty deed of her property by fraudulent representation, the property being given as worth $5,000. The case, which was started last week in the superior court and which was to have been resumed Tuesday, was settled before time to continue, by Attorneys Herbert W Rathbun and John F. Gallagher for the plaintiff and Attorneys John C. Geary and Arthur T. Keefe for the defendant.

Both the plaintiff and defendant reside in Stonington and the property in question consisted of a parcel of land with buildings in Garden street, Pawcatuck.

UNABLE TO APPEAR BECAUSE OF INJURIES

When the reckless driving case against John Miller of New London was called for trial in the city court Tuesday morning, it was continued until April 29th. The continuance was granted as the accused was unable to be in court, being confined to his home as the result of injuries received in the accident which caused his summons to court.

His machine late Sunday night crashed into the rear of a large truck parked beside the road on Laurel Hill.

Alton W. Renton, 17, of No. 40 Bentley avenue, paid $25 and costs for violation of the motor vehicle law by not having an operator's license. Samuel Isarelli of this city was presented on a charge of not having his operator's license with him when apprehended. The case was nolled on payment of $3.

EVENING OF PINOCHLE BY V. F. W. AUXILIARY

Fifteen tables were in play Monday evening at the pinochle given by the ladies' auxiliary of R. E. Hourigan post, V. F. W., in the post rooms. Those to take the prizes were the following: Ladies, first, Mrs. Herman, 7950; second, Mrs. Leirich, 7,300; consolation, Mrs. J. Burke, 5,700; gentlemen, first, J. Fallon, 7,170; second, G. Morse, 6,400; consolation, Mr. Burke, 5,940.

SUPREME COURT HEARS TWO APPEALED CASES

The supreme court of errors for the second judicial district convened in this city Tuesday. Of the cases docketed only two were argued. The docket contained three continued cases and three new cases.

Associate Justices Frank D. Haines and George E. Hinman sat on the supreme court bench in this county for the first time.

The first appeal case to be argued was that of the H. S. Craig & Co., Ltd., and others against the Uncas Paper Board company in which an appeal was taken by Downingtown Manufacturing Co., of Downingtown, Pa. The manufacturing company sought to either reclaim machinery, etc., in the paperboard company plant at Thamesville or that the paperboard company pay the balance due of $32,176.70. Attorney Arthur T. Keefe represented the Uncas Co., and Attorney E. W. Perkins the appellants.

The $35,000 damage suit of Miss Johannah Keating of New London against the City of New London was the last to be heard. The papers were taken.

Miss Keating won a verdict of $7,136.99 in the superior court and the verdict was accepted by Judge Christopher L. Avery. The city took an appeal. Miss Keating was injured on Feb. 13, 1923, when she fell on an icy sidewalk in Huntington street.

The case of Ruby Parker of Bast Lyme against Sidney A. Brown et al and others was withdrawn from the docket by stipulation of counsel.

Cases continued to the next term were that of Charles P. Cottell et al individually and executors, appealed by plaintiff. The appeal was not heard because papers are not printed.

William Witenckowski of Norwich against the Falls Co., et al., an appeal from the compensation commission and an appeal to this tribunal by the Falls Co., and the American Mutual Liability and Insurance Co. An appeal from the superior court. The cases were not ready and papers not printed.

The judges held an executive session in the afternoon after court had adjourned.

PIANO PUPILS GAVE CREDITABLE RECITAL

Mrs. A. H. Manes, teacher of piano, arranged a most interesting and enjoyable program for her pupils' recital on Sunday afternoon in the reception room of the Buckingham Memorial.

Assisting Mrs. Manes were Miss Katherine Zumbro and George Gulle, violinists, who rendered two beautiful duets and delighted the audience with their fine playing.

The following pupils took part in the program:

Isadore Brookenstein, Gertrude Schwartz, Pearl Gannon, Rose Evenson, Esther Alexander, Dell Weeden, Sylvia Broad, Rose Schwartz, May Breckenstein, Yonael Good, Margaret Fields, Sadie Alkyn, Helen Lewitz, Mary Gribbin.

It was the general opinion of the seventy-five guests present that the pupils played with excellent technique and interpretation and showed an unusual amount of musical intelligence.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY

The Ladies' Aid society of First Evangelical Lutheran church held its annual anniversary, Sunday evening with a service in the church which was followed by an entertainment in the Sunday school room under the direction of Mrs. Frank Decker. Selections were rendered by an orchestra, Frank Decker leader, and the roll was called by Mrs. Herman Retkowsky. Remarks were made by Mrs. Adelaide, president of the society for 15 years. Readings were given by Mrs. William Budzeck and Mrs. Retkowsky, a violin and piano duet by William Werch and Bruno Budzeck, soprano solos by Miss Hattie Hunzinger and Miss Margaret Hunzinger.

BOYS ENJOYED SUPPER FOR ATTENDANCE CONTEST

Judge Allyn L. Brown's class of boys in the Central Baptist Sunday school was entertained by the girls' classes taught by Miss Edith Ellis and Mrs. Harry Kromer at a supper Monday evening in Bushnell chapel which was the reward the boys received for winning an attendance contest. The attendance numbered 35.

The following menu was served and favors were distributed:

Meat Loaf
Mashed Potatoes
Pineapple Cheese Salad
Celery Pickles
French Rolls
Lemonade
Cake and Jello

Guests of the evening were Dr. and Mrs. D. A. Pitt and Harry Kromer. Games were enjoyed after the supper.

Gleaners Class Repeated Play

The Gleaners class of Trinity Methodist church of which Mrs. E. M. Nowbury is the teacher, repeated the play recently given at the church, The Farmerette, for the benefit of the Daughters of Veterans at the Buckingham Memorial, Saturday evening before a good sized audience.

The play was well received, each one coming in for her full share of praise. A goodly sum was realized for the Daughters of Veterans. They are to repeat the play at the Gales Ferry Club house.

Although a man may acknowledge that he has faults he seldom owns up to those his friends accuse him of.

NORWICH TOWN

The Trinity was the theme of the eloquent sermon by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, at Sunday morning worship, at the First Congregational church. The text was Matthew 28-19. Go ye therefore and teach all nations baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost.

The minister made announcement, that beginning Sunday morning May 2nd, all services at this church will be on daylight saving time.

A former Norwich Town resident, G. Avery Ray, who for years contributed by his voice to the success of the church choir, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Ruth Ray, of Springfield, Mass., attended church Sunday morning. Organist H. L. Yerrington, was assisted in the choir by Miss Ray, who has a most pleasing soprano voice. She also is a talented violinist, and as an offertory solo Miss Ray gave a beautiful interpretation of Lowe's "In Bach. For this she was unaccompanied.

Rev. Mr. Bailey read extracts from a letter from a member of the parish, Rev. Frank A. Junkins, a former resident of Norwich Town and for the past few years a resident of Bartlett, N. H. Rev. Mr. Junkins, asked for a letter of dismissal from the Norwich Town church, to the First Congregational church of Deer Isle, Maine, which will be granted by Rev. Mr. Bailey.

At Deer Isle, Rev. Mr. Junkins is to have three charges in his jurisdiction. Rev. Mr. Bailey spoke commendatory words concerning the Social Work conference, being held in Norwich during this week, expressing the thought that the work was largely to do with children, and community welfare.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening was in charge of Miss Lucile Brownina. The topic assigned was How Can We Help to Make Our Cities Christian? Matthew 11:20-24, 25-30.

The Congregational mid-week service for conference and prayer is to have for its theme Friday evening, The Disciples and the Christians, Romans 1-14, with reference to 1-16, in the Study of the Denominations.

Representing the Lookout committee, of Norwich Christian Endeavor union, Miss Jessie E. Hyde, chairman, with Miss Mabel Corrigeux and Ralph H. Marsh from the Norwich Town Congregational C. E. society; Miss Alice Bishop of Bozrah, Howard Bushnell of Occum and George Norman of Pachaug, paid visits to the C. E. societies of Hanover, Versailles and Taftville, Sunday evening.

Because of the change of time, the committee was enabled to cover the different places. Miss Hyde was the leader at Versailles at 7:15 (standard time). The Taftville meeting at 7 o'clock (standard) was attended by Miss Bishop, Messrs. Marsh and Norman, who made a return visit, while the meeting at Hanover at 8:30 (standard) was also in the form of a surprise visit by Miss Corrigeux and Mr. Bushnell, the latter also attending a part of the visit to Versailles, where the Lookout committee later held a business session.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning Hanover pastor, Rev. A. E. Whatley, preached a fine sermon from Galatian 6:9. And let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season, we shall reap, if we faint not.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening had for its topic, How Can We Help To Make Our Cities Christian? with several Scripture references in Matthew Lewis Aldrich was the leader.

Following the service, Rev. Mr. Whit-ten spoke interestingly along the lines of the Christian Endeavor topic.

Among other demands made upon District Agent, Frederic H. Wyant, of the Connecticut Humane society, Saturday last, was a call from Mrs. H. L. Case of No. 12 Robbins court, concerning a dog imprisoned under a pile of lumber. The dog was located under the runway of a garage owned by William H. Dawley. It became necessary to pry up two of the boards in order to release the animal, which proved to be a white poodle. After receiving some food from Mrs. C. the dog was examined by Agent Wyant, and found none the worse for its close confinement. Due to nobody's fault, but its own, Lester Le Doux returned to his home, number 1 Hill street, by Mrs. Case's little grandson.

Don't think that the man who is on the run wins the most races.

Was Located Tuesday Night With the Aid of Trawling Apparatus—The Sunken Sub Has Escaped the Ravagings of the Terrific Winter Storms—Her Position in the Sand Showed That She Had Shifted But Slightly—It is Planned to Clear Away the Sand With the Aid of a Powerful Hose Nozzle—Undamaged Tanks Will Be Filled With Compressed Air and Pontoons Will Be Brought Into Play in an Effort to Raise the Ship to the Surface.

NEW LONDON, April 28.— (AP) — Working from the salvage ship, Falcon, navy divers late today went down 128 feet to the floor of the Atlantic ocean to survey the grave of the ill-fated submarine S-51, radio advices received at the submarine base here, tonight stated.

The S-51 rammed and sunk last September, was located last night with the aid of the trawling apparatus of the Falcon, following an all-day search for her resting place from which identification buoys had drifted. After locating the sunken submersible, the Falcon dropped anchor for the night and today the tugs Iola, Sagamore and Vestal, all connected with the salvaging operations, moved into position around her.

The entire day was spent in preliminary preparations aboard the vessels of the salvaging fleet and when all was in readiness, two divers went over the side for the first work of raising the craft to the surface.

Reports received at the base tonight said that except for moss, sand and clay, piled against the sides of the S-51, she was about in the same condition and location as when work was abandoned. Amidship the sand is piled about eight feet high and at the bow and stern clay has settled to a depth of about two feet. Lying so far below the surface of the ocean, the vessel apparently escaped the ravagings of the terrific storms which swept this section of the coast during the winter and her position in the sand showed that she had shifted but slightly.

Today's survey by the divers, the radio messages said, showed that considerable sand had drifted into the two of the five ship's compartments, which had been badly smashed by the crash which sent her to the bottom. The crews' quarters, crushed by the steel prow of the City of Rome, and the forward torpedo room, wrecked when the submarine landed on the ocean bottom, were found partially filled with sand and clay. These compartments will be cleared by the divers to make the vessel as light as possible in preparation for the attempt to float her with the aid of the pontoons.

It is planned to clear away the sand with the aid of a powerful hose nozzle, invented during the winter by Commander Edward Ellsberg, of the Brooklyn navy yard, who was on the scene in charge of salvaging operations last fall. The same nozzle will be used to clear away the sand from the sides of the sunken submarine.

Commander Ellsberg's invention is a nozzle and holder with spikes that can be driven deep into the floor of the ocean, so that divers may be able to handle and direct the stream. Experiments with the new nozzle demonstrated that a hole ten feet deep can be tunnelled in about ten minutes.

Last fall divers had succeeded in closing the valves of five of the eight undamaged ballast tanks of the S-51. Wreckage which surrounded the other three prevented them from closing these valves. The survey also showed that much sand had seeped in about this wreckage and the divers are now confronted with the task of clearing away this sand as well as the wreckage before they can get at the valves. After the sand is removed they will cut away the wreckage with powerful blow-torches and close the remaining valves on the three compartments.

When all valves are closed, the air tanks aboard the Falcon will be brought into play and the eight undamaged ballast tanks will be blown free of water and compressed air will be substituted. This will lighten the weight of the sunken vessel about one half. Its present weight is estimated at 1,000 tons. The pontoons will then be attached and an effort to raise the ship to the surface made. If the effort is successful she will be towed to the Brooklyn navy yard and the bodies of the 33 men believed to be inside will be removed.

RIFFS ATTACKED FRENCH DURING PEACE PARLEY

OUJDA, French Morocco, April 28—(AP)—While French and Spanish delegates were discussing disarmament and other terms with the riffians to bring peace to Morocco, the tribe led by Beni Mestara, who has been accepting French rule, suddenly revolted and opened an offensive on the French.

Several French soldiers were killed and wounded and quiet was only restored after the French had opened fire with field artillery.

After the conclusion of today's session, a representative of Abd-el-Krim, chief of the Riffian tribesmen, left for the Riff in a French airplane. The French and Spanish delegates agreed to wait until midnight of April 30 for an answer as to whether the Riffians are ready to accept the terms submitted to them.

A practical method for the disarmament of the tribesmen and the question as to whether it would be advantageous formed the subject of discussion at the conference in the morning. It appears that this again is a matter which only Abd-el-Krim can decide. Undoubtedly the tribesmen would be most reluctant to abandon their rifles, which to them are considered a necessity of life.

The Riffian delegates argued that should one tribe disarm while their neighbors were still in possession of their weapons, it might cause incursions into the territory of peace-loving tribes.

The French and Spanish have accepted the principle of armed police forces for the country, the particulars of which are under consideration.

It is deemed quite within the range of possibilities that France and Spain may be obliged to wage war in order to show their desire for peace. The procrastination and delays in the negotiations have created an atmosphere in which all students of Moslem life admit strong methods must eventually be resorted to.

PRAISES WORK OF THE RADIO NATURE LEAGUE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 28—(AP)—Roadside foliage in many a town in New England and the middle Atlantic states will be greener and more luxuriant this summer as the result of the work of the Radio Nature league, under whose direction, more than 30,000 young people, comprising school children, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and other groups, have just finished a four weeks' drive against caterpillar egg nests. Their work, a summary of which was made public today, comprised the destruction of 341,702 egg masses, or potentially 72,340,400 caterpillars that would have fed upon and denuded the trees of many a country-side.

Thornton W. Burgess of this city, nature story writer, is director of the league, which has been organized and handled through his talks through radio station WBZ here. Besides the destruction of the egg nests, the contest has served to develop civic pride, keen observation and knowledge of the laws of nature in the young people participating.

TIMBER OF THREE SQUARE MILES BURNED IN MASS.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., April 28.—(AP)—Fire starting late today on the Manomet estate of George R. Briggs, had burned over three square miles of timber land tonight, and although checked on one arm at Fresh pond, was raging northward toward Manomet before a brisk southerly wind.

ANNUAL MEETING WOMEN'S CONGREGATIONAL HOME UNION

NEW HAVEN, April 28.—(AP)—Women from all parts of the state were present here today at the annual meeting of the Women's Congregational Home Union of Connecticut. The sessions were held at Plymouth Congregational church with Mrs. Charles Snow Thayer of Hartford, presiding.

Mrs. Thayer, who has been president of the union for seven years, announced her resignation, explaining that this action was necessary because of the pressure of other obligations. She is succeeded by Mrs. Sylvia Norton, of North Westchester.

Mrs. J. Fulton Ferguson of this city, was elected treasurer and Miss Agnes Stevens, of Hartford, secretary. Mrs. Oscar B. Maurer is vice president for New Haven; Mrs. Rockwell Harmon Potter, and Mrs. Sherrod Soule for Hartford, Mrs. J. Romeyn Danforth for New London and Mrs. Walter C. Woodfor New Canaan.

Mrs. Henry Laurens, of this city is secretary of the home missionary unit and the Hartford executive board includes Mrs. Warren S. Archibald, Mrs. James J. Dunlap, Mrs. George R. Miller, Mrs. Edward Valentine Mitchell, Mrs. A. J. W Myers, Miss Mary Alexander and Mrs. Charles Snow Thayer, the former president.

The addresses were delivered by Dr. Samuel T. Clifton, Rev. Henry Mountford Boden, Rev. Dr. Sherrod Soule, and Rev. Dr. George L. Cady.

TROUBLE OVER PROPERTIES OF FORMER GERMAN RULERS

BERLIN, April 28.—(AP)—The failure of the coalition parties after four months' deliberations to produce an alternative for the socialist-communist bill providing for the confiscation of the properties of former German rulers without indemnity, finds the Luther ministry in its weakest position since its advent to office.

The discussion over the government's compromise bill before the reichstag's judiciary committee today collapsed after there had been a liberal exchange of interparty recriminations. Later there was a heated debate in the reichstag over the radical's referendum measure, which the government vainly sought to head off.

The confiscation bill was initiated by the votes of more than 12,000,000 Germans and seeks to take over for the nation all the properties of the former rulers, while the government is desirous of providing indemnification to a reasonable amount, including a settlement of about 12,000,000 marks in cash to the Hohenzollerns, as well as thousands of acres of land and three castles in Prussia.

CONTRACT FOR $100,000,000 WORTH CORD TIRE FABRIC

ATLANTA, Ga., April 28—(AP)—The Atlanta Journal in a copyrighted story today announced that a contract for $100,000,000 worth of cord tire fabric had been signed by the B. F. Goodrich company and the Fisk Rubber company of Akron, Ohio, with R. E. Hightower, Sr., head of a group of textile mills at Thomaston, Ga.

The paper also said that a partnership had been formed between the Goodrich company and the Hightower interests by which a $3,000,000 mill of 35,000 spindles would be built at once in the Thomaston district. A collateral result of the cord fabric contract would be the prompt enlargement of the Thomaston mills by 10,000 spindles.

The Journal declared that the deal was consummated last week in New York city.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, April 28—(AP)—Pale grey has come with the spring as a favorite color for Mayfair house fronts. It is the gleaming tone of the exterior of No. 17 Bruton street where the duke and duchess of York are now in residence and other houses are painted similarly.

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 27 (AP)—Communistic vengeance, it is generally believed by the Swiss, was behind the unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Theodore Aubert, who as defender of Paul Polonnine, president of the International Association Against the Third (Moscow) Internationale is declared to have brought upon himself the hatred of communistic groups.

TOKYO, April 27—(AP)—The Japanese cabinet in session decided to accord a state funeral to Prince Yi Wang, former emperor of Korea, who died last Sunday at Seoul. The funeral, which will cost the government approximately 100,000 yen, will be held early in June with the army and navy participating in the ceremonies to be held in Korea.

TOKYO, April 27—(AP)—Field Marshal Kageakira Kawamura, 76, hero of the Russo-Japanese war, was reported in a dying condition today as the result of illness.

LONDON, April 27—(AP)—Following the recent plot to kidnap the young Marquis Townshend, the Daily Express reports that threats have been made to steal John Reginald Yard-Buller, the 11-year-old son of Lord Churston.

MGR. McAULIFFE RAISED TO AUXILIARY BISHOPRIC

HARTFORD, Conn., April 28—(AP)—Rev Msgr. Maurice Francis McAuliffe, president of St. Thomas' seminary, was created titular bishop of Delco and consecrated as auxiliary bishop of the diocese of Hartford in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic cathedral, today.

The solemn services had the accompaniment of all the dignity and colorful pomp of the church set apart for such occasion, and there were in attendance thirteen bishops with their retinues, several hundred priests of the diocese, and a large number of clergy from other dioceses and probably three thousand of the laity.

Bishop McAuliffe, a son of Hartford and the first son to be elected to the bishopric, became auxiliary bishop to Rt. Rev. Bishop John J. Nilan in succession to Rt. Rev. John Gregory Murray who recently was consecrated bishop of Portland, Me. The consecration today was on the sixteenth anniversary of the elevation of Rev. John J. Nilan, a priest of Amesbury, Mass., to the bishopric of this diocese. Rev. Fr. Murray was raised to the auxiliary bishopric on April 24, 1920.

The sermon which followed the consecration was delivered by Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the Catholic cathedral at Washington, who said of the elevation of Rt. Rev. Bishop McAuliffe that

"This day binds us to that other day in Jerusalem when the chosen apostles of Jesus Christ divided the world among their little band and went out to conquer it by the saving truths of the gospel, and under the guidance of the Holy Spirit."

OFFERS $20,000 FOR USE IN STABILIZING FRENCH FRANC

WASHINGTON, April 28—(AP)—A business man from the west who insists that his identity must be kept a secret wants to contribute $20,000 for use in stabilizing the French franc.

The offer has been made to Representative Andrew, republican, Massachusetts, who today advised the prospective donor that if he would send the money to the newly organized Washington-Lafayette institution in New York or to the New York Herald-Tribune it would be forwarded to the fund being collected by Marshal Joffre.

The man willing to make the gift said in a letter to Mr. Andrew that he served on the French front and appreciated France's "superb sacrifices from which we benefited." He also deplored the American debt commission "has lost sight not only of American reputation but of American self-interest, for our debt policy will besmirch our name in France for 62 years—three generations."

JOHN T. KING PLEADED NOT GUILTY TO EVASION OF TAX

NEW YORK, April 28—(AP)—John T. King, former republican national committeeman from Connecticut, pleaded not guilty today and was continued in $2,500 bail when arraigned in federal court on an indictment charging evasion of his 1921 income tax.

King has previously pleaded not guilty to another indictment charging perjury in connection with his 1921 return. He is charged with having sworn to a gross income of $34,529 and a net income of $266, whereas the government claims he should have paid a $45,000 tax on an income of $196,529.

King has paid the tax but federal authorities claim this does not absolve him from the consequences.

TWO AMERICANS SLAIN IN SALTA PROVINCE, ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, April 28—(AP)—Two Americans, William Theisner and Carlos Hettman, were found slain today in the province of Salta, near the Bolivian frontier. Their chauffeurs, also had been killed and their automobile married by bullets. The murders occurred yesterday.

Theisner was a road inspector of the Standard Oil company of Argentina. His body and that of Hettman were riddled with bullets. The provincial police began a search for the slayers whose motive is believed to have been robbery.

La Nacion's correspondent wiring from Oran, near the Bolivian border gave robbery as the motive as the slain men were reported to be carrying a large sum of money to pay off the road builders.

RIVER AT HARTFORD CONTINUES TO DROP

HARTFORD, April 28.—(AP) — The Connecticut river, which has been at freshet heights, today continued its drop begun Tuesday night and was down to 19.5 feet tonight, more than a foot below the highest mark reached. The slight rainfall here, amounting to .04 inches may retard the drop, but is not expected to cause a further rise in the river, weather bureau officials say. Commerce street here, which was flooded Monday and Tuesday is now free of river water.

Hastening Action On Foreign Debts

Senate Ratified Czechoslovakia Pact 53 to 17—President Signed Italian Agreement.

WASHINGTON, April 28—(AP)—The last of the six war debt agreements with foreign countries negotiated last year—that with Czecho Slovakia—was approved today by the senate, 53 to 17. At the same time, President Coolidge affixed his signature to the bill, ratifying the agreement with Italy, refunding her $2,042,000,000 obligation.

While these events in the general debt situation were transpiring, the French and American commissions still were awaiting word from Paris regarding new proposals before renewing their negotiations for the funding of France's four billion dollar war debt.

Ambassador Berenger, who is acting for his government, apparently remained without instructions on the suggestion of the American commission that new propositions be advanced covering the amount of early payments on the debt and one or two other points found unacceptable to it.

Senate action on the Czecho Slovakian agreement, which involves $185,000,000, was taken after only fifteen minutes of debate. Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, explained the terms of the agreement and Senator Howell, republican, Nebraska, opposed the settlement on the ground that it placed an unnecessary burden on American taxpayers by providing in effect for the cancellation of the principal at the end of the 62 years' period of payments.

NICHOLAS M. BUTLER FLAYS THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

NEW YORK, April 28—(AP)—Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, tonight declared, the Anti-Saloon league of America, "was the most pernicious enemy of the republic that has been produced in my life-time."

Mr. Butler, speaking at the annual dinner of the Psi Upsilon club, said that the league has United States senators and representatives "on its payroll—the $35,000,000 they boasted about the other day ina Washington."— and paid their expenses in transporting them about the country to speak in favor of prohibition.

He said that if such a thing were done by the steel corporations or by banking interests "there would be a hue and cry that would reach to high heaven."

Mr. Butler, who previously has derided the efficacy of the prohibition amendment, came out tonight flatly for its repeal. He said it cannot be enforced "without violating the bills of rights, the constitution and statutes as old as the hills."

"The eighteenth amendment," he said, "is invalid and outside of the scope of the amending power of the American congress; the courts simply refused to say so, 'caving it a political question—and one that the people must go, out of the constitution or pay the penalty."

He urged the amendment's repeal so that each state might then take up the question and settle it locally.

VANCOUVER POLICE ALERT FOR WILLIAM D. TAYLOR

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 28—(AP)—Local police today admitted that they have been in communication with Los Angeles authorities in regard to reports that Edward F. Sands, missing valet of William Desmond Taylor murdered motion picture director is in Vancouver.

They refused, however, to divulge any details of the case, saying that they did not place credence in the reports. Sand is sought for questioning in connection with Taylor's death.

NINA WILCOX PUTNAM WAS GRANTED DIVORCE

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., April 28.—(AP)—Nina Wilcox Putnam's quest for a divorce from R. J. Sanderson, begun in January, ended successfully here today when Judge C. E. Chillingsworth signed a final decree. The couple were married in Stamford, Conn., in November, 1918, and lived together until July, 1923, according to the writer's bill which charged willful, obstinate and continued desertion. She now is residing in Delray, Fla.

PROVIDENCE SPEED BOAT SEIZED AS A RUM SHIP

BOSTON, April 28—The capture today of a diesel automobile and three decked-ended dories off Nantasket Beach resulted in the seizure of a Providence owned speed-boat in a South Boston boat yard, Federal officers believed the boat, the 237-G, made trips to rum row and transferred liquor to dories for convoy to the waiting automobile.

Dastardly Murder of Chicago Attorney

W. H. M'Swiggin, the "Hanging Prosecutor," and Two Others Slain Driving Past Saloon in Suburb.

CHICAGO, April 28.—(AP)—The same wall of silence which has foiled efforts of 6,000 peace officers in Chicago to solve 87 gang and rum slayings during the last three years tonight nullified a day of investigation into the assassination last night of Assistant State's Attorney William H. McSwiggin, the "hanging prosecutor". James J. Doherty, a beer boss, and Thomas Duffy, a saloon keeper. McSwiggin, with a record of seven death penalty verdicts in 11 months, and his strangely assorted companions, were riding in an automobile past a saloon in Cicero, a suburb, when from an automobile driven alongside a machine gun belched its fatal fire.

At least one, and probably two other men, accompanied them, but they as well as the slayers could not be found today. Neither could the motive for the attack be isolated from a crowd of suppositions. Two table cloths, similar to these used in a saloon in front of which the men were shot, and five fedora hats, abandoned in the car of the slain far from the scene of the shooting provided the only tangible clews.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, aroused by the slaying of his assistant, spent today examining more than 100 men rounded up in raids upon known gathering places of gangsters. All but ten were discharged.

Oscar Wolff, coroner, viewed Mr. Crowe's conduct as an open affront to the coroner's office. They were on opposing sides in the recent primary, in which Mr. Wolff lost and Crowe and his cohorts were generally successful.

Wolff retained John J. Healy, former state's attorney and close friend of United States Senator Charles S. Deneen as his personal adviser and set an inquest into the triple slaying for tomorrow.

Coroner Wolff tonight announced a list of prominent Chicago business men and civic workers who will serve on the coroner's jury tomorrow.

At the same time 300 policemen were sworn in as deputy sheriffs and started a tour of country towns acting under orders of the sheriff and state's attorney to scour the entire country as well as the city.

Detectives after a day spent in Cicero investigating the slaying expressed the theory that it might have been the work of gunmen imported here from New York by a Chicago gang or band of beer runners. In a series of raids in Cicero, mostly of saloons and roadhouses, upward of 100 men were taken into custody for questioning and a large quantity of fire arms and ammunition seized.

$151,000 MISSING BONDS ANONYMOUSLY RETURNED

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—The treasury has received from an anonymous source $151,000 in liberty bonds missing from the First National bank of Los Angeles.

The sender of the bonds requested they be registered in the names of their owners who had deposited them in the Los Angeles bank.

Treasury officials expressed the belief that they form a part of a fund of $176,000 which the bank lost.

James B. O'Neil, a teller, disappeared from the bank simultaneously with the report that the bonds were missing and search is now being conducted for him, his friends asserting that he suffered a nervous breakdown and had no intention of stealing the securities.

Although $25,000 of the fund still is missing, those active in the case expect this sum to be returned also.

The bonds were forwarded to the treasury by mail from Baltimore, the postmark indicating they were deposited in the post office there on April 18.

CHANGE IN CONTROL OF VANDERBILT NEWSPAPERS

New York, April 28—(AP)—A break between Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., controlling the Vanderbilt newspapers, Inc., and the Vanderbilt family was made known today when Dudley Field Malone announced he had been retained by Cornelius to take care of his interest. The Vanderbilt newspapers include publications in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Miami, Fla.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., began his newspaper career on the New York times as a cub reporter and, after a period of experience in "digging up" news, established a paper of his own in California, the Los Angeles Illustrated News. He later founded tabloid newspapers in San Francisco, Cal., and Miami, Fla.

AN ALLEGED RUM RUNNER SERIOUSLY WOUNDED BY DRY AGENT IN WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, April 28—Ernest DeRoberto, 23, of 23 Sutton street, Providence, R. I., who is said to have given his occupation as that of a bootlegger, was shot through the back and is in serious condition at St. Joseph's hospital, after the car in which he was riding nearly run down Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer Stanton L. Briggs, who, with Supernumerary Officer Pierre Marrott of the police department, were holding up cars, after receiving a tip that rum runners were coming through about 12 o'clock Wednesday night.

Ignoring the signal to halt under a street light given by the uniformed officer, the driver of the machine, a big touring car attempted to run over Officer Briggs, who was stationed at the West Main street entrance to the city. Officer Marrott fired at the fleeing machine.

The car sped through the city and at the smoke shop conducted by Fred A. Coriaty of 644 Main street, the injured man was thrown out. He asked for help of Mr. Coriaty, who summoned Acting Lieutenant Edward Leahy and took the man to the hospital. Dr. Smith, who attended him, said his condition was quite serious. The bullet, a .38-calibre, entered through the back and lodged in the left lung.

Meantime the machine continued down Main street, where it nearly struck down Patrolman Albert Montie, who had noted its speed. Later Officer Lariviere arrested Claude DeRoberto, brother of Ernest, while he was walking on Union street. The man was held as the driver of the car, and a search was started for the missing machine.

About an hour later under the direction of the arrested man the police found the machine, a Packard touring car parked on Beech street, Lower Village.

A trip to the North Windham road disclosed about 50 gallons of liquor, which had been thrown by the wayside. DeRoberto had driven to the North Windham road and after getting rid of the liquor parked the car on the street in this city with the intention of inquiring about the condition of his brother.

OBITUARY

Miss Jeffreys Lewis

NEW YORK, April 28—(AP)—Miss Jeffreys Lewis, one of the most widely known of American actresses a generation ago when she was leading lady at Wallack's and Augustine Daly's theatres, died today after a brief illness at the age of 63.

She appeared with Arnold Daly, William Faversham, John Drew, Pauline Fredericks and others. Her last part was with Crane Wilbur in "Easy Terms" here only a few months ago.

Among the plays in which she took leading parts were: "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." "As You Like It", "The Klansman", and "La Belle Rousse."

SENATE LABOR COMMITTEE FAVORS COAL LEGISLATION

Would Give the President Full Authority to Seize and Operate Mines in Emergencies—Action is Designed to Resist Efforts of Congress to Set Up New Indepepndent Bureaus or Commissions.

WASHINGTON, April 28—(AP)—Coal legislation designed to give the president full authority to seize and operate mines in emergencies such as existed during the recent anthracite suspension was approved today by the senate labor committee.

Whether the bill will receive consideration at this session is problematical.

Some leaders expressed the view there was no need of haste since congress could act at the December session in the event of necessity.

Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, who offered the measure during the anthracite tie-up, will seek action before adjournmnet, but whether he can place his bill in a strategic position rests with the republican steering committee.

Another coal bill, but containing far less drastic provisions, has long been in the making in the senate mines committee. A tentative draft was completed six months ago and turned over to Secretary Hoover for study in the commerce department.

The Copeland bill was amended in several important particulars by the labor committee. The original measure called for the creation of a bureau of coal industry, but the committee eliminated that provision and put administration under the bureau of mines.

Committeemen explained this action was taken because of the announcement yesterday at the white house that President Coolidge would resist efforts of congress to set up new independent federal bureaus or commissions.

The committee also added a provision under which there would be created in case of emergency, the office of federal fuel distributor to handle the coal from the mines, as was done during the World war.

PASSAIC MILL OWNERS ARE BEARING EXPENSE

PASSAIC, N. J., April 28.—(AP)—The cost of enforcing law and order in the mill district of East Paterson and Garfield by armed deputies has been borne by the mill owners and not by Bergen county, William Beswick, director of the board of freeholders, asserted today. Similar protection in Passaic where Sheriff Morgan withdrew his forces was ordered paid by the county.

Mr. Beswick said the guards at the National Silk Dyeing company in East Paterson were paid by the company and that he believed those in Garfield were paid by Forstmann and Huffman company.

Sheriff George P. Nimmo of Bergen county, who today intimated he might withdraw his men, asserted when he entered the towns that he took charge at request of the municipal authorities. Deputies, armed with shotguns and clubs, have patrolled the streets of Garfield since the sheriff read the riot act at the Forstmann and Huffman plant on April 12 and dispersed 2,000 strikers.

Mr. Beswick, a resident of Garfield, said after a meeting of the board of freeholders this afternoon that "nothing had come before the board as to the paying of the men."

MRS. D. R. TOWNE ASKS FOR ABSOLUTE DIVORCE

CHICAGO, April 28. — (AP) —Mrs. Dorothy Ravin Towne, immigrant factory girl wife of Joseph Meredith Towne, son of the founder of the Yale and Towne Lock company, dismissed her suit for separate maintenance today and filed an amended bill asking absolute divorce.

She asked a divorce upon the same grounds as set forth in the original bill, that her husband beat her and threatened to hire ruffians to slay her unless she consented to a divorce.

The Townes were married March 15, 1919. She was Dorothy Ravin, an immigrant from Kiev, Russia, and was employed in his father's factory.

RACE FEELING RUNS HIGH AT CARTERET, N. J.

CARTERET, N. J., April 28—(AP)—Prosecutor Toolan tonight revealed that race feeling that has run high since the death of Johnny Carroll, boxer, and the burning of a negro church on Sunday, had threatened to break out in Carteret industries.

He said he had been informed that negro employes at the Liebig Fertilizer plant were going to work armed. As a result of this rumor he called a conference of authorities and Superintendent F. L. Woods, of the factory. Mr. Woods denied his employes carried weapons. The fertilizer plant employes about 200 persons, more than half of whom are negroes.

DECREASE IN WHOLESALE TRADE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, April 28—(AP)—Wholesale trade in the New York Federal Reserve district in March, measured by a weighted average of reports from nearly 100 concerns, decreased about 8 per cent. compared with the same month last year, but retail sales were slightly larger, the Federal Reserve agents here reported today.

IRREGULARITIES AT STATE FARM FOR INEBRIATES

HARTFORD, April 28.—(AP)—Following up his criticism of yesterday when he said the state farm for inebriates at Norwich, is run like a hotel, Judge Nathan A. Schatz, of the Hartford police court despatched a letter today to Superintendent Franklin S. Wilcox, in which he asked that prompt notices of the "elopement" of prisoners be sent to him, as well as suggestions to make a six months' commitment to the farm effective.

The judge's letter followed on the heels of a notice from Dr. Wilcox that William Collins, of Hartford, who was committed to the farm on March 31, 1925, for an indefinite period, had "eloped on April 26, 1925." Collins cannot be returned to the institution without a new commitment, said the superintendent's letter.

In answering this letter, Judge Schatz said he hoped that the superintendent had made a typographical error in his report of the date showing that Collins had "eloped April 26, 1925." "If the date set in your letter is correct," he said the judge in his letter, "I fail to see any object to be gained by informing us a year after the elopement."

"Either notify us at once upon the departure of any of the inmates who were committed from this court," said the judge, "or do not waste any time informing us of it when the leave-taking was a year prior to the information to us."

The case of Collins is the third in this week which has come to the attention of Judge Shatz as bearing out his criticism that the farm is run in a lax manner Tuesday Henry J. Barry and John Quaile brought it to his attention and evoked the judge's criticism that the farm was conducted like a hotel.

STOCKING RESIGNS AS ASSISTANT FIRE WARDEN

HARTFORD, April 28.—(AP)—Edson Stocking, assistant state fire warden, in central Connecticut for the past two years, has resigned to take charge of the private estate in Hampton of James Lippincott Goodwin, of this city. The estate contains 800 acres and has many fine stands of trees and is considered one of the showplaces of the section.

Mr. Stocking, who is the son of the late James Stocking, for many years assistant state warden at Simsbury, has had charge of the state nursery, the People's forest in Barkhamsted and the Simsbury forest besides supervising many privately owned forest acres. He has established a record for efficiency, State Forester Austin F. Hawes said today. His brother, Milton Stocking, recently graduated from the Mt. Herman school, will succeed him at the state nursery.

300 YOUNG PINE TREES SET OUT AT AVON COLLEGE

HARTFORD, April 28.—(AP)—Forty boys from schools in Farmington and Avon today set out 300 young pine trees at the Avon college property as part of a program being conducted in various towns by the state education and forestry departments for instruction in forestry. The work today was under the direction of State Forester Austin F. Hawes, Colonel T. S. Woolsey, of New Haven, representing Mrs. Theodate Pope Riddle, owner of the property; Rueasell Lund, of the state department of education and Milton Stocking, patrolman for the Talcott Mountain Protective association.

FORESTRY PUMPER LOST OUT IN FIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, April 28—Assistant state Fire Warden Huntington C. Wheeler's pet forestry pumper failed in fighting the fire of Lebanon's worst forest fires Monday when the engine of the frame house down under the strain of pumping and nearly one half mile of hose had to be rowed in hurriedly to prevent it from burning. The fire started in the woods in the afternoon from a brush pile which was being burned by a Polish resident of the section and spread with rapidity over some seventy-five acres of brush land. Many farmers assisted the efforts of a force of men and burned down a woodworking shop 30 by 40 feet, owned by James Mariash. The scene of the fire was a considerable distance from the Yantic-Goodwin road. Unabashed by the failure of the pumper it is said that Assistant Warden Lathrop remains convinced of the value of such an apparatus and is negotiating for the purchase of another to be used in another part of the state.

Frank LeClerc of 35 Ives street and Louis Breton of 21 Pleasant street, both residents in the city, were arraigned in police court Wednesday morning and charged with having liquor in their possession with intent to sell when home brew previously seized at their homes tested above the maximum percentage allowed by law. Both pleaded not guilty, stating that the beer had been made for home consumption. Chemist H. S. Schenerk of the connecticut Agricultural college analyzed the beer and found that Leclerc's tested 3 and 4 per cent and that made by Breton was 3 per cent.

At the conclusion of the evidence Judge Hall took little time in announcing that he found both guilty and he imposed a fine of $200 and the costs amounting to $208.15 in each case. LeClerc gave notice of an appeal to the superior court and furnished a bond of $500. Breton agreed to pay the fine. Judging from LeClerc's story he is an unusual beer drinker for one to use. He said that he drank four or five bottles of the stuff every morning before going to work. 69 bottles of beer were found in his place. The accused said that there were five or six members of his household who drank the beer. He believed that a certain neighbor of his, a woman, had started the story that he was selling liquor.

The raid at the Breton home was made Saturday night and 73 bottles seized. The officers taking part were, Acting Captain Frank McLean. Officers Arthur Hurley, F. Rudolph Larramee, Roderick Lariviere, Albert Montie County Investigator William E. Jackson and Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer Stanton L. Briggs. Some of these officers testified to the reputation of the places, which were on the whole that Breton and LeClerc were doing a wholesale business.

Funeral services for Frederick Burnham were held at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the late home in Hebron where Rev. Theodore D. Martin led in prayer. Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery, Hebron. The bearers were Maurice Keefe, Clarkson Bailey, Claude Jones and Horace Porter. Avery and Van Zandt had charge of the arrangements.

The official closing of a highly successful membership campaign will be ordered at a joint initiation of Conseils Florimond No. 74 and St. Cecile No. 113, Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique to be held at the Al-Pierre Tabarin next Sunday afternoon. The committee has arranged to receive members of the order from cities throughout Eastern Connecticut and parts of Massachusetts. The initiation work will be in charge of President General Henri T. Ledoux of Nashua, N. H., assisted by a staff of grand court officers. A public program will attend the initiation.

The class of 1926 of Windham high school will present their annual senior play in the school auditorium the latter part of May it was announced Wednesday by Miss Veronica McQuillan of the faculty and coach of the production. The managerial board consists of Gordon Bowers, stage, Miss Gertrude Dondero, properties and Bennie Mandell, business.

Rev. O. S. Beaumister of Glenville, former assistant pastor at St. Joseph's church, here, was a guest of honor at the meeting of San Jose council No. 14, Knights of Columbus, Tuesday evening. He delivered an interesting talk. Grand Knight Patrick A. Connor who presided announced that the third degree would be conferred on a class of candidates in this city Sunday afternoon May 23rd.

The forestry pump was used by Engine company No. 1 firemen to extinguish a refuse fire in the rear of 888 Main street Tuesday night. The smoke eaters were kept busy Wednesday standard thread. The so-called "dinky" wagon used for fire apparatus at the Montgomery Hose house on Jackson street was hauled to the Engine house and its consignment of hose also treated to the standardization process.

In its initial bow before the public the Italian band, which has been rehearsing intensively for over one year and one half, will give a demonstration of its achievements at the town hall in a concert next month.

Mrs. Gertrude Donohue, wife of City Clerk James S. Donohue Jr. underwent a slight operation at St. Joseph hospital Wednesday.

Remarkable progress continues to be made on the Nathan Hale community home, being erected on Main street. Paul Benson, who is in charge of the work, has within a few days the floors on the fifth floor would be removed and the brick work which tops the third floor would be rushed to a finish. Two large South boilers have already been installed. The building is concrete throughout being built of reenforced concrete with brick walls and tile partitions.

Among those from this city who attended a bridge party given by Mrs. Barton C. Bartlett in West Hartford Tuesday were Mrs. Homer M. Harrington, Mrs. Raymond A. Parker, Mrs. G. JEWETT CITY

RUTHIE REBEKAH LODGE CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, April 28—Ruthie Rebekah lodge, celebrated the 18th anniversary of its organization and also the 107th anniversary of Odd Fellowship on Tuesday evening. Odd Fellows hall was well filled with members and visitors from Reliance lodge, I. O. O. F., and a large number from Hope Rebekah lodge of Norwich. Mrs. Zelina Zegeer, noble grand, welcomed the visitors Eleanor Stetson, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced the program. It was opened with a piano solo by Irene Steward. Mrs. George Briggs of Voluntown gave several auto-harp selections Master David Wechsler played piano solos, and Frank Mell recited and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox gave readings, each one responding with encores. Mrs. Louise Holmes, secretary of the lodge and also district deputy, gave an interesting history of the order.

Dr. S. H. Holmes was the father of the lodge and its first noble grand. The lodge was instituted by Hope Rebekah lodge of Norwich on April 8, 1908. It was named for Ruth, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wechsler, who had died just before the lodge was instituted. As there was another Ruth Rebekah chapter in the state, the lodge was allowed to change the name to Ruthie. The principle feature of the program was a short sketch, The Knot of White Ribbon, given by Mrs. Charles E. Spicer, who impersonated the maiden aunt, thel Fisk, her niece, and Mrs. Martha Mell, the maid. The old fashioned setting of the stage was delightfully attractive. A fireplace held a glowing fire, and the room was very cozy in its arrangement. The story of the red haired lovers was told and acted with just the right touch of spice and daintiness. It was a charming performance from start to finish. The committee in charge of the program comprised Eleanor Stetson, Mrs. Kate Stewart and Agnes Franklin. Chicken salad, rolls, olives, pickles, cake and coffee were served. Favors were on each plate and there were fancy flower napkin rings, which were later used as buttonaires. A birthday cake on which were 18 candles, and which was placed in a pink rose petal basket, was lighted during the sewing of the refreshments. The refreshments committee was Mrs. Mary Howes Ethel Fisk Mrs Martha Mell, and Mrs. Nellie Wharton assisted by Mrs. Zegeer who made the delicious salad. Old fashioned dancing followed for which George Ratnburn fiddled and Mrs. George Briggs played the piano. F. H. Gilbert was the prompter.

Passers-by the Tadpole pond are afforded a fine opportunity to note the activity of the dipper ducks that are always to be seen there in the early spring. Like the loons that have been known to visit this section, they dive at the flash," though this well worn expression has lost half its meaning, since flintlocks and percussion caps have become things of the past. Some years ago, there used to be a great striving among the boys of the town, to see who of the young hunters would be able to shoot a dipper duck. Some of the then experienced wing shots, resorted to all sorts of devices to make one fly, and thus be able to get a shot as he was on the move out of the water. No remembered story will relate that it was ever accomplished, although there was never any trouble in causing him to change places under water, at the discharge of a gun. Two local boys used to try repeatedly to secure one, as the duck dived at the flash of the first gun the other was alert to shout the moment he reappeared, but the underwater swimming was always made at unknown angles, so Mr. Dipper always had his wind for another dive before he was discovered. The late W. C. Bliven got one once in Hawkins cove, he was an expert marksman, and the first hunter in the village to own a double barrel gun. A visit to Tadpole pond will convince all who attempt it, how impossible it is to make a dipper duck leave the surface of the water, except to go below it. This act, to which he is accustomed, he accomplishes in the twinkling of an eye

Passport Nuisance

One proposal likely to come before the league of nation's second international passport conference in Geneva in May is that of making it possible to obtain passports from post offices or police stations and thus reducing passport formalities that still face the the traveler who wishes to go abroad

The May conference will consider the best means of hastening the gradual abolition of the passport restriction. Should it decide, however, that the passport must be retained, a proposal will be made that every passport in the future hold good for a minimum of two years.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON PEEVED AT CONNECTICUT COMPANY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 28—You could have knocked the average Danielson business man down with a feather when he read in the Putnam news in The Bulletin Wednesday morning that "Putnam-Goodyear Busses Start Today"—"In compliance with the wishes of the retail merchants of Putnam, as expressed by the chamber of commerce, the Connecticut company will begin Wednesday evening to operate a bus from Goodyear to Putnam."

This is a service which runs from a village within the town of Killingly, of which Danielson is a part, into Putnam—another town, which Danielson business interests and Goodyear people have pleaded for since bus service was established last December—and didn't get.

Everyone volunteered some explanation or offered some excuse, Wednesday, but no one seems to know the real cause. Naturally, the Connecticut company came in for criticism and was charged with discrimination between the interests of Putnam and the interests of Danielson. In the minds of the average man the Connecticut company hasn't played fair. The business man was not inclined to do other than give credit to the accumen of Putnam's business men in getting something Danielson failed to get. He wasn't blaming Putnam any for getting something that Danielson wanted—and still wants. What he was curious about is why the Connecticut company can be induced to do things for one town that it will not do for a competing town, and do it by running an inter-town service while it has not done it for points within the same town.

"This Connecticut company," said one business man, "is playing a strange game. It could not be induced to run its coaches down into Wauregan village until the very eve of a hearing scheduled here the past week before members of the public utilities commission to pass upon the petition of the Blue Ribbon Bus Lines to furnish Central Village - Wauregan - Danielson-Goodyear service. Just ahead of the hearing, and without advance notice, the Connecticut company suddenly decided it would be quite the thing to give Wauregan such service as it had [illegible] Connecticut company did not want and came across [illegible] it saw it in the offing. Incidentally, the hearing was called off and gave it until the screws [illegible] it.

"That's good advertising for the Connecticut company's coach line, but must be admitted. Possibly there is a final defense. That is not known, as will be shown herein a paragraph or two later. What seems to this man a picture of the reaction of Danielson business interests is that transportation company using something for Putnam's business interests that it has failed to do for Danielson's business interests. Whatever the defence, it may be said it will not be adequate to satisfy Danielson that it has not been dealt with unjustly and in a discriminatory way.

"Now as to the [illegible] of the piece and the [illegible] of Wednesday's discussions. Here is one another question. How would [illegible] the Danielson [illegible] of commerce or its designated [illegible] for such a service between Danielson and Goodyear as [illegible] has granted between Goodyear and Putnam, a city [illegible] of the town of Killingly? That was an adequate answer to that question Wednesday. Chamber commerce members were hazy as [illegible] had been [illegible] Connecticut company to [illegible] Goodyear-Danielson service, not to mention a Danielson-East Killingly service, which latter proposed service remains entirely out of the picture. No one could be found who would say positively that the Connecticut company had ever agreed insistently, and [illegible] and losses to substantiate [illegible] to establish a Danielson-Goodyear service. In a word, the average business man here was not at a single point at [illegible] had been done that might have been done to protect for Danielson one of its valuable business assets in getting adequate transportation service between the two communities.

"And result of all the discussions—a few raising for the Connecticut company a question for tongue about the courtesy of commerce. Putnam [illegible] a bone at Danielson's expense. It has earned it pretty, and, at present, more or less easily.

"The rub of the situation seems to be this: If the Connecticut company can furnish a Putnam-Goodyear service, it will look mighty sour saying [illegible] to a well backed-up demand for a Danielson-Goodyear service. There is no nourishment for the Connecticut company in making a community like Danielson feel that it is being discriminated against in favor of a competitor that happens to be its good neighbor but none the less its keen competitor. The Connecticut company, it may be assumed, does not want the enmity of the business interests of any town it services. If it has erred, it may be induced to compensate for its error."

The annual drive for funds to maintain the county Y. M. C. A. organization will begin next Monday and continue throughout the week. The budget is $6,600. Of this amount Killingly is apportioned $1,500.

Harry Richardson of Moosup is the campaign manager for the county. In Killingly the committee in charge is made up of Clifford H. Starkweather, Harry E. Back, Irving W. Davis, Burdette C. Hopkins, Sidney P. Marland, Henry A. McEwen.

Sidney W. Bard is chairman for the town of Brooklyn, the quota of which is $150. Plainfield will be asked to raise $1,500. Eastford $225. Pomfret $600. Putnam $1,600. Sterling $125. Thompson $600 Woodstock $300.

The Killingly committee makes points of some of the events last year's pledge helped to promote in Killingly, as follows:

1. 14 boys attended Camp Woodstock. 2. Representatives to State Older Boys' conference. 3. Father and Son banquet. 4. Eastern Connecticut Basketball championship won by Danielson Hi-Y team. 5. Dayville first town in the county to have three organized groups in the Y. M. C. A. program. 6. Five leaders and older boys at the special meeting held in Norwich with Mr. Arthur N. Cotton of New York as speaker. 7. Note enclosed folder for names of committee men from Danielson, Dayville, and Attawaugan. 8. Groups and leaders in Killingly: Danielson Hi-Y, Robert M. Tyrrell; Dayville Comrades, Harold T. Field; Dayville Juniors, Arthur F. Hughes; Dayville Friendly Indians, Orrin M. Alword; Indian Rock Pioneers, Rev. W. E. Newton. 9. Represented in County Athletic met at Brooklyn, Conn.

Mrs. Sarah J. White, 70, died Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Whipple, Dayville Four Corners. Mrs. White, recently resident in Providence, had been ill a number of weeks. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Harper and was born at Perry's Mills, N. Y. Besides her daughter Mrs. White leaves two sons, Fred and Frank, both of Providence.

Veterans' night with an appropriate program will be observed at the Killingly grange next Monday evening. The question of conforming to the daylight saving schedule will come up for discussion and all interested should be on hand to express their preference.

Thirty-four members of Killingly grange went to Moosup Valley for Neighbors Night last Wednesday night and furnished the program. The visiting grangers were royally entertained by the Moosup Valley grange and all report a most delightful time.

At the regular service at Goodyear church last Sunday morning Rev. Charles A. Downs preached from the text John 12:24 "Except a grain of wheat fall into the ground and die it abideth alone" and spoke on the theme, Christ's Pattern for Living. Having but one life to live it is important to make the best use of it. Real living is not merely in accummulating things but in grasping the meaning of the higher realities. There is an economy whereby we are enriched by sharing our blessing. Life is an inheritance to be wisely administered.

All deposits made in the savings department of the Windham County National bank on or before May 5th will receive the first dividend June 1st.—Adv.

The Bob Marr musical comedy company closed a very successful three days' engagement at the Orpheum theatre Wednesday evening. It was a great little company and did a good business here.

Some get a thrill out of being contrary, as witness the local man who does not like daylight saving. He has set his watch back two hours, and is following neither standard nor daylight saving time.

It has been definitely announced that the Windham County Y. M. C. A. track meet is to be held at the Brooklyn fairgrounds on Saturday, May 15. The state championship track meet will be held at Wesleyan field, Middletown, May 22.

About every day fishermen from three states—Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut—may be found angling in the waters of Snake Meadow brook. These are state-leased waters.

Members of the Federated clubs of Windham county met at the Westfield Congregational church here Wednesday and enjoyed the interesting program presented in detail in this column recently.

The Alumni dance at the assembly hall of the high school Wednesday evening was a very enjoyable affair and brought many graduates of the school together again for an evening of pleasure.

Aside form early peas and a few such things, practically no planting has been done in Danielson as yet, though May 1 is but two days ahead. The season is regarded as about three weeks late.

A class of candidates of Rose of Lima council, is to receive the third degree here on Sunday afternoon. Visiting knights are expected from a number of eastern Connecticut councils.

The sixth annual county Y. M. C. A. convention to be held in Putnam Friday of next week will be attended by a delegation from Danielson. This is the annual get-together meeting.

TO HAVE ONLY ONE TRIP EACH WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 28.—There is to be but one passenger motor bus trip between Goodyear and Putnam on Wednesday evenings instead of two as first stated. The Connecticut company will run a bus leaving Goodyear at 5:30 standard time. This extra service will be on Wednesday evenings only, and is for the benefit of local merchants, the stores being open on that evening.

VOTE TO ISSUE BONDS TOTALLING $75,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 28.—At the special town meeting six citizens, including the moderator, Whitman Danielson, and the clerk, Judge David Flagg, voted that the town issue bonds to the amount of $75,000. This is for the purpose of building the addition to the State Trade school which, it is estimated will amount to $30,000, take care of the cost of the Memorial bridge, and refund the remainder of the floating indebtedness of the town.

The selectmen were authorized to provide for the form and term of these bonds, and the manner of issuing and paying for them.

DEDICATE MASONIC CLUB FRIDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 28.—The dedication of the new auditorium at the Masonic club house will take place Friday evening of this week. Under the direction of the women of the Eastern Star a turkey supper will be served followed by dancing and whist. The club is giving its support and aid to the project.

The second floor of the club-house has been converted into one large room, attractively finished and equipped with complete and up-to-date cooking and other kitchen [illegible].

Hamilton Holt, formerly of Woodstock, now president of Rollins college at Winter Park, Florida, has reported to his board of trustees that the endowment fund of $300,000 which sought has been oversubscribed, the amount reaching $345,000. It came from the alumnus and friends of the college, particularly those in Orange county where Winter park is located.

This fund is to be set aside for the running expenses of the college for the next five years, and has cleared the way for raising an endowment fund for the institution. No money now collected will have to be used for expenses and all can be made part of an endowment fund. At some future time President Holt hopes to make another drive for this permanent endowment fund for the college.

Byron F. Wilcox, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilcox of Chapman street, and a senior at Bates college in Lewiston, Maine, was recently chosen to give the prologue to the Greek play, Electra of Sophocles, which is to be presented June 19 on the steps of Coram library, which make an unusually attractive outdoor theater.

This annual play, which has attracted attention all over New England, is one of the features of commencement week. It will be coached by Professor Grosvenor M. Robinson, who has been the director of many other similar productions. One of the greatest attractions of the play will be the graceful dancing by the senior girls with the classic columns of the library as background.

A number of the members of Delphian club of Putnam were at Danielson Wednesday attending the meeting of the Federated clubs of Windham county, which is being held under the auspices of the Killingly Women's club at 10 o'clock with an informal reception. Mrs. G. H. Stoughton, president of the Connecticut Federation of Women's clubs was a guest. The program consisted of interesting talks, music and the regular transaction of business.

A number of girls from Putnam and vicinity are planning to attend the Older Girls' conference to be held at Brooklyn on Saturday, May 8. Those who have not already received registration cards have been notified to get them from Mrs. H. Gaylord, 22 Hawkins street, Danielson.

The conference is to begin at 9:30 daylight saving time and the features of the event are as follows: An outdoor processional opening the conference; informal talks by two Wellesley college girls on "What I Have Found In College"; music by the girls' choir of the Westfield Congregational church at Danielson; a hike to some point of interest; a fellowship supper; a story hour by Miss Frances Weld of Danielson and a closing friendship service. Rev. A. Avery Gates of East Douglas, Mass., will speak at the morning service and the afternono address will be given by Rev. David N. Beach, Jr., whose subject will be "The Quest for the Highest."

Alferie Lucier of Pawtucket, one of the badly injured in the automobile crash at the Brooklyn-Danielson road two weeks ago, has been removed by ambulance to Notre Dame hospital at Central Falls, R. I., so that he will be nearer home.

Immediately after the accident he was put into a plaster cast and is still wearing it. He has two fractures of the pelvis, a broken thigh and many other injuries and still has many weeks of hospital life ahead of him.

Mrs. James Dillon of Pawtucket is now the only one remaining at the Day Kimball hospital who was injured in that disastrous accident which cost the life of one of Mr. Lucier's daughters and caused the severe injury of five other people. Mrs. Dillon is steadily improving but has suffered a great deal as she has a broken jaw and many bad lacerations. Mr. Lucier, for the greater part of the time was in a comatose condition and did not realize how badly he was hurt.

Fred Bernklow has completed the term's work at Northeastern university in Boston and is at home with his parents at Thompson.

Rev. G. E. Davis, the new pastor at the Methodist church at East Thompson, and his family were given a reception at the church upon his arrival to take charge there. Refreshments were served by the women of the church. Rev. N. B. Burton of the M. E. church at Putnam has been the supply pastor for the past several months.

The warm days of last week evidently brought out the snakes as Hari Marcy of Pomfret killed five of them recently.

Word has been received of the death of Lafayette Lyon, 82, at his home in Southbridge. Mr. Lyon was the son of William and Minerva Lyon of Phoenixville where he spent his boyhood days. He is survived by a brother living in Putnam, a sister at Phoenixville and three daughters. His wife who was formerly Carrie Russell of Ashford, died last fall.

Arthur Grimes, who has been living in Florida for some time is the guest of friends and relatives in this vicinity.

Mrs. Loring Young of East Thompson who has been in poor health for several months has been taken to a hospital in Worcester for observation. Her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Strout of River Point, R. I., has been with her.

George Stoddard of Cambridge, Mass., has been the recent guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stoddard at Pomfret.

Mrs. Bessie Stone expects to open her house at Pomfret the first of May. She has been spending the winter with her daughter, Miss Mildred Stone at Hartford.

Private Joseph Picard of Fort Andrews, Boston, arrived in Putnam a few days ago to visit his stepfather and family. The next day he was taken violently ill and Dr. E. F. Perry found him suffering from a well developed case of appendicitis. Mr. Picard was taken to the Day Kimball hospital where an operation was performed. It was entirely successful and the young soldier will make a good recovery.

As he only had three days' leave, Dr. Perry notified the commandant at Fort Andrews and there will be no A. W. O. L. charge against him when he is able to return to his duty.

Mr. and Mrs. Delphis Bousquet, who were married on Monday morning at St. Mary's church are spending their honeymoon in New York city. On their return they will occupy their newly furnished home.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Frink and family of Willimantic have been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Frank E Barrett.

Miss Flora Anderson of Webster, Mass., has been the recent guest of Miss Charlotte Potter at Woodstock.

Mrs. Victor Johnson entertained the Ladies' Sewing society at Woodstock at her home Wednesday afternoon.

Word has been received of the sudden death of Henri Brusseau of Pawtucket, R. I., formerly of North Grosvenordale. Mr. Brusseau was born in North Grosvenordale and lived the greater part of his life there, and attended St. Joseph's parochial school there. He was 41 years of age.

Miss Alberta Labiane of Norwich was the guest of Miss Adrienne Coderre at Grosvenordale recently.

Miss Alta Doe, one of the teachers at the Tourtelotte Memorial high school has been called to her home at Chinatown, Maine, by the serious illness of her father.

State Highway Commissioner Macdonald and family of Hartford have been the guests of Mr. Macdonald's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Macdonald, Sr., on George street.

Miss Evelyn Calhoon of Providence spent a short vacation at the home of her parents on the Woodstock road.

Thomas Watson and family have moved into their new home at Thompson.

Mrs. Ellen Hoyle of East Thompson is the guest of her grandson, Cedric Squires at Lynn, Mass.

ABINGTON

Capt. George Curtis, Abington's only Civil war veteran said the other day, "It's the same nowadays with these fancy gulf stockings as with heads, it's what's on the inside that counts."

Mrs. Seymour Peal and Andrew Amidon have been chosen team captains in a membership campaign by the Sunday school. At the end of three months the losing side treats the winners to a picnic.

Thomas Elliot sprained his ankle while playing baseball last week.

George Stoddard of Cambridge, Mass., was a visitor Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stoddard.

The cowslip season is just starting. Early pickers say it will be at its height in about a week, providing the weather man is considerate.

Sunday, Mr. Walk spoke on the topic, Is God Happy?

The Men's club is holding meetings the first and third Wednesdays of every month.

The recent rains have given southern slopes and lawns a greenish cast.

Dr. John D. Clark has relinquished management of C. A. Sharpe's store at North Hampton, Mass.

Four broken windows in two weeks is the record of an Abington grammar school lad. The great national game and unprotected panes seem to make a bad combination.

The Fool at the Bradley theater is of added interest to local people because of an illustrated lecture on Pollock's much discussed play which was brought by the A. B. C. a year ago.

Several from this place are planning to attend the Gurnsey association banquet at the Attawaugan hotel, Danielson, Thursday evening.

N. A. Badger's new house on the Willimantic road is fast approaching completion.

Mrs. Bessie Stone expects to open her house here the first of May; she has been spending the winter season with Miss Mildred of Hartford.

Andrew West is to move into the Clark cottage.

W. W. Hames is erecting a new poultry building.

The magic of fine French soap BUT NOT SO COSTLY

Each time you use Lux Toilet Form it is a dear delight

"THE WAY French soaps made me feel," women say:

"Beautiful—refreshed!"

"Lux Toilet Form is so preciously, adorably Parisian!" they exclaim.

It is your very own soap! You asked us to make it!

And you cannot snatch it up fast enough! Six, a dozen, eighteen cakes, you order at a time. "It's the fastest-moving soap I ever saw," one store declared—and another: "Orders come so fast I have to apportion it."

Countless thousands of cakes a week we make for you! Countless more thousands as the flying weeks bring bigger, ever bigger demands for Lux Toilet Form.

We made it for you by the very method France uses for her finest toilet soaps! Satin-smooth, lasting, with that joyous instant lather even in hard water!

Your druggist, department store and grocer have Lux Toilet Form proudly on their shelves. Ten cent stores have it, too. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

PENETRATING THE NORTH

It is probably too early to take for granted that Ensworth Wilkins is lost in the far north and will neither be found nor be able to make his way back to civilization. Uncertainty prevails of course as to what has happened to him but it is a fair inference that he has met with some accident in the course of his explorations flights over the polar region. Whether something happened to the engine, whether he crashed or damaged the machine in a forced landing will not be known till some tidings are received from him though the longer it remains lost the greater is the anxiety concerning him.

In a manner slightly more modern man has felt for him that was displayed relative to Amundsen or his flight, because the latter had gone with the intention of making landings and while he planned for only a limited war there was a possibility that he might encounter conditions that justified it. With Wilkins it is a matter of machine scouting about the region north where was the possibility that he might penetrate a record breaking distance but he had not figured on any detention. His quest was of a different character and simply preparatory for the main flight on a bigger expedition date.

With this as a preliminary to the several expeditions planned for the year this year it directs attention to the fact that something more than a pleasure trip is involved. That it will serve to discourage the others is not to be expected any more than other polar explorers have abandoned their ambitions because of the fate of the unfortunate. The experience of Amundsen may cause him to adopt a new plan of work but it has not discouraged others that they cannot reach or cross the pole by airplane.

The [illegible] is for [illegible] a [illegible] chapter but it points increased [illegible] upon the hazards and privations of [illegible] and when on the [illegible] is made that [illegible] of [illegible]

SELLING AND BUYING SHIPS

For a long time there has been a demand for the leasing of our merchant marine ships in the hands of private capital. It is time that the government got out of such business as rapidly as possible. There has been times when it was announced that [illegible] offered for certain of the ships warranted immediate acceptance but the ships were not sold. There are now other times when it seemed that better prices should be obtained, but the sentiment of the shipping board was to sell.

There are a number of the government owned vessels which are sure to command a high figure. They not only cost much to build but they cost a good sum to operate, but with a proper figure offered and with the retention of ships under our flag we should be well for the ships to be disposed of.

What appears to [illegible] with that as the ultimate outcome is the deal about to be consummated between the International Mercantile Marine corporation and Harriman W. Walker & Co., whereby the latter will purchase the White Star line of steamers from the corporation. This promises to be preliminary to the sale of the Red Star line which would place funds in the hands of the International whereby it could obtain from the government the large ships which it has been seeking and insure their retention under the American flag.

At the present time the I. M. M. is operating many of its vessels under the British flag. Under the proposed change that would be altered. The British vessels would be under British ownership but the American corporation would replace them from among the government owned vessels which the shipping board has for sale. Thus an advantage would be gained both for the government and for the merchant marine of this country. It would also mean the Americanization of the fleet of this big corporation and the establishment of a leadership in that respect that should be highly effective in future years.

STIMULATING APPLE INDUSTRY

More and better apples for New England have long been sought and through various organizations stimulating efforts have been put forth in a manner that should produce good results.

In behalf of the apple industry the Massachusetts agricultural experiment station has been doing much research work for the purpose of giving the growers and those who may be interested some additional facts that will be valuable in this direction. They have made a survey of about 1700 large orchards and set forth the apparent popularity of the various kinds from the quantity of production, as well as furnishing information regarding root stocks and the manner in which the public receives the variouskinds of apples.

This is of course highly valuable, quite the same as the legislation which has been enacted in some of the states and will be urged later in others concerning the grading and marketing of apples.

The effort which is being put forth in behalf of greater apple production for New England is a move in the right direction. There is no reason why we should depend upon other states for fruit that can be grown on our own hillsides. It is thoroughly understood that we are quite as clever in the way of apple growing as other sections of the country if we but give the necessary attention to it, and it is apparent that there is quite as good reason why New England efforts should be encouraged to serve its requirements.

If Connecticut or New England apples can be produced in quantity to meet the demands they will be demanded. If they cannot be had the product from other states will be used, and it is because they have not been available in their attractiveness and in adequate quantity to meet the competition that long distance growers have been serving a market which should be served first, last and all the time from this part of the country. Let the good work go on.

MUSCLE SHOALS

For a long time Muscle Shoals has been a problem before congress. There has been much talk about disposing of it in various ways but thus far nothing has been done. What will be done with the report of the joint congressional committee named for the purpose of receiving bids and recommending the most favorable proposition no one knows. There is a chance for accepting it and terminating this matter and there is the same chance for the raising of objections and the prevention of action.

By the decision of the majority of the committee the lease of this big plant should go to the Muscle Shoals Power Distributing company, associated with which the Muscle Shoals Fertilizer company. By the terms of its offer the fertilizer company guarantees to begin the production of nitrates within three years and to increase [illegible] annually to [illegible] tons and [illegible] be permitted to have [illegible] on an 8% dividend basis on its [illegible] capital.

From the [illegible] proposition there would be a return to the government for the lease a total of $37,645,000 over a period of 50 years which is of course decidedly preferable to letting it stand idle or to trying to have the government take care of the operation.

The committee has acted in the manner directed by congress. It has made its report and now it rests with congress to decide whether it is going to get rid of this long standing and controversial problem or whether it is going to stand upon keeping it right where it is there is no small amount of sentiment to the effect that the matter should be disposed of advantageously and as quickly as possible.

CLAIMS AGAINST MEXICO

[illegible] the action of the commission dealing with the American claims against Mexico two country loses. There remains however the possibility that the application for a rehearing will be approved and through that different considerations may be given and new awards made. The commission was taken up of a commissioner each from the two countries and Mexico and the third member was Dr Ottavio of Italy. It was the vote in addition of Mexico that decided the matter.

The claims [illegible] that [illegible] during the [illegible] when Villa [illegible] against Carranza and General [illegible] Morgan [illegible] be entered to be counted a half-dozen [illegible] Morgan [illegible] General Manager [illegible] Waters of [illegible] company and 10 officers and employees, all Americans and [illegible] [illegible] could plead. It was not long after the [illegible] that [illegible] made the [illegible] [illegible] N. M.

It was [illegible] [illegible] Americans [illegible] against Mexico and it was [illegible] that were submitted to the general commission. Mexico put forth the claim that Villa was a bandit and therefore it should not be responsible for [illegible] but the American contention is that he was conducting an insurrection against the Carranza government and that had proper protection been afforded the outrages would not have been committed.

There is no question but what the Americans were [illegible] citizens that [illegible] had no part in the fighting that was being done on either side and that the claims submitted to Mexico are legitimate but it remains to be seen whether any benefits are obtained through the application for a rehearing which has been made.

MODERN METHODS

"Why do you stare?" asked Felicia. "Is anything wrong with my face or my hair?"

"No, not yet."

"Not yet? What do you mean?"

"Well, to tell you the truth," Jack admitted, "I was wondering how my wife would look in, well, say, twelve or 15 years."

"Was fair, fat and 40 in your mind?" asked Felicia, laughing.

"No. I'm afraid if there's to be any fair, fat and 40 in our family, I'll be it. You feed me too well, young lady. I've got to begin to watch my girth. You will never have to reduce."

"That's nothing to mourn about."

"I'm not so sure. A comfortable plumpness appeals to me. I'm not so keen on skinny women myself."

"Skinny women! Why, Jack, you don't think I'm—"

"Now wait a minute! Don't run to the mirror yet, and don't think that I mean that you are too thin yet. I'm worrying about the future, that's all. This evening when I saw the violence with which you scoured the sink, after we had done the dishes, I began to wonder how long you could keep up your present pace, and retain your—"

"My good looks. Maybe you are not quite sure that I ever had any."

"Of course I am, and I believe in conservation, and that's the reason I don't like to see you scrubbing the daylights out of the sink, Felicia. It takes too much out of you. How many times a day do you dust?"

"In the morning when I am straightening up, of course."

"And when do you do it again?"

"Well, I do dust a little in the evening before you come home. I want the house to look nice for you. I don't believe you appreciate it."

"I certainly do, Felicia, but I want you to look nice. Now, don't interrupt me, please. You do look nice now. I want to ask you some more questions. Who irons Nancy's little dresses? You don't have to tell me. I know that you do it yourself. What I want to know is why can't the laundress do them with the rest of the ironing? Why do you have to do them?"

"I don't have to, but those little frocks are so fine and pretty I like to see how nice I can make them look."

"And I like to see how nice you can make yourself look. Another question, Felicia, dear, on your honor now, who washed the windows last week?"

"I couldn't get the regular man to do it, and they were so dirty we couldn't see out of them. I don't do them very often."

"Well, you handle better! I tell you confidentially that it makes me darn mad. If you can't get some one to do them, let them go. We don't have to look out of the windows. We can turn on the lights and enjoy the interior of our little home."

"Ridiculous!"

"No, I'm not in sensible as I told you before. I ought to now and look in the hall mirror, you'll admit it."

Felicia rose with a disdainful little shrug and went to the mirror. Jack grinned when he heard her gasp.

"Oh, gracious!" she cried. "Where did you get that frightful old picture of Grandma Green?"

"I filched it from your Uncle Ben's photograph album when I was out at High Corners last week. He told me that she was just 41 when that was taken. I don't wish to hurt your feelings, Felicia, but she looks like 60 at least. Ben said she was a marvelous housekeeper—that she kept everything, I fear, except her face. That seems to have lost its glow rather early in life."

"Poor old grandma! She did work herself to death."

"Just what I thought, I tell you, dearie," Jack's tone was most emphatic, "I don't ever want to discover any striking resemblance between you and your Grandmother Green. Any time I find you scouring the sink the way you did tonight or ironing Nancy's clothes or doing any of the things you don't have to do, up goes that photograph as a warning."

"Jack you are ridiculous!" said Felicia in a voice trembling with both laughter and tears.—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

David Broderick, the Stonecutter, U. S. Senator

David Broderick, United States senator, is remembered not only for the strenuous part he took in the days when the struggle over Kansas, just before the Civil war, threatened to bring on war, but also for his tragic death, in a duel with a political opponent. If David Broderick had been less outspoken in his upholding of what he believed to be the right he would not have been challenged to a duel, and he would have lived to develop new powers. He died in 1859 at a time when feeling in the United States ran high. The struggle over the admission of Kansas was on really the first open struggle between the forces of the north and those of the south. In that early contest, John Brown of Osawatomie was one martyr, for he was goaded to desperation by the Kansas fights in which [illegible] took part. David Broderick was another.

Flu Sufferers Take Tanlac

Has flu left you more tired than ever? Let Tanlac pick you right up and put you back in fighting shape again. Your system needs just such a natural tonic. Thousands of other men and women who were weak and run-down after flu are now happy and vigorous again. Dizziness, weakness, wobbly knees, heavy feet no longer bother them.

Natural in action, because natural in its ingredients, Tanlac revitalizes the blood, tones up the digestive organs and invigorates the whole system. It is compounded from nature's own storehouse of herbs, barks and roots.

As an added precaution, keep your bowels open with mild-acting Tanlac Vegetable Pills.

Still Explaining

Dan and Sam, two boys in the seventh grade, took a good deal alike. The teacher started to call on Dan to answer a question the other day, but before she had pronounced the final consonant of the boy's name, she realized it was Sam and not Dan she was addressing. Whereupon she finished with the final consonant in the name of Sam. As her tone was clear and unmistakable, the class was thrown into a state of pious consternation and the teacher is still explaining.

Many Women Use Simple Mixture

Women appreciate the quick action of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika. This relieves GAS from the stomach in ten minutes and brings out surprising amounts of old waste matter you never thought was in your system. Adlerika stops that full, bloated feeling and makes you enjoy eating. It is an excellent intestinal evacuant for the relief of obstinate constipation or sluggish stomach trouble.—Enzler's Broadway Pharmacy, corner Broadway and Main in Taftville, Benoit's Pharmacy.

FOUR COUNTY DETECTIVES JOIN STATE POLICE

Coroner Investigator William E. Harris of New London, attached to the office of State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown of this city, is one of four county detectives who have joined the state police department at the request of Governor Trumbull, who is determined to have independent county detectives, as such, to be eliminated by the close of the fiscal year, June 30, and thenceforth to have the state police furnish detectives for use by state attorneys. The other three detectives who have attached themselves to the state police organization are William S. Kearns, attached to the office of State's Attorney [illegible] Sullivan, attached to the office of State's Attorney [illegible] Wheeler, attached to the office of Assistant State's Attorney [illegible] Attorney Aaron A. Allyn of New London county.

The four county detectives who have accepted appointments to the state police force have been given active duties with the latter organization on May 1. The salary of County Detective Lewis will be $3,000 per year and the salaries of the others as follows: Kearns $2,100 and Nickerson and Kelly $3,000 each. The salaries of the three remaining county detectives at the end of the last fiscal year were as follows: Jackson $2[illegible] Thompson $2[illegible] 600, and Hickey $3,000.

The plan to induct the county detectives was approved last week by the state board of control. If the change had been made under the law adopted at the last session of the legislature it would have been impossible to pay the state detective's office more than the regular state police pay of $5 per day. The pay of clerks in the state police department, however is not limited, and the state board of control in approving the plan for induction of the four county detectives into the state police department, created four new "clerkships" and appointed Lewis and the other three detectives to the offices.

HAD CAFETERIA LUNCH AT CIRCLE MEETING

Sixteen members and one visitor attended the meeting of Comfort Circle of the King's Daughters, held Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Alvin D. Lewis, of Asylum street. In the absence of the leader, Mrs. A. T. Utley, the vice leader Mrs. J. H. Allen conducted the devotional exercises. Finishing sewing for the United Workers occupied part of the meeting. The annual cafeteria lunch was held, in charge of the social committee, Mrs. Edward Adams, chairman. This netted about $10 to add to the circle's fund for charitable purposes.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY MAKES CHANGE IN FISCAL YEAR; CONTINUES OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Backus hospital auxiliary was held Wednesday afternoon in the class room of the new nurses' residence, with a good attendance and was called to order at 4:15 by the president, Mrs. W. F. Lester.

Three amendments to the constitution were adopted. The first provides for membership in the junior division for any person under 18, the annual fee to be 25 cents. Another changes the time for the payment of membership fees to October 1, annually in advance, unless the dates of payment are fixed by the executive committee and the third changes the time for the annual meeting to October, at a time and place subject to the call of the board of directors.

It was then voted that the term of office of the following officers and directors be continued until the annual meeting of the auxiliary in October: President, Mrs. Walter S. Lester; vice presidents, Mrs. F. B. Rickelson, Mrs. Wittar K. Tingley, Mrs. J. N. Rosenberg, recording secretary, Mrs. J. S. Stalker; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. S. Comstock, treasurer, Miss Isabel H. Mitchell; directors, Mrs. E. LaRue Bliven, Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins, M. . Frederick W. Cary.

Because of the change made in the fiscal year the reading of the annual reports was postponed until October but the president made mention of the splendid progress of the work during the past year, referring especially to the fine financial showing and more than $3,000 having been raised, and to the membership which now numbers 1401. She also took occasion at this point to thank the members of the standing committees for their help and co-operation and to the auxiliary at large for their generous response always, whether donations or for the services.

The standing chairmen at present are as follows:

Membership, Mrs. Allyn L. Brownell, Mrs. Alvin E. Paxson, Mrs. Joseph P. Cummings, auditing, Mrs. Harry B. Hagan, gifts and flowers, Mrs. Alexander H. Absolon, [illegible] Mrs. Hannah Crowell, [illegible] Mrs. Walter T. Camp, Mrs. Mary Stratton, donations, Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll, [illegible] services, Mrs. John C. In New London [illegible] the hospital. In speaking of the auxiliary's work with the hospital, some things to be avoided were brought out, one of which was for individuals who wished to donate articles to the hospital, to call upon the chairman having that particular work in charge and thus avoid innumerable unnecessary telephone calls to the hospital office; also that those who have notified the proper chairman that they have articles to donate should await patiently the regular collection day.

In view of the fact that Miss Kathleen Dowd has presented her resignation and will soon severe her connection as superintendent of the nurses training school, the president took occasion, also, to thank Miss Dowd for the assistance for her splendid co-operation and called upon her for suggestions for further helpfulness.

Miss Dowd responded by expressing her appreciation of the splendid work done for the hospital and asked the members always to keep in mind the needs of the nurses as well and suggested the establishment of a training school fund as being very needful in providing comforts and pleasure for the student nurses.

Mrs. Lester expressed much appreciation of the [illegible] for the hospital auxiliary work that had been accorded by the [illegible] members.

After adjournment of the business meeting tea and social chat were served in the [illegible] assistance the decorations being [illegible] and white.

A beautiful bouquet of roses was presented to Miss Dowd [illegible] roses to Student [illegible] Leah Hargrave.

Delightful [illegible] were rendered by Miss Elizabeth and Miss Nancy Stalker. The [illegible] were chosen by Mrs. F. W. Perkins, Mrs. A. S. Comstock, Mrs. F. B. Rickelson, and Mrs. S. LaRue Bliven, the ushers and assistants by Mrs. J. N. Rosenberg. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Arthur H. Jackson, Mrs. Charles L. Lewis, Mrs. Mary Hagan and Mrs. W. Marvin Pitkin.

The afternoon tea was a [illegible] [illegible] Tingley [illegible] Mrs. Walter S. Lester, Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins, Mrs. A. S. Comstock, Mrs. F. B. Rickelson, and Mrs. S. TOWN STREET MEETING ALSO APPROVES SCHOOL

Proposals for a new school building in the north end of Norwich Town section of the town, which had been explained Tuesday evening by the town school board to a citizens' meeting at the West Town street schoolhouse, were laid before a similar meeting Wednesday evening at the Town street schoolhouse where there was a somewhat larger meeting than the night before.

President Walter F. Lester, who presided, and Superintendent E. J. Graham made the principal explanations and were seconded by Robert McNeely and Edward G. McKay, members of the school board.

Many residents of the district participated in the discussion and considerable contention arose over some details, but this was all eventually [illegible] and the meeting passed a unanimous vote of approval for a new school building in the fourth district, as the West Town street meeting did on Tuesday evening.

FORECLOSURE BROUGHT ON NEW LONDON MORTGAGE

A foreclosure action has been brought in the superior court by the Mariners Savings bank of New London against Charles Benanti of Los Angeles, Cal., to recover on a promissory note for $7,000 Jefferson O. Bailey of Groton and Meyer H. Hollandersky are made party defendants, they claiming to have liens on the property which is located near the intersection of Jefferson avenue and Grand street.

It is alleged that the note, payable on demand, was given to the bank Dec. 6 1924, and secured by a mortgage on the property.

Wilcox was driving [illegible] South Windham, opposite the Stiles home. Wilcox says he was driving [illegible] ward the city and as the approaching car's lights came the lights of another vehicle going in the opposite direction blinded him. Being unfamiliar with the road he did not realize the sharpness of the turn. Upon noticing his predicament Wilcox applied his brakes and the machine skidded sideways on the wet road, bounding on a culvert and coming to a stop across the lane. The front of the car was damaged and some of the glass broken. The machine was towed to this city [illegible]

GOVERNOR TRUMBULL VISITS THE SUBMARINE BASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 28. Governor John H. Trumbull and his official staff were in New London today, making an official visit to the submarine base on the Thames and in connection with the visit took their first dive in a submarine. The distinguished party arrived in New London at 10 o'clock by automobile and at once went to the submarine base where they inspected the personnel of the base, following which the visitors inspected the entire base. At 12:30 o'clock they had luncheon and at 1:30 o'clock the official party boarded the S-3 and went to Long Island sound where the undersea craft engaged in various maneuverers including a deep sea dive. Others of the party were Commander E. J. King, of the submarine base and staff. The S-3 returned to the base about 5 o'clock, after which the distinguished party left for Hartford. Governor Trumbull was accompanied by two state police officers from the Hartford barracks.

WITHDRAWAL IN SUIT OVER TRUCK BURNING

Clerk George D. Parsons of the superior court has received a withdrawal without costs from the docket in the $12,000 damage suit of the Shipps Kindergarten Inc. of New London and New York against the Insurance Co. of North America, with an office in New London.

It was alleged that on or about Jan 28, 1925 at New York city for the consideration of $24.25 the defendant insured the plaintiff in the sum of [illegible] on the shipment of goods and merchandise consisting of knit goods to be transferred by truck of A. Goldman from New York to New London. The shipment consisted of 201 bundles of knit goods, valued at $10,384.64. About 12 miles from New London on the New London New Haven turnpike near Flanders, the entire shipment was destroyed by fire on April 17, 1925. The plaintiff gave notice of the loss but has received no part of the $10,000.

GREENE PITCHES BRILLIANT GAME AGAINST WEAVER HIGH OF HARTFORD

Striking out 14 batters and allowing only six scattered hits Johnny Greene pitching for the Academy turned in one of the prettiest games of his pitching career at the school on Wednesday afternoon when Weaver High was beaten by a score of 6 to 5. Greene deserved a much better margin of victory than was accorded him by his teamates who played sloppy ball behind him. Four technical errors and a number of errors of ommission which do not show in the box score gave Weaver an opportunity to creep up on the 6 to 0 lead the Academy acquired in the first four innings.

Weaver also played a ragged game in the field being credited with 8 errors, four of which were made by the third baseman. The Academy was only able to get seven hits off the deliveries of Barnes, Mooney and Montie. Barnes, a right hander, lasted three innings and was replaced by Mooney in the fourth after three hits and a sacrifice had been made. Mooney pitched to two batters but was unable to locate the plate and passed both men. This finished Mooney and Montie took up the burden and held the Academy for the remainder of the game.

Greene proved a puzzle to the Weaver batters all through the game and showed not the least sign of weakening at any time throughout the game although his support was not at all that it should have. Johnny worked a fast and slow ball with a deceptive change of pace and his curves broke with a sharpness that completely baffled his opponents. He did not issue a pass and hit only one batter who deliberately stepped into one of his slow ones.

Weaver threatened in the first inning and then did not show anything until the sixth inning. With one down in the first inning Sklar hit a triple to right field. Phelps who followed him lifted one to Lloyd Jarvis in centerfield and a perfect throw by Jarvis to Greene nailed the runner trying to score from third. The Academy also threatened in the first inning but runners were stranded on second and third.

The Academy tallied in the second inning when with one down Barnes passed Brewer and Mish. Greene hit to short and all were safe when the ball was played to second. Cimikoski hit to the pitcher and Brewer was forced at the plate. Sadinsky hit to short and a fumble lowed Mish to score and Sadinsky was safe. Jarvis forced Sadinsky.

Another run was added in the third inning when Yerrington singled to center. Tombari fanned and Burke popped out to Battistini. Brewer doubled to left scoring Yerrington. Brewer was out at the plate when he tried to score from second on Slossberg's error.

By bunching hits which were helped out by a couple of bases on balls and an error the Academy scored four runs. Greene, the first man up singled and advanced on Cimikoski's single Sadinsky sacrificed and every one was safe. With the bags loaded Jarvis singled to centerfield scoring Greene but Cimikoski was held at third. This ended Barnes turn in the box. Mooney was sent in to pitch and walked Yerrington forcing in another run. Tombari also walked and Sadinsky scored. Mooney was through and Montie took up the pitching burden. Montie was a left handed and although another run scored during the inning he was effective. Jarvis scored the last run of the inning and game on an error by Battistini.

Weaver's first score came in the sixth inning when the Academy infield momentarily lost their baseball sense. Greene fanned the first man to face him in this inning but in pitching to Greenbaum he hit the batter. Montie singled to right and Brewer left the ball get away from him. Greenbaum going to third and Montie to second. Slossberg hit to Tombari who fumbled and threw wide of the bag allowing Greenbaum and Montie to score. Slossberg went to third on the play. Sklar hit to Cimikoski who held the ball watching the runner on third score and then tossed to Burke too late to get the runner. Sklar stole and Phelps filed out to Sadinsky. Then Orefice doubled bringing in the fourth run.

Weaver scored again in the eighth inning on Brewer's error and infield out and a sacrifice fly. This ended the scoring for both teams.

One of the bright spots of the game was the cheering section of the Academy. It seemed like old times to hear the good old Academy cheers ring out and it is one of the things that makes a game attractive and interesting. Cheer Leaders Moore, Palmer and Woods put in a good afternoon leading the cheering and with a little more practice the Academy cheering section will be one of the features of the games. Little does the average fan realize the encouragement a cheering section puts into a team Many are the games that have been won by the cheer leaders by simply encouraging a team to put forth its best efforts. It is rather discouraging to players to have silent stands to play to and find that their school mates are not with them even in spirit. It's good stuff and let's have more of it.

NILES LOSES TWO DECISIONS IN COURT

PARIS, April 28.—(AP)—Marcel Nilles, the French heavyweight lost two decisions today.

Both of them were in damage suits had had brought growing out of his fight with Jack Taylor in September, 1924. When he left the ring in the sixth round complaining of a broken hand. Not only did he lose the decision, but the court imposed costs upon him besides.

The first case was Nilles suit against D. Sebenci, the physician who examined his hand after the bout. The doctor said he would have to take an X-ray before diagnosing the injury and as a result, Nilles, claimed, the boxing fans misunderstood the situation and developed pronounced anti-Nilles prejudices.

Nilles asked one franc damage for this and vindication in six newspapers, but the court found Dr. Sebenci blameless.

The second case grew out of the action of the French boxing federation in withdrawing Nilles' license when he sued the doctor. He asked 100,000 francs damages from the federation and return of his license. The court also decided against him in this case declaring that there was no ground for action.

Nilles was represented by Alcide Delmont, at one time legal advisor for the late Battling Siki.

SILVER FOX WINS FEATURE AT JAMAICA OPENING

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP)—Fifteen thousand persons attended the opening of the northern racing season at the Jamaica track today and saw Silver Fox, at 6 to 1, win the feature Paumonok handicap easily, with Bud Fisher's Cartoonet second and Navigator third. Laverne Fator rode the winner.

Noan favorite in the event after his victory in the Harford at Havre de Grave, placed fourth after running himself out in a head to head battle with Conde to the stretch. Silver Fox coming around the field to win by half a length while Navigator was a length behind Cartoonist. The time for the six furlongs was 1.12.

The fourth race at Jamaica, the Larchmont handicap, went to Sun Pal, followed by Postillion and Tamarind. Senator Norris, Sarazen and Powder also ran, the six furlongs being covered in 1.12 2-5.

Grass Maid, Bosh and Rockford finished in that order in the New Weathern Hotel handicap at Columbus. The time for the 1 1-16 miles was 1.59 3-5.

FOSTER TO BE CHAIRMAN OF R. I. BOXING BOARD

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 28.—(AP)—Edward C. Foster of Providence was elected chairman of Rhode Island's newly-created boxing commission at the first meeting of that organization today. Mr. Foster announced that the Rhode Island commission would probably affiliate with the National association, and would base its rules upon a combination of the New York and Massachusetts codes, selecting the sections of both.

There would be no opposition on the part of the boxing commission to a Dempsey-Wills bout or any other big match, he said, providing that the police commissioners of the city involved approved. Bouts of 12 rounds are permitted in Rhode Island.

PRINCETON TAKES SHORT GAME FROM DARTMOUTH

PRINCETON, N. AMERICAN LEAGUE OWNERS TO ALLOW RESIN BAG

NEW YORK, April 20—(AP)—American league magnates today voted to abide by the letter of the resin bag rule.

In compliance with a recent opinion of baseball Commissioner Landis making the use of resin optional with pitchers of all leagues, the club owners adopted a resolution under which their umpires will be provided with the "foreign substance". At the same time, however, the magnates indicated continued disapproval of the use of resin by instructing managers to request pitchers to abstain from drying their hands on the bag.

GROVES PITCHES NICE GAME ONLY TO LOSE IN EIGHTH

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP)—Although Lefty Groves of the Athletics struck out eleven batters today, he failed to stop the Yankee winning streak. Scoreless baseball prevailed between the Philadelphia and New York teams until the eighth, when the Hugmen rallied to score three runs, their winning margin

It made a clean sweep of the series and was the Yanks fifth straight victory. Sam Jones, who was knocked from the box in both of his last starts, showed a great reversal of form and limited Mack's men to three hits.

O'FARRELL HOMER IN NINTH WINS FOR CARDS

CINCINNATI, April 28.—(AP)—O'Farrell's drive into the bleachers for a home run in the ninth inning after Bell had doubled broke the tie in that period and gave St. Louis a 5 to 3 victory over Cincinnati today. Eppa Rixey, the Red's twirler, making his first start of the season, was hit hard during the early innings, being relieved by Jakie May in the sixth.

WESTERLY

MORE PETIT JURORS SUMMONED BY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 28—To avoid the possibility of a shortage of petit jurors when adjournment is taken of the April term of superior court for Washington county on next Monday to the county court house, Westerly, to take up the Westerly trial calendar, Clerk W. Herbert Caswell has notified town clerks to make their levies for additional jurymen.

Westerly Town Sergeant George L. Madison has been issued warrants by Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple for additional petit jurors as follows:

Ralph G Bliven, automobile salesman; Clement B. Tallon, millhand; Thomas H. Shea, electrician; Allan C. Whitford, accountant; Harry W. Gavitt, clerk; Antonio L. Panciera, garage keeper; Moses Payne, Jr., plumber and Antonio Nardone, foreman.

These additional jurors have been summoned to appear at the Washington county court house in Westerly on Monday morning at 10.45 o'clock.

So many jurors were excluded from duty at the Kingston sitting during the past two weeks that when the last jury was empanneled to try cases in the criminal docket, but eight spare jurors remained when the jury box was filled. There are many times that two full jury panels of 12 men each are acting on cases in superior court, hence the need of additional summons to assist in the speedy clearing of the trial calendar.

The ringing, intermittently of the fire bell on the Union street engine house of the Westerly fire department continued Wednesday morning and afternoon, but there was not much attention paid to it for it was thought to be caused by a loose or broken wire connection somewhere along the six circuits coming into the switchboard in the engineers' room. The work of placing about 15 miles of new wiring in place is being rushed to completion and when in use will be connected with the new switchboard, twice the size of the old board. The old circuits can then be discarded.

President Willard H. Bacon presided at the noonday luncheon on Wednesday of the Westerly Lions club. The entertainment committee consisted of Vincent L. Percy, D. Everett Hoxie and Thomas Lenihan, who secured the after dinner speaker.

Leslie H. Tyler, of New Haven, special representative of the department of public relations of the New Haven railroad was introduced and spoke along the line of the development and of idea of transportation and the progress made by the New Haven road in this endeavor.

He said in part that out of the desire for transportation from a historic point of view came the early origin when man first conceived the idea of dragging something on the ground. The wheel was a development of great importance in transportation and its use greatly perfected with the introduction of rails. In the line of advancement, he said, the New Haven road had always been progressive in recognizing the value of innovation. The first railroad built about 1827 between Quincy and Charlestown, Mass., for the purpose of hauling granite for the Bunker Hill monument, is now a part of the New Haven system. Outlining innovations, the Lions were told that the New Haven road had been a pioneer in electrification, and in advance of other railroads and had more complete systems along these lines. In the adoption of the use of busses, their general use had been taken up more than other railroads.

Leading up to the point of view of efficiency in locomotive reduction of costs, or the use of inventions, as superheaters, the consumption of coal has been reduced, and other costs lessened. From the belief in cooperation the company realized that it had got to please the public, that it had got to give service. This belief was impressed on all employees and a letter was read from the company president along these lines.

Speaking of the railroad earnings on the basis of valuating, the 4.75 per cent. figure set by the Inter-State commission, it was the belief that the valuation was set too low and that the companies should be allowed to raise more money on a higher valuation.

Rhode Island, of the four states to furnish traffic for the New Haven system, was named the leader and the great amount of transportation furnished between Boston and New York was stated to be the greatest of any in the country.

Librarian Miss Adele C. Martin and assistants, Miss Doris K. Appel and Miss Gladys Sezar, of the Westerly Memorial and public library on Wednesday attended the annual meeting of the Rhode Island library association in Woonsocket, R. I. The session was held in the council chamber of the Woonsocket City hall.

President Clarence E. Sherman assistant librarian of the Providence public library, was re-elected president.

Miss Adele C. Martin, of Westerly was elected second vice president.

Ladies Auxiliary, No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians of Westerly, held its 20th anniversary banquet on Monday evening in the Colonial club on High street. President Mrs. Katherine Shea presiding at the postprandial introduced County President Mrs. Margaret O'Connell, who acted as toastmistress.

Miss Mary Harvey, state treasurer, gave an interesting address and the remarks of the organization chaplain, Rev. J. F. Wilcent, S. M., were warmly received. The meeting was also honored by Rev. Charles Doherty, S. M., of Washington, D. C.

The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of the following: Mrs. Margaret O'Connell, chairlady; Mrs. Katherine Shea, Miss Margaret Murphy, Miss Mary Harvey Mrs. Foberg, Mrs. Nellie O'Connell, Mrs. Mary Keane, Mrs. May Lynch, Mrs B Burke and Miss Eliza Fay.

The death of John William Culver-well, a resident of Westerly for many years, occurred on Tuesday in Pawtucket, R. I. Mr. Culverwell, after an illness of some duration, died in his 68th year from the infirmities of old age. When living in Westerly he was employed as a painter and decorator by the firm of Stanton & Ware, later the C. G. Stanton company, and after moving to Pawtucket, about 17 years ago he continued to follow his trade.

He is survived by one son, Charles Culverwell, and two daughters, Miss Marjorie Culverwell and Mrs. Minnie Powers. The son is leader of the dance orchestra at Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet and Miss Marjorie is a professional singer of considerable repute in musical circle of Providence and Pawtucket.

The assembly hall of the Bradford grammar school of Westerly, at Bradford, R. I., was taxed to capacity on Tuesday evening when over 100 pupils of the school staged a health pageant, that proved both entertaining and instructive.

The hundred or more pupils in the pageant were coached and directed by Miss Jenny B. Stanton, assisted by Misses Louise Frechette and Charlotte Percy, and the other teachers in the school. The orchestra was directed by Mrs. M. E. True.

The proceeds of the entertainment will be used to buy orchestra music and pictures for the school rooms. A large number from Westerly were present last evening.

Representative and Mrs. Clifford W. Campbell returned to their Westerly home Wednesday afternoon after a three weeks absence, which has included a trip to the Pacific coast and into Mexico.

Robert Duff is confined to his home in Westerly with an attack of pneumonia.

P. S. Barber Hose company, Paw-catuck, responded to a telephone call soon after 6 o'clock Tuesday night, for a brush fire below the plant of the C. B. Cottrell and Sons Co. printing press works on Mechanic street, Pawcatuck. A number of reaches were drawn up on the Pawcatuck river bank, but yet having been put overboard, when the advancing flames threatened. The firemen soon had the fire out and returned to their quarters on Liberty street.

Musical Stenography

A Swiss, M. Henry Reymond, has devised a system of musical stenography that promises to solve a problem that for more than 100 years has perplexed musical thinkers.

The system would enable any one conversant with it to sit at a concert and not down the full orchestrated score.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and rundown that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

WHEN YOU WANT to put your business before the public there is no better medium than through The Bulletin.

Skinny Frail Folks Speedily Gain Weight

The greatest strength-giver and producer of good healthy flesh in the world is Cod Liver Oil—it's full of vitamines.

But it's nasty stuff—ill-smelling and hard to take and usually upsets the stomach.

Thank goodness! we don't have to even smell it any more, for now Lee & Osgood Co. and all druggists are selling McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, sugar-coated, and as easy to take as candy, so that you can get the real Cod Liver Oil in condensed form and get just the same results as with the horrible smelling liquid.

Men and women, weak, thin and nervous, are urged to put on weight and get back their health and strength with these wonderful tablets.

One woman gained 15 pounds in five weeks and that's going fast enough for anyone.

Only 60 cents for 60 tablets, and if they don't put five pounds of flesh on any thin person in 30 days your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for it.

"But be sure and get McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablet."

Peter Is Startled

Here's some advice that's hard to beat: Where'er you are, just watch your feet.

—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit wasn't of much use around home these days. He was quite well aware of it. You see, over there at the Old Briar-patch were half a dozen new babies. Mrs. Peter fussed over them too much. He himself didn't fuss over them at all. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Peter preferred not to have him around. He was forever in the way. She was afraid he would step on one of the babies. She was afraid he would be rough with them. She had all sorts of foolish fears.

So Peter spent a great deal of his time out in the Green Forest. The truth is he rather enjoyed his freedom. He didn't feel bad about it a bit. It was rather nice to be able to go to sleep when he felt like it, without having to tell where he had been. It was rather nice to be able to start off somewhere without having to tell where he was going. It was rather nice to be as lazy as he pleased without being called lazy. So Peter was having a good time, while little Mrs. Peter took care of the precious babies in the dear Old Briar-patch.

It happened that as Peter was hurrying along through the Green Forest late one afternoon he was startled almost out of his wits by having Mrs. Grouse up right in his face. He was so startled that he jumped off to one side. Instantly Mrs. Grouse was after him. She actually looked fierce. "Why don't you watch your step, Peter Rabbit," she demanded sharply.

"What's the matter with my step?" cried Peter, and he spoke rather crossly. "I'd like to know what business it is of yours, Mrs. Grouse, whether I watch my step or not."

"You'll find it's very much my business, if you step on one of my babies," retorted Mrs. Grouse.

Peter blinked. "Who's stepping on your babies?" said he crossly.

"No one is now, and I don't mean that any one shall, if I can prevent it," declared Mrs. Grouse. "You came as near to stepping on one as you very well could and not do it."

"Who's stepping on your babies?" said he crossly

Peter stared all around and then he stared at Mrs. Grouse. "I don't know what you're talking about," said he. "I don't see any babies, and anyway you haven't any business leaving them around where other folks can step on them. Some mothers are careless. Where are your babies, anyhow?"

"Cluck, cluck!" said Mrs. Grouse. Instantly ten of the prettiest little babies in all the Green Forest, little brown fluffy babies, sprang up as if the very leaves had come to life. They came scampering to their mother. Peter counted them. There were ten. But Peter was still disgruntled. He had been startled and he didn't like it. "Why don't you keep your children with you where they won't be stepped on?" said he. "It is a pity when honest people cannot go out walking without danger of their stepping on their neighbor's children. What are they hiding for, anyway?"

"They were hiding because I told them to hide," replied Mrs. Grouse. "I heard you coming, but I didn't know who it was. So we played safe. It is always the best way, to play safe."

Peter chuckled. "It seems to me those babies weren't as safe as you thought they were," said he. "I'm glad I didn't step on one, but for goodness sake, Mrs. Grouse, do find some way of hiding them without leaving them around where honest people may step on them."

...Never before

—a coffee that has pleased so many people

"Good to the last drop"

Almost overnight it has captured the great cities of America. An added goodness—a flavor of unexpected richness has swiftly spread its fame from coast to coast. A few years ago only a few discriminating families and famous hotels knew that special touch of rare goodness in Maxwell House Coffee. Today this blend is by far the largest selling coffee in the entire United States. Here is an adventure hard to resist—the same tantalizing flavor and aroma that first won it the praise of connoisseurs years ago.

Today America's largest selling high grade coffee

POETRY

Cowslips

Cowslips, sweetlips, smelling of the summer,
Coming with the cuckoo bringing in the May,
Lifting heads in pastures, where the cattle spare you,
Waiting to be gathered when the children come to play . . .

Faint and soft and honield, fragrant as the kine's breath,
Wafted airs of cowslips gladden London streets;
Yellow-speckled handfuls, pennyworths of sunshine,
To the dusty passers they are lavish of their sweets . . .

Kindly was the thought for children who this Maytime
Weave no cowslip necklace, wind no cowslip ball;
London parks are gay with beds of guarded blossom,
But, to pluck and treasure—not a cowslip 'n them all.

Cowslips, sweetlips, smelling of the country,
Coming with the cuckoo, bringing in the May,
Straight and tall and slender, springing in the pastures,
Waiting to be gathered when the children come to play.

—Stephen Lucius Gwynn.

Madrono

Captain of the Western wood,
Thou that apest Robin Hood!
Green above thy scarlet hose,
How thy velvet mantle shows!
Never tree like thee arrayed,
O thou gallant of the glade!

When the fervid August sun
Scorches all its looks upon,
And the balsam of the pine
Drips from stem to needle fine,
Round thy compact shade arranged,
Not a leaf of thee is changed.

When the yellow autumn sun
Saddens all it looks upon
Spreads its sackcloth on the hills,
Strews its ashes in the rills,
Thou thy scarlet hose dost doff,
And in limbs of purest buff
Challengest the sombre glade
For a sylvan masquerade.

—Francis Bret Harte.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Does the landlord ask too much rent at your place, Mrs. Smith?

I'll say he does; he asked for it six times last week.—Detroit News.

Moe—Sol made a mistek when he went in the coaling business.

Joe—For vy?

Moe—He opened in a really fireproof building.—Columbia Jester.

By the way, old man, how's that new Florida bungalow of yours?

Fine—we've just had her hauled out and put in drydock so we can get the cellar painted.—Life.

Phyllis—Did she remember you on your birthday?

Doris—Yes; she gave me a date-book with her birthday printed in red.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

I demand a year's imprisonment for the accused.

Have you anything to add, accused?

No, I would rather subtract.—Stockholm Kasper.

Father, I need a new riding habit.

Can't afford it!

But, father, what am I to do without a riding habit?

Get the walking habit.—University of Pittsburgh Panther.

"My motto," said the very sensitive man, "is: Buy dirt cheap and sell in the highest market. What do you think of it?"

"Well," replied the quiet little man, "I don't really know. You see, I've never bought dirt."—Good Hardware.

Little Betty and her mother were having lunch together, and her mother, who always tried to impress facts upon her young daughter, said:

These little sardines, Betty, are sometimes eaten by the larger fish.

But mother, how do the large fish get the cans open?—The Progressive Grocer.

Michael Constantine de Courcy Patron Kingsale, is the only man in Great Britain who may if he wishes, keep on his hat in the presence of the king. The peer enjoys this privilege by virtue of an hereditary prerogative granted to Sir John de Courcy in the reign of King John, for conquering Ulster. History records that this privilege has been exercised two times, the last occasion being in 1821, when John de Courcy, successor to Gerald, Lord Kingsale, stood with his head covered in the presence of Queen Victoria.

Life on Umatilla lightship, stationed in the Pacific 125 miles off the Washington coast, is a rolling one. Captain E. H. Lindman master of the vessel, calculates the ship averages 20,000 rolls of 10 to 45 degrees every 24 hours, or nearly 1,000 an hour. The ship is similar to lighthouses but is even more isolated. It warns ships off one of several dangerous reefs near the Strait of Juan de Fuca the entrance to Puget sound. The Umatilla is 27 years old and for the last 15 has guarded the reef so well there have been no wrecks.

CHAS. E. SCHALL TO SHOW COUNCIL NEW LONDON BATH CLUB TRESPASSES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 28—Friday evening Charles E. Schall and his attorney will anpear before the city council, the latter sitting as a committee, to hear the complaint of Mr. Schall that the Bath and Beach club has encroached upon city property on Pequot avenue. Mr. Schall has presented his case, but then the counsel for the Bath and Beach club was not present and to permit his attendance the hearing was adjourned till Friday. The matter has been before the city council, but it could not be settled there, so the hearing was arranged for. It is understood that the Bath and Beach club is only a lessee of the land on which its bathhouses stand.

MISSING WM. SHRAGOWITZ NOT HEARD FROM WEDNESDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 28—No trace of William Shragowitz, 39, of 851 Bank street, an agent in the employ of the local branch of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, was found today by the police. A check-up is being made of Shragowitz's private affairs for the purpose of attempting to reveal a possible motive for his having committed suicide. The police lend but little credence to the report that Shragowitz has ended his life by drowning off Ocean Beach and are more inclined to the opinion that he is in hiding for purposes best known to himself. Shragowitz's accounts with the insurance company are intact and correct so that it is not any financial difficulty that has caused the man to disappear so suddenly. When Shragowitz's automobile was found abandoned at the beach late yesterday his coat was in the car and in one of the pockets was a check for $144 made payable to Shragowitz and endorsed by him, the check having been drawn Monday and its endorsement shows that he intended to cash the instrument which he would not do if he contemplated early self-destruction.

Shragowitz's automobile was found abandoned Tuesday afternoon near the parking space off Bentley avenue, close to the bathing pavilion, where it had remained since late Monday afternoon or early Monday evening. The police were notified and instituted an investigation. A check-up of Shragowitz's movements Monday was complete up to 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, but after that hour the missing man's movements cannot be traced.

Shragowitz is married and has several children. He is well known, being a member of several fraternal organizations.

BRITISH RUM ROW FLEET HAS FADED FROM MONTAUK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 28—It is stated by vessel crews coming in from the sea that the so-called Rum Row is no more and that there is not a vessel at anchor off Montauk Point where British ships formerly anchored to permit smaller craft to come off and load with liquor. The Coast Guard is credited with having disbanded the liquor carriers. But the question is asked "Where does the liquor come from that is so easily obtained here and elsewhere?" And the answer comes that what is disposed of for whiskey is not that liquor but a solution of alcohol and water that is colored by the use of burnt sugar or caramel. It has the effect of producing intoxication nevertheless and has what its users call "the kick."

The police had a motley group to hand out justice to this morning. It included largely men accused of intoxication and vagrancy. Patrick O'Brien was arrested on Montauk avenue for vagrancy, but he manifestly was not without means of support and deposited a bond for $25 when he was taken into custody. He declared that he was a dog Tray in the predicament he found himself in, saying that he came here from Fishers Island, where he sought work and did not find it. O'Brien claimed he had worked at Norwich, Westerly and Potter Hill, and finishing there he came to the island after employment. He was accused with John Finn, who had worked at Lawrence hospital till he decided to go on a spree. Patrick said he met Finn by chance and happened to be with him when Finn was arrested. The latter pleaded guilty of intoxication, but O'Brien denied that he was a vagrant or that he was intoxicated. He said he was honestly in search of employment. In both cases judgment was suspended, that the accused might get back to work.

John Conlon was arrested on North Bank street for intoxication. He said he pleaded guilty to protect a fellow who was his chum when the arrest was made. John and others were loitering about when Sergeant Cavanaugh, in plain clothes, directed the party to move along, that they would not be blocking the sidewalk. Some one in the group passed an insinuating remark and Conlon was picked out as the offender. He admitted the charge and was arrested. He was fined $5, just to remind him that he did an unwise thing.

Frank Desplaines didn't appreciate a good turn when he was allowed to go from the court Monday for he was back there this morning. Today he was fined $10 for intoxication, and that penalty took him to jail.

Ruth Newcomb was fined $5 for violation of the parking ordinance, as she has been in court more than once for the same offense.

Herman Quandt was charged, with parking his car on State street unlawfully, but as he had never been accused until now, judgment was suspended.

Patches on the pavement about the city in the highway are being removed and brick is displacing the concrete that was put down during the winter. The bricks could not be placed while there was frost in the ground so the work was delayed till now.

The funeral of Esther M., widow of John J. Bennett, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of her son, Robert A. Korb, 148 Willetta avenue, the services being conducted by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Charles Warner, of Huntington street; Willard Bick, United States Coast Guard, state pier; Mrs. George Carver, 28 Rogers street; Stanley Plona, 25 Wightman street; Baby Robert Anderson, 61 Golden street, and Mrs. Alphonse Benois, and infant daughter, 259 Huntington street, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Joseph N. LaPointe has sold a building lot on Morgan street to Bessie Elgart.

An automobile owned and operated by George Panteles, 21 Steward street, and a car owned and driven by Emery Streeter, of Waterford, were in collision this morning at the corner of State and Main street. Both cars were damaged.

Alexander Plona, 13 Archer court, aged 7, engaged in a quarrel with a companion, Jerry Potter, 7, of 73 Shaw street, this evening and during the quarrel the Potter youth attacked the Plona boy with a knife. The latter suffered several lacerations of the neck and back from which he bled profusely. Because of the youthfulness of the knife-wielder, the Potter boy was not taken into custody, but was given a severe reprimand and a caution as to again using the knife.

No trace has been found of Elsie Potter, residing at 114 Shaw street, who escaped from Policewoman Jane Cassidy several days ago. The girl had been taken into custody for violation of parole from Long Lane home, Middletown. It is presumed by the police that she is being harbored by friends, although not in the city.

William D. Nagle, son of Mrs. James P. Nagle of Norwich, and Miss Margaret Donohue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Donohue, of 16 Montauk avenue, were married this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, the pastor. John Donohue, of Mystic, was best man, and Miss Nora Nagle, of Hartford, sister of the groom, attended the bride.

Mrs. Elmer Branch and infant daughter, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Samuel Santinsilia has purchased the two family residence, corner of Hempstead and Home streets, of Mrs. Annie McBride.

Albert Soltz, 291 Montauk was operating an automobile at the corner of State and Bank street this afternoon and the manner in which he ran the car attracted the attention of Traffic Officer John Courtney. The officer held the driver up and when he demanded that Soltz display his license, Soltz was unable to produce one, because he did not have it. Officer Courtney ordered Soltz to appear in the police court tomorrow morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jeffery, of 29 Amity street, are in Lynn, Mass., where tomorrow they will be tendered a reception by relatives in honor of the 25th anniversary of their marriage. They were married April 29, 1901 by Rev. Walter F. McIntyre, at that time pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Mrs. Merritt was Miss Edith Merritt, daughter of the late David S. Merritt.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Flaherty, of Colver street, and Miss Josephine Martin, Brewer street, have returned to New London, having spent several days in New York. The party made the trip by automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Darling, 199 Montauk avenue, are entertaining their daughter, Mrs. Lauretta Brooks, of Newark, N. J.

Frank DiMaggio, of Montauk avenue, is confined to his home, suffering from a severe attack of grip.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Barry, recently married, have concluded their wedding trip and are at home to relatives and friends on Garfield avenue. Mr. Barry is a letter carrier. Mrs. Barry was Miss Mary C. Tresher.

Mrs. Etta Strong, 27 Fales Harbour place, is spending a few days in Washington, D. C.

A. Livermore has sold a parcel of land at Station 16, Waterford, to Francis W. Davis.

The annual meeting of St. Agnes Guild of St. James Episcopal church was held this week in the parish house. Rev. Philip M. Kerridge presided. Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and accepted. The following officers elected were: President, Mrs. Edwin Lundwall; vice president, Mrs. John Hoyt; treasurer, Mrs. W. B. Hart; secretary, Mrs. Gertrude Hopburn. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Frank Smith and Mrs. W. B. Hart.

WATERBURY WOMAN LEAVES Y. W. C. A. AND DISAPPEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 28—Mrs. Carrie Warner, 25, Waterbury, was discharged today at Lawrence hospital, where she had been under treatment for several days following her attempt at suicide. She went to the Y. W. C. A. corner of Church and Huntington streets, where she was provided with accommodations until such time as arrangements could be made for her return to Waterbury. This afternoon, while attendants at the association were engaged in their duties, the Warner woman watched her opportunity and made her escape. It was not until some time after the woman had left the place that her absence was discovered. Charity Commissioner Henry S. Dorsey, who had had the woman placed there, was notified of her escape. The police were requested to be on the lookout for the woman, but she was not located.

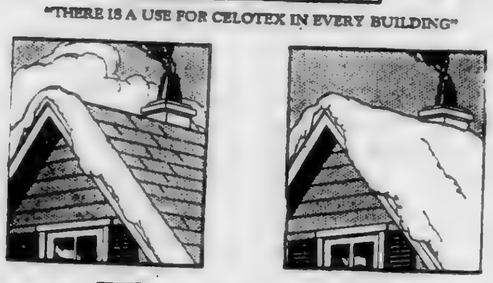
CELOTEX
INSULATING LUMBER
"THERE IS A USE FOR CELOTEX IN EVERY BUILDING"



Two roofs
that prove the need of Celotex Insulation in your home

Perhaps you have noted this in winter: snow upon the roofs of occupied, heated homes melts much more quickly than snow upon the roofs of unoccupied, unheated buildings.

This is due to escaping heat. Tests show a heat loss of 25 to 35 per cent through the walls and roofs of ordinary homes.

You can stop this loss and save approximately one-third on your fuel bills by building your home with Celotex Insulating Lumber. Celotex now makes it possible for even the simplest home to have the comfort that only costly ones have had before. It provides complete heat-insulation at practically no extra cost.

To make a house warmer in winter, cooler in summer, and more strongly built, use Celotex in place of wood sheathing and lath. Phone us for more information.

Palace Theater

Rin Tin Tin in the Night Cry, five great acts of Paramount vaudeville and a news weekly make up a great program at the Palace for the last half of this week. There is no question to those who see Rin Tin Tin in his latest release the Night Cry will say it is the greatest feature the wonder dog has ever made.

In addition to the show tonight the management will give away free a German Police puppy bred at the Chase Cliff kennels. Be sure and attend as you may win a little Rin Tin Tin of your own.

The Paramount vaudeville consists of Haig and Martini opening the bill with a musical novelty whistling act. Jack Reddy in "reddy" made laughs. Carl Dean and Company in a miniature musical comedy offering. Ed and Mae Davis in Oh Ain't She Dumb Dance Whirl will close the show with one of the fastest dancing whirl acts on record.

Saturday the show will run continuous. Matinees for children will be ten cents.

Broadway Theater

A glance at the Broadway theater program starting today which can be found elsewhere in this paper will give you many reasons why you must see it. The stage as usual features five Keith Albee vaudeville acts, each of which is out of the ordinary.

Glenn Hunter's role in The Little Giant, the Universal-Jewell production which comes today to the Broadway theater, is an unusual one for a motion picture eagle man. Instead of being the quintessence of honor, virtue and unfailing self-sacrifice, as is usual in the parts written for the heroes of the screen, the part Hunter plays in this latest Universal comedy-drama runs the gamut from the lovable to the contemptible and all the way back for the character is first secured in childhood, as the "right hand man" of his foster uncle, an itinerant peddler, who purveys pots, pans, textiles, toys and patent medicines from a rickety cart to her highness, the American housewife. The youngster takes to peddling like a duck to water and calls forth the admiration of his benefactor when, at this tender age, he exhibits the acquisitive trait that enables the old man to sell horse liniment to a gander.

Later in life the youth has been educated at the expense of Dave Chesbrough, considers himself far too good for the latter. As the sales-manager of a specialty organization he fills the bill for the cheapest fakirs and feels that an all-knowing chap like himself must "hold up his end" and make a great flash before the rum-pooling elite, who are glad to absorb his timid benevolence and acclaim him the little Napoleon of business—until the inevitable fall that comes after pride.

Strand Theater

In Camille of the Barbary Coast the new Encore picture now at the Strand theater, Mae Busch, the star, is said to give one of the most vivid characterizations of her eventful career on the screen.

At first Mae is a woman of the underworld, sparkling in her armor of paint and rouge, always ready with the forced smile that will cause the male hangers-on to dig down in their pockets and buy drinks—from which Mae collects a royalty. Then she becomes the woman who befriends a rich man's son, who is on the downward trail, and finally Mae struggles out of her sordid surroundings and climbs back to a place in society, with the help of the youth.

Playing opposite Mae is Owen Moore, who an excellent cast including Fritzie Brunette, Burr MacIntosh, Harry Morey, Tammany Young, Dorothy King, William Robert Daley and Dagmar Godowsky, is in support.

A number of short subjects are also to be seen. The music is furnished by an all-ladies orchestra. Take advantage of the two for one matinee today.

Strand Theater

The Strand theater has booked Associated exhibitors' new melodrama of the big woods for two days only beginning Friday and announce it as an attraction combining a thrilling story, good cast, and beautiful scenery.

This picture is an adaptation of Clarence Buddington Kelland's popular story, which appeared in the American Magazine, and was filmed by the H. C. Weaver Productions, Inc., in and around Tacoma, Washington.

John Bowers and Marguerite de la Motte hold the leading roles, with Alan Hale and Dan Mason heading the cast of supporting players. Lloyd Ingram directed.

The story concerns the courageous fight of a boy to win back his dead father's lumber business, against scheming rivals who attempt to block every move he makes. A thread of romance runs through the plot, providing it with practically every popular appeal.

Breed Theatre

What is hailed as one of the most realistic fights ever staged before the camera was staged recently by Norman Kerry and Lionel Barrymore for "The Barrier," Rex Beach's famous novel, directed for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by George Hill.

Kerry and Barrymore staged the fight on the rolling deck of a ship at sea, and no Queensberry rules were invoked. Starting as a fistic bout, it wound up as a savage life-and-death struggle, in which even a knife was thrown, as described in the original story. "The Barrier" comes to the Breed theatre on Friday.

Kerry is known as an amateur boxer, and as referee of the amateur fights held Wednesday noons at the M-G-M studio, but both he and Barrymore astounded George Hill, the director, and the rest of the cast in the realistic fight scene, which Hill believes will establish a new tradition for screen battles.

Kerry, Barrymore, Henry B. Walthall, Marceline Day, Bert Woodruff, George Cooper, Mario Carillo and other well known players are in the principal roles of "The Barrier," and have been so flawlessly cast and so perfectly directed as to have earned the title of the season's best cast.

Most men are as anxious to get rich as most women are to be beautiful.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
New York

Stocks, U. S. Steel leads vigorous rise.

Bonds, firm; St. Paul issues rally on foreclosure order.

Foreign exchanges easy; French and Belgian francs at new lows.

Cotton steady; trade support.

Sugar lower, Cuban selling.

Coffee declined; easier Brazilian markets.

Chicago

Wheat firm, dry weather.

Corn steady, light receipts.

Cattle irregular.

Hogs, light weights easy, others higher.

RISE IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, April 28—(AP)—A sharp upturn in prices took place in today's stock market. Bullish sentiment was created by the placing of U. S. Steel common stock on a regular $7 annual dividend basis, the announcement of higher gasoline prices and the publication of a report that freight car loadings for the week ended April 17, exceeded those of the same week last year by over 40,000 cars.

Closing quotations, while not uniformly upward, disclosed a long list of slightly larger volume than yesterday, the day's sales aggregating 1,227,600 shares.

Banks called about $20,000,000 additional in loans today, presumably in connection with the further shipments of gold to Canada which have exceeded $15,000,000 on the current movement, but the call money rate held steady at 4 1-2 per cent. with funds legally reported available below that figure, in the "outside market." Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. The only adverse development of the day was the establishment of a new low record for the French francs at 3.28 cents which was somewhat of a surprise in view of the reported progress being made toward the adoption of a plan for the funding of the French debt to the United States.

U. S. Steel common opened with a block of five thousand shares at 122 3-4, sagged to 122 1-2, advanced to 123 1-2 and closed just below that figure for a net gain of nearly 2 points on the day. Crucible, Gulf States, Republic and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe each closed a point or so higher. The weekly steel trade reviews reported little change in the situation during the past week, but called attention to the fact that there had been no abrupt falling off in business this month.

Talk of mergers and higher prices stimulated activity in the oil shares. Atlantic Refining, which is expected to be merged with Marland, soared over 6 points to a record high at 116 1-2 and then eased about a point. Pan-American Western B advanced a point and most of the others improved fractionally.

Active short covering again took place in the motor group on rumors that a substantial cash extra would be declared next month on General Motors common stock, which soared nearly five points today to a new high record for the year at 132 1-2. Mack Trucks and Hudson each advanced about 2 points, while Jordan, Pierce Arrow preferred, Fisher Body, Stewart Warner and Studebaker moved up a point or so.

Buoyancy also developed in a number of specialties. Dupont which owns a large block of General Motors common, jumped over six points to 216 3-4, and Atlantic Gulf and West Indies, California Packing, Cudahy Packing, General Electric, Pullman and Texas Gulf Sulphur all showed net gains to 2 to 6 points. Good buying also was noted in such issues as Allied Chemical, American Can, Davison Chemical, Freeport Texas, General American Tank Car and National Biscuit.

Despite the car loading statistics and the fact that the first 67 railroads to report their March earnings showed net operating income of nearly $75,000,000 as compared with slightly more than $58,000,000 in the corresponding month last year, little speculative interest was shown in the railroad shares, the general average of which closed slightly lower on the day. "Big Four" jumped ten points to a new high at 215 on a couple of sales, but the active issues recorded only narrow fractional changes.

Trading in the commodity markets was dull with price changes generally unimportant. Wheat futures were in slightly better demand on less favorable weather reports. Cotton trading was featureless with closing quotations 1 to 6 points net lower. Raw sugar dropped 1-32 of a cent a pound and a slightly easier tone was noted in the futures market. Coffee futures fell back 11 to 16 points.

Sterling exchange held relatively firm, presumably in reflection of a further transfer of funds to London where higher interest rates are available most of the continental exchanges were heavy. Belgian francs dropping about 10 points to around 3.50 cents, a new low. Spanish pesetas advanced another six points to around 14.50 cents. Japanese yen held firm around their recent record high.

SOCIAL WORKERS ELECT OFFICERS; TO MEET IN HARTFORD NEXT YEAR

The 16th annual session of the Connecticut Conference of Social Work came to a close late Wednesday afternoon with the annual meeting and election of officers. The meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A. building and was called to order at 3.30 p. m. standard time, by the conference president, Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, of this city. The business was quickly transacted officers being elected as follows:

President, Judge Walter H. Clark, Hartford; executive secretary, Miss Margaret Byington, Hartford; vice president, Charles A. Goodwin, Hartford; vice president, Rev. Mathew J. Judge, Simsbury; vice president, George L. Warren, Bridgeport; vice president, Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, Norwich; treasurer, Robert E. Newell, Hartford; executive committee, Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, Norwich; Ralph Barrow, Hartford; Miss A. Elizabeth Bigelow, Meriden; I. Robert Broder, New Haven; Miss Sophie Brown, Naugatuck; Miss Marjory Cheney, South Manchester, Ralph Cheney; Judge George H. Day, Hartford; Mrs. Edward P. Douglass, Stamford; Charles E. Lynch, Hartford; Miss Caroline Penniman, Middletown; The Def. Penniman, Middletown; Beth Low Pierpont, Ridgefield; Mrs. George G. Williams, Hartford; Mrs. C. E. A. Winslow, New Haven.

Thanks for Norwich Entertainment

Resolutions were unanimously adopted which expressed the conference's grateful appreciation to the citizens of Norwich and to those responsible for the organization of the conference for the very delightful successful and helpful association now drawing to a close; also for the gracious hospitality extended through the efforts of Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, Mrs. E. W. Higgins, Miss Elizabeth Huntington, Miss Gertrude Young and the committee of women who so ably assisted them and for the welcome afforded to conference at the Norwich state hospital by Dr. and Mrs. Franklin S. Wilcox and the staff of the institution. The resolutions also included acknowledgment of the interest and cooperation of the chamber of commerce, and of the local press; with thanks to the Y. M. C. A., the Central Baptist church, the Elks, the Old Fellows and Buckingham Memorial for the commodious and pleasant rooms provided for our meetings. The resolutions concluded as follows: We take this opportunity to extend our hearty thanks to Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell for her service to the state over many years and to her leadership as president of the conference and to Ralph Barrow for his able conduct of the duties of his office.

The resolutions were presented by W. T. Lynch of Hartford. Secretary Ralph Barrow, after the close of the conference said that the Norwich conference had been called one of the most successful ever held and the hospitality extended was the most hearty ever given the delegates. Mr. Barrow stated that in addition to the regular conference at Norwich two regional conferences had been held, one at Stafford Springs, November 3, last, and the other at New Milford, April 20th and that this holding of regional conferences is the unique contribution of Mrs. Mitchell's administration to social work.

Next Conference in Hartford

The annual meeting selected Hartford for the 1927 conference next spring. A letter from Mayor Norman C. Stevens of Hartford giving a cordial invitation to meet in that city was read and the invitation unanimously accepted.

358 Delegates Registered

There were 500 people who attended the conference, the largest number at any one session being 456, at the Central Baptist church Sunday morning. A total of 358 delegates registered at conference headquarters. Over $1,600 was received by the conference in membership fees, as shown by the report of Treasurer Edward Y. Messenger of this city.

Occupational Therapy

A round table conference on occupational therapy was held at the Y. M. C. A. building from 2 to 3 p. m., s t, with Miss Kathryn Root, Stamford, as the chairman. The address was delivered by Miss Harriet A. Robeson, chief therapist, state hospital, King's Park, Long Island, N. Y., and her topic was Can Occupational Therapy Help the Social Worker. She spoke as follows:

There is probably no one problem more common to all humanity than that of adjustment to one's environment. It would seem conservative to say that three-fourths of the misery in this world today is due to the lack of ability in the individual to adjust to existing conditions. Certainly this percentage of cases that come into the hands of the social worker has this fundamental cause to deal with. On this basis then, one can make the general statement that social service is a branch of human service which has, as its aim, the rehabilitation of the "case," or patient, as he often is, and readjusting him to home and community life. This, too, in a general way, is the ultimate end of occupational therapy. To return the patient to his place in the working, playing social world as fit mentally and physically as his disease or injury permits. With this goal in common, the Social Service worker and the occupational therapist should surely meet often on the road that leads to it. Both social service and occupational therapy, as organized fields of endeavor, are comparatively recent developments, both have made great progress in the past score of years, and each department fills its own specific place of usefulness.

Social service is both intra and extra-mural. Its field is extensive and diverse, dealing not only with the patient, but with the whole family and their circumstances.

Occupational therapy also is both intra and extra mural. The latter in a lesser degree with "the homebound" and in the community work shops. The future of occupational therapy, however, undoubtedly holds an extensive extra mural service, but in either case, it deals primarily with the patient himself.

Could we not therefore roughly divide our fields in this way? occupational therapy is largely intra-mural, whereas, Social Service is largely extra-mural.

Occupational therapy is not an end in itself—it is a means to an end. It provides a way of conserving and using whatever remains to the sick and diseased of healthy functioning. The mental physical and spiritual resources of the patient are rallied to help in overcoming his disability.

Many think of occupational therapy as only handwork. It is far more than that. Occupational therapy is a programme. A programme of "work, play and medicine," to meet the mental, physical and social need of each patient. It is re-education. Professor Franz has said, "Re-education is a replacement of bad habits by better habits, or, it is the formation of new habits to replace habits which have been lost." Handicrafts are only some of the tools with which we work, for this end, not primarily with the idea that patients will earn a future livelihood by them, as many seem to think, but because since Adam, peoples have found expression through work with their hands. A primitive outlet, creative, educative and constructive. Crafts may also be adapted to meet nearly all the needs in mental and physical adjustments. Movements required in physical restoration of function can be found in the technique of the various crafts. These same techniques can produce results in the mental cases in substituting purposeful occupation for scattered and destructive activity in substituting purposeful occupation for scattered and destructive activity and for the idleness which begets introversion and the resulting emotional and ideational deterioration. Furthermore, crafts can meet all degrees of scholastic background and intelligence. A day laborer can be interested in handwork, as well as the artist.

As important as handwork in any programme of rehabilitation is physical education and recreation. It is as necessary in a well balanced life to know how to play as it is to know how to work. Man is essentially a social individual. In sickness, he is apt to withdraw within himself and of course, the large mass of our mental patients are frankly anti-social. We must in some way reawaken old responses and start to build again from that point and often an old folk dance, a favorite song or the feel of a baseball will make that necessary contact with reality—where weeks of handwork have failed.

"Why don't you teach a man a trade instead of wasting time on trivial baskets and their like"—we are often asked. "Make the man self-supporting, when he leaves the hospital—he can't live on stringing beads." We don't pretend to teach a man to earn a living—that is not our function. We are in the hospital to give treatment to a sick patient. You don't expect the dose of quinine to do more than to get the man fit to take up his job. So, with financial worry, granted, but, when it is possible to ease this in any other way—it should not be done at the expense of the patient's cure, that is, by keeping his trade constantly, before him. If he has a long convalescence within the hospital, he should, of course, show progressive achievement, and, before he leaves he should be "hardened up" in his own trade or in something where his former skill can be utilized. This stage is not often reached in a hospital, because, unfortunately, due to the over-crowded conditions, patients are sent out before convalescence is completed. (We can make exceptions of institutions for mental diseases, where the patient generally remains until recovered.)

I believe it will not be long before this period between discharge from the hospital and fitness for steady work will be bridged by the establishment of community workshops—where the patient reports daily for a certain number of hours of work a day. There are an increasing number of these shops throughout the country—receiving patients from insurance companies, hospitals, social service agencies, and doctors for treatment. Visits to these shops would familiarize the social worker with the capabilities of the patient and his powers of adjustment to ordinary conditions. What the patient can do. This would be a guide in her search for placement. The patient is still under medical supervision, but we could undoubtedly receive compensation for his output, and, if necessary, Vocational Training. It is interesting to note that statistics show that 80 per cent. of the injured return to their old jobs —10 pe. cent. need partial re-training and only 10 per cent. complete vocational retraining. So a programme of vocational training where the emphasis must, of necessity be on the output of the patient—his earning capacity—and not on the patient himself, is clearly not indicated for hospital treatment. The product of occupational therapy, is the effect upon the patient.

I do not mean to infer that the social worker takes consciously an antagonistic attitude towards occupation l therapy, but rather, that many do not understand the purpose and place of occupational therapy in the treatment and rehabilitation of the patient. The doctor decides if occupational therapy is indicated for the patient. If so, he makes out a prescription for it. This gives the aide but a cursory knowledge of the main factors in the case and on this she builds her plans, her programme of occupational therapy. How much more constructive it would be if the social worker could help form this plan especially for the problem cases. In her contact with the patient and family she has learned much of the patient's attitude towards and aptitude for work; his likes and dislikes; the adjustments that must be made and adverse factors that should be avoided. With such knowledge, the therapist could develop a plan of work that is better suited to the patient and through being more congenial to him, he will naturally be more successful with it and so avoid the mental conflicts which arise so often in livelihood that is drudgery. The therapist can also learn from the social worker of the opportunities that exist in placement and tend to select work for the patient allied to these opportunities.

On the other hand in her informal approach to the patient, in the teacher-pupil contact, there is often a freedom from restraint that leads to revelations which would be of value to the social worker. There is that which Dr. Herbert Hall, one of the pioneers of Occupational Therapy, put great stress upon "the method of indirection." Absorbed in his occupations the patient forgets or does not feel the need to cover up or disguise his thoughts and feelings. Of course, it may be reversed and the social worker be the one who makes the most intimate contact. This is after all, a question of personality and not of position—that unknown law of attraction and confidence.

But certainly of the patient's reactions and abilities and vocational possibilities, the therapist can inform the social worker and this should be of assistance in finding work or making other arrangements for the patient, when he leaves the hospital.

One can imagine a much enriched field of service for both, were consultation and advice freely sought between them.

TREE SPECIALIST TO WORK FOR THE CITY

Spraying and trimming of trees this spring in the city of Norwich is to be taken care of by Henry S. Gilbert of Danielson, tree specialist, with whom Street Commissioner John C. Donovan has made an arrangement to carry out this work.

Mr. Gilbert will begin his engagement next Monday and will bring three workers with him. It is expected the work will occupy about two months. Dead limbs are to be taken out of the trees, where needed, by the street department employes, but the other part of the work will be done by Mr. Gilbert and his assistants.

It is expected they will begin by spraying the elms in the Lincoln avenue and Williams street neighborhood, ball chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mr. Gilbert spoke here early this month at the meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter.

Bell, Rollin C. Jones, Charles McNamara, James E. Roantree and Paul Peloquin.

Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, president of the conference, opened the session and turned it over to the chairman, Mrs. Frederick P. Shenk, who announced the general subject as Recreation Activities.

She introduced as the first speaker Dr. A. G. Ireland, of the state department of physical education, who spoke upon The General Value of Physical Education. He developed the idea that physical education is not to be looked upon as muscle building but as an educative, of the child through natural activities, producing such qualities as honesty, courage, determination and other character traits as make for good citizens, good parents, home builders and producers.

I. A. Broder of New Haven took the place of Prof. Jack Crawford in speaking upon "Dramatics" and Elmer L. Manning of New Haven spoke upon "Municipal Athletics."

The subject of 'Games" was taken up by Miss Florence S. Shaffer, physical director in the Norwich public schools, and demonstrations on each of these subjects were given in the hall.

EXONERATES DRIVER FROM BLAME FOR FATALITY

No criminal liability against Edward C. Bergevin, a sailor of the submarine base, for the death of John Valos, 4-year son of Mr. and Mrs. John Valos of Laurel Hill avenue is found in a decision given in the case by Deputy Coroner John H. Barnes. The little boy died late Saturday afternoon at the Backus hospital from injuries received earlier the same afternoon when struck by the automobile operated by Bergevin.

In his finding for which testimony was taken from County Investigator William Lewis and David S. Marks, sergeant of police of the New Haven railroad the deputy coroner says in part:

According to the testimony of David S. Marks, who was an eye witness when the said Bergevin noticed the children no the street, he applied his brakes suddenly and at that time one of the lads ran to the west of the road and the other towards the east of the road. One of the lads then suddenly turned back and ran directly in front of the auto and the operator of the automobile then steered way over to the left hand side of the street and in trying to escape hitting the lad in front of him ran into and struck the said Valos. It appeared from the testimony that in the said auto with the driver and operator, Edward C. Bergevin, were five other sailors from the base and no signs of liquor were found upon them and there was no liquor or signs of liquor in the auto. It appeared also from the testimony that when the said Bergevin struck the deceased he was traveling at a rate of about 4 miles an hour and after hitting the lad his auto went about 14 feet.

It appeared from the testimony of the witnesses that the accident was unavoidable and that the operator did all in his power to avoid hitting the said lad. County Investigator Lewis who was on the street at the time of the said accident after an immediate investigation was of the opinion that an arrest was unnecessary. The accident apears to be attributable to the negligence of the deceased. While sympathizing with the parents of the unfortunate lad, still after a careful investigation of the circumstances and a review of all the evidence in the matter before me, I am obliged to report, and do so report that I am satisfied that the death of the said Nicholas Valias was not caused by the criminal act, omission, or negligence of any other person or persons.

Return From Southern Visit

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. B. Stare have returned from a delightful visit to the south. While there they were the recipients of many social courtesies.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Young, after being the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Starr for two months, have taken a cottage for the summer at Wintergreen Point near New London.

Laborers Seek Wage Raise

The laborers union has given notice to Norwich contractors of the demand for a wage raise from 60 to 70 cents an hour.

Masons' helpers have given notice of a raise from 70 to 80 cents an hour. The date for the raises to become effective, if granted, is understood to be May 13.

Golf Land Company Election

The stock holders of the Norwich Golf Land company held their annual meeting at the Chelsea Savings bank Monday morning. The meeting re-elected the directors as follows: Oliver L. Johnson Willis Austin, Grosvenor Ely, C. Royce Bliss and J. Ralph Howe.

The directors at a subsequent meeting re-elected the officers as follows: President, Oliver L. Johnson; vice president, Willis Austin; secertary and treasurer, J. Ralph Howe.

The usual annual reports were heard and accepted.

CHECK FRAUD CASE NOLLED IN COURT

At the city court session Wednesday morning the fraudulent check case against Thomas Reeve, 42, inventor of the Reeve typewriting system, was nolled by Judge H. H. Pettis. The accused's attorney, John H. Barnes, entered a plea of not guilty to the charge and City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins recommended that the case be nolled.

Mr. Reeve issued a check to Henry B. Tiger, Franklin street second hand dealer. The check was drawn on the National bank, Washington, D. C., and was returned marked "not sufficient funds". Mr. Reeve has since made good the amount, about $100, which the check called for. Reeve's daughter, Birdie Reeve, speed typist is appearing at the theatre in Westerly, and recently appeared in this city. Since coming to Norwich Mr Reeve opened a school here for the purpose of teaching his typewriting system.

A Montville man was fined $5 and costs for intoxication and a Yantic man was fined $10 and costs and given a 30 day jail sentence suspended for six months on a charge of breach of the peace in beating his wife.

Ray Stillings With Boston Orchestra

The many friends in this city of Ray F. Stillings, a Boston musician, who was a resident of this city in 1924 and 1925, will be interested to learn he has been engaged the present season with Loew's State theatre orchestra.

This coming summer his own band will be on the air three nights a week playing from the Knickerbocker summer ballroom up in New Hampshire.

According to the train schedule the mails at the Lyme post office are all advanced one hour. Boxwood and Ferry Tavern are the only other places in the town observing daylight saving time.

WETS PRESENT THEIR CASE ON FLOOR OF THE SENATE

Senators Edge and Bruce Declared That Hearings Had Proven the Necessity For a Modification of the Volstead Act—Senator Bruce Told His Colleagues That Not Many of Them Were "Really in Sympathy With Prohibition"—Dry Senators Neither Responded to Nor Interrupted the Speakers, Who Held the Floor For Two Hours.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—The wets again today made the senate floor their battle ground.

Reviewing the three weeks of hearings before the senate prohibition committee, Senators Edge, republican, New Jersey, and Bruce, democrat, Maryland, declared that a case had been made for a modification of the Volstead act.

Senator Edge challenged the drys to support a national referendum on the prohibition question, while Senator Bruce predicted that the wets would be in a great majority in the senate "before very long."

Evidence before the committee was that Volstead act violation is not sectional, but universal, Senator Edge declared. Senator Bruce asserted that the official records showed that drunkenness was mounting "in all sections of the country, north, south, east and west."

The two held the floor for nearly two hours, Senator Edge with a prepared address and Mr. Bruce with an extemporaneous speech. There was no response from the dry leaders, nor was either interrupted.

Urging congress to invite the states to conduct a simultaneous referendum on both the Volstead act and the 18th amendment, Senator Edge said that if the drys were as confident as they professed to be that sentiment had not changed, they should welcome a verdict of the people.

Declaring that "more curtailment merely won't help," the New Jersey senator warned that if the drys did not want to try modification they would "drive the country to a repeal of the 18th amendment."

Senator Bruce told his colleagues that not many of them were "really in sympathy with prohibition" and that if they were consistent the modificationists would be in the great majority.

"We have had our hearing," he said, referring to the prohibition committee inquiry, "and it was destructive to the hollow pretenses of prohibition."

Supporting his prediction that the wets would gain a majority of the senate in the not distant future, the Maryland senator referred to "the prohibition fight" in connection with the senatorial campaign in Pennsylvania and called attention that next fall there would be a referendum in New York state on the question of prohibition.

"Unless I am mistaken," he added, "the people of New York are too intelligent to be too rational and too lawabiding to longer tolerate such a thing as national prohibition has proved itself to be."

Referring to scandals in prohibition enforcement, Senator Bruce said that even while the senate hearings were in progress "from day to day and from hour to hour these intolerable scandals and abuses bred by prohibition were still being bred."

Calling attention that four prohibition directors in Wisconsin had been indicted or convicted for violations of the Volstead act, he said it seemed to be almost impossible "for anybody to touch that stick without being tarred."

BILL FOR COMMISSION TO CONTROL BROADCASTING

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP)—The bill bill, which would set up an independent commission with complete power over broadcasting, was approved today by the senate interstate commerce committee with indications pointing to an early favorable report to the senate.

Taken in the face of repeated warnings from President Coolidge against establishment of any more separate government agencies, the action had the effect of side tracking the White House, backed by the administration, proposals for an advisory committee to confer with the commerce department concerning the industry. This bill also passed the house.

Meanwhile, Secretary Hoover, whose department recently lost in the federal courts the right to assign wave lengths to radio stations, took exception to statements recently made in congress to the effect that he was attempting to become "dictator" of the broadcasting field.

"I am the last responsibility I want," he asserted.

In approving the Dill bill, the senate committee eliminated a provision for appeals to the courts to compel the issuance of broadcasting license or the revocation, and proposed that the commission have five instead of seven members with salaries of $12,- each.

FINANCIAL AID FOR THE VANDERBILT NEWSPAPERS

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—Five officers were made today to assist Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. in raising $300,- which he said was needed to avert the crash of his chain of newspapers in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Miami, Florida, according to an announcement of Dudley Field Malone, his legal advisor.

The offer was for the purchase of an unnamed Vanderbilt paper for $1,000,-, Mr. Malone said. He did not reveal the identity of the would-be purchaser or of the four others who offered financial assistance. The offers are being investigated, he said

The 28-year old publisher, heir to a part of the Vanderbilt millions, announced that a meeting of the stockholders in his enterprises would be called as soon as possible after 30-day notices have been delivered for the purpose of electing a new board of directors.

In a statement issued yesterday by Mr Malone, who with Clarence Darrow has been retained as Vanderbilt's adviser in the present financial crisis, it was revealed that the Vanderbilt family, after investing more than $1,000,- 000 in the corporation, had refused further support.

GANGSTER WHITTEMORE AGAIN IN THE TOMBS

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—Chained to his seat and guarded by five detectives, Richard Reese Whittemore, leader of a gang of jewel thieves, arrived in this city tonight from Buffalo.

He was taken to the Tombs prison in a heavily guarded police automobile, immediately.

Whittemore was returned on a bench warrant to face trial for robbery after the disagreement of a jury trying him in Buffalo for the alleged murder of two guards in an armored car holdup.

He will be brought to trial here speedily, Acting District Attorney Pecora said today, unless Governor Smith permits extradition to Maryland to stand trial in Baltimore on a charge of killing a prison guard in making his escape.

Baltimore must assure the New York state authorities that it has a strong case against the jewel robber, Mr. Pecora said, for it might be "very difficult for us to get him back" should he be freed by a Maryland jury.

Mrs. Whittemore and Rawling W. Whittemore, father of the prisoner, arrived from Buffalo this morning.

FINED FOR FAILURE TO MAKE PROPER TAX RETURNS

ST. JOHN'S N. F., April 29—(AP)—Sir Richard Squires, former premier of Newfoundland, was fined $300 in city court today for failure to make proper income tax returns for the year 1918. Last November he was fined $1,000 on a similar charge and lost his appeal to the supreme court.

WORKING ON THE MURDER OF ATTORNEY M'SWIGGIN

CHICAGO, April 29—(AP)—A coroner's jury composed of the presidents of two banks, a realty firm, an insurance company, manufacturing concern, and a building managers corporation today went over the trail of the men who Tuesday night shot and killed William McSwiggin, assistant state's attorney, and two companions known to the police as beer runners.

The jury was chosen by the Chicago Association of Commerce, at the request of Coroner Oscar Wolf. Aside from its routine duties, the jury was confronted with questions of who killed McSwiggin, whether he was killed purposely, or only accidentally in another outbreak of Chicago's bootleg gang war, and why he was in the company of "Red" Duffy and James Doherty, the beer gangsters who died with him in front of a saloon in Cicero, on Chicago's southwestern outskirts.

John J. Healy, former state's attorney, retained by the coroner as special legal adviser at the inquest, directed the jurors to frame the inquest's multifarious inquiry into compulsory manipulations, and Harry D. Kelly, president of the Union League Republican club who helped choose the group, pleaded for ascertainment of the association between politics and gang strife to which he declared the murder pointed.

McSwiggin and his companions were killed by shots from a passing car, in the same manner in which numerous gang warrings have been slain in Chicago and its environs within the last year.

The coroner's jury adjourned until May 5, after viewing the physical evidences of the crime, and the interim will be occupied by Healy and Wolff in collection of evidence.

TO STOP DISTRIBUTION OF "FAKE MEDICINES BY MAIL

KANSAS CITY, April 29.—(AP)—The federal government struck its first blow here today in a nation-wide campaign against alleged "fake" medical remedies distributed by mail.

The offensive was launched with the returning of three grand jury indictments, charging use of the mails to defraud, against three concerns and various individuals alleged to have manufactured and distributed "fake" medicines, with Kansas City as their headquarters.

Millions of dollars had been made collectively, by these concerns, according to postal investigators.

E. R. Cocran, post office inspector, said it was the first step in a drive that would involve other cities in the country.

"Cure-alls", "youth rejuvenators", and remedies for deafness, excessive weight and even major diseases were included in the medicines manufactured and distributed by the three concerns, the indictments alleged.

Most of the victims were peasant women bound for the city carrying milk and other provisions.

OFFICERS CONN. DIVISION SONS OF UNION VETERANS

HARTFORD, April 29.—(AP)—Howard S. Wadsworth, of Meriden, was elected commander of Connecticut division, Sons of Union Veterans, this afternoon at the annual business meeting which closed the two-day convention here. There were several candidates mentioned for the office but the choice of Mr. Wadsworth, retiring senior vice commander, was made unanimously.

William F. Monney, of Mystic, was elected senior vice commander, Harry S. Rice, of Danbury, junior vice commander, and the retiring commander, Henry W. Storrs, of Camp No. 6, of Hartford, R. A. Longsbury, of Stamford, Camp No. 2, and Earl Atwater, Southington, Camp No. 9, were elected to the division council.

At the same time that the Sons of Veterans were meeting, the auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans held their 24th annual encampment. The annual election of officers was held and Mrs Edna Gooding, of Naugatuck, was elected president. Miss A. L. Walker, of New Britain, was elected vice president and other officers elected were: Mrs. Myrtle Case, Glastonbury, division patriotic instructor; Mrs. Lettie Flood, Waterbury, division chaplain; and Heather, division treasurer. Mrs. Hattie Buckley, New Britain, and division councilor, Joan S. Gordon, Wallingford.

Mrs. Ivan Mack, of Waterbury, retiring president, was elected a member of the council. National President Mrs. Mary E. Burns, of Los Angeles, Cal., was a special guest at this session and a reception was held in her honor.

Before the close of the Sons of Veterans' convention tonight, delegates were named to attend the national convention at Des Moines, Ia., in September. The delegates are: Frank S. Young, Camp No. 6, Hartford; George Hammond, Camp No. 15, Rockville; Charles Farres, Camp No. 2, Stafford; W. C. Mooney, Camp No. 10, Mystic; Charles R. Hale, Camp, No. 20, Hartford; R. High Albert, Camp No. 1, New Haven; George Randall Gibson, patriotic instructor, expects to attend also.

JAZZ BARRED FROM GOLD CAMPS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

BARKERVILLE, B. C., April 29—(AP)—Jazz invaded the gold camps of the Cariboo country years ago, but the old time miners have tired of it. The musical airs of the sixties when the Barkerville camp was at its height of glory are now preferred to the more recent melodies. And just to show that they are in earnest over their likes and dislikes, the people here, all of them gold miners or descendants of miners, have formed a committee to prohibit the singing or whistling of the newer pieces.

A fine of twenty-five cents is being imposed on everyone found whistling or singing one modern ditty, which until the recent edict had won almost as much favor in isolated Barkerville as in the coast cities.

So far the fines total $20 and the money is being used for the rehabilitation of the grass-tangled cemetery which bears tombstones to the memory of some of the Cariboo's most famous characters.

MRS. TOWNE GRANTED DIVORCE WITH $35,000

CHICAGO, April 29—(AP)—Less than twenty four hours after she filed an amended plea for divorce, Mrs. Dorothy Ravin Towne, married to J. Meredith Towne, heir of the estate of the founder of the Yale and Towne Lock company, while she was a factory girl, obtained a decree today. She received a lump property settlement of $35,- 000.

Mrs. Towne alleged extreme cruelty. They were married March 13, 1919 at Toledo, Ohio, where the young woman, an immigrant from Kiev, Russia, was a factroy worker.

She testified young Towne beat her and threatened her life when she refused to consent to a divorce.

35-STORY CHURCH AND APARTMENT HOUSE-HOTEL

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—Approval of the proposed 35-story combination church and apartment house-hotel, which has been a point of contention in Calvary Baptist church for two years, was voted tonight by the members of the church.

The proposed skyscraper church and hotel, favored by the pastor, Dr. John Roach Straton, and opposed in the courts last year by five insurgent members of the church board of trustees, will cost $2,500,000. Construction on the site of the present church in West 57th street, will be begun within a short time, it was said and the contractor has agreed to finish the building within 15 months.

Arctic Expedition Aviators Are Safe

They Are At Station at Point Barrow, Alaska—Had Been Missing For 13 Days.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29—(AP)—A wireless message from the company's station at Point Barrow, Alaska, saying that Captain George H. Wilkins, and his pilot, Ben Eielson, of the Detroit arctic expedition, were safe at that point after being missing for 13 days, was received today by H. Liebes and company, furriers.

The message said: "Will need twenty tons of coal extra as we are using a quantity keeping the motors warm. Wilkins and party are stopping at our station."

The coal will be sent from here next week on the steamer Charles Brower, the company's arctic fur carrier.

Wilkins is a close friend of Charles Brower, the agent who sent the message.

Wilkins accompanied Stefansson on one expedition which stopped at the Point Barrow station of the fur company.

"There is a broad lagoon at our station, which is covered with ice, at this time of year," Arnold Liebes of the Liebes company said. This has been swept clear, and staked with flags to assist Captain Wilkins in making his landing.

"It is apparent that the explorer has plenty of gasoline. We have a supply at the post which we could give him in a pinch, but it is not airplane gasoline."

Liebes said that there are eight or nine whites living at Point Barrow, and about 400 natives, and all have been looking forward to the return of the exploring party.

A week ago, Liebes received a letter from Brower that Wilkins had carried in his airplane from Point Barrow to Fairbanks. The letter was in transit 17 days, the shortest known time that such a missive has been carried from the far north trading post to San Francisco. Had not Wilkins taken it to Fairbanks, it would not have arrived here until August, as Point Barrow is snow and ice bound.

EDITH P. DAVIS ACQUITTED OF FELONIOUS ASSAULT

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—After a deliberation of one hour today a jury acquitted Edith Parker Davis on a charge of feloniously assulting B. Alan Davis, an actor and her former common law husband. On hearing the verdict the chorus girl defendant collapsed and was led from the courtroom.

The little melodrama on which the curtain was rung down in court today was an opening scene July 7 last in the apartment of Henry Wagstaff Gribble, where the playwright was dining with Davis and Melville Anderson, a stage manager.

While they were eating Miss Davis entered and she and Davis went into another room. A moment later there was a shot and the girl ran for the door. Davis was found with a wound which kept him in hospital for weeks. Miss Davis was arrested but released when Davis declined to press charges against her. The district attorney, however brought Miss Davis to trial on a felonious assault case.

The judge, in his charge, told the jury that if the defendant had reason to believe she was about to be assaulted she had the right to protect herself, even to killing David and the other two men.

ROUGH WEATHER HALTS SALVAGING OF SUB S-51

NEW LONDON, April 29—(AP)—Rough weather today halted salvaging operations on the submarine S-51, off Block Island. Radio advices received at the submarine base here stated that the salvage ship Falcon had been engaged in slinking permanent mooring lines, but that diving and other operations were at a standstill because of weather conditions.

Captain L. J. King, commandant at the base, who is in charge of the efforts to raise the ill-fated S-51, rammed by the steamer City of Rome last September, was at the scene of operations tonight. He left the base on the navy tug Penobscot and upon reaching the fleet, went aboard the Vestal for a conference with Commander Edward Ellsberg, who is in charge of actual operations.

A radio message received from Captain King stated that he would remain with the fleet tomorrow if weather conditions were satisfactory for diving.

32 Arab Stowaways; Eleven of Them Dead

Were Found in the Holds of Steamer Which Arrived at Marseilles From Algiers.

MARSEILLES, France, April 29—(AP)—The holds of the steamer Sidi Ferruch, which arrived here after a tempestuous passage from Algiers, have given up stowaway Arabs to the number of 32, eleven of them dead, and five injured, three of these seriously.

When the Sidi Ferruch came into port yesterday, ten bodies, bruised and blackened by the pounding of coal, were brought ashore. Then search began for many others who were known to be in hiding in the bunkers or out of the way places down in the ship's depths. The search was continued throughout today, and it is thought that possibly more bodies will be found, as the captain of the vessel just prior to weighing anchor at Algiers received an anonymous letter warning him that there were 43 stowaways aboard.

The ship was combed during the voyage, and the search produced one lone Arab, who asserted that he had no comrades. Later, however, it became evident that he was not the only passenger seeking entrance into France. The heavy storms through which the vessel passed prevented a more complete search until arrival here. Then it was found that the Arabs had been subjected to terrific sufferings. They had been tossed about and bruised by the heaving of the ship, and some of them were buried under tons of coal. A number had stowed away under the false keel near the boilers and sailors had bolted the manholes preventing access to the ballast space.

Because of the rough trip and noise of the engines the shrieks and moans of the imprisoned stowaways could not be heard. Many of them were finally discovered partially or completely buried under the debris of their improvised coal huts.

It was a veritable charnel house which the rescuing party found; they had to don special masks before dragging out the bodies of the dead. Those faces were distorted and crushed. Five of the Arabs had literally gone mad with fright or were half asphyxiated by the temperature of 70 degrees centigrade (158 Fahrenheit).

COMMUNIST CIRCULARS DISTRIBUTED IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, April 29 (AP)—"Workers! Unite your ranks—out of the shops—on to the streets on the first of May." "Whether the capitalists and their strike-breaking government permit or forbid, no where must turn, no hand must be idle, no back must bend to labor on the first of May," says a proclamation with which the workers' organizations of Hartford are calling its members and workers in general to the observance of an international holiday of labor, May 1.

NINE CONTESTANTS START IN NA'L. BALLOON RACE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 29—(AP)—With a dozen airplanes cavorting in the air bidding them good-bye and to the cheers of a crowd estimated at close to 20,000 persons, the nine contestants for the Litchfield trophy and national elimination balloon race got off from the airport here late today.

Weather conditions were ideal. Not a cloud marred the sky from early dawn to dark.

STEAMER'S TANKS FILLED WITH WHISKEY MALT

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—Seized in the Hudson river near Yonkers, with her tanks filled with alleged whiskey malt, valued in excess of $500,000 the steamer Eker was returned to New York tonight by customs inspectors. The ship's crew and officers, ten in all, were arrested and held under heavy guard. The inspectors would not make public the details of the seizure.

FEAR LOSS OF 210,000 CUBIC FEET OF HELIUM GAS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 29—(AP)—Loss of 210,000 cubic feet of helium gas from the army dirigible TC-3 of Scott field, Illinois, is feared unless immediate repairs can be made on a one-foot rip torn in a top seam as she lay at anchorage in the Little Rock airport for the national balloon race and air meet here today.

AGREEMENT REACHED ON FRENCH WAR DEBT OFFER

Calls For a Total Payment of $6,847,674,000 Over a 62 Year Period—Exceeds by More Than $600,000,000 the Best Proposal Made by Caillaux Last Summer—Payments Will Start at $30,000,000 For the First Two Years—The Agreement Was Laid Before President Colidge, Who Gave His Approval.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—Agreement for a settlement of the $4,025,000,000 French war debt was reached late today by the American debt commission and Ambassador Berenger.

France's latest offer for a total payment of $6,847,674,000 over a 62 year period was received by the commission early in the afternoon and after an hour's consideration it was laid before President Coolidge, who gave his approval.

The offer exceeded by more than $600,000,000 the best proposal of the unsuccessful Caillaux mission of last summer and its acceptance ended more than eight months of almost constant bargaining between representatives of the two countries.

The settlement not only concluded negotiations with America's second largest war debtor, but substantially completed the commission's work of funding the $10,102,000,000 foreign World war debt of this nation. Only $295,000,000 of this amount remains unfunded.

The end of the long discussions between the two countries came quickly and quietly in marked contrast to the excitement which marked the visit of Caillaux mission. France authorized her ambassador to accede to the commission's demand that the first payments be increased beyond $25,- 000,000 annually, and thus removed the main stumbling block.

Mr. Berenger gave Secretary Mellon, chairman of the commision, a new offer, providing for payments of $30,000,000 the first two years and making other readjustments, and, although Secretaries Kellogg and Hoover were absent, the commission quickly gave its approval. Ambassador Berenger went to the treasury later and he and Secretary Mellon signed the agreement.

The present value of the total payments in a 4 1-4 per cent. basis, the amount of interest charged on most of the loans made by this government to obtain the money for France, is $2,093,122,624, or about 50 per cent. of the debt funded as compared with the Italian settlement of 25 per cent.

The agreement does not include the 'safety clause' heretofore demanded by France which would relieve that country of its debt responsibilities in the event of failure of Germany to meet its reparations. It provides for the funding of $4,025,000,000 representing $3,340,000,000 in principal and $685,000,000 accrued interest to the date of the agreement.

Payments will start at $30,000,000 for the first two years, $25,000,000 for the next two years and $35,000,000 the fifth year. They will increase to $40,- 000,000 the sixth year and graduate upward $10,000,000 annually until the thirteenth year. The payments will then increase $50,000,000 annually until the seventeenth year when the total will be $125,000,000. Annual payments of $125,000,000 will be paid thereafter until the sixty-second year when the final amount will be $111,- 674,194.

Interest charges on the debt will average a little more than one and five-eighths per cent. No interest will be charged during the first five years. For the next ten years interest will amount to one per cent. annually; for the next ten years, 2 per cent.; for the next eight years, 2 1-2 per cent.; for the next seven years 3 per cent. and for the remaining 22 years 3 1-2 per cent.

Similar to the other agreements the debt bears interest of 4 1-2 per cent December 15, 1922, and 3 per cent thereafter to June 15, 1925, the date of the agreement on the amount of the debt.

Secretary Mellon later issued a statement explaining the terms and expressing the commission's belief that this settlement represents substantially France's capacity to pay."

"Unless France is enabled promptly to fix the amount of its obligations abroad so that it may know definitely its commitments and may budget for them in its budget," the statement declared, "there might be grave danger of a complete breakdown of French finances. This would be a serious blow to the re-establishment of Europe and would inevitably affect not only the payments now being made to the United States by France, but would seriously curtail the sale by our farmers of our export surplus abroad."

After the session, Ambassador Berenger read a statement to reporters in which he thanked members of the commission and Chairman Mellon for their "spirit of understanding."

"You do not expect me to contend," he said, "that there is no greater satisfaction for a debtor than to repay its creditor even such a creditor as the United States of America. But France has for too many years proved that any obligations bearing its signature was sacred."

He declared the settlement "is not only necessary for the restoration of France and the re-establishment of the economic equilibrium of the world but it suppresses a source of friction and misunderstandings between our two countries.

"France will not regret these new sacrifices if the present settlement is going to strengthen the friendship between France and America and contributes to reinforcing peace throughout the world."

The settlement must now go to congress for ratification and Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee, a member of the debt commission, announced tonight he would seek approval at this session.

Although the Caillaux offer proposed payments totaling $200,000,000 in the first five years as compared to $160,000,000 to be collected under the agreement, its payments would extend over 63 years and would total much less.

"The slightly easier terms for the first five years were made necessary," the commission explained, "because the present fiscal condition of the French government is less strong than it was at the time of the negotiations last September."

Of the debts yet to be funded $198,- 000,000 is Russian and $24,000,000 Austrian, which has already been extended by congress for 20 years. Jugo-Slavia has $151,000,000 indebtedness, Greece $15,000,000 and Armenia $12,- 000,000. Negotiations are pending with Jugo Slavia and an early settlement is believed likely.

MURDER SUSPECTS CAUGHT NEAR BOSTON POLICE STATION

BOSTON, April 29.—(AP)—While a battalion of police officers and citizens searched the Medfield woods, Albert Deshon and Robert Sambursky, wanted here for the murder of Patrolman Frank J. Conneau March 24, were arrested late today in a house directly across the street from the division 7 police station in East Boston.

The police said that Deshon admitted firing the shot that killed Conneau, answering a detective with "Yes, I did it. I killed him." It was Deshon whom Stanley Toothaker, arrested in Lynn after a burglary a week ago Sunday, named as an accomplice and as the actual slayer of the policeman.

Sambursky also implicated by Toothaker denied firing the fatal shot.

The young men, both of whom gave their ages as 17 and their addresses as in Roxbury district, tried to reach their revolvers but were soon overcome and taken to the police station. There a German automatic pistol was found on Deshon and a pistol of Spanish make on Sambursky. Sambursky admitted that his companion wanted to give himself up after they read of Toothaker's capture and that he would not permit it. "I'd have killed myself if I could before being captured," Sambursky said.

LIGHTNING SET FIRE TO 500,000 BARREL OIL TANK

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., April 29.—(AP)—Lightning set fire to a 500,000 barrel oil tank at the West Kern River field storage farm of the Standard Oil Company of California, late today. About 10,000,000 barrels of oil are stored on the farm.

The oil tank farm is about five miles northwest of Bakersfield. Forty underground tanks roofed with asphalt are on the tract. A dense cloud of smoke was visible for miles.

Oil company officials summoned men from all directions and earthen dykes were hastily thrown up in an endeavor to stop the flaming oil from spreading in case the tank boils over.

THREE ATTEMPTS TO SET FIRE TO A ROOMING HOUSE

BRIDGEPORT, April 29.—(AP)—For the third time in as many nights an attempt was made tonight to set fire to a rooming house at 205 Harriet street. While Charles E. Hall, 235 Williams street, proprietor of the rooming house watched in the rear yard where two previous attempts had been made to set fire to the building, at 8.30 o'clock tonight a blaze was discovered under the front veranda steps where a number of wooden boxes had been piled. Firemen extinguished the blaze with no damage.

TWO NEGROES TO HANG FOR ASSULTING 16-YEAR-OLD GIRL

MADISONVILLE, Ky., April 29.—(AP)—Banyan Fleming and Nathan Bard were sentenced to be hanged May 4 and Columbus Hollis was sentenced to 20 years in the state penitentiary late today for attacks on a 16 year old girl the night of April 7.

Approximately 500 state troops had been on guard duty here through the trials of the three negroes, and under soldier guard they left after the passing of the sentences for the Eddyville penitentiary for safe keeping pending hearing of appeals in their cases. The appeals are expected at least to delay the two hangings.

The three negroes also were identified as having committed attacks on three white girls about two weeks before the Alabama girl was attacked and the state was ready to press those charges in case of acquittals in the trials this week. Hollis turned state's evidence against Fleming and Bard and thus was given a lighter sentence when he pleaded guilty today. Fleming was convicted Tuesday and Bard Wednesday.

Feeling ran high against the negroes and troops patrolled the streets around the court house at the time of their indictment and subsequent trial, but there was no disorder.

BRISTOL MAN HELD FOR MURDER OF HIS WIFE

BRISTOL, Conn., April 29 (AP)—Kazemar Florjanek was held without bonds today on the charge of murder based upon the finding of the body of his wife, Josephina, in their home. She had been choked to death in the opinion of the police who had been called in by neighbors.

MISSING NORTHAMPTON MAN FOUND IN PHILADELPHIA

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 29.—(AP)—George B. King, Y. M. C. A. secretary, missing for a week, has been found in Philadelphia and taken to his mother's home in Detroit, State Detective Joseph E. Daly said today. Word came to him in a telegram from King's mother, Mrs. N. L. King, and he referred inquiriers to her.

ARCTIC EXPEDITION HAS ARRIVED AT KINGS BAY

OSLO, Norway, April 29—(AP)—Lt. Commander Richard E. Byrd, who left New York aboard the Chantier April 5 on the first lap of his expedition to the arctic regions, arrived at Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, his base of operations this afternoon.

FINDS THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PUTNAM HAS NO CLAIM AGAINST STATE

HARTFORD, April 29.—(AP)—The disposition of all of the $230,000 par of liberty bonds delivered to the state of Connecticut in February, 1921, to replace a like amount misapplied by G. Harold Gilpatrick when the latter was treasurer of the state in 1919 has been definitely ascertained.

This became known today when a letter written by George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National bank, of Putnam, Conn., to Governor John H. Trumbull was made public. Gilpatrick was cashier of the Putnam bank and is now serving a 15-year sentence in Atlanta penitentiary for huge embezzlements which wrecked that banking institution.

A careful examination of each item satisfied me," Mr. Coffin wrote, "that the First National bank, of Putnam received in one way or another the benefit of the proceeds of all these bonds and this being the fact my trust has no claim against the state."

The receiver was aided in tracing the bonds, Mr. Coffin writes, through the efforts of Deputy Governor Paddock, of the federal reserve bank, of Boston who unearthed records in the voluminous records of the bank.

Following the discovery that state owned bonds were involved in Gilpatrick's embezzlements, the governor appointed a committee of three prominent citizens to investigate.

Mr. Coffin's letter follows:

"April 19, 1926.

"Governor John H. Trumbull, State Capitol, Hartford, Conn."

"My dear sir: Referring to my letter of December 29, 1925, with regard to $230,000 par of liberty bonds delivered to the state in February, 1921, to replace a like amount misapplied by G. Harold Gilpatrick when treasurer of the state in 1919, and your prompt action in response to my letter in appointing a committee of three to investigate the matter, I now write to report to you that the disposition of all of the $230,000 has been definitely ascertained as shown by the enclosed schedule of same giving numbers of bonds, amounts, manner of disposition and dates when disposed of.

"A careful examination of each item satisfies me that the First National bank, of Putnam, received in one way or another the benefit of the proceeds of all these bonds and this being the fact my trust has no claim against the state.

"I am sending C. H. Scovell, accountant representing the committee, a copy of this letter with a copy of the schedule I have furnished you.

"Please allow me to thank you for your very prompt and just action in the matter and to add that the solution of the problem is chiefly due to the painstaking efforts of Deputy Governor Paddock, of the federal reserve bank, of Boston in tracing nearly all of these bonds by their numbers through the voluminous records of that bank.

"If you consider the result of this investigation of sufficient public interest please feel at liberty to give it to the press.

"Respectfully your,

"GEORGE M. COFFIN.

"Receiver".

DEROBERTO CASE IS CONTINUED UNTIL MAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, April 29—Claude DeRoberto, of 23 Sutton street, Providence, R. I., brother of Ernest DeRoberto, 23, of the same address, who was shot by Patrolman Pierre Marcotte while attempting to escape with a load of alcohol Wednesday night about midnight, was taken before United States Commissioner Mathewson in Norwich at one o'clock Thursday afternoon on a charge of transporting liquor. The case was continued until the fourth Tuesday in May to be heard before the United States court under bonds of $1000 which he furnished.

At St. Joseph's hospital where the younger DeRoberto is a patient an X-ray was taken Thursday to determine the exact position of the 38 calibre bullet fired by Officer Marcotte and which penetrated his back and lodged in the left lung. Dr. Louis J. Mason stated that the man had a favorable chance for recovery unless complications set in. Officer Marcotte shot at the speeding Packard touring car when he feared that the driver was attempting to run down Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer Stanley L. Briggs who was stationed with him near the town farm at West Main street.

Federal Officer Briggs had received a tip that a Rhode Island machine laden with contraband liquor was bearing toward this city from a Hartford fire trap. According to his information officer is required to halt automobiles on the highway and Sergeant Carey Officer Marcotte was required to do the work. The machine was registered under the name of James Marino of 30 Norton street, Providence, R. I. The 15 five-gallon cans of alcohol were carried in a second passenger Thursday from police headquarters to the federal vault in the east office building. The car is being held temporarily at a local garage.

Nearly a dozen of DeRoberto's friends came to this city Thursday morning. They were disturbed upon learning that the case had been turned over to the federal authorities. Although Ernest DeRoberto, the wounded man, had a bullet lodged in the left lung he was resting fairly well at the hospital and his companion, who is that of a bootlegger, his brother Claude said that they were both employed as painters. They are married. Claude said that he would be glad to pay the fine. According to the police Ernest DeRoberto served a jail sentence for highway robbery in Scranton, R. I.

Willimantic lodge No. 1440, Loyal Order of Moose, installed its newly elected officers at the Wm. Pierce Tabard Wednesday night with Deputy Supreme Dictator Pierre J. Laramee of this city in charge. About 100 members were present. The installation work being followed by a short entertainment during which a program of speech-making and vocal numbers was rendered. The affair had been arranged by the entertainment committee consisting Pierre J. Laramee, C. A. Lamourdex and Albert J. Piche. The officers installed are: Dictator, L. E. Thomas; vice dictator, Raymond Aloud; prelate, O. S. Loveland; treasurer, Albert J. Piche; trustee for three years, Frank Melvin; inner guard, W. H. Blanchette; outer guard, Burton Melvin; sergeant-at-arms, Walter McNamara; physicians, Dr. S. J. Turcotte, Dr. Michael D. Riordan and Dr. Charles H. Girard; C. A. Lamourdex, representative to the lodge at the national convention to be held in Chicago and Roosevelt Hall, in July.

Jewish King Lear, a four act drama depicted in finished manner by members of the local Hebrew associations, was witnessed by over 1200 people at Central Labor union hall Wednesday night. The play is an annual and was given by the Willimantic Hebrew Dramatic club for the benefit of the local Hebrew school. Abraham L. Beiler was director and superintendent of the play with M. Metz of Colchester as stage manager. Settings and costumes were by Max Axelrod. The one appointment in the presentation was the absence of women characters, essential properties in maintaining the interest in a setting. The cast included Max J. Joseph Perl, Max Saran Heiser, Max Weber, Mrs. Martha Schwartzman, Miss Mae Axelrod, Miss Joseph Berg, Max Nemoff, Louis Goldstein and Joseph Kaplan.

DANIELSON

CLOUD DIGGER SOUNDS THE NOTE OF WARNING

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, April 29—Here is what the Cloud Digger says about May and the rest of the year, and it isn't as pleasant as to good weather:

Today closes the fourth month of the year. According to U. S. Weather Bureau reports printed in your valuable paper and other papers circulated in this district, there have been many, many mistakes, according to The Cloud Digger, the prediction made away back in March without any telegraphic ticks, or radio assistance, the weather man been 100 per cent correct.

The Cloud Digger's very late spring prediction is here, now for May. Be warned you chaps who have plenty of land to plant, and use it this year. The collections of Herbert Janvrin Browne, Ocean Meterologist of Washington, D. C., and others who have studied according to his directions coupled with the position of the planets of the solar system, next year, will go far in pointing to an unusually bad year next year. A year without a summer" even according to Prof. Browne does not mean no warm weather. As I figure it using Mr. Browne's predictions as a basis followed by my own continual study of planetary conditions, there will be severe cool spells every month in the year, if winds and tides are right at the spring equinoxial period.

In my distance weather predicting, I like to study when almost the exact dates of a thousand disturbances given in 31 1-2 years; following rules that for 30 years had proved almost perfect for sea faring men, it is time for even adverse critics to halt and explain those facts away. When the exact dates of some of the world's greatest shake-ups including within 3 hours of the exact time of the Japanese earthquake, it's time to figure out dad fault; and criticism friendly, for the reverse is only good for the Cloud Digger, the Distance Weather Predictor.

I have in the past few weeks received letters from Miami, Florida, to Watertoo, Canada, from my birthplace Brunswick, Maine, to far off Vancouver, B. A., from people in all walks of life that all have in some way this year to tell: "Your predictions are correct, send me a typed copy of your dope and bill for same." Such correspondents all get the copy without bill.

One man, well-known reader of The Bulletin for many years wrote me this week, "I planted by your predictions last year and had the best crops I ever raised in my life." And, while I am getting such letters great cotton growers, wheat raisers and potato raisers are begging Herbert Janvrin Browne and other long distance predictors to advise them as to crop conditions this year.

I have among my clients in the weather predicting line, one of the greatest railroads that run out of Chicago. This spring they put on the radio at Chicago, Kansas City, St. Joe, Mo., and as far west as Denver, my spring predictions.

This is not written in a boasting way, but is all leading up to one thing, take my advice and raise all you can this year, prepare for the summer that is to be a summer of crop failure, according to some of the most eminent scientists in America.

Don't take the sneer of a highly paid member of the $100,000,000 a year U. S. Weather Bureau, put you wrong. I figure for next years possible failure in putting this year.

Even if the scientific men who agree with Herbert Janvrin Brown should all agree to keep cool, it will do no harm to go in on the ground floor and salt away some food stuff for a possibly hot year.

Remember one severe frost in July and all.

ROAD BUILDERS' EFFICIENCY SAME AS OTHER CONTRACTORS

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—Although investigations made by the Bureau of Public Roads indicate that the average highway contractor does not operate above 70 per cent efficiency, Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau, declared today that the highway builders are no less efficient than other construction operations.

One hundred per cent efficiency, according to Mr. MacDonald, is not obtainable on most of this character developed material as indicating from 40 to far less per cent to be the best possible performance.

The difference between the maximum and the efficiency and the average performance really is largely from numerous small items, the importance of which is not sufficiently appreciated by the [illegible] and superintendents who direct the [illegible] of large construction projects.

By stop-watch studies of operations on actual highway projects the bureau is seeking to discover the common time losses and bring them to the attention of contractors generally. In this way it hopes to develop a higher average level of efficiency in the conduct of the country's billion dollar program of road construction and maintenance.

In spite of the low average level of efficiency, Mr. MacDonald added, high way contracting has long been looked upon by contractors as an uncertain business, and this belief has been reflected in the rising rates charged by bonding companies. One reason is found in the irresponsible bidding of contractors who have neither the plant, equipment nor financial ability to carry on the work, but who, in order to get the contract, underbid the really responsible bidders.

The bureau's studies have been made with the intention of showing the responsible contractors how costs may be reduced and of assisting them in that way to meet the competition of those who have nothing to lose.

PUTNAM

EXPLAIN OMISSION OF FATHER MARROTTE'S NAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, April 29—Until the details had been learned there was a feeling of resentment among Putnam citizens over the announcement that a memorial tablet is to be unveiled in Washington, D. C., on May 3rd to the memory of the chaplains who were killed or who died in the service, and that the name of Rev. Anselm Mayotte was not on it.

Rev. Fr. Mayotte, who was a former resident of Webster and whose father, Thomas Mayotte, still lives there, while a curate at St. Mary's church in this city, enlisted and was sent across as a chaplain.

As the result from injuries sustained by a fall from his horse he died in France two months after the signing of the armistice.

The memorial has been erected by the American Army Chaplains' association and the tablet contains of 23 chaplains, 11 of them were killed or died as the result of wounds received in action during the World war, and 12 others who died during the war.

The announcement appeared in Monday's papers and when the omission of Fr. Mayotte's name was noticed by Dr. E. F. Perry, commander of the local legion post, which is named after the dead chaplain, at once communicated with the state legion headquarters to ascertain the reason. They took the matter up with Washington authorities and were informed that the list is limited to those who died before the war ended.

Of the 23 thus commemorated seven are Catholics and the others divided among different denominations of the Protestant faith.

A despatch from Washington yesterday explains the matter very fully. It says: "The name of the Rev. Anselm Mayotte of Putnam was not included in the list of names to be placed on the chaplain's memorial to be dedicated in Arlington cemetery because the Putnam chaplain died after the armistice. It was explained at the war department this morning. A line had to be drawn somewhere, it was said, and so that only those chaplains who died in the actual war period will have their names on the memorial. Otherwise, it would be difficult to draw any line at all, as some chaplains are dying up to the present time from wounds or disease contracted or brought on by the war, it is stated."

TO ADVERTISE PLANTS NOW STANDING IDLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 29—Thomas H. deCoudres at a meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce made the statement that he thought the committee on the revaluation of property would be able to make a definite recommendation within a short time. Mr. deCoudres is chairman of the citizens committee of nineteen. The committee has heard several men from other cities talk of the different methods of revaluation and there was a man here yesterday from down the state to give them his impressions of a different phase of the situation.

Mr. deCoudres stated that all of the members of the committee realized the imperative need of a revision of property values and that he did not believe there would be any difficulty in arriving at a harmonious conclusion if it meets the approval of the citizens and quick action is secured he believes there would be sufficient time to have the re-appraisement completed this year.

His statement was listened to with interest by all who were at the meeting and they expressed their approval of the efforts of the committee, for like everyone who has given the matter thought, they realize how much revaluation on an equitable basis means to the town.

In the absence of the secretary, C. A. Lowe acted in that capacity. He brought up the matter of advertising in trade journals of the two desirable mill properties that are available for almost any calls of manufacturing, the Harris mill, formerly owned by the Hammond-Knowlton Silk company and the Beachmont Worsted mill, formerly the French River Textile company plant. An appropriation was authorized for this purpose.

A statement was also made that the latter mill had not been dismantled as reported, that nearly all of the machinery is still there.

GROSVENORDALE STILL ON STANDARD TIME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, April 29—While Putnam goes on daylight saving time, Grosvenordale has elected to remain on standard time, and the result places this town between Putnam and Webster, two towns that are on daylight saving time.

The result has made plenty of confusion among the residents, and it is probable that an effort will be made to have Grosvenordale conform to daylight saving time, so that they may be in tune with the larger towns both north and south of them.

While Connecticut as a state has remained on standard time, many of the larger towns have gone on daylight saving time and Putnam this year has followed the lead.

So Grosvenordale finds itself wedged in between two towns and conducting business one hour later than either Putnam or Webster. It is possible however, when school is closed that the Grosvenordales will attempt to conform to the daylight schedule because of the confusion that is now existing.

It would appear that dancing has lost none of its alluring attraction for a great many people. This was evident at the dance at Wildwood park when several hundreds of people went to enjoy the pleasures of the dance at the pavilion. The music was furnished by the popular Ideal orchestra of Webster. The number of motor cars taxed the ample parking capacity of the grounds which were as crowded as on a holiday night.

Mrs. Louisa Uhte Miner, 92, died at the home of her son, Walter Miner, at Pomfret Center Tuesday. She had been in poor health for several years but had been able to get about the house and help with the work until the first of the month. She is survived by her son Walter in Pomfret and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Hentnorne of New Jersey, there are also 17 grandchildren and three great grand-children.

Her husband at the time of his death was the oldest survivor of the Civil War and was believed to be the last survivor of Anderson's Zouaves known as the "Red Legged Devils." He participated in 26 major battles of the war, including that of Gettysburg.

John Denham of Webster, Mass., driver of the automobile which figured in an accident in which James Galvin of North Grosvegordale was killed last Friday night, was bound over to the superior court Wednesday by Judge Louis Rietord. He pleaded guilty to the charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and probable cause was found on the charge of operating recklessly.

Mrs. Carl B. Johnson of Worcester is the guest of her sister, Mrs. George W. Perry on Providence St.

Engineer John Smith of the state highway department, formerly of Putnam, has been in conference with Engineer McGovern of the town of Southbridge with reference to the new macadam road to be constructed from the terminus of the present state highway at North Woodstock to the Massachusetts line, being about a mile and a half long. The road from the Connecticut line into Southbridge is to be built jointly by the town of Southbridge, the county and state of Massachusetts. Engineer Smith assured the officials of Southbridge that Connecticut was ready to start work as soon as the work was begun on the other end.

Miss Clara Larried, Miss Ada Maynard and Mrs. M. W. Keefe of this city attended the second general assembly of the Connecticut Conference of Social Workers, which was held in Norwich this week. They found the meetings most interesting and instructive.

While fishing in Snake Meadow brook in the town of Killingly, Emery Prevost of Putnam caught a trout that weighed two pounds and three ounces. This is the biggest trout seen in this vicinity this year and possibly the largest ever caught. It is on exhibition at Bacon's Sport shop on Pomfret street.

The oldest Real Daughter of the American Revolution, Mrs. Sarah Bosworth Bradway of Eastford, will celebrate her 108th birthday on Friday of this week, April 30. As usual a committee from the local D. A. R. chapter will call on her, taking with them many little remembrances of the day.

The week end just passed is the first in a long period that the Day Kimball hospital has not received a fatality or seriously wounded patient as the result of an automobile accident.

Mrs. Ruth Wheelock and Miss Elizabeth Rafferty, who have been in California for the past two weeks where they went to attend the marriage of the former's daughter, Miss Elizabeth Wheelock to Dr. James Roy Fulton, will spend several weeks on the Pacific coast visiting points of interest before they start back to Putnam.

The bus service between Goodyear and Putnam for Wednesday evenings only, that started yesterday, was well patronized both ways.

The Eastford philosopher in his weekly letter says: "Good weather on its way in a hurry. (P. S. Monday—Maybe it is not as good as I thought) Potatoes cheaper. Hens' eggs coming higher."

TRACK AN FIELD HONORS AGAIN MAY TRAVEL WEST

NEW YORK, April 29—The Eastern college track and field world, which has seen its major laurels go to the other side of the continent in four of the last five outdoor season, faces a rather dubious prospect of regaining its prestige this year.

The University of Southern California, which took the I. C. A. A. A. to the far west last spring, will be a strong favorite to keep the trophy when the outstanding college track and field tests of the spring take place at Harvard Stadium, May 28 and 29.

The Trojans may encounter particularly keen opposition from the "Big Three" as well as Pennsylvania, Cornell and Georgetown, but the prospects now are that they will win even more decisively than a year ago.

Southern California not only has nearly all its 1925 point-scorers but has added a seemingly certain place winner in Lee Barnes, the sensational young pole vaulter who won the Olympic title in 1924 and recently set a new American outdoor record of 13 feet, 5 7-8 inches at Los Angeles.

Besides Barnes, the Trojans have their famous weight man, Clarence ("Bud") Houser, who won the discus and placed second in the shot last year. With Ralph Hills, the 1925 shot putting title holder, out of competition, Houser figures to take both of his favorite events. Ken Grumbles and Leighton Dye, who captured the 220-yard low and 120-yard high hurdles last year for U. S. C., also will be available again.

Harvard looms as the east's main hope. The Crimson demonstrated the calibre of its well-balanced array by taking the indoor championships from Georgetown last March. Coach Eddie Farrell has a crack corp of runners, with such individual aces as "Mike" Miller in the sprints, "Sloany" Watters in the half-mile and mile, Red Haggerty, the outdoor mile champion, and Willard Tibbetts, the two-mile title-holder.

The contest for sprint supremacy promises to be one of the high spots of the college season with interest centered largely on Henry Russell, Cornell's long-striding star. Russell holds the outdoor 220-yard title and upset all the "dope" in March by taking the 70-yard indoor crown from Al Miller and Francis Hussey of Boston college.

These three, with Norton of Yale, Basher of California and Mittelsdorf of Colby, compose the leaders.

Relay carnivals at Kansas, Pennsylvania and Drake figure as the opening high spots of the track calendar.

Additional interest will mark the season with the presence of Charley Hoff, Norway's spectacular polevaulter.

Hoff also may figure in a renewal of his quest for all-around honors with Emerson Norton of Georgetown and Harold Osborn of the Illinois A. C. A. three are slated to compete in the decathlon at the national A. A. U. championships in Philadelphia, July 5 and 6. Other national titles will be decided on the same program with the New York Athletic club putting a strong team in the field to defend its national team championship.

Quick Relief for RHEUMATICS

Local Druggists Sell Rheuma on Money-Back Plan

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, swollen, twisted joints, and suffer intensely because your system is full of that dangerous poison that makes thousands helpless and kills thousands years before their time, then you need Rheuma, and need it now.

Start taking it today. Rheuma acts at once on kidneys, liver, stomach and blood, and you can sincerely exclaim, "Good riddance to bad rubbish."

Many people, the most skeptical of skeptics right in this city and in the country hereabouts, bless the day when Lee & Osgood Co. and other druggists offered Rheuma to the afflicted at a small price and guaranteed money refunded if not satisfied. If you have rheumatism get a bottle of Rheuma today.

FIRE DESTROYS DOCUMENT TELLING OF RUDOLF'S DEATH

PRAGUE, April 29 (AP)—The only official document dealing with the Meyerling tragedy in which Archduke Rudolf, the Emperor Franz Josef's son and heir to the Austrian throne, and Marie Vecsera met their deaths under circumstances never yet explained, was destroyed in a fire which consumed the mansion of Count Tyaffe at Ilsiebau.

The document, which is understood to contain the only authentic account of deaths, was given to Count Taaffe's father, then prime minister, by the emperor. Neither he nor his son would ever consent to its publication, and kept it carefully locked up in a safe in the library at Ilsiebau.

PRINTERS IN TWELVE CITIES TO PLAY FOR BALL TROPHY

INDIANAPOLIS, April 29 (AP)—Printers from 12 cities in the United States and Canada will drop the pica pole and stick a few days in August to take up the ball and bat for the annual tournament of the Union Printers International baseball league at St. Louis.

Teams from New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Boston, St. Paul, Washington, Toronto, Detroit and Pittsburg will compete in the St. Louis tournament, August 21 to 27, headquarters of the International Typographical Union here has announced.

A silver trophy, presented by Garry Hermann, owner of the Cincinnati Nationals, will be the prize. It will become the property of the club winning the greatest number of tournaments over a period of 12 years. Washington, with three victories, is the only club with a leg on the trophy.

ALCOVE IN PUBLIC LIBRARY IS MEMORIAL TO WATTERSON

LOUISVILLE, April 29 (AP)—In spirit, Henry Watterson, "Marse Henry" will live in Louisville again.

Louisville's memorial to her greatest writer and statesman will not be a cold marble or bronze statue, but a friendly alcove in the public library where the books and curios willed it by Mr. Watterson, will be placed.

Library officials expect it to be opened by fall. Indexing the 6,905 volumes that composed Mr. Watterson's library already is under way.

Included in the memorial collection are autographed copies of all kinds of books—novels, history and essays—sent to Mr. Watterson by authors for his personal collection and many other volumes that contain inscriptions by famous artists.

The closer you get to some people the more distant they are.

WHIMS OF BUYERS SHOWN AT NEW ORLEANS ANTIQUE SALE

NEW ORLEANS, April 29 (AP)—It may have been the rain dampening the ardor of buyers but at an auction of antiques here a Buhl table, declared by the auctioneer to have been the property of Madame de Pompadour, went under the hammer for $90. The auctioneer added that the authenticity of the table had not been questioned since 1764.

AGREEMENT WITH FRANCE

The agreement between the war debt funding commission of this country and Ambassador Berenger of France doesn't [illegible] surprise. Ever since it was evident that France was desirous of having the debt funded and sent Ambassador Berenger to make arrangements to such an end it has been believed that an adjustment would be made. France has recognized that a mistake was made in not settling the matter before and it has appreciated the benefit it would be to its credit to have it discussed of late. Much has been the contrast between the manner in which the present negotiations have been carried on and unsummarized and last years [illegible] which was made [illegible] result in a failure.

By this agreement this country will receive over $400,000,000 more than was proposed by Caillaux. The payments will begin at $60,000,000 a year and continuing at varying amounts for 62 years [illegible] payment of $5[illegible] been made.

It was at the time of the former negotiations that the amount of the debt was agreed to. Since then France has abandoned its demand for [illegible] case Germany [illegible] separation payments [illegible] modified in regard to payments for the first few years. That did much toward hastening the agreement.

With the Italian debt out of the settlements with France seemed [illegible] table. A speedy adjustment [illegible] owed the elimination of that [illegible] against the Italian settlement. These as well as other obstacles in respect to pay and [illegible] negotiations. Talk has varied with different countries and that accounts for the differences in the settlements can be expected that congress will favorably [illegible] the agreement when it gets around to the end and [illegible] the commission of the large war debt settlements. The waiting does not [illegible] Russia being the largest [illegible] the funding of that debt [illegible] been raised.

KEEP AWAY FROM A DEFICIT

There isn't anyone but what [illegible] early day. Because [illegible] been read and [illegible] future. It will be [illegible] thought [illegible] noted that [illegible] facts and [illegible] for the expenditure [illegible] than are going to be received. It is a mistake to arrange for the use of money when there is uncertainty [illegible] be obtained.

That is the view which President Coolidge has taken in warning congress to go slow in the making [illegible] appropriations at this stage of the session. Large sums have been appropriated and there remains a number of other matters that will require considerable sum. Yet if they were accepted [illegible] and [illegible] to go over [illegible] time. We [illegible] the [illegible] the people [illegible] remember that have a [illegible] need for massive [illegible] that the expenditures aren't going to result in a deficit for the treasury.

There have been [illegible] was only [illegible] Taxes have been [illegible] there has been an increase in the debt. The situation is such as to [illegible] congress to avoid [illegible] expenditures carefully [illegible] which appear [illegible] the treasury [illegible] have been [illegible] attacked for extravagance. But the treasury is not [illegible] The country is still paying more than it likes in the way of federal taxes and it has a large war debt that must be decreased rather than increased. The benefit of reduced taxation is [illegible] at the present time, but if there is resort to wild expenditures that will be [illegible] wiped out and more rather than less taxes will be faced.

That is the situation that the president is warning against. It is time to give consideration to the next year and it is preferable that congress should do this while acting upon appropriations rather than being obliged to reconsider following possible adverse action by the president. The attention of congress has been called to this situation [illegible] regrettable action.

BETTER HOMES

During this week there have been arrangements made for Better Homes Week in many communities throughout the country. The idea is to create a greater interest in better homes and to show through demonstrations that they are entirely possible.

Frequently there are demands for better homes. Comment is frequently heard that while there may be numerous rents or houses available for those needing them there not much choice among those of a desirable character. It is a case where the good ones are for the most part occupied and more of them could be disposed of if they were available.

There is no doubt but what there is a steady demand for better homes and a desire to get away from the so-called old houses by many who want modern arrangements and fewer rooms, and whatever is done in this direction means much to any community. It is not solely a matter of appearance or arrangement that determines the better home. They have their appeal but there is the equipment that shows a marked contrast to the homes of a quarter of a century ago. There are many improvements which are demanded these days and they mean much in the home.

The Better Homes week should have the effect of stimulating a greater interest in owning your own home. Through the efforts which are put forth by various organizations in behalf of better homes much encouragement is given in this direction for it is not only shown how attractive and comfortable homes can be erected in these days but how it is possible to obtain them in keeping with the size of the pocketbook. Many people spend a large part of their lives renting their homes and they feel very badly when someone buys it over their heads and they have to get out. They may have paid enough in rent to have more than equalled the purchase price of the house but they have failed to protect themselves. The idea of "owning your own" might well be incorporated in the movement for better homes.

MINE DISASTERS

From time to time the country is distressed by the lives which are lost as the result of coal mine disasters. Immediately after such disasters there is a cry that something be done about it, that the situation is such as to call for the application of remedies. There are times when it seems as if remedies might be applied and there are others when there is less certainty.

According to the statement which has recently been issued by the bureau of mines open lights have been the probable initial cause of the death of 3,561 men in coal mines in this country in the past 20 years. This means an average of 160 lives a year because of the failure to adopt precaution measures which are available and long since known.

The bureau of mines advocates the use of safe electric lamps in all mines and points out the known danger [illegible] open lamps the open lamps. The bureau reports that there are [illegible] as many open lamps in use as [illegible] lamps. There are the same safeguards in electrical protection but perhaps not quite as satisfactory [illegible] but when open lights are used [illegible] brought into the discard. The open lights may get endorsement [illegible] are rated as non-gaseous [illegible] in the opinion of the bureau [illegible] non-gassy mines may become gassy over night and there's no telling when danger is going to be encountered.

[illegible] old adage that prevention is to a considerable degree [illegible] watchful [illegible] mines. There is probably [illegible] to any [illegible] going into mines that there [illegible] protect [illegible] the hazards [illegible] the non-matter as one to or [illegible] encountered.

OBITUARY
John McCarthy

After a lingering illness, John McCarthy, long a resident of Fitchville, died Thursday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Michael Sweeney, in Fitchville. Mr. McCarthy was born in County Cork Ireland, 85 years ago and came to this country when a young man. He located in Fitchville, first working for A. C. Fitch and family and later he came to Norwich, being employed by Senator Lafayette P. H. Foster on Broadway.

Mr. McCarthy then bought a farm in Franklin. He gave up the farm about 25 years ago and returned to Fitchville where he had since resided. In 1868 he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Murphy in Colchester, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Father McCarthy. Three of eight children born to them are now living. These are one son and two daughters, Florence McCarthy of New York, Mrs. Michael Sweeney of Fitchville, with whom he made his home and Mrs. Elmer Lathrop of Fitchville. There are also five grandchildren, James D. McCarthy, a son, who operated a farm on Scotland road, died last December. Mr. McCarthy's wife died about 14 years ago.

Mrs. Erastus G. Hull

The death of Alla Fitch, widow of Erastus G. Hull, occurred at 10:15 o'clock Thursday evening at the home of her son, Harry L. Hull in Lisbon, following illness of several years. For the past four or five years she had made her home with her son in Lisbon, but for many years she had lived in Ohio city, where she was a member of the King's Daughters. She was born in Hartford 74 years ago, the daughter of George and Hannah Stetson Fitch, later removing with her parents to Lebanon. She attended the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church and was married in Lisbon 56 years ago to Erastus G. Hull, who passed away in January, 1902. She is survived by a son, Harry L. Hull, and is the last of her immediate family.

WINNERS IN PINOCHLE PLAY BY "WE MODERNS"

The We Moderns finished their first pinochle tournament Tuesday afternoon when they met with Mrs. Henry Bamber of Rockwell street. Scores for the afternoon were exceptionally high. Mrs. D. Hadley winning first prize with 9055 while Mrs. H. Retkowski was second with 8570. These two prize winners for the afternoon were the winners of the series, Mrs. H. Retkowski first with 55705 while Mrs. D. Hadley had 55405.

White refreshments were being served by the hostess, Miss E. F. Mullins who has acted as scorer for the club since it started was presented a small token of appreciation for her services by Mrs. L. Manchester in behalf of the members.

Total scores for the afternoon: Mrs. D. Hadley 9055, Mrs. H. Retkowski 8570, Mrs. C. Busch 8520, Mrs. H. Bamber 8510, Mrs. L. Manchester 8450, Mrs. E. F. Mullins 7955, Mrs. J. Lelrich 7610 (substituting for Mrs. C. Prodell) and Mrs. W. H. Hastedt 7280.

Total scores for the series: Mrs. H. Retkowski 55705, Mrs. D. Hadley 55405, Mrs. C. Busch 55005, Mrs. H. Bamber 54670, Mrs. L. Manchester 53620, Mrs. C. Prodell 51075, Mrs. E. F. Mullins 49535 Mrs. W. R. Hasted: 47725.

As the club is about to start another series next week a novel way of deciding where the club should meet each week was planned by the hostess, Mrs. Bamber, who placed May day favors at each plate, the numerals in the basket indicating the week each member was to entertain. As Mrs. D. Hadley of Hill street found number one awaiting her she will be the hostess next Thursday.

CHAS. H. CORCORAN TO BE ORDAINED ASCENSION DAY

Charles H. Corcoran, son of Mrs. Lina Fitch and the late Charles W. Corcoran, of 74 Fountain street is to be ordained a priest Ascension Thursday, May 13th. The impressive ceremonial will take place in St. Patrick's cathedral, Hartford, at 10 o'clock on that date.

Father Corcoran will sing his first solemn mass in his home church, St. Patrick's Norwich, on the following Sunday, May 16th at 10:30.

For the past year the young seminarian has been a prefect in St. Thomas' seminary, Hartford, and there is a possibility that he may receive holy orders from the president of St. Thomas', Rt. Rev. Maurice F. McAuliffe, who was consecrated auxiliary bishop of Hartford, Wednesday, but this is not definitely known yet.

Following his graduation from St. Patrick's school and three years' study at Norwich Free Academy, the young student enrolled at St. Thomas' seminary. After his course of study there he was assigned by Bishop Nilan to St. Bernard's seminary, Rochester, N. Y., for his five years' course in philosophy and theology. At the conclusion of the Rochester course he was recalled to St. Thomas', where he has been teaching while continuing preparation and study for his high calling. Many friends from Norwich and vicinity will go to Hartford to witness his ordination and many hundreds will assist at his first solemn mass and will be eager to receive the blessing of this most worthy young man, of whom his home parish is so proud.

Announce Daughter's Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Myers of 218 Laurel Hill avenue announce the engagement of their daughter Margaret Mae, to Carl Frances Calkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Calkins of 545 Main street. The wedding will take place in June.

OVER DOZEN BIDDERS FOR CONTRACT TO BUILD CITY'S NEW RESERVOIR

Over a dozen bids for building the earth and concrete dam and appurtenances at the new Deep River reservoir, which is to have a capacity of 400 million gallons, were opened on Thursday night at the office of the engineers, Chandler & Palmer, in the Thayer building.

Figures on the bids and the names of the bidders were not announced, but it was reported by some of the bidders after the meeting that the Green company of Worcester had turned in the low figure; with Petrossi of Meriden and Arrisoni of Middletown close to the Worcester man's figure, but all the others very much higher.

It is expected that the bids will be brought up before a meeting of the water commissioners this (Friday) night and come before the common council meeting next Monday night.

The plans for this new reservoir for the city of Norwich, as drawn up by Chandler & Palmer, provide for a dam 750 feet long, running east and west, which is situated in the southeasterly part of the town of Colchester on Deep River about one half mile southerly of where Deep River crosses at the Bogue road, so-called.

The dam is to be 103 feet wide at the base, tapering up by a two to one slope on either side to a width of 33 feet above the ground. The concrete core wall runs down 20 feet and its construction is so designed, in connection with the 30 foot width at the top of the dam, as to provide for raising the dam 18 feet in the future if the need should ever arise.

Below the core wall are 20 and 25 feet of sheet steel piling sunk into the ground. The upstream slope of the dam will be paved with stone 12 inches thick and the downstream slope will be covered with loam and seeded down.

There will be three sluice gates, 24x48, and the waste way will be at the easterly end of the dam, 60 feet wide in the dam and tapering down to a width of 20 feet where it enters the stream below the dam.

The water will be discharged from the reservoir through a 48 inch cast iron pipe passing through the dam at the level of the floor of the pond, operating as a sluiceway which is closed by a gate and from which there branches off the 30 inch pipe line which runs as far as Fitchville where it is cut down to 24 inches.

The water level of the Deep river reservoir will be 332 feet above tidewater. This is a higher level than either of the other reservoirs from which the city now gets its supply, Stony Brook is 273 feet above tidewater and Fairview 250 feet. The increased elevation would naturally give a greater head and pressure but this may be cut down materially by friction by the nine miles of pipe through which the water will pass to reach the city mains.

The contract calls for completion of work by Dec. 1, but this, it is stated, may be subject to delays as there is considerable of the material that the city is to furnish.

At the present time it will be necessary to abandon part of the old Colchester road along land owned by the city on each side of the road.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish a bond of $60,000, acceptable to the water commissioners. The work covered in the contract consists of the building of an earth dam with concrete core wall, and steel sheet piling, paving, masonry work, concrete slabs, gate house, laying of pipes, and appurtenances.

The cast iron pipe, cement, specials, sluice gates, steel sheet piling, other iron or steel and jointing material are to be furnished by the board of water commissioners and delivered on the job by the distributing contractor.

Some of the approximate quantities shown in the information for bidders are the following:

Excavation to and below 8 feet, 12,000 cu. yds.; rock excavation, 20 cu. yds.; concrete masonry, 3,330 cu. yds.; gate house and appurtenances, 180 cu. yds.; 8 inch concrete slab, 470 cu. yds.; stone masonry, 1,000 cu. yds.; embankment, 58,000 cu. yds.; paving, 4,800 sq. yds.; sheet steel piling, 650 pieces; 3 sluice gates in gate house, and crushed stone under paving, 460 cu. yds.

C. F. NOYES CO. BECOMES INTERNATIONAL CONCERN

Effecting a business combination of international scope, the Charles F. Noyes Co., of New York city will on May 1 take the leading place among real estate brokerage companies of that city. The Noyes organization has acquired the rental and agency management of the United Cigar Stores Company and eventually will extend the scope of its activities in the real estate field throughout the company and its foreign business will be handled through selected representatives.

The present business, established in 1898, owned by Mr. Noyes and conducted under the registered trade name Charles F. Noyes Company, will be taken over by a corporation of the same name with a preference cumulative preferred stock of $2,400,000 and 10,000 shares of common stock. The United Cigar Stores Company of America has taken over for investment a one-half interest in the new corporation and the balance is taken by Mr. Noyes for himself and employes. No stock will be conferred to the public. Nearly 10,000 tenants will pay their rent monthly to the Noyes organization and property valued at nearly $150,000,000 will form the immediate nucleus of a business of vast importance.

Mr. Noyes, who is a native of this city where he did his first work as a carrier of The Bulletin, will be president and manager of the enlarged enterprises. Twenty-eight years ago he went to New York and immediately entered the real estate brokerage field on his own account. He started with nothing and last year reported a business of $149,000,000, said to be the largest ever handled by one real estate brokerage house with no branches.

Mr. Noyes is a director and a member of the executive committee of the Lawyers Title & Guaranty company, the Lawyers Trust Company, a director in many realty corporations; on the Market & Fulton Board of the Irving Bank, Columbia Trust Company; a director of the Real Estate Board of New York Building Corporation and will be elected a director of the United Cigar Stores Company of America. Mr. Noyes' life is being insured for the benefit of his organization for $2,400,000. In discussing future plans the Charles F. Noyes Company issued the following statement: "We are proud of being selected by the United as its managing and renting agents. Five floors will be occupied in our 118 Williams street building for the exclusive use of our business. While our organization is well balanced with corps of management engineers and unusually well equipped experts in the buying, selling and renting, mortgage, financing and management divisions, yet every department will be strengthened and the very best men obtainable taken on so as to look out for this important account and for expansion. Within 30 days we will organize a department to deal with out of town properties through direct traveling salesmen and direct representation in important cities. The business will be continued as a strictly brokerage business. Mr. Noyes' time will be devoted entirely and exclusively to the business of the corporation."

SETTLEMENT MADE IN $12,000 AUTOMOBILE SUIT

The $12,000 damage suit of Carl Johnson of Groton, against Kirk H. Wilcox and the $2,000 suit of David A. Chesebro, of Stonington, against the same defendant, were settled out of court. The cases, which were to have been heard in the superior court at New London this week, came to a close when settlements were effected between Attorneys Warren B. Burrows and Russell H. Corcoran, for the plaintiffs and Attorney Daniel M. Crouin for the defendant.

The suits arose out of an automobile accident last summer when the Chesebro car and the Wilcox car were in collision. Johnson was an occupant of the Chesebro car and was badly injured, while Chesebro was also injured and his car badly damaged.

Uncasville Postmistress Confirmed

The nomination for reappointment of Mrs. Mary H. Newton as postmistress of Uncasville was confirmed by the senate at Washington Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Newton was appointed for the first time as postmistress four years ago and has since served efficiently in that capicity.

Given Birthday Surprise

A few friends of Mrs. Barbara Wunderlich of Norwich avenue, Taftville surprised her Wednesday evening in honor of her birthday. A delicious supper was served consisting of salad, chicken, pickles, rolls, cookies, ice cream and coffee also a large birthday cake. The evening was enjoyed with games. The guests included

LAKE STREET PLAYGROUND IN BEAUTIFICATION CONTEST

An important meeting of the recreation commission was held Thursday evening with Chairman William J. Fitzgerald presiding and the entire commission present. Those on the commission are Mrs. Alex Pusnik, Mrs Elizabeth F. Drew, Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury, John M. Lee, Robert J. Swanton and Jonathan L. Johnson.

Reports of the various committees were made and indicated that much preliminary work has been done to insure a successful season. Chairman Fitzgerald reported that the Lake street playground has been entered in the national contest for playground beautification and that Norwich, though this ground, is competing directly with fifty-seven other cities for national honors and a share in the cash prizes and nursery stock which are to be awarded by the playground and recreation association of America for the greatest progress in playground beautification this year.

The awards, which are contributed by the Harmon Foundation of New York city, and a group of nursery companies, are divided into three classes, according to the population of the competing communities. $1000 in cash and $550 in nursery stock will be awarded to the eleven playgrounds which on November 1st, next, stand highest in each group.

The population groups as follows: Communities under 8,000; communities between 8,000 and 25,000 and cities over 25,000. Norwich is in the latter group and is competing against such cities as Pasadena, Cal., Stamford, Conn., Wilmington, Del., Evanston, Ill., Lexington, Ky., Portland, Me., Ashville, N. C. and Cleveland, Ohio.

The two other groups of cities with population under 8,000 and between 8,000 and 25,000 have respectively 73 and 52 competitors, making a total of 187 cities which have entered 312 playgrounds in the competition.

Plans have been drawn up for setting of rows of shade trees along the sides of the Lake street grounds and a hedge along the road at the entrance to the grounds. The actual work is expected to be underway very soon and the commission feels that with the cooperation of the parents and children in this locality that this ground may be made much more attractive and one this city will be proud of.

The Greeneville grounds are to be used again this year through the courtesy of officials of the Atlantic Carton Corporation and it is planned to erect a substantial playground fence along the railroad track side of this ground so that there will be no danger of accidents from trains. This safety precaution will greatly improve the grounds and will be especially appreciated by parents of children using the grounds. The commission plans to put up whatever equipment can be left on the Lake street and Greeneville grounds within a short time so it may be enjoyed before the season officially opens.

Applications for position on the playground staff were received from numerous former instructors and a number of new names also appear on the list of applications. The commission is planning to increase the beneficial playground work by extending the season, if possible, this year and will endeavor to improve on the playground facilities of former years. Special need of a playground is felt in one section of the city quite remote from one ground and efforts are being made to fill this need.

CHARGED WITH SELLING LIQUOR TO POLICE

Miss Etne. Hayling, colored, who gave her age as 31 and her address as No. 14 John street, New London, came to Norwich Monday to spend a few days as the guest of Mrs. Clara Scott, colored, West Main street. Thursday evening a prospective customer, in the employ of the local police, visited the Scott home for the purpose of purchasing for the police some liquor. He succeeded in purchasing the liquor, and it is alleged that the Hayling woman was the person who made the sale. That is the charge against her on the police blotter, for she was arrested by Sergt. Matthew Delaney and Officers William Sharvan and Joseph Gendron. Her bond was set at $1,000 but as she was unable to secure a bondsman she was locked up in the woman's detention room over night. Her case will come before the city court this (Friday) morning.

Divorce for Desertion

Ernest F Saunders of New London was given a decree of divorce on the grounds of desertion from Olive B. Saunders of Niantic, by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court at New London this week. The couple were married Dec. 9, 1922 and desertion was alleged since July 8, 1923. The plaintiff was also given the custody of a minor child.

HISTORIC MAIN HOUSE TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE

Nothing was saved from the old Amasa M. Main homestead in North Stonington when fire leveled it to the ground Tuesday morning between 8 o'clock and noon. The house was unoccupied and was on the Old Mystic road at some distance from its junction with the Norwich and Westerly state highway. What started the fire is not known.

A garage, ice house, and shed were also consumed, together with many historical relics collected since the days of Gov. John Winthrop. The losses are estimated at $7,000 and are not covered by insurance. The house was owned by Lafayette Main of Swantown, North Stonington, who was having the house repaired.

The house is believed to have been nearly two centuries old. The land is said to have been given to Governor Winthrop, one of the first settlers of New London county, by the government, originally belonging to the Indians. This was following the Pequot war which occurred in 1636.

Governor Winthrop sold the land to Squire Elisha Ayers of England, who came over here and settled. The property was owned in the Ayers family for three generations, being sold by Squire Ayers' grandson, Col. George Ayers to Charles Stanton, who later disposed of the place to Amasa M. Main. Ayers Mountain was named after these early settlers from England.

The house was of the old type known as the cameleopard style, being two-story in front and one story in the rear. All of the nails and hinges were handmade and the old fashioned fixtures were considered very valuable.

SAYS HARTFORD JUDGE JUMPED TO CONCLUSION

Commenting on the criticism of Judge Nathan A. Schatz of the Hartford police court that the state farm for inebriates is being run "like a hotel," Supt. Franklin S. Wilcox of the Norwich State hospital, who also has supervision of the state farm there, said Thursday night that he is not required to notify the police courts when an inmate "elopes" from the farm. Dr. Wilcox said that he had sent a letter this week to the Hartford court official notifying him that William Collins, committed to the farm on March 21, 1925, had left the farm on April 26, 1925, a year ago, but, he added that the purpose of the letter was to notify the Hartford court that Collins' time was up, rather than to give notification that Collins had left the institution.

The Hartford police judge jumped to the conclusion that Dr. Wilcox had made a mistake in his dates or was sending notice of an "elopement" a year after it happened.

Dr. Wilcox emphasized the fact that he is running a hospital and not a prison. Of course the farm inmates are watched, but, as is the case in other institutions of a like kind, the inmates will walk away. This is not a new situation, said Dr. Wilcox, it has been the same ever since the farm was opened.

Dr. Wilcox said he has written a letter to Judge Schatz inviting him to visit the farm and see it in operation. "I think when he sees what we are doing there and at the hospital for the inebriate patients he will have occasion to change his opinion regarding our methods and be less prone to criticize," Dr. Wilcox concluded.

COMBAT TRAIN SMOKER STARTS CAMP INTEREST

As an opener for a recruiting campaign in anticipation of the annual camp at Toby Hanna, Pa., the Combat Train held a smoker and get-together at the state armory Thursday evening. At 8:30 in the big drill shed a series of boxing bouts began with two 100 pound boys, Smoke Lacey and Kid Green, going three fast rounds to a draw. This was followed by three snappy two-minute rounds between Kid Bergeron and Irwin Ebers, declared a draw by Corporal Pawelec, whose years in the service have qualified him as a third man in the ring, which he later proved by taking on the best in the ranks. Corp. Ludlow for three two-minute rounds and showed to advantage. The best bout of the evening was between Sheik Leonard of Norwich and Buster McCarthy who is under the tutelage of the Sheik. It was a fast four round draw, McCarthy showing to advantage, but the boys think Mac would get along faster if he would change his crane de cloine trunks of red for his native colors in the emerald green.

Sandwiches, coffee and refreshments were served by Sergt. Cimilchi and his cooks.

A comedy bout extraordinary staged by Bananas Tombari and Bullets Busch proved a climax to a fine lot of bouts and Corp. Pawelec awarded the muzzle to Tombari to be worn in future bouts to keep him from biting.

A few recruits showed interest in signing up in July. They and others were advised that they should join and get put through the paces in order to escape the recruit battalion at camp. This is the last camp for the Combat Train so far away from home and the boys are working hard to make it the best. Sergt. Crowley was at his best in handling the affairs of the evening.

Secure Rabbi Wise to Speak

It was announced here Thursday evening that Rabbi Stephen Wise, who is world renowned figure, had been secured to lecture in this city upon The Jewish Problems of the World Today. Although coming under the auspices of the Norwich Zionist district and the Norwich Hebrew institute, Rabbi Wise has indicated that he particularly wants an audience both Jewish and non-Jewish Received Dog at Theatre.

Mrs. Ellen Cundy of 31 Cliff street went home from the Palace theatre performance Thursday night delightedly cuddling a bunch of fluffiness in her arms which was a pedigreed puppy of the police dog breed from the Chase kennels. With the showing of the Rin Tin Tin picture, the theatre management conceived the idea of giving away a puppy of the Rin Tin Tin type. So Mrs. Cundy received the dog Thursday evening when it was presented to her from the stage by one of the vaudeville performers. The little animal will be an acceptable playmate for a small child in the Cundy household.

Waterbury Church Leads Norwich.

In the contest between the Central Baptist church of this city and the First Baptist church of Waterbury for the largest attendance of men and boys at the morning church services up to the first of June, the Norwich church had a count of 156 last Sunday and the Waterbury church 127. But the Waterbury church is still 9 points ahead so that the Central church will try to cut down this lead by the attendance next Sunday.

Keeping the Glad Hand Out

The delegates from all over the state who were here to attend the conference of Social Work have departed but a number of the Norwich stores continue to display the "Welcome Delegates" signs in their windows.

Though the ones for whom the signs were intended have gone, it is commendable to find that Norwich business houses are in no hurry to withdraw their signs of hospitality and cordiality to all who come within their doors.

Given Pretty Birthday Party

A very pretty birthday party was given in honor of Miss Elinor M. Erickson at her home Tuesday evening. Games were played and dancing was enjoyed. Music was rendered by the coast guard academy orchestra. The hostess received many pretty and useful gifts. Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. A. Erickson assisted by Mrs. G. L. Guertin, Mrs. J. V. King, Mrs. F. C. Magruson and Mrs. C. I. Erickson.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs Walter Brown and Mrs. Baker of Naugatuck, are week end guests of Dr. and Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, of Sachem terrace.

The Tuesday afternoon bridge club was entertained by Mrs. Joseph S. Whelan, of Greene avenue. The prize was won by Mrs. Henry H. Vignot.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel L. Brown sailed from New York Thursday on the North German Lloyd steamer Berlin, for a month's motor tour of England.

The W. W. T. E. club held its weekly afternoon of cards Thursday with Mrs. Maurice F. Kelly, of Williams street, highest scores being made by Mrs. P. T. Sweeney and Mrs. F. A. Sisk.

Mrs. William H. Dawley, the regent, has received for Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R. an invitation from Lucretia Shaw chapter, New London, to its May luncheon, at the Mohican, Monday next.

Mr. and Mrs. David Leonard Bacon and two children motored on from New Haven Tuesday and were guests of Mrs. Edward D. Fuller, leaving Mr. Bacon's mother, Mrs. Leonard W. Bacon for a few days' visit.

An extra afternoon card party was given for the Tuesday Bridge club by Mrs. George L. Ingalls, of Sachem street. Winners of prizes were Mrs. Edwin A. Harris, Mrs. Arthur Harvey Lathrop and Mrs. Charles E. Taylor.

Thursday evening, Mrs. R. Day Plimpton gave a four-hand bridge and a kitchen shower at her home on Jarvis terrace for Miss Dorothy Lord, whose engagement to Robert Morgan Vorys, of Norwich Town was announced recently. The prize at cards was won by Miss Gladys L. Peckham.

GERMAN TELEGRAPH INDUSTRY DECLINING

Gradually in Germany the telephone is killing the telegraph. Those cables in that country a telegraph "priest" about 3,500 miles long, which touches nearly every population center however small. In the last few years this system has hardly grown. Germans are sending fewer messages and now the telegraph system costs the state administration 100,000,000 marks (nominally $25,185,000) a year.

The telephone, on the other hand, grows steadily. The "priest" of telephone wires will soon be 4,100 miles long and it will be possible to telephone from any place to any other place in Germany. Moreover the Germans are making the addition of an international system whereby Hamburg, London, Amsterdam, Berlin, Vienna and Constantinople will have direct telephonic communication with any part of Germany.

UNABLE TO FILL ORDERS FOR REGATTA TICKETS

NEW HAVEN, April 29 (AP)—Because of the heavy oversubscription for seats for the observation train at the Yale-Pennsylvania-Columbia regatta on the Housatonic river, May 8, applications from graduates and sophomores and freshman at Yale cannot be filled, it was announced tonight by the Yale Athletic association.

When a check up was made today by the association, it was found that 3,498 tickets were called for through regular applications. There are available 2,242 seats in the observation train of 34 cars. Columbia university has taken five cars.

Walter P. Reed, general passenger agent of the New Haven railroad, said that the railroad would be willing to erect a grandstand on the Shelton side of the river on the embankment overlooking the finish mark. This stand will seat 1,800 persons.

The New Haven railroad has agreed to run special passenger trains from New York and New Haven direct to the entrance of the grand stand. All seats in the stand will be reserved.

LAUGHLIN REPLACES BUD FRANCISCO AS STROKE

NEW HAVEN, April 29.—(AP)—Following many days practice in preparation for the Yale-Pennsylvania-Columbia regatta on the Housatonic river, May 8, the Yale varsity crew tonight found Tom Laughlin, of Providence, R. I., once more in the stroke position. Laughlin replaces Bud Francisco, of New York, freshman stroke last year. He has been with the first crew most of the spring.

Laughlin stroked the champion Elihu crew who are expected to be in the varsity boat for the regatta are Captain Kingsbury, at number 6; Jack Warren at number 7, and Hawley Peterson, bow.

Because of the keen competition between the varsity and junior varsity crews, Coach Leader is finding it difficult to make a final selection for the season's varsity.

THIRTEEN DRIVERS HAVE QUALIFIED FOR BIG RACE

SPEEDWAY, N. J., April 29—(AP)—Roaring around the mile and a half board oval at speeds better than 135 miles an hour, 13 automobile drivers of world fame qualified today for the 500-mile International race Saturday that will open the new Atlantic speedway.

Four drivers, Harry Harts, Peter Kreis, Bennett Hill and Bob McDonogh, qualified at the same speed, 142.9 miles an hour. Peter de Paolo, American champion, and Frank Elliott were clocked at 137.8 miles an hour, while Ralph Hepburn did 135.5.

Another test will be held tomorrow for those who did not qualify today. They are Ralph De Palma, Dave Evans, Earl Ever, Zeke Meyers, Count de Marguenat, of France; and Baron de Rachewesky, of Russia.

MITCHELL AND DUNCAN BARELY MAKE THE GRADE

LONDON, April 29—(AP)—Abe Mitchell and George Duncan, the British golfing stars, barely scraped through the qualifying round of the southern division of the Daily Mail annual £1,000 competition at Coombe Hill today.

Both Mitchell and Duncan who turned in cards of 78 were forced to play off nine holes with six other contestants at the bottom of the qualifying list. The playoff placed both of them in the finals which will be held at St. Andrew's on May 19. Senor Perez, the Argentine player who returned a card of 77, was one of the 36 professionals who qualified. There were 144 entrants.

MAILS WILD THROW LOSES GAME FOR CARDS

CHICAGO, April 29. —(AP)—Duster Mails virtually threw his own game today when he shot Gonzales' bunt wild to second in the eighth, from where the Cuban shortly scored to give Chicago the first of the series with St. Louis six to five. Mails was revelled by Haines after his misjudged throw to second but, the first hit off Haines brought Gonzales home with the winning run. Three home runs featured the game.

YANKS WIN SIXTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—The Yankees won their sixth straight game today with the Senators as their victims by 8 to 5.

It was a free hitting contest and for once the locals were outslugged. But the Senators started their attack on Pennock after the Yanks had piled up a safe lead.

Tony Lazzeri pasted his second homer of the season while Joe Dugan increased his batting average by getting three hits in four turns.

RICKARD AND GIBSON HOLD LENGTHY CONFERENCE BUT ANNOUNCE NO PLANS

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—Preliminary skirmishes behind the scenes designed to produce a heavyweight championship battle on the fistic front this summer proceeded today with Promoter Tex Richard and Billy Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney, the central figures in another conference.

When the confereeg emerged to meet questions as to whether they had agreed on a Dempsey-Tunney title fight for September, their brief joint reply was:

"We haven't reached any definite conclusions yet but we hope to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas."

Neither Rickard nor Gibson would disclose the details of their conference but interviewer presumed it marked another step in the generally expected plan to put Tunney in the ring with Dempsey somewhere around September 16 at the Yankee stadium.

Tomorrow Rickard goes before the state athletic commission, possibly to be questioned about his deal in signing Dempsey to a contract at Fort Worth, Tex., and to seek support in his efforts, so far ineffectual, to bring Jack Delaney to terms for a light-heavyweight title fight with Paul Berlenbach at the Yankee stadium, June 10.

Gibson confirmed the report that he had signed a blank contract binding Tunney to meet any opponent, anytime, anywhere, under Rickard's promotion.

"We prefer Dempsey, of course," he said "but if he isn't available Rickard has a perfect right, under the terms of our agreement, to match Tunney against Willis.

"I also want to correct the impression that I am tied up with some other promoter. Rickard has sole right to Tunney's services and I have never reached an agreement or signed any binding contract with any other promoter."

Gibson said Tunney was now in California working on a motion picture and would not return to New York before July 1.

Rickard said his visit to the commission tomorrow involved only his application for a license to operate the Yankee stadium this summer and a renewal of the license for Madison Square Garden which expires next month.

"And I'll ask the commission to force Delaney to keep a verbal agreement with me concerning the Berlenbach match," he said.

Asked what he would say if the commission attempted to interrogate him on his trip to Fort Worth to sign Dempsey, Rickard said:

"I'll tell them I signed Dempsey to a blank contract but I'm not ready to reveal my plans for him."

BAGGENBAGGAGE OUTRUNS FIELD AT LEXINGTON

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 29.—(AP)—Baggenbaggage winner of the Louisiana derby and one of E. R. Bradley's "faces" for the Kentucky derby, defeated a field of eligibles at the Association track here today. His time for the mile and 70 yards was 1:45 4-5.

Barcolo, a stable mate, ran second and Percentage third. The victory marked the third time this season the Bradley entry has finished one-two in races, Boot to Boot, runner-up in the Louisana derby, having finished second to Bubbling over here Monday.

The Bradley entry was the favorite at 1 to 2, paying $3.00, $2.40 and $2.20 on each $2 mutuel ticket to win, place and show. Percentage paid $2.60 to show.

Two other derby candidates, Prince Charles and Counsellor Connolly, finished first and third in a race for maidens. Lucky Donna was second Prince Charles' time for the futurity distance, 170 feet less than three-quarters of a mile, was 1:10 3-5.

YALE BEATS DARTMOUTH IN SLUGGING MATCH

NEW HAVEN, April 29.—(AP)—Taking three visiting pitchers for 16 hits, the Yale baseball team defeated Dartmouth 17 to 10, here today. Dartmouth batters knocked in three runs in each of the first two innings. In the first inning Captain Picken drove a home run into deep center with two men on base. The pitching of both teams was weak. Shoop was replaced early in the second inning by Holabird, who allowed seven runs, three in the second, and four in the fifth before he found himself.

Yale tied the score in the third with two passes, two doubles, a pair of singles, a hit batter and a sacrifice. The score by innings:

BURNS PREACHES CLEAN LIVING TO MAT ARTISTS

OMAHA, Neb., April 29. (AP)—"Farmer" Burns, doyen of American wrestling former heavyweight champion, participant in more than 6,000 bouts and the man who discovered and trained another champion, Frank Gotch, is still teaching the lessons of clean living and good sportsmanship to hundreds of aspiring mat artists.

The old "Farmer" is now in his 66th year, but in his activity and agility is one of Omahas most familiar and picturesque figures as he moves briskly about.

Himself an exponent of clean living and thrift, the "Farmer" is hale and hearty and the owner of a comfortable "nest-egg"—the accumulation of his life's

WESTERLY

DAY SESSION FOR SUPERIOR COURT TODAY
(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 29—Third district court Friday morning, Judge Oliver H. Williams will be a busy session for not only will the dockets of criminal and civil cases be called but on the trial calendar has been set down two liquor raid cases in Carolina, R. I., made by members of the department of Rhode Island state police.

On Wednesday in superior court for Washington county, but one attorney appeared. Judge James O. Watts, and adjournment was taken, when no cases were found ready for trial. Superior court will come in at Westerly court house on Monday morning next when previous to taking up the Westerly trial calendar of civil cases, at least two cases of the criminal or attorney general's docket have been set down for a Westerly hearing.

Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, following the receipt of a letter from police authorities of New Bedford, Mass., took into custody on Thursday forenoon Hyrolite Madec of New Bedford, Mass., who is wanted there to answer to the charge of secreting leased property.

On Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock an automobile of the New Bedford police department came to Westerly with two police officers and Madec was turned over to the Massachusetts police.

KILLS ONE FOX BUT CLAIMS BOUNTY ON TWO
(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., April 29—An Ashaway "nimrod" has been recently discovered who would be "hard to beat without cheating," as the story is told among Westerly hunters. While hunting in the "wilds" of the town of Hopkinton this well-known fox hunter came across an old she fox and dispatched her. A Caesarian operation was performed by this Dr. Jeckyl and the young fox taken to the authorities to secure the additional bounty which was awarded the mighty hunter. Hyde.

One of the most largely attended funerals in Westerly was that of Mrs. Marie Muranto De Bartolo, 37, wife of Joseph DeBartolo, whose death occurred last Monday at 2 Pond street following but a week's illness. The funeral was held at 8:30 o'clock on Tuesday morning from her late home and at 9 o'clock at the Immaculate Conception church. The mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Henry F. Bruno, assisted by Fr. J. F. Vincent and Rev. Fr. J. P. Cassagne. Attending in a body were the members of Societa de Madre di Christiana (Christian Mothers) of Westerly of which the deceased was a member. During the service Thomas V. B. Cumow rendered the solo, "Calvary."

Interment was in St. Sebastian Cemetery, Westerly, the bearers being Louis Agostinho, Salvatore Alfre, Salvatore Iaconetto, Frank Ferraro, Sabine, Cherenzia and Nicholas Castagne.

Recorded at the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfers: April 26, Estate of Daniel P. Burdick, by decree of Westerly Probate Court to Annie E. Burdick undivided one-half interest in a parcel or plot of land on the west side of East avenue.

April 28, Fred S. Ogle to Samuel H. Davis. A certain lot or parcel of land lot No. 3 of the East Beach Land Development company plat, on East Beach at Watch Hill.

Westerly town clerk's office will be a busy place today (Friday) for this is the last day for the payment of Westerly fire district taxes when a discount of 3 per cent is allowed. After April 30th interest is added at the rate of 12 per cent per annum. Today is also the last one for the payment of dog tax license fees.

The large Armstrong rifle, mounted on the lawn in front of the state armory on Dixon street received a second coat of paint on Thursday of service drab color. The large gun mount looks quite "spiffy" in its glossy dress. On Wednesday afternoon and evening members of the Westerly Sanitary corps were engaged in removing the cots, mattresses and other property of the corps from the basement and tower room of the state armory. The property will be placed in storage.

The Buick coupe which was burned about midnight at Wilcox curve with Quinnebaug following a collision with a Mack truck, was towed to Westerly on Thursday morning to the garage of Max Raithel, one of the occupants. The coupe was owned by J. A. LaChance of Providence, and caught fire as a result of the collision.

In the Buick were Max Raithel and E. D. Hall, both of Westerly, T. A. Kimmell of Boston, and J. A. LaChance of Providence. The four men, all of whom suffered scratches and bruises were taken to Dr. A. H. Myers of Mystic for treatment.

The Mack truck was driven by W. G. Carrington of Providence, who escaped injury.

Grant; Jerry Arnold, Clifford J. Barber; Jack Montgomery, Arthur I. Thompson; Zuleska, Edith O. Saint Sure; Mr. McNutt, E. Earl James; Wood Dell Media, Wilfred Bassett.

The Broad Street Christian church will have another of its "Get-Together" Sunday afternoons when eight teams of six persons each will visit the members of the congregation. Two such visiting vacations have been held on Sunday afternoons during the year and this will be the last of the series. Wednesday evening at 6.30 there will be a fellowship supper in the vestry of the church. The speaker of the evening will be Rev. Harding Gaylord, a graduate of Yale Divinity School and a classmate of Rev. A. L. Schenkan. He is to talk on the value of visitation.

The funeral of Mrs. Robert Jagger, was held Wednesday afternoon from her late home in Potter Hill, where her death occurred Monday. Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church, was the officiating clergyman.

The bearers were Ernest Tucker, Fred Tucker, Ira Norman and Grover King. Interment was in River end cemetery.

The next meeting of the Westerly chamber of commerce will be held Tuesday evening, May 4, at the Colonial club, Secretary Edwin D. Hawke announced Thursday.

"DIRT" FARMERS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Now and then, once in a while you hear some one speak of a "dirt" farmer.

The very fact that he is so called seems to imply regretfully that all farmers are "dirt" farmers.

If they were, the singling out of one would seem to be meaningless. It would be as absurd as to specify a two-legged biped or a four-footed quadruped. All bipeds are two-legged and all quadrupeds are four-footed. If they weren't they wouldn't be bipeds and quadrupeds.

But some farmers are considered sufficiently described if they are not called "dirt" farmers, thus clearly showing that there are supposed to be farmers who cannot be so called.

And right there is where my puzzlement begins. Of course, in a way of speaking, we talk of "gentleman farmers, and of "fancy" formers, and of "book" farmers. But we do so in a conventional manner, and with desire not to give offense. Not one of us old veteran mayseeds ever for an instant admits to himself that any one of those three classes is a real farmer. They bear just about as much relation to real farming as the be-ribboned flappers in the cantata of "The Haymakers" do to hired men in the hay field.

Can a genuine, honest-to-goodness farmer be anything but a "dirt" farmer? That's my query.

The dictionary defines a farmer as one who is devoted to the tillage of the soil. "Soil" and "dirt," agriculturally speaking, are the same thing. It is in that sense those who describe Jones and Smith as "dirt" farmers use the word. They mean that Jones and Smith personally work in the dirt, i. e. the soil.

But, if a farmer is a man devoted to the tillage of the soil, how on earth can he do anything else and still be a farmer?

That's the conundrum which gets my agricultural goat. In other words, the farmer is a tiller of the soil. If he doesn't till the soil, why mix things up by calling him a farmer?

You see, it isn't living in the country which makes a farmer. One may live in the ruralest possible sort of country and get his living by cutting coupons or trapping muskrats or soliciting insurance. He ain't a farmer. He may, indeed, live on a real farm which has been a farm for generations, and get his living by painting pictures or writing poetry. He isn't a farmer. The farmer is a man who is devoted to and gets his living from—tilling—the—soil: from working the dirt. How can he do it without being a "dirt" farmer?

Yet, every now and then, we read in the papers either that the president has appointed some "dirt" farmer to position in the department of agriculture, or that the farmers of Wayback are madder'n wet hens because he won't appoint some one they guarantee to be a Simon-pure, dyed-in-the-wool, cable-sewed and copper-fastened "dirt" farmer.

So, whether we can understand it or not, it looks as if we'd have to accept as a fact the popular theory that not all farmers are "dirt" farmers.

And facts as various wise people have repeatedly stated, are stubborn things.

We've been having, at last, three or four real spring days up in my neck o' woods. There's been one sharp thunder-shower but it came up from the south and actually seemed to warm, not chill, the air. For the real the sun has shone brightly and steadily. Grass is greening all over the face of the country. Buds are swelling till the forest-clad mountain-sides take on a sort of filmy, not to say fuzzy appearance. I'm minded of the wonderfully descriptive lines in one of Lowell's "Bigelow Papers,"—

"Springtime hez come. The swelling buds of oak Dum the fur hillsides with a purplish smoke."

Not only that but the soil, i. e. the dirt, has taken on a new aspect. Instead of being a cold, sour, cloddy and more or less gummy and repellent spread of touch-me-not-stiveness, even the dirt has warmed up. It no longer goes "blub-blub" under foot. It doesn't squash into slime under pressure. It doesn't turn into a wallet of mud in your fingers. It almost seems alive when you pick up a handful and work it into a soft, warm, inviting seed-bed for a young onion or cabbage to make its home in.

In others words, spring is here, at last. Oh, that doesn't mean that all our troubles are over. In accordance with her feminine custom, she may very likely follow up these hours of glorious smiling with several days of unmistakeable cold-shouldering. But she's here and, when she's piqued and teased us enough, she'll settle down on her job, like a hen on a nest-full of eggs, and proceed to hatch out something.

And, being myself a farmer, born and bred on this same old farm, I can no more resist the temptation to get out on the dirt and begin to do things on it and with it and in it than a hen can resist the temptation to cackle when she's laid an egg. Even though I've grown too old to do any real work I can anyway "make a bluff at it." I can play with the dirt, at least so far as the making of a small garden is concerned.

And I can't for the life of me see how any man who has the makin's of a real farmer in him can do any different.

"Keep out of the dirt?" Well, when you mean by that that I should keep out of filth and slime and smut and mire I'll heed you, so far as I may. But if you mean the sweet, clean, generous soil—which may be dirt but is not dirty,—that's another thing.

I have no criticism of the tidy housekeeper who doesn't want her floors tracked up with garden soil. Just as a weed is simply a plant out of place so dirt is simply matter out of place when it smudges the kitchen linoleum or grimes the parlor carpet. There's a right place for everything, and the right place for soil is out doors where the sun and the rain and wind acting on it can transform it into potatoes or corn or cabbages,—or roses. And there, in its proper place, doing its proper work, it is neither filthy nor unclean. While there it is the farmer's medium in which and through which he works and by whose aid he accomplishes things.

I don't say that a real farmer must love it. We would do well to reserve that word "love" for finer and more spiritual meanings. But, if he has genuine farmerish instincts, he can't help liking it; liking to work with it, liking to play with it, liking to handle it, liking to make a companion of it.

He may be a fruit-grower, with his chief interest in his trees or vines. Yet it is from the dirt that those trees and vines get all they return to him.

He may be a dairyman. Yet it is from the dirt that his cows must get the rations which they transfuse into milk for him.

He may be a chicken-fancier. Yet, again it is from the dirt-grown grains that broilers and egg-layers alike derive their growth and development.

No matter what specialty of production he may be engaged in, every product he may put forth comes, primarily and at source, from the dirt of his or somebody else's farm.

Great Scott! How can he be anything else than a "dirt" farmer if he is a farmer at all? The longer you think of it, the harder you'll find it to answer that question.

I suspect that, when we get down to the real bottom facts we'll find that even the people who use the phrase "dirt" farmer as if to distinguish one sort of farmer from another, really don't mean anything of the sort. They mean by it just a real farmer as distinguished from an imitation and counterfeit farmer.

You see there are a whole lot of places, of offices, of "jobs" in various departments of federal and state governments, which have to do with agricultural activities. There are always salaries and sometimes "pickings" connected with these offices. If a man, whether from misfortune or from lack of gumption and grit, isn't able to make a success of actual farming, the temptation to seek one of these government jobs as a refuge from his failure is rather strong. But, as they are supposed to be managed for the benefit of farmers by men having an inside knowledge of farm problems, he must represent himself as having that knowledge. In other words he must call himself and get his backers to call him a farmer. And he must impose upon the appointing power some degree of belief in that assumption.

The real farmer, on the other hand, is a great deal more interested in getting a living out of his soil than in cabbaging a salary from his government. He's more devoted to working his dirt than to working other farmers for an easy living. He is very, very rarely an applicant for any governmental soft-snap. He isn't anxious to spend time circulating petitions or work up a following. He has his hands full and his time taken up getting in his spring seeds and harvesting his summer and fall crops.

The other sort are as thick around the various capitals as flies around a dead woodchuck. They are always very much in evidence and perfectly willing to put themselves forward. Thus it happens that, when a president or a governor or a secretary by some stroke of good luck manages to get a real farmer away from his true work and into an office swivel-chair, they are apt to boast of having got hold of a "dirt" farmer.

They're like the fisherman who, after having his bait eaten off for hours by minnows, at last lands a two-pound trout. He's just got to brag about his luck,—which he's pretty sure to want you to believe was his superior skill.

CONSTANT WAVING AND CURLING RUINS HAIR

Girls just must curl and wave bobbed hair to appear their prettiest. But constant curling and waving burn and dry the luster, vitality and very life from the hair.

To offset these bad effects, just set a 35-cent bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" at any drug store or toilet counter and just see for yourself how quickly it revives dry, brittle, lifeless, and fading hair.

"Danderine" is a dependable tonic and will do wonders for any girl's hair. It nourishes, stimulates and strengthens each single hair, bringing back that youthful gleam, glint and vigorous appearance. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears. "Danderine" is pleasant and easy to use.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Norwich went its way in peace 75 years ago and there was little out of the ordinary to attract attention. Items of the week as taken in part from the files of the Norwich Courier of 1851 are as follows:

Tuesday, April 22, 1851—The Boston officials who barred Faneuil hall to Daniel Webster are catching it from all sides and justly so and when another municipal election occurs their chances of reelection are slight. Mr. Webster summed up the spirit of the citizens of Boston when he wrote that "folly and fanaticism may have their hour; but there is too much patriotism in Boston—too much love for the Union, to allow it long to continue."

The Boston common council has appointed a committee to request Mr. Webster to address them at some future date; and has also appointed a committee to request President Fillmore to visit that city.

An appeal is to be made for the relief of Kossuth, to be addressed to Austria by our government, agreeable with the spirit of the resolutions adopted by congress, urging his removal to the United States.

Thursday, April 24, 1851—Jenny Lind sang in Cincinnati a few evenings ago and the hall was filled to capacity. The receipts totalled over $18,000 for the concert. She is to give concerts in Wheeling and Pittsburgh while enroute to the east.

The Courier is in receipt of a letter from several local people requesting that some action be taken to prevent a number of local people from allowing animals owned by them from running at large about the streets. At this season of the year when gardens are being planted and lawns are being tuned up to perfection the nuisance of having cattle wander over them and destroy them is one worthy of attention. These complaints come in from various sections of the city and show that the custom is universal.

Jenny Lind gave $5,000 and Mr. Barnum gave $1,500 to the relief of the distressed in Cincinnati. This custom of this beloved singer to give to the poor, has won for her many devoted admirers.

Application is to be made to the state legislature for the chartering of a bank in New Britain, capitalized at $300,000, with liberty to increase to $500,000.

The Warren property, corner of Broadway and Bath streets is to be sold at auction on Friday. The property is 76 feet on Broadway and 41 feet on Bath street, fronting four streets in view.

The Plainfield Academy is advertising for pupils and the rates for board are most reasonable, ranging from $1.50 to $1.75 a week.

Saturday, April 26, 1851—The official vote for governor of the state has been compiled. Mr. Foster receiving a total of 28,756 votes and Mr. Seymour 30,077, out of a total of 61,380 votes cast, the remaining votes being scattered. Mr. Foster, a Norwich man, carried New London county by a margin of 74 votes.

The loco foco representative from Southbury cannot hold his office. It has been learned that he has been back from California but six weeks and is therefore ineligible.

Ships coming into New York during the present months have been heavily laden with gold dust. The steamship Orion is the last to arrive and she has brought back $620,000 in dust.

The Cleopatra, until lately one of the boats belonging to the line between this city and New York, is suspected of being about to sail for Cuba, with men and munitions for the purpose of carrying out the project of annexation, upon which a band of desperate men and desperate political leaders, in this country, are so evidently bent.

Twenty-two boats are now in the local harbor, the largest number of boats to be here in a number of weeks. The shipping has been extremely heavy of late and many local business houses have received shipments to restock their merchandise.

Probate judges are not elected in Plainfield or Brooklyn. In each town the two highest candidates received an equal number of votes—consequently no choice—and the law makes no provision for filling such a vacancy.

LARGEST FIELD OF ENTRIES WAIT START OF OHIO RELAYS

COLUMBUS, April 29 (AP)—Athletes of the cinder track, cooped indoors all winter, will stretch themselves under the open sky when the Ohio relays are held Saturday, at Ohio State university stadium.

SOUTH WILLINGTON

Wednesday evening of last week in social hall the third fathers and sons banquet was held, under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A. His excellence the governor of Connecticut John H. Trumbull was the honored guest. The diners were seated at the long tables in social hall, which looked very attractive, with red and white carnations. The color scheme of the hall was red and white. A large American flag had a conspicuous place at the back of the stage, and a beautiful American flag, and a beautiful state flag, on standards, made a fine setting for the speakers' table. Governor Trumbull, the other speakers and members of the town committee in charge of the gathering, headed by Chairman F. G. Hamilton, plant manager for the G. Hall Jr. Co., marched into social hall to the music of the Second Connecticut March played with a vim by the South Willington orchestra which furnished music throughout the evening. The various numbers were encored repeatedly. Toastmaster F. G. Hamilton, who filled the office with ease, dignity and ability extended a brief welcome, saying: "Fathers and sons of Willington and guests, allow me at this time on behalf of the South Willington Y. M. C. A. to welcome you to our party this evening. I hope you will enjoy yourselves as much in the anticipation as the members of your committee have enjoyed themselves in the preparation.

Rev. Edwin E Sundt pastor of Hall Memorial church invoked the divine blessing. The menu was an exceptionally fine one and the service was excellent. This feature of the big gathering at which father and sons touched elbows and heard uplifting and helpful talks could not be improved upon.

Toastmaster Hamilton referred to the fact that these annual fathers and sons banquets are becoming bigger and better yearly and are helping to promote the home influence and develop a keener spirit of understanding and comradeship between the parents and the boys. He called attention to the fact that every household in the community was represented at the feast and suggeste dthat it might be well to make the Y. M. C. A. slogan, Help the other fellow read. Help the little fellow. He then called on his son Bruce to express his sentiments in a recitation which went over big, the little fellow displaying genuine talent. Next to speak was Frank Condon, secretary of Tolland county Y. M. C. A. He told a number of witty stories that kept his hearers in good humor and then left a few serious thoughts. Referring to the church of today, he said it is a challenge to the young men of America. He spoke of the number of influences working for young men and said it was not hard for young men today to live right and to think right. Mr. Condon urged the young men to stand firm in the full power of their strength for all that is good and clean in our towns and in our state and in our nation.

Charles Holman of Manchester a native of Tolland, long interested in Y. M. C. A. work made an apt and eloquent address, urging fathers to make companions of their boys, to make them self reliant to spend all the time they can with them, to give them the benefit of their experience. He pointed out the advantage of education, but said it should not be made too easy for the boy. In conclusion he emphasized the value of work as the only method that would bring success.

Announcing that the high spot on the evening program had been reached, Toastmaster Hamilton presented His Excellency, Governor Trumbull, who was enthusiastically received, all rising and cheering. After a few pleasantrees and congratulatary words in which he took occasion to refer to Willington and complimented the town and those in charge of the banquet, Gov. Trumbull acknowledged, the debt of gratitude her owed to the late Colonel William H. Hall, who proved a loyal friend to him during his first experience in the legislature. He paid him a splendid tribute, referring to his qualities as a man, a friend and a statesman. He said Col. Hall's services in behalf of Connecticut had been invaluable. Gov. Trumbull related experiences in his own career as a boy, and stated that he was born only a short way from Willington in the town of Ashford and knew what it was to work. He took the fathers and sons into his confidence and gave them a heart-to-heart talk. Gov. Trumbull stressed the importance of a right start for the boys and laid great emphasis on character and dependability, combined with ambition and determination, qualities which have been conspicuous in the lives of all men who have been truly successful. He urged clean minds and bodies and commended the spirit of the boys who sought to play fair. He dwelt on his own love for the great outdoors and drew lessons therefrom. He told of the opportunities that beckon to the young man of today and said that it was up to the young man to make the most and best of these opportunities. In choosing a vocation, the father can be of great help in seeing that his boy gets started right. Gov. Trumbull dwelt on the duties of citizenship and the responsibilitys that confronted the young manhood of town, city, state and nation making an earnest and effective plea for right living, urging the boys to be upright, honest and clean. Hearty applause greeted Gov. Trumbull. The following numbers were then rendered: Orchestra selection; vocal solo, My Bundle of Love, Walter Mather, accompanied on the ukuleles by John MacLearn and John Zeniec, Mrs. Gardiner Hall at the piano; saxophone solo, Alex Bianchi; tenor solo, Ray Tallman of the Peerless quartette, of Willimantic; highland fling and Spanish dancing by Miss Roberta Kaddy. The orchestra was composed of the following towns people: Mrs. G. Hall, pianist; Joseph Nedweld, violinist; Clarence Essex, trombonist LeRoy Walker, drums and traps and Alex Bianchi, saxophone and Mrs. Frank Safranck, cornetist, of Stafford Springs. The supper was furnished by the Girls' club, and consisted of soup, meat, vegetables, salads, rolls, celery, olives, ice cream, cake and coffee. Before adjournment was taken, at the suggestion of Mr. Hamilton a rising vote of thanks was extended all who had any part in helping to make the banquet the success it proved. The evennigs activities were brought to a close by all standing and singing America.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tamburrino and family were recent visitors in Waterbury.

Rev. Edwin E. Sundt was the speaker at the banquet and rally of the Norwich Christian Endeavor union last week.

Two days later, April 10th, the first marriage in the new parsonage was solemnized, where Miss Hilma M. Wiitanen became the wife of Alfred D. Utz.

Both young people are well known having lived in town for years. Mr. and Mrs. Utz are now living at the Plains in the home of Mr. Utz' grandmother, Mrs. Johns.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudik, who have had a lease of William Johnson's place, are changing their residence, having purchased the bungalow and small farm a little to the south on the opposite side of the street.

Arnold Greenman celebrated his third birthday, the day after, April 17th with a birthday party, attended by the Helstrom and Bingham children, Manfred Moody and Bobby Joslyn.

Communion at Westminster May 2 at the usual morning worship, continued on standard time.

Thomas C. Bradford who died in Putnam, April 22nd was one of the Westminster Bradfords, all highly respected people. He and Deacon Barstow have common ancestors of historic fame.

Arthur Edmond was a Norwich visitor twice last week.

Mrs. Edwin Edmond has nearly recovered from a severe grip cold. The wounds on her leg received by a kick from their horse are healing

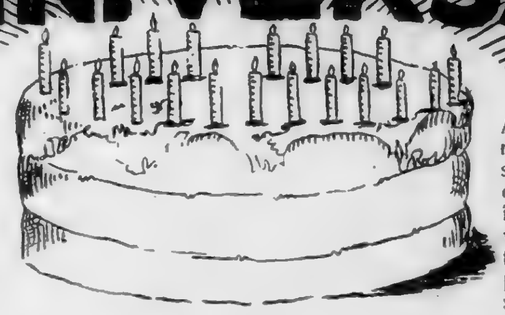
1906 SCHWARTZ-BROS. 1926
20TH ANNIVERSARY SALE



20 years of doing business in Eastern Connecticut is not a record in itself in the matter of years, but Schwartz Bros., Inc., takes pride in the fact that it has grown more rapidly than any store in eastern Connecticut in the number of its customers and in their manifestation of good will. To build such a gigantic business as this, a store must promote and practice honesty and kindliness and service in all its works. How well Schwartz Bros. have done this is evidenced by the faith of its customers. Hardly a city within a radius of fifty miles of Norwich, but somewhere in that place there are many satisfied Schwartz Bros. customers.

Anu so now we come to our Twentieth Anniversary. Schwartz Bros.' message is going to reach every family in Eastern Connecticut, telling a story of Furniture Values such as has never been recorded in the annals of old New England. We are going to pay back to the people their share in the upholding of this big business institution. Commencing Tomorrow when the doors open at 8:30, you will witness Furniture Prices tumbling, to celebrate this important event. We have engaged many extra salespeople for tomorrow's opening, so be here with the crowds and share in these savings. The big sale opens Saturday and you and your neighbors ought to be here tomorrow to help us in this celebration.

A cat disappeared from its usual haunts in Greenwich, Conn., some time ago and an advertisement, saying in effect, "Come home, all is forgiven," was inserted in the lost and found columns of a Greenwich newspaper. Hardly had the edition been circulated when Thomas walked into the newspaper office, to be returned later to his owner.

Bengt Stroemgreen, age 16, of Copenhagen, Denmark, has constructed an electric apparatus which automatically registers the movements of the stars, thus saving astronomers long and patient watching through the telescope. When only 14, he astonished the international astronomical world by writing a highly technical article on an astronomical problem.

An apparatus for searching the employes of metal working establishments, when they are leaving premises, or persons suspected of theft, consists of a special testing disk moved over the outside of the subject's clothing. This causes a distinct sound in a telephone receiver, as it passes over a piece of metal concealed in the garment. As the searcher approaches the point where the material is hidden, a difference of tension is set up between the two coils, causing the warning signal to be sounded in the instrument.

Non-deadly gas bombs are to be used in future conflicts between criminals and the Polish police and also in strikes, according to the following item recently printed in Dziennik Rydgoski: "The police have been practicing bomb throwing in the fields near the fort. The bombs used are hand-grenades intended to incapacitate criminals and scatter crowds that resist the police. The gas which these bombs give off causes a temporary blindness (of one hour) and streams of tears from the eyes of all standing within several yards. Doctors attended to test the effect of these bombs. They came to the conclusion that the gas is not injurious to the eyes. These bombs are soon to be distributed among the police."

COLUMBIA

Word was received with great sorrow of the death Wednesday of Mrs. Mary B. Yeomans at the home of her son, Howard B. Yeomans at Hartford. Hre many friends of Columbia feel keenly the loss of her active interest in church and social life, and her many generous gifts to church and town will serve to keep fresh her memory with all who knew her. Among the most recent gifts were the beautiful electric fixtures in the church, and an additional trust fund of $2,000, also an addition of $1,000 to the trust fund she had previously established towards the maintenance of Yeomans hall. The funeral services will be held in Columbia.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles LaBonte of this town were members of the winning team in the dancing contest held in the Capitol theatre Willimantic, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Harvey Collins was in Manchester Sunday, visiting her father, who is ill with pnumonia.

Mrs. Kate Wolff and Miss Lena Wolff, of Norwich, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wolff.

Miss Eleanor Collins of New York is making a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Collins, of Chestnut Hill.

The Star Route between here and Willimantic is running on advanced time, enabling the rural carrier to make his rounds an hour earlier. Part of the local shops have advanced their time one hour, and some of them are still keeping standard time. The busses running through town are also running an hour earlier.

Mr. and Mrs. August Nordlund, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Labonte and Miss Eratne Newfer were among those from Columbia to attend the dancing contest held at the Capitol theatre in Willimantic Tuesday evening.

Ten Worries

Worrying won't gain a thing,
But will only misery bring.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit is like that. I don't know of any one who does less worrying than Peter Rabbit. He is happy-go-lucky and leaves the worrying for others—like Little Mrs. Peter, for instance. Some mothers are born worriers. I suspect that some of them wouldn't be happy if they couldn't worry. Of course, the more children they have, the more opportunity they have to worry. Mrs. Grouse had ten children and much she was saving she spent most of her time worrying.

It is some fun to watch ten lively babies with only one pair of eyes, and lively. They began to run almost as soon as they had picked their way out of their shells. It was surprising how fast their little legs could move. They were darlings. Even Peter Rabbit had to admit that. Not in all the Green Forest were there any cuter babies But, oh dear, such a care as they were!

Some people seem to think that all little babies are alike, but they are not. Even when they are very little they differ greatly. Before those ten little worries of hers were a whole day old, Mrs. Grouse found that one of them had a very strong will of his own. He was quick enough and smart enough, but he wasn't always obedient. If she told him to do a thing he wanted to know why before he did it. As the days went on he grew worse in this

If she told him to do a thing, he wanted to know why before he did it

these little Grouse certainly were remiss. The older he grew the more headstrong he became. When Mrs. Grouse told him to hide he always waited to see why he should hide; and as a result once he was all but caught by Redtail the Hawk. Yes, sir he was almost caught.

But it was not just their enemies that Mother Grouse had to worry about She worried about the weather I suppose most mothers do worry over the weather more or less. But this spring was rather wet. Baby Grouse cannot stand very much wet weather. They are apt to sicken and die if the weather is wet too much at a time. So Mother Grouse always had the weather on her mind. She doesn't mind it for herself. Any kind of weather suits her. But for those babies she wanted sunshine and dry weather. Every time she saw a cloud growing darker and darker she would gather the children together and get them under her to protect them. Or she would lead them under the very thickest hemlocks where the rain had hard work to get through. And every time one of those babies started to run out in the rain she would cluck and call it back. She certainly did keep a watchful eye on them during the wet weather.

Now, for such hardy, vigorous parents, baby Grouse are apt to be rather delicate. Not all their enemies are weavers of fur or feathers. Some of their worst enemies are certain insects. It would have been bad enough with just two or three children, but with ten of them it is a wonder that Mrs. Grouse didn't turn gray with worry She didn't even sleep good. She was continually waking up to make sure that her ten worries were all with her Of course, Mr. Grouse was very proud of that family but he didn't have a great deal to do with it and he did no worrying over those babies. He left all that for Mrs. Grouse. But somehow the babies managed to escape all the dangers, and pretty soon they began to show real feathers and to begin to want to try their little wings.

"I certainly shall be glad when they are able to roost in a tree," said Mrs. Grouse with a sigh, as she watched them stretching their wings one day.

LEBANON

At the Baptist church Sunday morning, Rev. A. F. Littlefield took as his text Rev. 7:14. Sunday evening a large number from the Baptist church attended services at the First Baptist church in Norwich where several were baptized from that church from Fitchville Baptist and from Lebanon Baptist. Those from Lebanon were Miss Mary Underwood, Elmer Chappell and Gurdon Aspinall.

A Golden anniversary party was given by the members of the Mission circle at the Baptist chapel Tuesday afternoon for the benefit of the golden anniversary of the Woman's American Baptist Home Mission society. The meeting was opened with scripture reading by Mrs. A. G. Littlefield, president of the Mission circle, and prayer by Mrs. David A. Pitt of Norwich and by singing. Mrs. Littlefield then introduced Mrs. George Ashley of Norwich who gave a very interesting talk on Golden anniversary explaining how the W. A. B. H. M. society was [illegible] and the need of the money the others hope to raise, also where and what purpose it is to be used. Yellow bags had been sent with invitations for the offering; these were hung upon a small tree on the platform and an offering of over $20 was received. Small tables were set about the room and tea, sandwiches and fancy cookies were served. The decorations were yellow tulips and yellow crepe paper.

A variety supper was served at the hall given by the C. E. society at the Baptist church Friday evening, followed by an entertainment; $27 was added to the Y. P. S. C. E. treasury.

Mrs. George Elderkin and son, of Lisbon, are visiting Mrs. Elderkin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Madley.

Social Corner club No. 3 met at the chapel of the Baptist church Wednesday, with a good attendance. Mrs. Clark Standish with her helpers, served a fine dinner. Later an entertaining program was given, including vocal solos by Miss Julia Standish, piano solo by Mrs. George Beckwith, readings by Mrs. Fred Bliss and Miss Blanche Smith.

Mrs. Gertrude Smith and daughter Miss Beatrice Smith, of Hartford, H. C. Goodwin and son Clinton of New Britain spent Sunday at C. S. Goodwin's.

Harry Bruce, of New York, has been spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bruce.

Mrs. Jennie Chappell has been spending a week with Mrs. Martha Segar.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Wade of Clark's Corner spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. E. P. Abel.

EAST KILLINGLY

On April 23rd, 1926 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Soule, their son, Howard H. Soule, was united in marriage to Miss Ruby Carroll, by Rev. W. D. Hetherington.

The hours of Sunday worship at the East Killingly Union Baptist church until the 25th of Sept. 1926 will be: morning worship at 10 o'clock. The afternoon services at 5:15 and 6:00 o'clock. All of them on standard time. On April 26th, 1926 the church held its annual business meeting. All reports received were accepted. The officers and committees for the new year were elected.

The Willing Workers, with the hearty support of the community, have paid for a large amount of work for the church. A room 24 feet by 12 feet was excavated and walled and a good cement floor laid. They now have let the contract for a cement walk from the [illegible] to the basement. The Sunshine band of the Sunday school have had painted and put in for two small memorial [illegible]. They do excellent work and much good improvement over the old [illegible] system. Chandler and Merriam of Putnam did the work.

There are two handsome four burner wickless oil stoves in the vestry and this [illegible] by a few faithful ones. Additional donors of an open mind made it possible for the church to have these [illegible] ready necessities in a room like East Killingly. We are thankful [illegible] needed improvements. Rev. W. D. Hetherington, ministers to these people.

WILSONVILLE

Irving Adams of Quinebaug called on old friends here Tuesday.

Mrs. Hanby entertained friends from Webster Sunday.

Miss Ainley was in Wauregan one day the past week.

Joseph Langelier entertained relatives from Putnam one day the past week.

HEED CONSTIPATION'S WARNING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings sure relief because it is 100% bran

Even before constipation wrecks the health—it lines the face with wrinkles, spots the skin, hollows the cheeks. Unpleasant breath and headaches are merely outward signs of the inward havoc this dire disease promotes.

Rid yourself forever of constipation. Stop it before too late! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has brought relief to thousands where all else has failed. Doctors recommend it. They know ALL-BRAN brings results. It is not an uncertain part-bran product.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—with every meal, in chronic cases. Your grocer will refund the money if it fails.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made in Battle Creek, Michigan. Ready to eat with milk or fruit. Cooking too. Delicious recipes on the package. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels and restaurants.

HUNDREDS SEE LAUNCHING OF NEW PERUVIAN SUBMARINE AT GROTON

NEW LONDON, April 29—(AP)—Tied at a dock here tonight awaiting finishing touches before being subjected to the trials which will determine her fitness for undersea work is the submarine R-1, the first of two submersibles being built at Groton for Peru. As the whip after gliding down the ways settled into the Thames river at the launching ceremony today, the blue-green water of the river washed from the submarine's bow the Peruvian name with which it had been christened by Mrs. Enrique Monge, wife of the chief of the Peruvian naval commission supervising the building of the sub boats.

The ocean going craft to this country for the nation was in a silk encased bottle when the last support of the craft had been sawed away and the submarine was ready to take its initial plunge. A throng who acted at the christening, Mrs. Chloe Woodward, wife of Admiral W. Woodward, chief of the U. S. naval commission to Peru, who sponsored the R-1, when the keel was laid with religious ceremony a year ago, raised the bottle above her head and smashed it on the steel nose of the craft. The wine drenched the [illegible] nearby.

NEW LONDON GIVEN BETTER FIRE RATING

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, April 29—New London has been generous in providing the citizens with every facility for subduing flames when the services of the fire department are called for. Now the city is to reap the reward of such generosity. The city has attained a better rating than before for property from the New England fire underwriters than it has ever been accorded. The rating of the city is now in class B instead of class "C". An A class rating is the best and the city hopes to retain that class in the coming year. The city has secured the most approved fire apparatus and has the department equipped with motor-driven machines with an exempt power. Its water service is of the best type.

Recently seven motor units have been installed and every precaution made for fighting fires. The speed with which the companies respond to fires is of their credit.

Albert Seitz took a chance yesterday and started off in his father's automobile, but he did not get far before he was snarled up in traffic congestion [illegible] the jam to the attention of Traffic Officer Courtney. The police man straightened things out and then [illegible] that Seitz should show his [illegible] drive, for he had operated the machine on the wrong side of the street and thus caused a tie-up. Seitz did not have any authority to drive other than that given to him by his father so he was ordered to appear in the police court this morning. There his story and that of the officer were heard and Judge Prince told Seitz that he must pay $10 for his indiscretion. He said he was aware that every driver of an automobile must have a license to operate a car.

The grocers are up in arms at the high cost of potatoes. They declare that while they are not responsible for the excessive price they get for the tubers they are obliged to charge more than a dollar a peck to get their money back. They declare that there is a combination to keep up the price and point out that while there was a little smaller crop grown in 1925 than in the preceding year that the crop last year averaged 25 per cent more than did the crops o fthe preceding three years. It would not be surprising if the attention of the department of commerce at Washington was called to the situation.

It is pointed out that the cost of shingling a dwelling house on roof and sides, the work having just been completed in this city was in excess of $1,300. "Is it any wonder," the owner asked that rents are high in this city?"

Elsie Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Potter, 114 Shaw street who made her escape from Policewoman Jane Cassidy at the Potter residence last Monday, following her arrest for violating her parole at Long Lane farm, Middletown, is back at the farm today. The girl was arrested last night by Patrolman William Manice.

The Peck restaurant, 24 Bank street, was threatened with serious damage early this forenoon when a fively blaze occurred in the kitchen. An alarm was rung in from Box 23, corner of State and North Bank streets, causing a half dozen pieces of fire apparatus to respond. The fire was quickly subdued by chemicals. The blaze originated from a large receptacle of grease becoming ignited on one of the kitchen ranges.

Whether William Shragowitz, 851 Bank street, who mysteriously disappeared last Monday, is dead or alive, has not been determined by the police, for no trace of the missing man has been found. The police believe that Shragowitz is alive and that he is hiding because of personal motives. Shragowitz's most intimate friends scout the idea that he has ended his life and declare that he will put in an appearance before long.

Miss Mary Jane Nelson, 68 Washington street; Walter Holmes, 211 Crystal avenue; Charles Benzel, United States Coast Guard destroyer Cummings, and Mrs. James McKnight, Westerly, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Walter Moyles, one of the best known freight train conductors in the employ of the New Haven railroad, is critically ill at his home, Georgians street. Mr. Moyles suffered a severe cold a few days ago, which later developed pneumonia and has affected both lungs.

The funeral of Mrs. Hannah Sullivan was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. The bearers were Mrs. Sullivan's three nephews, Patrick F. Dennis and James Sullivan and Henry Wilmot. Interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Byron L. Wilkinson has sold a tract of land on Montauk avenue to John F. and Evelyn C. Fitzgerald.

Nathan Belt has sold dwelling houses on the easterly side of Main street to Ray Kaplan.

A. B. Corey, Broad street extension, Groton, reported to the police this morning that he had lost his pocketbook containing $170. He did not know whether the money was lost in New London or Groton because he did not discover his loss until this forenoon.

Daniel Button, 11 Williams street, proprietor of a small store, complained to the police last night that a chauffeur operating a New York automobile entered the store earlier in the evening and made an indecent exposure in the presence of Button's young daughter. Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey was assigned to the case, but he could not locate the auto driver.

Early this evening the police located the New York car and later the driver, who was placed under arrest. After being taken to the police station the chauffeur was taken to the office of Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky where Button and his daughter appeared. After a question of all parties concerned it was the opinion of the acting prosecutor that there was no ground for the complaint and the accused was discharged.

The police are continuing their drive against violators of the city's parking ordinances and as a result of the energies of the officers another batch of car owners or drivers received summons calling for their appearance in the police court today. The drivers, however, will not face a court prosecution except where the offense is the second or more charges against the accused. All the others are allowed their freedom with a warning against future violations. Lawrence McEwen, 53 Washington street, will face a court trial for parking overtime on State street and will be given a hearing Friday morning. Councilor Lucius E. Whiton was the owner of one of the cars tagged. Mr. Whiton's machine was parked on State street longer than is permitted by law and it was tagged by Patrolman Michael Dorsey. Mr. Whiton was one of those to be released with a warning.

HERE'S A MEAN THIEF WHO WOULD LEAVE MEN HUNGRY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 29—Russell Stoddard, a stranger hereabouts, was taken into custody late this afternoon by Sergeant Martin Kane, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad special agents, charged with theft. He will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Stoddard, it is alleged, has made a practice for several days of entering railroad switch houses and stealing the lunch boxes of railroad employes. Sergeant Kane inaugurated a plan of detecting the thief and about 5 o'clock he caught Stoddard red-handed emerging from one of the switch houses with a lunch box. He was at once placed under arrest and taken to the police station.

MRS. MARY DAVIS LANDPHERE DIES AT HER GROTON HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, April 29—Mrs. Mary A. Davis Landphere, 67, wife of C. Tyler Landphere, first warden of Groton borough, died this morning at her residence, 131 Monument street, Groton. Mrs. Landphere had been a sufferer from diabetes about three years and had been confined to her home about five months. She suffered a sinking spell late last night. Mrs. Landphere, besides her husband, is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Lucy L. Neff and Mrs. Minnie A. Buddington, both of 131 Monument street, Groton and by a sister, Mrs. Emma Fellows of Montville.

Mrs. Landphere was born in Norwich, May 5, 1853, the daughter of Richard and Ann Davis. She was a member of the Groton Heights Baptist church and of the Benevolent society of which she was president.

The Davis family's home was the large house on the crossroad below Norwich Golf club now known as Lucas street. Mrs. Landphere's father, the late Richard Davis was for many years employed at Thamesville iron mills.

LENGLEN DOES NOT BELIEVE WORD "IMPOSSIBLE" EXISTS

PARIS, April 29—(AP)—A frequently heard dictum in France declares that "impossible" is not a French word and many French notable folk seem to believe it.

Miss Suzanne Lenglen is categorical: "No! I have never in my career as an athlete had the impression of having run up against the impossible! I believe that with determination—nerves—and courage, the impossible does not exist!"

Prof. Edouard Branly, whose discovery of a concert mast wireless telegraph, practical is much of the same opinion. "As long as you don't try to change the course of nature, nothing is impossible, not even to prevent it raining so often!"

Paul Signac, president of the Independents salon, thinks that it was artists who invented the word impossible as a synonym for the limit that they feel they can never attain.

Joseph Delteil, the author, who was the Goncourt Prizeman last year, belongs to the Lenglen school: "Impossible? Never seen it in my life. Have always got whatever I was determined to get. Impossible is not Determinism!"

DRAMA LEAGUE TO DISCUSS AID FOR AILING ROAD SHOW

NEW YORK, April 29 (AP)—The badly ailing road show will receive expert attention at the Drama League of America convention here, May 3-5.

Jed Harris, Golden, the producer, will be present, the chief physicians and officials predict he will offer a plan under which the decrease in number of traveling productions will be checked and an increase substituted.

In this connection, the hardships of actors on tour also will be taken up. Frank Gillmore, executive secretary of the Actor's Equity Association, will be one of the principal speakers.

Likewise will the high price of theater tickets come in for discussion. Hatcher Hughes, of Columbia University, and A. M. Drummond of Cornell, will talk about the theater in the colleges. Many stars of current productions, managers and critics also are expected to speak.

The Little Theater tournament will be held during the convention and delegates will be guests at the final performances of prize-winning plays.

TWO WOMEN FILE AS SOLONS BEFORE OFFICE LEGALIZED

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 29 (AP)—Undaunted by the fact that the Iowa state constitution must first be modified before they can hold office as state representative, two Iowa women have ventured into the primary election campaign. They have confidence that the voters will approve of change in the constitution in the November election which will make possible the seating of other women candidates who may be elected on the same date.

Two Iowa legislatures have adopted a resolution striking out the word "male" in the constitutional provision in regard to qualification of persons for legislative positions. This paved the way for approval by vote.

SOUTHERN METHODISTS EXPECT NEW UNIFICATION DISCUSSION

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 29 (AP)—Further discussion of the question of unification will be one of the principal issues before the 29th session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, which begins here May 5.

The conference is the ruling body of the church and is composed of both clerical and lay leaders, many of whom expect a controversy over the proposed appointment of a new unification commission to deal with a similar body from the northern church.

There is little possibility of any change in major policies in the church, leaders said, but the "fundamentalist" question again may come up.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

What proved to be the most interesting and finest Keith Albee vaudeville and picture program ever seen in this city opened at the Broadway theatre yesterday to capacity crowds, both matinee and night and will continue to hold forth until Saturday.

Paul and Louise Etz, the supreme aerialists, opened with daring and hazardous doings in the air.

Matty Norman, the black sheep of the family, gave a good account of himself as a comedian. His chatter which is real fun, has to do in part with the flaming youth.

For the second time in two years, Ed and May Ernie captivated the crowd with "Three Feet of Comedy." This one legged dancer does many things that would be difficult for one with two legs to use. They ended to tremendous applause.

Rena Arnold & Co. followed in fourth spot. Here are two young ladies with personality plus. Their comedy is of the better type while their songs and playing are equally on a par.

Everybody has heard or read of the famous fairy tale, "Snow White and the Dwarfs". It remained for the closing attraction on this bill to bring out its full value on the stage. A company of six midgets bring this story to life with up to date comedy, song and dance that was a real sensation at yesterday's showing.

Landphere, besides her husband, is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Lucy L. Neff and Mrs. Minnie A. Buddington, both of 131 Monument street, Groton and by a sister, Mrs. Emma Fellows of Montville.

Mrs. Landphere was born in Norwich, May 5, 1853, the daughter of Richard and Ann Davis. She was a member of the Groton Heights Baptist church and of the Benevolent society of which she was president.

The Davis family's home was the large house on the crossroad below Norwich Golf club now known as Lucas street. Mrs. Landphere's father, the late Richard Davis was for many years employed at Thamesville iron mills.

Capitol Theatre, Willimantic

Lucy Marsh and Hans Eben appearing in joint recital at the Capitol theatre, Willimantic, next Sunday afternoon present a concert worthy of the consideration of music lovers in any city. Lucy Marsh never fails to win her auditors. The silvery quality of her voice, the even scale and faultless intonation, the acility and perfection of her coloratura make young critics search for new adjectives while the older ones enthusiastically write that such a voice has not been heard since Nordica.

Her sympathetic interpretation, her gracious manner and strength of personality make Lucy Marsh the incomparable singer of songs that people love. For a number of years Miss Marsh was been under contract with the Victor Talking Machine company and is still making exclusively for them.

Hans Eben, noted Russian pianist has concertized successfully in music centers of Russia, Germany, England, France and in this country. He is a pianist of well developed technic and indisputable musical taste. His interpretations are interesting and individual. He uses his technical power as a means to an end, however, and sinks himself in the thought of the composer. He has a sympathetic temperament and quality of tone. Tickets will be on sale at the box office at the Capitol theatre, Willimantic's new playhouse. The performance starts promptly at 3 o'clock daylight saving time. The date, Sunday afternoon, May 2nd.

Breed Theatre

Replete with thrills, beautiful photography and splendid acting by a notable cast of principals, "The Barrier," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer photoplay of Rex Beach's novel, comes to the Breed theatre, today and Saturday.

Beach's stirring novel of the Alaskan frontier, where the veneer of civilization stripped from men through their lust for gold, has been transferred to the screen with praiseworthy fidelity by Director George Hill. The work of the director is ably seconded by such popular screen stars as Norman Kerry, Lionel Barrymore, Henry B. Walthall, Marceline Day, Pat Harmon, Bert Woodruff and others. So well do these players acquit themselves that they ably deserve the title of the season's best cast.

The picture is packed with high-power dramatic thrills. The rescue of the girl from the whaling ship jammed in the ice floes, the wreck of the ship in the ice, the furious battle between the young lieutenant and Bennett in the ship's cabin, the struggle between the first mate, essayed by Pat Harmon, and Barrett's orderly, Sergeant Murphy, combine to keep the spectator on the edge of his seat throughout the film.

"The Barrier" is a picture that should not be missed.

The third chapter of Casey of the Coast Guard, an Our Gang comedy and the Pathe News are on this bill.

Lyceum Theatre

"The Show Off", the George Kelly comedy gem, direct from three months' capacity business at the Garrick theatre, Philadelphia, comes to the Lyceum, New London, Saturday, May 1, matinee and night.

This brilliant cross-section of middle class family life in America, unlike many notable stage successes that had to be built up, scored an instantaneous success from the day it opened at The Playhouse, New York, and where it continued for an uninterrupted run over a period of two years. Another company was organized for Chicago, where it also ran for a number of months. While our local theatregoers have had to wait a bit longer to enjoy the homely Kelly comedy, we shall at last have the distinction of entertaining the original New York cast, including Louis Bartels and Helen Lowell.

"The Show Off" is a genuine comedy filled with homelife and truths from the pen of a gifted author, well staged by the producers Stewart and French and superbly cast. Not only has Louis John Bartels the show-off himself, leaped the wave of obscurity to instant recognition and nation wide fame through his creation of the role of Aubrey Piper, but such experienced actresses as Helen Lowell, Frances Goodriche and Winifred Wellington have won for themselves niches in the theatrical hall of fame for their intelligent and spirited portrayals.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Critics who have already seen Colleen Moore's latest film, "Irene," proclaim it the greatest motion picture fashion show ever exhibited.

For the production a fortune was expended in designing and creating original gowns for the little star and a troupe of 60 Hollywood beauties who appear with her in the picture.

The fashion plate episode in the production is said to be heightened by the fact that it is filmed in natural colors. First National released the picture, which was made by John McCormick.

The story of "Irene" is based on the musical comedy stage hit of the same name. Many of the song successes of this show now enjoy a wide popularity. "Alice Blue Gown" is one of the bards.

"Irene" comes to the Breed theatre Sunday, in addition to Miss Moore the cast includes Lloyd Hughes, George K. Arthur and Charles Murray.

The Twentieth Anniversary of Schwartz Brothers Inc.

Saturday, May 1st, marks the Twentieth Anniversary of the firm of Schwartz Brothers, Inc., the distinctive furniture dealers, located at 76-78-80-82 Main street, Norwich.

As great oaks from little acorns grow, so do great merchandising establishments, often-times start from humble beginnings. Twenty years ago, in a humble way, on a back street, in a small store, the firm of Schwartz Brothers, with limited capital, and a large amount of nerve and ambition, started on their merchandising career. The firm consisted of Abner and Michael Schwartz, and their stock composed of furniture, stoves and rugs.

One floor, with basement was secured for their headquarters, in the Washington building on Washington square. They were too poor to employ help in as so often-times when Michael had spent the day on the road and Abner in the store, they would labor on untringly, till midnight, in the office to get out their orders and unpack and arrange stock for the next days business. A one horse delivery wagon, served as the medium of transportation of all goods sold and freight received.

Soon Outgrew the Washington Building

In about one year and a half they found themselves badly cramped for space and in order to properly care for their rapidly increasing furniture business, were forced to secure much larger quarters in the building formerly occupied by the Norwich Belt Manufacturing company, at 9-11 Water street. In making this move, they secured about 4,000 feet of floor space consisting of 3 floors and a basement. In order to give one a clear idea of the remarkable growth of the firm of Schwartz Brothers, from it's earliest conception, in the short space of four and one-half years they were again forced to double the size of their store.

Open Branch Store in New London

In 1914 just prior to the breaking out of the World war, Schwartz Brothers opened another furniture store at 143 Bank street, New London. This was deemed advisable in order that they might broaden their field of effort and thus secure the added advantage, to be earned, by carload-lot purchasing. Again their efforts were crowned with success and in less than two and one-half years, in order, to fittingly care for the great volume of business that came to their store, they deemed it advisable to again enlarge their floor space. This was accomplished through the purchase of the building occupied by the New London store. In the purchasing of the building occupied by the New London store, 4,000 square feet of floor space was added to display of furniture [illegible] carpets, floor coverings, stoves and in fact everything one expects to find in an up-to-the-second home furnishing store in a city double the size of New London.

Michael Schwartz Sells Interest in Norwich Store.

In 1918 it was deemed expedient, that Michael Schwartz, who had for several years been managing the Bank street store of the firm of Schwartz Brothers, should sell his interest in the Norwich store to Joseph and Benjamin Lahn. With the advent of the taking in of the new partners, both the Lahn's being practical furniture men, a fresh impetus was noticeable, and a vigorous, and highly pronounced selling and distributing, of Schwartz Brothers furniture and house furnishings was quickly discernable.

Instead of confining their territory to Norwich and near-by villages, a reaching out, and an increasing of territory was the new order of the day, until, all the territory between Hartford and Providence, and Worcester to Long Island Sound, is becoming more and better acquainted with Schwartz Brothers merchandise and Schwartz Brothers business policies.

Decide to Purchase the Austin Block on Main Street.

Eastern Connecticut sat up and took notice when the news leaked out that Schwartz Brothers were moving to Main street. Moving to Main street was a small part of the program mapped out along the line of progress. Before moving, it was necessary to have a home that would provide for their future potential growth. At the rear of the Old Austin block was a granite edge about 50 feet deep, before the rear of the lot parking up on Church street was reached. This did not phase Schwartz Brothers. The ledge was in the way and the ledge had to go. One year was consumed in blasting and putting in a foundation for the big store with the little prices. What was termed suicide for Schwartz Brothers by most of their friends, proved the biggest prosperity boost they ever received. With the newly completed addition to their present store, a thoroughly complete, departmental arrangement, was made possible. All inward and outward shipments are now at the Church street, third floor level. All shipments are made and received, under a covered approach to their huge stock room, which is connected by a special freight elevator with each and every floor of their mammoth store. One of the many unique features of unique merchandising progressiveness, on the part of Schwartz Bros., lies in the fact that they have, the six room bungalow, within the spacious floor space, of the store. A 6 room home complete with every piece of furniture needed to start house keeping, is open for your inspection at all times.

Another 2,000 Square Feet of Floor Space Added This Year

When the F. A. Wells Co., gave up business the past year an opportunity presented itself, to secure the second floor of the store so long leased by this old Norwich firm. This was quickly done and as one old friend of Schwartz's said, at the time, "Will Schwartz Brothers Ever Stop Growing."

Twenty Years of Continuous, Constructive Growth.

Twenty years, in looking ahead, seems like a long, long time, but it's only a mere fraction of time, when looking towards the past. From a small, beginning 20 years ago, with only two pair of hands to do the work and two heads to do the thinking, until today the names of 33 employes are found on the pay roll, of what is termed Norwich's most progressive home furnishing establishment.

Most Firms of Such Magnitude as Schwartz Brothers Were Started Two or Three Generations Ago

From father to son, or from grandfather to grandson is usually the order where a business approximating in size, that of Schwartz Brothers, has been built up. Not so in this case however, as Abner and Michael are in the case or in the case of the big store with the little prices (Schwartz Brothers) is the big exception in Norwich.

One would think in reading these lines that the members of the firm of the twentieth anniversary, must of needs be, old long whiskered Rip Van Winkles—Don't you feel yourself?

Not-with-standing the fact, that the firm has a 20 year birthday, every member is youthful in appearance and age, and has many years of service to give to the upbuilding and growth of Norwich and eastern Connecticut. Before closing, it will be no more than just to say a word about the commanding and civic loyalty of Schwartz Brothers towards eastern Connecticut and to Norwich.

It's what we put into our town, and city rather than what we take out, is the unit of measure by which we are judged. Abner Schwartz president of Schwartz Brothers president of the Retail Merchants association, member of the executive committee of The Thames Valley Citizens committee, active in every good movement for the advancement of our city's growth besides active leadership in many fraternal organizations, is the kind of a man that is valuable to any community. May the firm of Schwartz Brothers live long and prosper. Many, many happy returns of the day.

Palace Theatre

If it is a good picture and a good vaudeville show you are looking for, attend the Palace today or tomorrow as the Palace is the place you will find it. Rin Tin Tin appears in the Night Cry and without a question of the doubt, it is the greatest thing he has ever made to date. The vaudeville opens with Haig and Martini in a musical cocktail with a kick, one of the boys plays a piano accordian which the audience respond greatly for. Jack Reddy billed as the author of "Reddy", made laughs and puts over a very clever single with character comedy bits and some good singing. The Dance Whirl comes next with some of the snappiest tap dancing seen in some time performed by two youths 19 years old. Two girls accompany the act. Ed and Mae Davis carry the laugh comedy in fine style and get some big laughs. Carl Dean and Co. close the bill with a musical comedy skit on Maggie and Jiggs.

During the showings of Rin Tin Tin there will be on display in the lobby police dogs from the Chase Cliff kennels.

Strand Theatre

Another American magazine story reaches the screen in "Hearts and Fists," that successful bit of fiction by Clarance Budington Kelland which appeared in that magazine recently.

This thrilling melodrama of lumberjacks and of a boy's right to retrieve his father's lumber business is jammed with action, and as a picture, is filled with daring scenes of fights, perilous rides, and of villainous intrigue.

"Hearts and Fists" is running at the Strand theatre today and Saturday, where it will draw large crowds by virtue of its cast active plot and beautiful scenery. It is an Associated Exhibitors' release made by the H. C. Weaver Productions Corona and directed by Lloyd Ingraham.

One big scene of the picture is that in which Jack Curtis as a hulking lumberjack, and John Bowers engage in a terrific fight, while Marguerite de la Motte rides to the latter's rescue on an aerial cableway, hundreds of feet over the valley. Other equally exciting scenes are richly scattered through the picture.

A new mermaid comedy, "Beware", is just chock full of laughs and a new Kinograms completes a perfect picture program with the well known ladies' orchestra rendering the music.

Coast to Coast Auto Race

Racing across the map, its driver and mechanic bending every effort to hold it in the lead, a fast flying Ford car rolls into San Francisco—ahead of the field in the Quinby cup race. Tearing along behind it, at Carson city, Nevada, is a roaring Buick, its wide open cut-out heralding its approach to the countryside. And right on the heels of the Buick, crossing the line from Utah into Nevada, dashes the third entry—a speedy Stearns. It is a hot three cornered contest, because the race is for high stakes—$25,000—well worth driving for. Neither snow nor rain, wind nor weather matter to these contestants. They must keep up the pace to share in the prize money.

The race is from Boston to the coast and back again—so it's still too early to predict whether the bouncing Buick, the swift Stearns or the puddle-jumping "little Lincoln" will be flagged first. No matter which one wins the lion's share, the Quinby cup—of coffee—will become more popular every day.

This is why:

The auto race is a battle on paper—none the less thrilling to the contestants than the real thing, because the $25,000 being distributed is real money. It will be divided among the salesmen of W. S. Quinby company who show the largest increases in sales. $25,000 is a large sum—but then the Quinby sales force is a large one—and when this amount is distributed among the winners it will enable every deserving salesman to get a worth while prize.

The Quinby coast to coast race is an innovation in salesmen's contests. It was inaugurated January 1st by Quinby company executives as a sales stimulating enterprise. The enthusiasm with which the plan was received by the entire organization has exceeded all expectations. The sales chart at division headquarters shows the ascending curve of a sky-rocket.

Executives of other companies who are looking for a method of speeding up their sales departments can get a few valuable points from the running rules of the Quinby cup race. Under the plan, salesmen are divided into three groups—the Stearns, Ford and Buick teams. The distance traveled weekly by each car is measured by the sales volume of its team. The leading salesman of that team is the driver. The second is the mechanic. In the order of their sales volume come the grease monkeys, tire changers, mud scrapers, and car washers. Since each team is organized as a racing unit, and the united efforts of every member are needed to give them a chance to win first place, there are no slackers in the outfit.

The race is arranged in such a way that by the united efforts of one team it is possible for the members of that group to win the full amount. However, each salesman has an equal opportunity to win a proportionate share of the money, based upon his personal sales regardless of whether he is on the winning team or not.

MARKET FLUCTUATED

NEW YORK, April 29—(AP)—Heavy profit taking and bear selling, coincident with the stiffening of money rates, checked another promising rally in today's stock market. Closing quotations disclosed considerable irregularity. A long list of net gains ranging from 1 to 10 points being counteracted by a smaller number of losses running from 1 to 13 points. Trading was in slightly larger volume than yesterday, the day's sales aggregating 1,468,700 shares.

The calling of $25,000,000 bank loans, presumably in anticipation of a heavy month-end demand for funds, undoubtedly accounted for the making up of the call money rate from 3 1-2 to 4 per cent. Outside the stock exchange, chief interest centered in the renewed weakness of French and Belgian francs, which sold at new record lows of 3.27 1-2 and 3.47 cents, respectively, and the brisk demand for sterling which appeared to within a small fraction of gold parity, the highest rate since the war.

There was little in the day's business news to influence the price movement of stocks, trading was largely of a professional character, with rejuvenated pools endeavoring to arouse public interest in their favorites, but commission houses reported that the demand from small traders centered largely in high grade investment issues.

Many "shorts" in the motor shares were again driven to cover when a buying demonstration in General Motors, apparently based on the expectations of an extra cash dividend of $3 on the common stock next month, sent that stock up to a new high record for the year at 135 1-4, but it later slipped back to 132 7-8, up 1-2 net. Hudson fluctuated between 67 3-4 and 68, closing at 69 1-4 for a small fractional gain. Mack Truck closed fractionally lower at 117 1-8 after having been as high at 119 3-4. Dupont which has large General Motor holdings sold between 215 1-2 and 221 1-2, closing at 219 1-8, up 2 3-4.

Oil shares started upward on the strength of higher commodity prices, but they failed to attract much of a following.

Fresh buying was attracted to the copper shares by the announcement that details practically had been completed for the formation of the new copper export association. American Smelting and Anaconda each advanced about 2 points and Magmal. The demand for the specialties centered largely in issues in which favorable dividends of merger developments are expected during the course of the next few months. Among the many issues to show net advances of two points or more were Associated Dry Goods, Loose-Wiles Biscuit, Montana Powe, White Stores, Sloss Sheffield Steel and Spicer Manufacturing. Sugar shares were helped by the announcement that the Cuban senate had approved the bill to restrict production. Hails were rather quiet although "Big Four" jumped nearly 10 points to another new high at 224 3-4.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

French and Belgian exchanges rallied slightly from their low levels in the late afternoon. Other European rates were irregular and generally unimportant. Foreign exchange dealers here expect a start trading shortly in the penso, the new basic currency of Spain, very. A sharp decline in wheat futures, in sympathy with lower Liverpool prices and reports of butter weather in the crop belt, featured the commodity markets, the May option closing just under $1.63 a bushel. Cotton fluctuated within narrow and irregular limits. Raw sugar was unchanged but futures were slightly firmer. Coffee advanced 25 to 30 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, April 29—(AP)—Indications that the domestic wheat crop outlook is satisfactory notwithstanding dry weather let to much selling today and to a decided setback in values. Closing quotations on wheat here were unsettled, 1 1-8, to 2 1-2 cents net lower, May (new), 1.62 3-4 to 1.62 7-8, and July 1.41 5-8 to 1.41 3-4, with corn 3-8 to 7-8c down, oats 3-8—1-2 to 3-4c off, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of ten cents.

Selling in the wheat market was chiefly of the July delivery most of the selling appeared to come from leading Chicago traders, who heretofore have been regarded in general as holders. Lower Liverpool quotations together with optimistic southwestern crop advices were both given considerable notice as bearish factors and so likewise was unusual absence of speculative demand, especially as continued complaints

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over the St. Lawrence Valley Wednesday night has advanced to the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Except for light showers along the northern border fair weather will prevail almost generally east of the Mississippi river during Friday and Saturday.

The temperature will rise over the eastern half of the country Friday and the weather will become considerably warmer in the Ohio valley and the middle Atlantic states.

There are no indications of a return to unseasonably low temperatures during the next several days.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Moderate west and southwest and partly overcast weather Friday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate to fresh southwest and fair weather Friday.

Forecast

For southern New England: Generally fair Friday and Saturday; slightly warmer Friday.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Thursday:

HAVE LAID 105,164 EGGS IN 25 WEEKS

Production decreased slightly in the Storrs egg laying contest during the 25th week, with the 1400 pullets laying a total of 5169 eggs for the seven days. This is a lay of almost 53 per cent, and 170 eggs less than were laid last week. When compared with the production of the corresponding week a year ago, however, the total represents a gain of 256 eggs. The contest flock passed the 100,000 egg mark during the 25th week, and now the total production since the contest started last November is 105,164 eggs. This is an average production per bird of 75 eggs.

Three pens of Rhode Island Reds, and one each of Barred Rocks and White Wyandottes are represented on the week's honor roll. First place saw a tie between two pens, each with a score of 59 eggs for the seven day period. They are the Barred Rocks entered by Ontario Agricultural college from Guelph, Ont., and the Rhode Island Reds owned by Fabry Bros., from East McKeesport, Pa. Second place was taken by the Rhode Island Reds entered by Harlan W. Kimball from Northboro, Mass., with a score of 57 eggs. The White Wyandottes entered by B. A. Barker from Mazon, Ill., finished third for the week with a lay of 54 eggs. The Reds entered by Shell Crest Farm from Holliston, Mass., were fourth for the week with a production of 52 eggs.

So far as production by varieties is concerned, the Barred Rocks lead with a lay of almost 57 per cent. Rhode Island Reds come next with a production of approximately 55 per cent, and the White Leghorns are third with a lay of almost 53 per cent. White Wyandottes are fourth for the week with a lay of slightly over 49 per cent, and the "All Other Varieties" class are a poor fifth with a lay of slightly over 44 per cent.

The Rhode Island Red entry of John Z. LaBelle from Bellouville, Conn., leads the entire contest with a total lay through the 25th week of 1236 eggs. The entry of Tolvonen Leghorn farm from Girard, Pa., has jumped into second place with a production of 1089 eggs, while the Dudley Poultry farm Leghorns from Webster, Mass., are in third place with a lay of 1056 eggs.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes

FOUR UNCONTESTED DIVORCES FOR HEARING

Four uncontested divorces are on the list to be heard Friday in the superior court at New London before Judge C. L. Avery.

They are the following:

Mary King Gately vs. Edward A. Gately, Hobson Dunkley Smith vs. Lillian Young Smith, Walter H. Davidson vs. Rose Davidson, alias ——, Myra Frink Ward vs. Harry W. Ward.

Trial on Cross-Complaint

Among the uncontested divorce cases assigned for the superior court in New London today (Friday) is that of Walter H. Davidson of Sprague, formerly of New Bedford, against Rose Davidson of this city. It will be heard on the cross-complaint brought by Mrs. Davidson.

BUILDING NEW RUBBER MILL ON OLD MILL SITE AT POQUETANUCK

Good progress is being made on the old Lucas woolen mill site at Poquetanuck upon the erection of a new mill for the Airproof Rubber Co., a corporation organized by Lucius Wilcox and William Mileski of this city.

A main building, 145 front by 45 deep, two stories high is being erected and there is a second building, also two stories, about 35 by 45. The main building is going up on the foundations where the Lucas woolen mill stood when it was burned a number of years ago. Tile brick which was secured by blowing down the chimney of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. power house at Hallville will be utilized in the construction.

Electric current secured from the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. will provide the power for the mill, where the principal line of manufacture at the start will be dental rubber supplies and plumber's rubber supplies. Later it is possible that the manufacture may be extended to automobile tubes and tires.

A very favorable purchase of complete machinery equipment for the mill has just been made from the Surplus Trading Corporation of Newark, N. J., through its representative, E. Liebstein. The machinery secured represents an original outlay of about one-fifth of that amount. It comprises complete modern equipment which has been used in the manufacture of tires and tubes. It also includes machinery to making all rubber equipment for Ford cars such as mats, radiator hose, etc.

The machinery will be dismantled as soon as possible and shipped here, the expectation of the selling concern being that it can be loaded by the 15th of May.

Included with the purchase of the machinery is the list of customers which the factory near Newark had, which is regarded as a valuable asset for the new local rubber mill.

PRINTERS AND ENGRAVERS IN THEIR ANNUAL BANQUET

A "fine time" was the opinion of all who attended the fourth annual banquet given by the machine printers and engravers of the U. S. Finishing company Wednesday evening at Buckingham Memorial. At 6:30 o'clock a march played by the Ponemah orchestra, started the assembly to the seven prettily decorated tables in the banquet hall, covers being laid for 50.

After a verse of America, Merton Parkhurst, toastmaster, designated George A. Turner, the song leader, to take charge of the singing and it is needless to say that he kept all in a singing mood throughout the evening.

The Daughters of Veterans, under the supervision of Mrs. D. Louise Atterbury, assisted by Mrs. Annie B. Turner and a score of waitresses served a splendid turkey dinner as follows:

Fruit Cocktail
Cream of Tomato Soup — Saltines
Olives — Radishes
Roast Native Turkey
English Dressing — Cranberry Sauce
Mashed Potato — Mashed Turnip
Peas — Hearts of Celery — Rolls
Salad a la Bon — Petit a la La La
Demi Tasse

During the evening John G. Baushar of New York city, vice president of the United States Finishing company, was the special guest representing the company. He gave an interesting talk concerning the marketing of fine cotton goods and spoke of the spirit of loyalty which prevails between the New York office and the various plants.

Resident Manager John F. Rogers and his assistant, William H. Colins, also gave interesting outlines of the work which is progressing at the local plant. Other speakers included Foreman Printer S. E. Smiley, his assistant, William Kilen, Foreman Engraver John McDougall, Bruce Rogers, John Dick, Harworth Collins and James McClafferty. A feature of the evening was the entertainment by two Boston beauties who thrilled the audience with impersonations, character dancing and singing.

The committee in charge of the successful affair included John Peterson, George A. Turner and Joseph Brown.

TRAFFIC OFFICER TELLS LIONS ABOUT BRIDGEPORT

The weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with the usual large attendance and with John T. Barry acting as president in the absence of President William A. Anderson. Grace was said by Rev. E. C. Dunbar and Edward Rich acted as song leader. Pete Ettler presided at the piano and there were the usual group and club song numbers.

The latter part of the meeting was turned over to the entertainment committee and the five-minute speaker was John T. Barry. His topic was The Volstead act. Captain James Walter, head of the Bridgeport traffic department, told of the various problems encountered by the police in endeavoring to enforce the laws. He related several humorous stories and gave many interesting statistics in connection with the results accomplished by the traffic department of Bridgeport in the past few years. He stated that at intervals during the year educational safety talks are given throughout the schools of Bridgeport by the traffic department and statistics have proven that these talks have accomplished favorable results.

Mayor Milo R. Waters and Chief George Linton of the local police department were both present at the meeting and made brief remarks.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, followed by the salute to the flag.

NORWICH CONTRIBUTES TO UNITED JEWISH RELIEF

Acknowledgment of the receipt of a check for $1,000 from the Norwich committee on the United Jewish campaign has been received from the state headquarters in the following letter:

New Haven, Conn.,
April 24th, 1926.

Mr. Henry M. Land, Treasurer,
139 Washington Street,
Norwich, Conn.

My Dear Mr. Land:—

I beg herewith to acknowledge receipt of your check for one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars toward the Norwich quota of the United Jewish campaign fund for which please accept my thanks.

I am receiving almost daily appeals from the New York headquarters for the funds for this great work and this need is, as perhaps you know, tremendously urgent. Up to the present time Norwich has sent in more funds than any other district and upon this I want to congratulate you; however, do not let the good work stop because of this.

With many thanks and with sincere regards, I am

Yours very truly,
ALEXANDER CAHN.

COMING FROM HONOLULU TO VISIT MOTHER HERE

Mrs. Virginia Juneau of 27 Fifth street is anticipating a visit from her daughter, Mrs. Edith R. Dexter now a resident of Honolulu, who will be accompanied by her daughter Virginia.

Mrs. Dexter and her daughter left Honolulu April 10 on the steamer City of Los Angeles. They made a stop-over of a week in Los Angeles with relatives and left there April 26 by the Panama-Pacific liner Mongolia for New York. It is expected they will arrive in Norwich, May 12.

CHILDREN'S SEWING SCHOOLS EXHIBIT WORK DONE

A remarkable display of sewing, the work of the 200 school children enrolled in the children's sewing schools conducted by the United Workers, was placed on exhibition to the public Thursday afternoon from 4 to 5:30 o'clock at the United Workers home, No. 9 Washington street. Many people visited the exhibit and highly complimented the work done by the children.

On display were numerous aprons, towels, dolls, bed quilts, children's bed caps, underclothing and a number of children's dresses, besides other articles too numerous to mention. An entire room was devoted to the exhibit. Tea was served by Mrs. Shepard B. Palmer, chairman of the club committee, children of the cooking school assisting. Miss Alice W. Coggswell, supervisor of the club department, was in charge of the exhibit.

The display is the work of four sewing classes, three of which meet at the United Workers home and the other at the Falls.

The class ages are from 7 to 12 or 13 the younger children being started on simple stitching and progressing to the finer work, the making of handkerchiefs, towels, aprons and dresses.

RECOVERING FROM INJURIES WHEN HIT BY AUTO

After nearly five weeks in Backus hospital on account of injuries received March 18, Miss Jennie G. Bonney is at her home on the Harland road where she is being cared for and in some respects is slowly improving.

Miss Bonney was struck and rendered unconscious on the Harland road on the afternoon of March 18 by an automobile operated by Antonio Costentino of 4 Valley street. Miss Bonney was coming from the Sheltering Arms and had wholly crossed the road, it is stated, after looking up and down to be assured that no automobile was coming. She was within a step or two of her home when the car operated by Costentino, struck her down. The accident was witnessed by Miss Dorothy Sherman, who was diagonally opposite and near the place. It is understood she noticed there was no other car on the road, that no horn was sounded, and she observed the great speed of the oncoming machine.

OLDER GIRLS' CONFERENCE TO BE HELD AT BROOKLYN

The program of the Older Girls' conference of Windham county, to be held at Brooklyn, has been completed. Among the day's events will be the following features: An outdoor recognition; opening the conference; Informal talks by two Wellesley girls on "What I Have Found at College"; music by the girls' choir of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson; a hike to some point of interest; a fellowship supper; a story hour in charge of Miss Frances Weid Danielson; and a closing friendship service, Rev. A. Avery Gates of East Douglas, Mass., will speak at the morning session, and the afternoon address will be given by Rev. David M. Beach, Jr., whose subject will be, "The Quest for the Highest."

The conference is to be held in Brooklyn on Saturday, May 8, registration cards may be had of Mrs. H. W. Gaylor, 22 Hawkins street, Danielson, and all registration is expected to be in her hands by May 1.

The conference will begin at 9:30 daylight saving time.

CHANCE FOR APPOINTMENTS TO NAVAL ACADEMY

One hundred enlisted men of the navy are eligible for appointment as midshipmen at the naval academy at Annapolis each year. To be eligible for these appointments, a candidate must be less than 20 years of age on the first of July 1927, and must enlist in the navy before July 1, 1926. It is also required that candidates must have at least two years high school or its equivalent in education, including two half years of algebra and one year geometry.

A preparatory class for the naval academy entrance examinations is conducted at Hampton Roads, Va., where candidates are sent to prepare for their examination. This class runs from Nov. 1 until the final examinations are held for entrance to Annapolis.

Justin E. McCarthy, chief quartermaster, U. S. N. R., is posted here as recruiting officer and is at the post office building daily from 9:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

TWO JUDGMENTS GIVEN IN COMMON PLEAS

Two judgments in the common pleas court were rendered this week by Judge C. B. Waller.

Morris Epstein of Preston obtained judgment for $700 against Luigi Barreta and D. Ymateo, and others, also of Preston. The judgment was rendered on a note held by Epstein and secured a mortgage on a farm owned by the defendant located in the town of Preston. The 24th of May was given as the limitation of time for redemption.

Joseph Lake of New London was given judgment for $688.75 on a $500 note with interest from James Walton, also of that place, when Walton failed to disclose his defense within the time limited by law.

For Burial In Poughkeepsie

Daniel Sullivan, 39, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., died in Preston Thursday morning. The body was prepared for burial by Undertakers Cummings and Ring and was sent to his home in Poughkeepsie on the 11:30 o'clock, e. t., train out of New London Thursday morning.

NOLLES IN ARSON AND RECKLESS DRIVING

Louis Strom, local horse dealer, was in the city court Thursday morning to answer to a charge of parking his machine in a no-parking zone and to using abusive language to Officer Frank Gwizdowski, who barred him Wednesday evening. The officer was about to tag the machine at Thames square when Mr. Strom appeared and got into the car. There was an argument and it is alleged that Mr. Strom used some abusive language in his conversation. The result was that Officer Gwizdowski arrested Strom, ordering him to proceed to the station. In court Strom denied the charge of using abusive language. He said he had left the car for only a minute or so. As Officer Gwizdowski informed the court that he thought he could secure another witness to substantiate his testimony the case was continued until Friday morning.

After a rather long hearing the charge against John Miller of New London, reckless driving, was dropped the accused being discharged by the court. He was driving a Dodge coupe Sunday evening and collided with a truck owned by the Commercial garage on Laurel Hill. The truck was parked by the roadside and Miller claimed that he was blinded by the lights of an approaching car and that there were no lights on the parked truck. Miller's car was badly wrecked and about $100 worth of damage was done to the truck.

Judge Arthur E. Libby nolled the charge of arson against Thomas Militsis of New London. He was held in connection with the incendiary fire at the New Olympia Candy Kitchen at Norwich Town last February. Zozo Costules, proprietor of the candy store is now awaiting trial in the superior court on a charge of arson. City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins recommended the nolle as he did not think there was sufficient evidence to bind the accused man over to the higher court.

Militsis had been held as an accessory as it was claimed that he was at the candy kitchen on the morning the fire was discovered by the two girls who allowed the fire to get such headway.

Women Voters Make Plans

Plans were made at a meeting held at the Y. W. C. A. in New London on Wednesday for the annual meeting of the New London County League of Women Voters which is to be held Thursday, May 6th at Bride Brook Farm Inn.

The nominating committee elected to select a slate of officers at the annual meeting was composed of Mrs. Donald G. Mitchell of New London, chairman, Mrs. Albert W. Avery of Montville and Mrs. Frederick P. Latimer of Groton.

MAKING SALADS SUBJECT OF MISS PECKHAM'S LESSON

Wednesday afternoon, 32 Norwich housewives were given a practical lesson in salad making, by Miss Gladys L. Peckham, home service expert, at the lecture room of the Gas & Electric company. The demonstration was on stuffed tomato salad, tomato salad piquante, luncheon salad—a cornucopia of cold sliced ham filled with peas, beets and diced potatoes, iced—also molded beet salad.

The same lesson will be given to the Friday afternoon class.

Next week Wednesday and Friday the subject of the lectures will be garnishes and dressing.

Fifty-seven attended the brides' class Monday evening, when Miss Peckham's lesson was on making sponge cake.

Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. C. D. Sevin, who assists Miss Peckham in the lessons, distributed, with the compliments of the Gas & Electric company, hand bridge score cards and pencils.

NORWICH TOWN

The sacrament of the Lord's supper will be observed, following the sermon at the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, officiating.

Under the auspices of the Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor society, at its service Sunday evening in the chapel, Miss Alice W. Cogswell of Lincoln avenue and Miss Edith M. Bliss of Washington street, are to give a lecture with stereopticon slides, on their trip to the Holy Land. This will be an open meeting to all interested.

Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich, will be the officiating clergyman at the Sheltering Arms service, Sunday afternoon. He will be accompanied by that church choir.

It was estimated that during Friday and Saturday, about one hundred attended the private sale of furniture, pictures, bric-a-brac, china, etc., at the home of the late Mrs. Walter H. Gallup, of Town street. The many things disposed of were in charge of Messrs. Fullerton and Dowd.

Mr. and Mrs. John Olsen of Town street, have been entertaining for several days Mr. and Mrs. Earl Maynard and little daughter, Mildred, who are to return today (Thursday) to their home on Fishers Island, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Gill have broken up their home in Middletown and at present are staying at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George La Valley, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Birdsey of Elm avenue. Mrs. Birdsey is granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gill.

It is sincerely regretted that Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Swift for the past year Norwich Town residents, their home being on Sentry Hill, Harland's Corner, are moving to Arlington, Mass. For the past few weeks, Mr. Swift has been located in Massachusetts, having a position on Trement street, Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Stonton, who purchased the Swift home, are to take up their residence there at an early date.

It is stated that Charles Morgan Williams is so greatly improved at the New Haven hospital where he has been receiving treatment following a serious surgical operation a number of weeks ago, that he is soon to return to his home on Washington street. The report gives great pleasure to his relatives and friends. When motoring to New Haven Sunday last to visit her husband, Mrs. Williams was accompanied by friends.

In recognition of the birthday of Mrs. Ardella Kennedy, of Danielson, her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy of Norwich Town, were motor guests of Miss Alice M. Smith on Sunday and paid a visit to her home on Furnace street. While Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy were visiting their relatives, Miss Smith continued to Brooklyn, Conn., and was a dinner guest at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith former Norwich Town residents. Before returning home, Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy called on Mr. and Mrs. Smith who served light refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Robbins and son Master Burton Robbins Jr., of Providence were motor guests Sunday to Norwich Town where they called on Mr. Robbins' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. David M. Dean of Town street.

Thomas Wilcox, superintendent of Idle Manse, Mansfield, was a dinner guest recently of District Humane Agent Fred H. Wyant and Mrs. Wyant of 24 Town street.

Miss Annie Smith and Miss Ella Smith, of Colchester, had as their guests Tuesday, their sister, Mrs. George A. Peck, of Norwich Town.
